QUINCY'S "OLD VETS" HOLD MIDWINTER SOCIAL

"Wash" M. French Hose Association Entertained By President

It was a jolly party of fire fighters of Qiuncy's earlier days that gathered at Wilson's hall, Saturday night at the midwinter social of the Washington M. French Hose Association.

On this occasion the boys were the guests of the president of the Association Fred H. French, a son of the man from whom the old hose company derived its name.

The association was originally composed of those who had been members of that hose reel, whose sides were adorned with a life like painting of "Wash" French.

Then it was called the "Twenty Associates." Later came the association and with the passing out of service of the Niagara, Tiger, Granite and Vulture, the old hand tubs the Association broadened its field of usefulness.

It now numbers among its members some of those who ran with these old machines and punctually gathered in the "engine house" after an alarm to partake of the crackers, cheese, codfish and coffee which the steward always prepared at an alarm, whether that alarm proved to be a fire or not.

Is it any wonder then that in those days the fire companies sometimes turned out in the night and ran for what looked like a fire but which later proved to be only a bright full moon. But those were good old days just the same.

Twice during the year the boys got together. In September when the association holds its annual reunion at Squantum and in January when they are the guests of Fred French, the first and only president the association ever had.

Fred was at his best Saturday night and as genial as ever.

Down the centre of the hall was a long table loaded with good things to eat and around this the party was seated. There were forty present and it is somewhat remarkable that of this number 36 were Quincy born boys, although all do not now reside here.

Among those present were Mayor Shea, an old Granite man who occupied the seat at the head of the table. At his right was James T. Penniman, an ex-engineer and the oldest veteran fireman in Quincy. At the Mayor's left was James H. Elcock an ex-engineer and like the Mayor a spouter for the old Granite. Then came Warren W. Adams an old Vulture boy and Chief Williams an old Tiger boy.

Then there were a lot of the old W. M. French company and the old John W. Hall Hook and Ladder company. These included Asa Pope, George Tirrell, Bill Hayward, Jim Maxim, Aubrey R. Keith, Assistant Engineer Frank C. Packard, Albert Keating, Frank L. Carlton, Ed. Kittredge one of the old Vultures strongest supporters, ex-Chief A. L. Litchfield, Scotty Randall, Arthur C. Merritt, George H. Wilson, George H. Foss, Jesse F. Curtis the genial secretary of the Association, ex-Councilman Eugene R. Stone, Quinn Torrey, Martin Hersey, Al. Taber, Dan Snow, Warren S. Parker, Jim Nicol, Bill Coffin, Henry Miller, Joseph C. Morse, Sarg. Ford, J. H. Dinegan, Galen the old vet and the genial host Fred H. French.

The only others noted were three scribes, who don't count although some of them owned up to having run to fires with the Hose company in its palmy days.

Henry P. Furnald furnished the supper and it was a good one. The menu included potato and chicken salad escalloped oysters, cold ham, rolls, coffee, ice cream and cake.

After dinner President French said there would be but little speechmaking but he would have to call on the Mayor.

Mayor Shea told how glad he was to be present and again mentioned that memorable run of the Granite, about which some doubts have always been expressed. He was however back up by ex-Engineer Elcock who was also a Granite boy.

Mr. Elcock said he always liked to meet the boys and talk over old times.

Ex-engineer James T. Penniman who is now 90 years of age said he never missed one of these gatherings and that he should always come to them as long as he could. He wished all the boys a long life and as happy a one as he had enjoyed.

Chief Williams said fighting fires was different these days. His first fire duty had been under Washington M. French when the Tiger made a run from South Quincy to South Braintree in twenty minutes.

Warren W. Adams said he had run with the Vulture which used to make some quick runs to the centre.

President French said he would have evidence enough at the outing in September to offset that Granite run story.

By this time the only Galen had got his voice tuned up and he sang "The Sword of Bunker Hill" and "The Star Spangled Banner."

After hearing those songs no one seemed to care to make any speeches, and the remainder of the evening was spent in fighting over again the fires of other days.

W. Q. LADIES' AID SOCIETY.

The members of the Ladies' Aid society of the West Quincy M. E. church were entertained Thursday evening at the home of Mrs. F. Wesley Fuller, Hall place.

After the regular business had been transacted the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Mrs. W. A. McCormack; vice president, Mrs. J. R. McCormick; secretary, Miss Alice Clarke; treasurer, Mrs. Daniel McNeil.

At the close of the election, Miss Loud in a few well chosen words presented the retiring president, Mrs. J. R. McCormick, with a Haviland china salad dish, who thanked the members for the beautiful gift and for the loyal support they had given her the past year.

A collation of ices and cake was served, and a social hour spent, during which there was vocal and instrumental music.

DR. WEDDELL MAKES PERSONAL APPEAL

Evangelist Preaches at Bethany Church and Y. M. C. A.

The evangelistic services in Quincy Sunday were very largely attended. The first service was at the Y. M. C. A. men's meeting in the afternoon. J. A. Sedgwick treasurer of the Fore River Co. opened the meeting and prayer was offered by Rev. Alfred R. Atwood of the Washington Street Congregational church. Rev. A. M. Thompson of the United Presbyterian church read the scriptures. Besides these clergymen there was Rev. Dr. Edwin N. Hardy of the Bethany church and Rev. R. G. Davis of the Calvary Baptist church and Rev. Dr. Weddell who has charge of the services in Quincy. The singing was in charge of A. P. Briggs of Cambridge.

Dr. Weddell spoke on "A King's Sin." He appealed to the men to seek a personal Saviour in the person of Jesus Christ.

At the evening service at Bethany church there was a very large attendance it being necessary to place some seats in the gallery in order to accommodate all those who attended. On the platform were Dr. Hardy, Rev. Edward A. Chase, Rev. Hugh Graham of Niantic, Ct., E. G. Gay of the Quincy Y. M. C. A. and Dr. Weddell.

Rev. Mr. Chase made the opening prayer and Mr. Gay read the scriptures. A. P. Briggs the leader of the singing and Dr. Weddell sang two duetts, "A Clean Heart" and "His Eye is on the Sparrow."

Dr. Weddell made a powerful appeal to man to accept Jesus as his leader and follow him faithfully to the end. After the sermon he called for a show of hands for those who wanted to lead a Christian life and be with Jesus and there was a very large response. A testimonial meeting was held after the regular service.

FIRE AT WEST QUINCY.

Double House On Douglas Street Badly Gutted.

The alarm from Box 46 at 10.48 this morning called the department to a stubborn fire in a double house at 40 Douglass street, the house was owned by John Vogel and was occupied by two Italian families. The fire is said to have been caused by the thawing out of the water pipes. The fire got a good start and by the time the department arrived it was burning briskly.

The bitter cold weather made it extremely hard for the firemen as the water froze as it struck their clothing, coating them with ice.

The side of the house where the fire started was badly gutted and part of the roof was burned off. It was an hour after the alarm sounded before the fire was under control and the recall sounded.

Chief Williams estimates the loss at $800.

—The New York street cleaning department advertised for 10,000 men to shovel snow for 25 cents an hour, and succeeded in securing the services of less than half that number. And yet we doubt not the "bread line" was just as large as ever this particular day. The men in the bread line as a rule do not want work, but want to get supported for nothing. MAN THE VICTIM OF PERSONAL PLEASURE

Rev. A. E. Clattenburg Preaches Strong Sermon at St. Chrysostoms Church

At St. Chrysostom's church Sunday morning Rev. A. E. Clattenburg took for his text, St. Luke IV, 28:29 verse "And all they in the synagogue when they heard these things were filled with wrath, and rose up and thrust Him out of the city and led Him unto the brow of the hill whereon their city was built, that they might cast Him down headlong."

Mr. Clattenburg said in part:

Is it strange that many christians are today misunderstood when Jesus Himself was misunderstood by His own immediate neighbors? And if that great character the divine son of God could deal gently with those who would not accept His good offices should we not all the more deal gently with those of our day who reject us and our witness to Jesus? Very often you will find christians who are soured to the back bone because they have not been received as they think they should be. People have misunderstood them, not taken them at exactly their own valuation and this has made them change their attitudes toward the world in general, and a few in particular.

When one looks at the gospel story and learns of the life of the Master our petty life with its shadow of troubles sinks out of sight. Here was a being who lived from all time with God the Father, He had with God, from the beginning of the existence of God all the honor and all the glory that pertained to the Godhead this only begotton son consented to come into our world as a human being, and walk among men.

He was among us as God. "Never man spoke as this man." His whole mission into the world of men was a mission of kindness. His own life had been given up that He might live the life of human beings, and when this divine being came as man to exhort His people to become like God in character, they led Him up to the brow of the hill and wished to hurl Him headlong.

This was going a trifle further than people will go today when dealing with a person who is not agreeing with them. The most that comes to man is that his character, his life, his actions are not appreciated as he thinks they should be.

Jesus endeavored to win them all to his life, to his Kingdom and when He laid down His life for us He commanded His disciples to go forth and win all men to their side. Jesus forgave them as He asked His father to forgive them "For they knew not what they were doing."

But the people of today who think they are rejected and thrust aside, do they still persist in doing God's cause? Do they keep on "manfully fighting under his banner against sin, the world, and the devil?" But why is there this vast difference between the attitude of Jesus towards those who did not understand Him, and the attitude of those christians who are not understood in our day? It must be because Jesus was in the world to obey the Father's will, while man thinks he is in the world to do his own sweet will. Look at the actions of Jesus, you can almost hear Him praying continually "not my will but Thine be done". We know the character of God. He is the God of love, to Him and to his revelation. His divine son, we are indebted for our glorious conception of love. How many things there are in the make up of man that tend to prevent him from doing always the will of God. All live in peace and harmony together,, no petty jealousies, no striving to take away a brothers good character, in love prefering one another, no one to seek first his own welfare, but all to seek the good of others. This is the will of God for men, but how does it find fulfilment in the mind of man?

There are four things that tend to make the will of God of no effect. Caprices, hasty judgments, personal pleasure and uncongenial tasks.

Caprice aids us in making the will of God of no effect by its tendency to make us do things that have not had sufficient thought. The desires of today are the aversions of tomorrow. Why is that so; if it is not because the act or the desire had not been given sufficient thought.

At first glance it may seem all right, to conform to the will of God, to be in accordance with man's best nature, but when turned over in the mind it proves to be just the opposite.

"I wanted it so badly" said the one who had just spoken of a past desire "and now I am so glad I did not get it. I can see, looking back, that it would have changed the whole current of my life, and changed it for the worse. I would never have attained to what I have if my desire had been granted." It is yielding to the sudden impluses that make it impossible at times for the will of God to be obeyed and may be the direct cause of making others do the same contrary thing. Speak only those thoughts that have been tried and tested well. Do those actions that you are convinced are the ones that accord best with the will of God. Then you will have reached the glorious stage of imitating Jesus.

Hasty judgment, the people have misunderstood Jesus, they were judging and condemning Him on the spot. That is the fault of people today; men and women think they are at liberty to sit in judgment on their neighbor. When it is not done openly it is insinuated. People sometimes do things without a motive that is clear and plain, and the will of God could be worked out in your life better if you did not look with suspicion on every act of those about you. Give men the credit of doing things good and honest, if you should not be openly acknowledged a public benefactor or receive the appreciation that you think you deserve do not give the credit to a false motive. Do not try to adjust every thing yourself. Remember how much Jesus did for which He received no thanks. If your sorrows and troubles are equal to His, you should be indeed miserable. Go out into the world with a cheerful and joyous heart, not looking for slights and affronts that were not intended. It is when we try to do the work of the Eternal Judge that we are making of no effect the will of God.

We do the selfsame thing when we do only those things that minister to our own pleasure. Think you it was was a pleasurable thing for Jesus to go in and out daily among the people who were ready to stone him to death? But do you find him turning away from his enemies and walking only with those who returned his love? It is partly because we ask to do things that are pleasurable to us that the will of God is not fulfilled by us, and worked out in our daily lives. But ordinary christians have not progressed far enough that accounts for so many slips in life.

In the life of every one God sends some uncongenial tasks. One can find situations in the life of every individual that would be uncongenial. Yet the will of God is that all be meet and treated the same with the heart full of the love of God. Any shirking makes it almost impossible for those dependent upon our action to obey the will of God. Man too often consults his own wishes. Jesus could look out of his great soul at the world and be at peace with every individual in it. It is also God's will for us, no matter what men do, to us or fail to do we must cherish no hatred, harbour no ill thoughts, we must love all around us for the simple reason which to us is the most pressing reason that it is God's will that we should.

Get out your pung.

"The devil" has left Boston for a fact.

A white automobile on Hancock street gave everybody that looked at it a chill yesterday morning.

The Ledger had a scoop on all the Boston papers Monday on its story of Miss Emma Huntress of North Weymouth who has fallen heir to a fortune. One of the Boston Sunday papers had the story in yesterday one week behind the Ledger.

The appended editorial clipped from the Boston Advertiser should be read by all citizens of Quincy who are anxious to see the White Mountains preserved in all their mightly grandeur for future generations to enjoy.

Hearty approval will be expressed of the move by the Boston Merchants Association towards uniting all the commercial organizations of New England in a formidable protest at Washington against further delay in meeting New England's just demands regarding the preservation of the White Mountain forests. The facts have all been brought out, and it only remains for New England to make a sufficient demonstration at Washington. It does not follow that this will result in favorable legislation. The importance of the issue has been set forth time and again. The opinion is general and reasonable that facts and reasons have nothing whatever to do with the attitude which has thus far prevented the passage of a bill to insure the preservation of these necessary New England forests. The best hope that is held out now is that there may be enacted (and this is by no means certain) some measure which shall effect an inadequate compromise, by which New England will get something, though not at all what it desires or has the right to demand. New England is not asking a favor of congress, but thus far the attitude has been such as to carry the impression that New England had no rights in the matter. Facts have been presented and are well understood. It remains to be seen how deep an impression this protest will make where an impression is needed.

The question of providing ample accommodations for the school children is quite a problem. Although it is scarcely a month since the new twelve room Coddington school building was opened the superintendent reports to the school committee that the building is crowded and something must be done to provide additional accommodations in this and other districts.

Acting upon this report the School Committee voted to again call the attention of the City Council to the almost imperative need of a school building for the Houghs Neck children.

The City Council of last year took up this question and even went so far as to request the Mayor to secure plans for a four room building.

This the Mayor did and the plans are now in the possession of the Council.

No action was taken by the Council of 1908 on these plans for the reason that it was necessary to secure a suitable lot of land before the plan was selected.

Late in the year Councilman Gilson introduced an order calling for an appropriation of $6,000 for the purchase of a lot of land at Houghs Neck for a school building.

The Committee on Public Buildings took up the matter and looked at several possible sites. This committee assigned several nights to meet the owner of the property in question who has often promised to appear before them with a plan and estimates but the plan never appeared.

It was then the latter part of December and as it was too late to get an order passed the plans for the proposed building were referred to this year's council.

This shows that the City Council fully understands the need of a building to take care of the Houghs Neck children but it would be folly to accept any plan until the lot had been purchased.

The present time is not very auspicious to look at school lots and it is very doubtful if the City Council committee can do much until spring.

Other school districts are as badly off as is the Coddington district and as noted above it has become quite a problem how to provide sufficient accommodations.

It would seem that the only way is for the city to build a twelve room school building every year.

FIRST OF A SERIES.

Musical Vespers Fill Wollaston Congregational Church.

The first of a series of musical vesper services, to be held on the last Sunday of each month, was held in the Wollaston Congregational church on Sunday at 4 o'clock.

The church was filled, many persons from other Wollaston churches attending.

Rev. Edward A. Chase took for his subject the saving of souls. He compared the call of the wireless from the shipwrecked Republic to the calls of souls in distress in our earthly life. He said that the Lord would save those wrecked souls even as were the people on the Republic saved.

The choir singing, assisted by Mrs. Oscar Hunting of Boston, cellist, was one of the principal features of the service.

Selections from the "Holy City" were rendered and the solos of Mrs. Mary Hastings Slade and Miss Ida Poore proved of great enjoyment to those present.

FORE RIVER.

The shipyard has just passed a most prosperous year, that is as far as prospertiy can go in a country which does not aid its shipping and shipbuilding by means of a proper ship subsidy.

Although the yard is not running at its full capacity, there is at the present time a reasonable amount of work under construction, and there is every reason to believe that six months will see this immense plant running in full blast.

At the present time, of the 8 steel steamers for the Sea Coast Artillery Service of the United States War Department, all have been launched, 1 having been delivered and accepted.

Of the 7 steel car floats for the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company, five have been launched and delivered. 1 will be launched today, the last one is on the stocks in process of construction.

Steel transfer tug No. 22 for the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company, will take the water in two weeks.

Two of the seven submarine torpedo boats for the United States government will, it is expected, be launched in the neighborhood of six weeks, the other five to immediately follow.

Battleship North Dakota, as is well known, progressing rapidly, being far ahead of schedule time.

The wooden schooner William F. Green is being converted into a floating machine shop to be used on the trials of the submarine torpedo boats. The repairs include a large amount of ship-carpenter work, also a boiler, compressor, generator and condensor will be installed.

In addition to the above a large amount of commercial work consisting in the main of high-grade forgings and machine work is being done, together with the force of men at work for the company in Japan, installing turbine engines in Japanese war vessels.

—The Citizens' League at Randolph elected these officers last week. President, W. B. Atherton; vice-president, J. A. Brennan; secretary, Frank D. McCarthy; treasurer, Peter Casey; executive committee, Henry A. Belcher, C. A. Hill, Timothy Lyons, D. J. Brennan, and F. M. French.

Federal District Attorney Tells Jerome to Prosecute Newspaper In State Courts and Is Promised Government Co-operation—Root's Good Name May Be Defended In Suit to Be Brought by Federal Authorities

New York, Feb. 1.—Henry L. Stimson, United States district attorney for the southern district of New York, made public a letter in reply to one written by District Attorney Jerome on the subject of beginning an action for criminal libel in the state courts against the publishers of the New York World because of published charges regarding the Panama canal purchase.

Mr. Stimson tells Jerome to prosecute, and assures him "that such action on your part will in no wise be regarded as an interference, but, on the contrary, we shall regard it as our duty to co-operate with you in all proper and lawful ways."

Mr. Jerome had asked if action in the state courts on behalf of Douglas Robinson, President Roosevelt's brother-in-law, who is a resident of the city and who was mentioned in the article, would be an unwise interference with the actions begun under federal jurisdiction.

Mr. Stimson answers this question negatively, but he does not say that the federal prosecution will cease in the event Jerome institutes a suit.

It is apparent from the wording of the letter that, while the federal authorities concede to Jerome the right to appear as the protector of Douglas Robinson's good name, they reserve to themselves the privilege of acting in defense of the reputation of "a gentleman who occupied the position of head of the war department" in any federal jurisdiction in which action would lie.

The reference to the "gentleman who occupied the position of head of the war department" gave rise in some quarters to speculation as to the person meant by Stimson. An official of the government, who declined to permit the use of his name, said the statement was intended to refer to Elihu Root, who was secretary of war when negotiations for the purchase of the Panama canal property were concluded, though the deeds of the property were actually turned over to this country when William H. Taft was secretary.

PRIZE WINNERS ENTERED

San Antonio, Tex., Feb. 1.—Four days of this week, beginning today, will be filled with interest for sportsmen of this city and the surrounding country by the field trials of hunting dogs, an open air sport that has taken firm hold in recent years.

The open, all age, Derby and champion stakes, in which the best dogs of the country are entered, began today on the Nix and adjoining ranches. The trials are intended as tests for the best dogs at hunting quail, with which this territory abounds. Many of the animals that are competing are prize winners, and in the final series the racing and other tests will be sensational and thrilling.

NO ROOM FOR THEM

Refugees Must Remain Away From Messina For the Present

Messina, Feb. 1.—General Mazza has issued an official statement in which he says:

"It is absolutely impossible to grant permission to the refugees to return to their homes for the purpose of excavating their houses, as it would be impossible to lodge them. The huts which have been built and are still being built are not sufficient to shelter those who have remained here. Indeed, 500 refugees on board a steamer in the harbor have not been allowed

The continuation of the shocks keeps the people in a state of alarm, for there is still much danger from the broken walls of the buildings.

Duke Is Bound to Wed

Turin, Feb. 1.—Notwithstanding official denials, it is still asserted that the Duke of the Abruzzi has resigned as an officer of the Italian navy. It is also stated that he has expressed his determination to ultimately marry Miss Katherine Elkins, either as a royal prince or a private individual.

Policeman Receives a Bullet

Portland, Me., Feb. 1.—Police Officer Silas S. Lemont was shot in the groin in a pistol fight with two desperadoes Saturday evening. Lemont is resting comfortably and will recover in a short time. There is no clue to the whereabouts of the men who attacked him.

No Clue to Identity of Wreck

Norfolk, Feb. 1.—The identity of the steamer which went down early Saturday, probably with all hands, off Diamond Shoals, yet remains unknown.

N. Y. CENTRAL'S NEW HEAD

W. C. Brown Assumes Charge of Road as President Today

New York, Feb. 1.—With the opening of business today at the offices of the New York Central and Hudson River railroad the system has a new head. William H. Newman, the outgoing president, retires to

The promotion of Mr. Brown will make no change in the personnel of the vice presidents of the road immediately. Mr. Newman will continue as a member of the board. Mr. Brown was formerly senior vice president of the road.

NO FAULT TO FIND

Expert Engineers Will Refute Criticisms Concerning Gatun Dam

Panama, Feb. 1.—The engineers who accompanied President-Elect Taft to the isthmus and who have been examining the canal construction spent Sunday at Gatun with Chief Engineer Goethals. After investigation they had no fault to find with the natural foundations for the dam, and they regard the plans for safeguarding the dam as being complete in every respect.

They will make a report to President Roosevelt and, it is understood, refute the criticisms that have been made with regard to the dam and its construction. They will inspect Culebra Cut today.

It is understood that the present canal plans will be approved throughout by the engineers in their report.

TYPHOID FEVER IN ARMY CAMPS

Measures Taken to Prevent Disease by Means of Vaccination

Washington, Feb. 1.—Immunization against typhoid fever in army camps by vaccination is to be undertaken by the military authorities. The whole matter is to be frankly put before the army and individuals are to be invited to volunteer for vaccination.

No soldier or officer will be compelled to submit to anti-typhoid vaccination against his will, but an effort will be made by lectures and examples to show the soldier the advantage of availing himself of such a simple and easy way of escaping one of the worst and most dreaded of army camp diseases.

BANKER MORSE'S APPEAL

Friends Think That He Should Be Bailed Pending Its Result

New York, Feb. 1.—Friends of Charles W. Morse, the convicted banker, are preparing a petition to the judges of the United States circuit court of appeals asking them to admit Morse to bail, pending the outcome of his appeal from Judge Hough's sentence of fifteen years in prison for the violations of the national banking laws. Scores of prominent merchants and bankers, it is said, have already signed the petition. Morse is in the Tombs here.

Seth M. Milliken, ex-president of the Mercantile National bank, and James Talcott, commission merchant and capitalist, are heading the movement. These men feel that Morse ought to be out on bail until the higher court has reviewed his case.

Fire In a Theatre

Bath, Me., Feb. 1.—Starting in one of the dressing rooms of the Columbia theatre, fire badly damaged the interior of the theatre. Stores on the ground floor were considerably damaged by smoke and water. The loss is estimated at $10,000.

Turkey to Bulgaria

Constantinople, Feb. 1.—Grand Vizer Kiamil Pasha has dispatched to Sofia an energetic note demanding to know definitely whether Bulgaria intends to resume negotiations.

Earthquake In Montreal

Montreal, Feb. 1.—A slight earthquake shock was felt in the upper portions of the city about midnight last night. No damage has been reported.

IN DEFENSE OF THE KAISER

Book With That Purpose In View Nearly Ready

FAMOUS KRUGER TELEGRAM

Emperor Remained Silent For Twelve Years and Bore Blame For Authorship, When It Really Originated With His Advisers and Was Transmitted Against His Will—Scapegoat of an Incompetent Bureaucracy

Berlin, Feb. 1.—The Fuersten Correspondez, which is read by the emperor, the crown prince, Chancellor Von Buelow and other august personages, announces conspicuously the coming publication of a book entitled "William the Second," which is a strong defense of the emperor and exonerates him from the authorship of the famous "Kruger Telegram."

The author of the book, Adolf Stein, in a long explanation, states that the telegram did not originate with the emperor, but that it was a well considered answer by the foreign office to an inquiry from the Transvaal and was, in fact, a roundabout way of refusing German intervention in South Africa.

The writer goes on to say that the emperor objected to the telegram, but allowed himself to be overruled by his officials and for twelve years remained silent and bore the blame, while working incessantly to prevent the worst consequences of his advisers' blunder.

The book also represents the emperor as the scapegoat of an incompetent bureaucracy in the crisis of June, 1905, and in recent months, and is full of special pleading for the "misunderstood and misrepresented emperor."

The Famous Telegram

The telegram referred to was one sent by the German emperor to President Kruger on Jan. 3, 1896, in which the emperor expressed his sincere congratulations on the suppression of thet Jameson raid. In his telegram, the emperor said:

"I express my sincere congratulations that, supported by your people and without appealing for help to friendly powers, you have succeeded by your own energetic action against the armed bands which invaded your country as disturbers of the peace, and have thus been enabled to restore peace and safeguard the independence of your country from attack without."

FUTURE OF PHILIPPINES

Rests With United States Until Certain Conditions Are Complied With

Manila, Feb. 1.—The Philippine assembly opened today with simple ceremonies, President Osmena presiding. The first business to come before the body was the annual message to the assembly of Governor General Smith, which read in part as follows:

"My last word to the Filipinos is that the great majority and not a small minority of the citizens are prepared to make intelligent use of the franchise; until democratic usages and customs have permeated throughout the population, and become a part of the daily life of the people; until the power of unconsciable agitators and demagogues is broken; until education has created a just public sentiment which specious arguments and false doctrines cannot destroy; until a citizen has not only the power to judge, but also the courage to act for himself, the best future of the islands lies with the land which has given the Filipinos rights, liberties and privileges not enjoyed by peoples which have had independence and national existence for hundreds of years."

MANY HUNDRED KILLED

Moroccan Village Wiped Out by Avalanche of Earth and Rocks

Ceuta, Morocco, Feb. 1.—Native accounts of an avalanche which occurred at Romara state that it occurred during the night and was preceded by loud subterranean noises, which threw the inhabitants into a panic.

A sudden and terrible shock occurred and an avalanche of earth and huge rocks swept down, completely burying the village.

None of the several hundred inhabitants had time to escape.

Pine Tree State's Finances

Augusta, Me., Feb. 1.—The annual report of State Treasurer Gilmore shows that the revenues of the state during the past year amounted to $2,991,519, while the expenditures were $2,902,452. The cash on hand at present totals $568,534.

Shocks In Portugal

Lisbon, Feb. 1.—Slight earthquake shocks, accompanied by subterranean rumblings, have occurrred in the region near Beja. No damage has been done.

Eight Sailors Perish

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

HEADS OF LABOR UNIONS TO MEET

Many Matters of Vital Interest to Be Discussed

WELFARE OF THE WAGE EARNER

Problem of the Unemployed, Influx of Immigration to the United States, Most Effective Use of Nobel Industrial Peace Prize and Advisability of Certain Legislation to Be Thoroughly Threshed Out

Washington, Feb. 1.—Invitations have been given more than twenty prominent labor leaders in all parts of the country to participate in the proposed "council of labor" to be held on Feb. 10, at the department of commerce and labor, when questions of vital importance to the wage earners of the country will be discussed.

It is the hope of those who will attend this conference that some plan or plans may be evolved which will promote the welfare of the wage earner. The subjects with which the conference will be called upon to deal are indicated in the invitations which have been addressed to the heads of the principal labor organizations by Daniel J. Keefe, commissioner general of immigration, who was designated by Secretary Straus as one of the committee on arrangements.

The problem of the unemployed, and how, and to what extent, the division of information in the department of commerce and labor can be most helpful to that class, especially during periods of depression, is, perhaps, of chief significance.

It is declared that figures indicate that much of the influx of immigration to the United States is due to misleading information as to labor conditions here, and this will form one of the chief topics to be threshed out.

The conference will also consider "how the Nobel peace prize, which President Roosevelt devoted to the foundation for the promotion of industrial peace, can be made most effective."

Other questions which will figure in the council's deliberations will be the advisability of legislation extending the steamboat inspection service to include the inspection of locomotive boilers on interstate railroads and how the division of information of the department of commerce and labor may be administered for the best interest of wage earners generally.

ADVICE TO CALIFORNIA

Roosevelt Writes to Gillett Concerning Legislation Against the Japanese

Sacramento, Cal., Feb. 1.—Governor Gillett made public the text of a letter received Sunday from President Roosevelt with regard to anti-Japanese legislation now pending in the California legislature.

President Roosevelt quotes from a letter of former Secretary of State Root to Gillett and from a memorandum, pointing out that Root saw no objection to a law which treated all aliens alike, but that to avoid conflict with the constitution such statute should contain an expressed provision excepting from its operations any rights secured by treaty between the United States and foreign nations.

Mr. Roosevelt says that this view has his cordial endorsement.

LION DISMEMBERED BABY

Was Feasting on Little One When Discovered by Horrified Mother

Balboa, Cal., Feb. 1.—A mountain lion crunching the lifeless and mangled body of her 2-year-old boy was the sight that greeted Mrs. Chris Brown last night when she entered the family tent, four miles from the Hotel Delmar, after a short walk.

The mother rushed screaming at the beast. The lion growled savagely and backed slowly out of the rear of the tent, its mouth dripping with the baby's blood, and disappeared.

The lion had partly dismembered the child after slaying it. The Brown family arrived from Delaware two weeks ago.

Llewellyn Powers Eulogized

Washington, Feb. 1.—The house of representatives convened in special session Sunday to hear eulogies on the life, character and public services of the late Representative Llewellyn Powers of the fourth Maine congressional district, who died on July 28 of last year. The speakers highly praised Powers' public services.

Great Britain Needs Our Meat

London, Feb. 1.—The committee of the government which was appointed to inquire into the alleged American control of the British meat supply, has concluded its investigation and will report against interference with American imports for the simple reason that Great Britain needs the American supply.

WORLD'S OPIUM TRAFFIC

General War Upon It Begun by Conference Which Opens at Shanghai

Shanghai, Feb. 1.—War on the opium traffic of the world is the purpose of the international opium conference which began its sessions in this city today. The United States, Great Britain, France, Germany, China, Japan, Holland, Siam, Persia, Russia, Italy and Canada have sent delegates to the conference, which was called by President Roosevelt at the suggestion of the Right Rev. Charles H. Brent, Protestant Episcopal bishop of the Philippine Islands.

Bishop Brent is one of the American delegates to the conference. His colleagues are Dr. Hamilton Wright of Maine and Professor Charles D. Tenney, Chinese secretary of the American legation in Pekin. The latter is one of the best known Americans in the Chinese empire.

The Chinese government has declared its intentions of co-operating heartily in the work of the conference. Several expert foreigners have been detached from the government service to furnish to the conference statistics of the use of opium by the natives. It is proposed to prohibit the growing of poppies save to the extent needed to supply the medicinal demand for the drug, and steps to that end have already been taken.

EDITOR'S LEG AMPUTATED

Yonkers, N. Y., Feb. 1.—While trying to board a train at the Glenwood station of the New York Central railroad, William L. Woodson, editor of The American Press, fell and was injured by the moving wheels. His right foot was amputated at the station and at St. John's Riverside hospital, to which he was taken, it was found that an amputation of the leg below the knee was necessary. He was badly hurt about the head and sustained other injuries. He displayed wonderful fortitude, which the physicians say will materially assist him in recovering from the effects of his injuries.

Mr. Woodson's paper, The American Press, is issued from the main office of the American Press association in New York. He has been connected with the association many years, coming to the main office from the Atlanta branch, of which he was manager. Mr. Woodson was formerly one of the best known newspaper men of the south. He is a native of Virginia, but lived also in Georgia and other southern states.

NOTED SUFFRAGISTS TO GATHER TONIGHT

Will Hear Lecture by Zueblin, Noted as a Sociologist

New York, Feb. 1.—In historic Cooper Union, where Lincoln delivered his famous address just before the beginning of the Civil war, the active woman suffragists of the country will meet tonight to hear Professor Charles Zueblin, the well known sociologist, deliver a lecture on woman suffrage.

The meeting will be held under the auspices of the People's institute and the Equality League For Self Supporting Women. Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, president of the International Suffrage alliance; Mrs. Harriet Stanton Blatch, head of the Equal Suffrage league; Miss Mary Coleman and many other suffragists will attend.

SLASHED BY UNKNOWN MAN

Assault on Aged Woman Results In Loss of Her Mind

Athol, Mass., Feb. 1.—Her mind becoming unbalanced, following an attack upon her three weeks ago by an unknown man, Mrs. Pietro Baggiolini of this town has been adjudged insane and her commitment at the Worcester Insane hospital has been ordered.

The woman, who is quite old, was assailed early one morning by an unknown man, who attempted to kill her by slashing her throat. She survived the wound, but the shock resulted in mental disorder.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Despondent because he was out of work, Walter G. Walter, aged 50, drank poison and then shot himself twice in the head at Boston.

The factory of the American Rubber company at Cambridge, Mass., shut down for a month. Twelve hundred hands are employed there.

George H. Dyer, 65 years old, a veteran of the Civil war who served under Admiral Farragut, died at his home at Sanford, Me.

QUINCY LOCALS BRIEFLY TOLD

To morrow is candlemas day.

The weather this morning was the coldest of the winter.

A regular meeting of the City Council will be held tonight.

The Willing Workers will meet at 2.30 on Saturday in the chapel of the Wollaston Baptist church.

The Mission Study club meets with Miss Poole, Lincoln avenue, Wollaston, on Saturday, February 6, at 7.45.

Mr. and Mrs. James Stetson of School street leave next week for the south where they will spend the rest of the winter.

The cold snap raised a riot with the water pipes at Houghs Neck. No less than fifteen pipes are numbered among the sufferers.

The Loyal Temperance Legion will meet next Friday afternoon at 3.45 in the vestry of the Wollaston Congregational church.

The regular meeting of the social and benevolent society will be held in the chapel of the Wollaston Baptist church on Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

The Sunday evening service of the Wollston Baptist church was addressed by Rev. Edward Norton. An account of a day spent on the Sea of Galilee was the subject of his address.

Tomorrow night Alfred A. Farland, the celebrated musician, will give a recital at Colonial hall. An excellent program has been arranged and this world renowned artist is sure to give a pleasing concert.

The Q. P. C. A. will hold a dancing party in Electa hall tomorrow night. The club is formed of girls who took part in the Quincy Point Social club minstrel and a good time will surely be enjoyed.

As a result of a petition that was signed by the majority of the residents of Houghs Neck, the postal department has re-established a sub-station at that place. Captain O. G. Fosdick was appointed as clerk-postmaster.

In connection with the evangelistic meetings, a bible meeting for women will be held on Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Congregational church, Wollaston. Rev. John W. Weddell, evangelist, who is conducting services in Quincy will have charge of the meeting.

Col. James Virchild of St. Christophers Island, West Indies, bought at auction in 1749 the Lewis Vasell estate, consisting of land in Braintree (now Quincy), which accounts probably for the name Virchild street as much of it must have been on his land.

If the present cold snap continues, it will make the ice men happy.

The annual meetings of the Wollaston and Quincy Yacht clubs will be held this week.

At the Swedish Methodist church interesting services were held on Sunday. Four young men uniting with the church in the evening

Next Sunday afternoon at four o'clock a union evangelistic service will be held in the Wollaston Congregational church under the direction of Rev. John W. Weddell, evangelist.

Frank P. Chisholm of Tuskegee Institute, Tuskegee, Ala., addressed the members of the senior Christian Endeavor of the Wollaston Congregational church Sunday evening. His subject was, "Heroes of missions in the Southland."

A meeting of the Wollaston young peoples' religious union was held in the vestry of the Unitarian church Sunday evening. Sanford Bates of Boston spoke on the subject "Is character dependent on environment or will power." Edward R. Hall led the meeting.

Miss Helen M. Sherman of Providence formerly a teacher at the Quincy High school will be one of the matrons at the dance in Wollaston hall to be given by Harold M. Gore and Philip S. Barnes on Friday evening February 5. Miss Evaline Salisman will also act as matron.

THE NEW NECKWEAR.

Collars and Stocks That Clever Women May Make.

The new neck ruches give a somewhat choked appearance, but they are meeting with popular approval nevertheless. It cannot be denied that of the two the high, choking affairs give much more style than the low, rounding ones which were formerly worn. The new separate stocks are made with wide ruchings at the top. Some smart models of this kind are shown here. The ruff with bow and long streamers is made of satin in any desired shade. The folds of satin for the stock itself are mounted on a shaped crinoline band, which is a little larger in the back than in the front. A double plaited frill is the same width both above and below the stock, and the bow is made with eight loops and very long ends.

SMART STOCKS AND COLLARS.

A pretty and stylish stock is made of folded net with a strip of Irish crochet at the top of the stock just below the very wide plaiting of the net. A lace edged jabot with a stiff little bow of ribbon is placed a little to the left, a new French notion. The Irish crochet may be real or imitation, as much of the imitation is very effective for this purpose.

Another pretty stock is made of silk or net folded toward the middle, making the folds meet down the middle of the stock in V shape. The plaited jabot is held by two little ties of silk.

His Idea of Trimming.

Tom—Well, well! Is that your new hat?

His Sister—Oh, it has to be trimmed, you goose!

Tom—Too large, eh?—Catholic Standard and Times.

Among Society Women.

First Society Woman—Has the business panic affected you any?

Second Society Woman—Dreadfully. We're on the verge of starvation. Do come and have dinner with us.

An Inartistic Comparison.

"Speaking about the slat style of figure, have you seen the six Skimpton girls?"

"Yes. They look like a picket fence out walking."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The Usual Question.

"She is going to be divorced."

"Is she? Dear me, I wonder what it will be."

"Cruelty, I believe."

"Cruelty? Oh, pshaw! I didn't mean that."

"What did you mean?"

"Her gown, of course."

RACIAL FRICTION IN THE SOUTH

Booker Wahington Says That It Has Begun to Disappear

Hampton, Va., Feb. 1.—Founders' Day at the Hampton Normal and Agricultural institute was observed with appropriate exercises. Booker T. Washington was the principal speaker of the day. He paid a glowing tribute to General Armstrong, the founder, and then said of the race problem:

"Everything that can happen to disrupt the relations between the races has already happened. We have reached, in my opinion, the extreme of racial friction, and reaction has already set in.

"From now on we are going to witness a sanity of self-control, a liberality on the part of the men of the white race in the south toward the negro that we have not witnessed in the past.

"It is an insult to the white people of the country for any one to assert that the negro should be kept in ignorance."

CONVENTION IN A CHURCH

Pastor Favors Mixing Politics With Religion—Talk on Merchant Marine

New York, Feb. 1.—The first of five metings to be devoted to the advancement of the interests of the American merchant marine will be held tonight in the Metropolitan temple, this city, of which the Rev. John Wesley Hill is pastor. The meetings are to be held under the auspices of the National Merchant Marine league.

Letters from President Roosevelt and President-Elect Taft commending the purpose of the meetings, which is the stimulation of public interest in the growth of the merchant marine, will be read. Among the prominent men who will take part in the conferences are the Hon. James E. McCleary, representative from Minnesota; John Barrett, director of the bureau of American republics; Henry Clews, Leslie M. Shaw, John J. McCook and Myron T. Herrick. One purpose of the conferences is the advocacy of legislation compelling the carrying of American mail to Europe and elsewhere in American ships. The members of the league generally favor the ship subsidy plan.

The pastor of the temple is in favor of the mixture of politics and economics with religion, with a view to the uplifting of the former. With that end in view he has invited the promoters of meetings of public interest to hold them in the temple.

A THOUSAND CONVERTS

Remarkable Work Accomplished In the Boston Evangelistic Campaign

Men, women and children by thousands, and of all classes, crowded the halls and churches, and great wave of converts, estimated at over 1000, was reported.

The machinery of the great simultaneous campaign is now in perfect working order all over the city and its outlying districts, and the first Sabbath day has made a record for church-goers in Boston that has never before been equalled. It was one of the most remarkable Sundays that Boston churches have ever experienced during their history.

Throughout the entire district covered by the 150 odd churches which are actively interested in the movement evidences of the work of the evangelists is everywhere apparent.

BOTH HAVE GOOD RECORDS

French and Turkish Wrestlers to Meet on Mat at Chicago Tonight

Chicago, Feb. 1.—Raoul de Rouen of France and Yussiff Mahmout of Turkey, two of the world's best men at the grappling game, will meet on the mat here tonight in a catch-as-catch-can bout.

Local sports are greatly interested in seeing Mahmout perform, as he has championship aspirations and is said to be anxious to meet Frank Gotch, the world's champion. He has pinned down Jenkins, Pardello and other good men. De Rouen also has a good record, although his recent defeat by Westergaard at Omaha has cost him some of his fame.

HARVARD PITCHING SQUAD

Expected to Do Great Things Under the Coaching of Mathewson

Cambridge, Mass., Feb. 1.—Beginning today the pitching candidates of Harvard will have the benefit of the coaching of Christy Mathewson, the highest priced pitcher in the country.

Captain Currier of the college baseball team declares that his men are in good shape. He expects to improve on Harvard's poor record of last year, when the team finished behind Princeton, Yale and others.

Schooner Captain Drowned

Boston, Feb. 1.—Captain John Tulloch of Taunton, aged 50, master of schooner General E. S. Greeley, fell overboard and was drowned as the big schooner was leaving this port for Norfolk. Tulloch was one of the best known mariners engaged in the coal carrying trade.

BASKET BALL.

In one of the fastest games of the season Saturday night at St. Mary's hall the Boston Grays defeated the St. Mary's five 36 to 14. The local team was outweighed and outplayed by the fast quintet from the Hub.

The visitors had such well known athletes as Duffy of South Boston, Cameron formerly a pitcher on the Boston Nationals, Ainsmith, who caught for Lowell in the N. E. league last year, Huddleston of the fast Fenno five and Magee the well known sprinter of the Cathedral A. A. of Boston.

All are husky and fast and know the game thoroughly. They played fast from start to finish and after they got acquained with the floor and baskets, the local five didn't have a chance.

The St. Mary's boys, considering they were cripped by the loss of Joe Buckley, played a good uphill game and did some clever blocking. A little hard practice and some training would however work wonders with the team. The material is there but one practice a week is not enough.

Duffy and Ainsmith played the best game for the Boston Grays, while Amet, "Dan" Duggan and McLaughlin excelled for St. Marys. Next Saturday night the strong Cambridge five will appear here. The summary:

Boston Grays	St. Mary's
Huddleston rf.,	lb., Amet
Duffy lf.,	rb., Mullen
Cameron c.,	c., D. Duggan
Magee rb.,	lf., W. Duggan
	Morrill
Ainsmith lb.,	rf., McLaughlin

Score, Boston Grays 36. St. Mary's 14. Goals from floor, Huddleston 5, Duffy 5, Ainsmith 5, Magee 2, Cameron, D. Duggan 3, McLaughlin 2, W. Duggan. Goals from fouls, McLaughlin, W. Duggan. Referee, Joyce. Scorer, Fitzgerald. Time, 20 minute periods. Timer, Pendis. Attendance, 250.

The St. Mary's second team played the St. Joseph's second five of Boston and took them into camp by the score of 42 to 18. The local five made the visitors look like novices, scoring at will.

Morrill and Duggan did all the scoring for St. Mary's, the former getting 14 baskets and the latter 7. Duggan put his hand through a pane of glass in the second half and was forced to leave the game. Doyle excelled for St Josephs. The summary:

St. Mary's 2d	St. Joseph's 2d
Morrill rf.,	lb., Bulger
Duggan lf.,	rb., Doyle
Croto
Canavan c.,	c., Barry
Collins rb.,	lf., Rinn
Croto lb.,	rf., Bullock
Rooney

Score, St. Mary's 2d 42, St. Joseph's 2d 18 Goals from floor, Morrill 14, Duggan 7, Doyle 3, Bulger, Rinn. Referee, Joyce. Scorer, Fitzgerald. Time, 20 minute periods. Timer, Pendis. Attendance, 250.

There was a third game between the Copelands and the West Ends, the former winning 20 to 14. Both are West Quincy fives and are keen rivals. The game was close at all times, but Copeland excelled in shooting.

The Boston Y. M. C. A. basket ball team defeated the Makaria five on Saturday night at the local gym by the score of 30 to 21. The game was clean and fast at all times.

BOSTON Y. M. C. A.	MAKARIA
Hyde, rf	lb, Gourlie
Twitchell, lf	rb, Mundie
Monarch, c	c, Tupper
Foster, rb	lf, McKenzie
Myher, lb	rf, Morris

Score, Boston Y. M. C. A. 30, Makaria 21. Goals from floor, Monarch 9, Myher 3, Foster, Hyde, Twitchell, Tupper 4, Gourlie, Mundie, McKenzie, Morris. Goals from foul, Tupper. Referee, Maxwell. Timer, Howard. Scorer, Clee. Time, 20m halves.

Between the halves the Quincy employed boys defeated the Malden employed boys 28 to 10.

The summaries:

QUINCY BOYS	MALDEN BOYS
Glover rf	lb Callahan
Pinel lf	rb Wall
Dakers c	c Goldsmith
Jenkins rb	lf Boyle
Melville lb	rf Glover

Score, Quincy 28, Malden 10. Goals from floor, Glover 5, Pinel 3 Dakers 2, Jenkins 4, Callahan, Goldsmith 2, Boyle 2. Referee, Maxwell. Scorer, Howard. Timer, Clee. Time 20m halves. Attendance 100.

LECTURE.

Milton people are to be given an unusual opportunity this week of hearing Miss Ethel M. Arnold of London, the English lecturer who recently made her first appearance in New York and created a most favorable impression. She will lecture at the Milton club Friday, Feb. 5, on "Progress of Women in Europe." Miss Arnold is the grand-daughter of the famous Dr. Arnold of Rugby, a niece of Matthew Arnold, and a sister of Mrs. Humphrey Ward. She is an accomplished scholar, critic and essayist and has contributed many articles to British reviews.

Those who heard Miss Arnold's New York lectures before the "League for Political Education" say that she ranks as the most notable lecturer that ever came to America from Europe. She speaks without notes, and her lectures have a high intellectual quality and are characterized by fairmindedness and a direct sympathetic appeal. Miss Arnold is said to possess a charming voice, and her initial appearances have been pronounced successes.

A New Detective Method.

[Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.]

"As to the Hunker case," said a detective who had been giving an admiring crowd samples of how the craft ferreted out crime, "it was a stroke of genius.

"A message was sent in to our office by Abraham Hunker, a farmer, that he had lost his life's savings, some $1,000 in gold. He had kept it in a stocking in his chimney, having taken out a brick at one side, leaving a space just big enough to hold the gold. One day while the house was left alone some one stole the money. He asked us to send a man to work up the case.

"Dan Chadwick was in charge of the office at the time and arranged the plan on which the work was to be done. A few days after we got the message a man from the agency appeared at the nearest station to Hunker's farm, hired a horse and drove out to see the farmer. He worked openly, talking about the case in presence of any one who happened to be about. After several days spent in this kind of detective work he went away.

"Some of the people thereabout who knew a thing or two remarked that the fellow was a queer detective, letting everybody know what he and his business was. He wouldn't be likely to learn much that way. The way to work a detective case was for the detective to keep in the dark himself and put a 'bullseye' on everybody else. They gave up any expectation of Hunker ever seeing any of his money again.

"In about ten days another man from our office went to the neighborhood, though this one didn't spend much time with Hunker. He went about among the farmers, told them all that he was a detective and engaged in hunting for the man who stole Hunker's money. This man didn't ask many questions. He didn't tell anything except what I have stated. Then he went away, leaving the farmers to talk about his visit and to speculate from what he had (not) said as to whether he was getting on to a clew. Within a few days after his visit the news of it was spread all over the county.

"It was about two weeks later that another man appeared in the same locality. This man was more like what people expect a detective to be. He went ostensibly as an agent for a steam plow, but he took so many people into his confidence that within a week after his departure everybody knew that another detective had arrived, detected and departed.

"The next man that went on the job put on an air of profound thought. He stayed among the people several days before he let it out that he was a detective. But by this time they had become wrought upon by so many detectives coming among them that he had only to 'let the cat out of the bag' to have the news go like a prairie fire all over the country. He made no mystery of the matter. Indeed, he told Hunker that the discovery had been made that the money had been stolen by a man living in the neighborhood and it would soon be recovered.

"'If he should move he would acknowledge himself to be the thief. You wouldn't need a detective to tell you that any one leaving this region just now would be going to spend his stolen money somewhere else.'

"After that the farmers began to be distrustful of each other. They didn't talk any more about the case. They were uncomfortable about it. Every man felt that he was being shadowed. No farmer could go into his house or out of it without fancying that some one stood behind a tree watching him. They began to wish Hunker had let the money go without subjecting them to such surveillance.

"About a month after the loss one of the farmers sent word to the agency asking that a man be sent to him. When the detective arrived he found a pale, haggard man who looked as if he had been keelhauled. He took the detective back of his house and told him to dig in a certain spot. The detective dug and brought up a cigar box containing the stocking with Hunker's gold in it. When the money was counted every dollar was there."

The speaker paused, and some one asked, "Well, how did it all come about?"

"The first man sent up did not appear as a detective. He learned that no stranger had been to the house about the time the money disappeared. The gold had been kept in the same place for years, and a knowledge of its location had doubtless come to some one of the community, who had been tempted to steal it. Chadwick, the greatest detective genius I have ever known, conceived a plan for forcing the culprit to confess. He sent the first man, who appeared openly for the purpose of spreading abroad the news that the neighborhood was being watched, sending others to confirm this and to keep it in the people's minds. By thus agitating the matter he worked through anybody and everybody upon the guilty party. The man told me after his arrest that he couldn't go among his neighbors without hearing his theft discussed. 'There's another detective here,' was the usual greeting. 'Have you seen him?' Then when worn out with the constant shadow hovering over him he resolved to go somewhere else he learned what the detective had said about any one who should leave, thereby acknowledging his guilt. Then he confessed."

PRES. HOBBS BREAKS GAVEL PRESERVING ORDER

City Council In Debating Mood At Monday Night's Meeting

The City Council was in a debating mood Monday night and as a result there was flows of oratory such as has seldom been heard. Everything that could be debated was and some of the debates were red hot. This was especially true during the debate on the order that city laborers be paid $2 a day for eight hours.

President Hobbs allowed considerable latitude to the speakers, but at times he had to bang the gavel hard on the granite block to preserve order. One of these blows of the gavel knocked a hole in it. Outside of the debate there was but little business transacted. Councilmen Cherrington, Nowland and Whiton were absent.

TRANSFER WANTED.

A communication was received from the Mayor with inclosure from the Chief Engineer asking for a transfer of $312.72 from the appropriation for "Repairs" to the appropriations for fire alarm, horse shoeing and keeping and miscellaneous. Laid on the table until later when an order was passed making the transfer.

DAMAGES WANTED.

A communication was received from the Mayor inclosing claim of heirs of Jeremiah Sheahan for damages by change of grade on Grove street. Referred to Finance Committee.

The Mayor forwarded a communication from Paul Revere Post 88 G. A. R. asking for the use of City Hall, Friday evening, Feb. 12 for a Lincoln oration. Laid on the table until later when Councilman Gilson offered the necessary order which was adopted.

MORE APPOINTMENTS.

Trustees of Thomas Crane Public Library, Ellery C. Butler, Harrison A. Keith, George W. Morton, Henry McGrath, Charles R. Safford, George F. Sawyer, Jr.

Placed on file.

A communication was received from the School Committee calling attention to the need of additional school accommodations. Referred to Committee of Public Buildings.

SCHOOL BUDGET.

From School Committee inclosing budget or 1909. The amounts asked for were:

Salaries,	$114,450.00
Janitors,	9,175.00
Books, Etc.	10,500.00
Fuel,	7,000.00
Transportation,	1,475.00
Rent,	360.00
Evening schools,	1,500.00
	$144,460.00

Referred to Finance Committee.

A communication was received from the Mayor appointing Alfred N. LaBreecque a constable. Confirmed.

PETITIONS.

A petition was received from the N. E. T. & T. Co., asking for a location for poles on Cross street. Referred to Committee on Streets.

A petition was received from the Citizens' Gas Light Co, for permission to lay mains. Referred to Committee on Streets.

A petition was received that the Old Colony street railway run hourly cars between Quincy and Neponset between 12.20 and 5.40 A. M. Laid on the table.

A petition was received from the Telephone Company for attachments on Goddard street. Councilman Bryant moved to lay on the table. Lost. Petition referred to Committee on Streets.

A petition to accept a part of Merrymount road was referred to the Committee on Streets.

A public hearing was held at 7.45 on the petition of the Electric Light Co., for a location for poles on Hunt street. Supt. Austin appeared in favor.

Councilman Moir asked if these poles were already in, to which Mr. Austin replied yes on permission given by the Commissioner.

The hearing was then continued until 8.20 that the Commissioner might get the date, permission to place pole was given.

At that hour the Commissioner said that the order had been given Nov. 11.

Mayor Shea said the Council passed orders for lights and he had granted a temporary location for the pole for this light and he should continue to do so as long as these orders were sent him.

The hearing then closed and the order was recommitted.

A hearing was held at 7.50 on petition of the Telephone Co. for location for poles and attachments. Mr. Green appeared in favor.

Councilman Bryant asked if he had not stated that he did not attach wires to trees.

Mr. Green had no recollection of making such a statement.

Councilman Bryant asked do you know if the Telephone Co. has attached wires to trees upon which you have not applied for attachments?

Mr. Green, I do not know that they have.

Councilman Bryant moved to lay on the table. Motion lost one voting yes and 10 no.

Councilman Bryant then asked a number of questions one of which was if Mr. Green received compensation from the company.

Councilman Moir raised a point of order that question was not proper. The President declared the point well taken.

Councilman Bryant appealed from the ruling of the chair. The chair was sustained by a vote of 15 yes and one no.

Councilman Moir moved the hearing close and the order be recommitted. Voted.

REPORT OF COMMITTEES.

The Committee on Sewers reported ought to pass on the order appropriating $6,000 for house connections with the sewer. Referred to the Finance Committee.

The Committee on Fire Department reported an order appropriating $8,000 for the rebuilding of the present steam fire engine and for the purchase of a new second class steamer.

Report accepted.

In reply to question the Chief said it would cost $2200 to rebuild the present steamer which it was claimed would put it in as good condition as when built. The hydrants were far apart and a second steamer would be of advantage in case of a conflagration.

Councilman Moir asked a number of questions his object evidently being to have the Chief commit himself to one type of engine.

The Chief said he thought the Amoskeg the best type that he had not invited the agent to appear before the committee and knew nothing about it. As far as he knew the agent had not examined the present engine. He was not predjudiced against other companies.

Chairman Beal stated that the representative of the company had told the committee that a second class engine would cost $5200, with rubber tires $350 extra.

Councilman Russell, the gentleman before the committee stated that the engine could be taken to his company's works. That the city could have it's expert go there when the steamer was dismantled so that it could be determined just what the cost would be. He was sure the cost at the outside would not be $2200.

Councilman Bean, other companies were invited to be present but did not appear.

Councilman Flynn asked questions as to the water pressure and if the pressure would be better with two steamers. The chief replied yes.

Councilman Gardner asked if the cost of repairs was a flat estimate or an outside estimate.

Councilman Beal replied an outside figure.

Councilman Gardner asked how many times a second engine was needed. Chief Williams replied only in the case of a large fire.

Councilman Bryant, This report is not your recommendation? Chief Williams, no.

Councilman Bryant, you have not recommended another steamer.?

Chief Williams. Yes I have so recommended.

Councilman Russell, if you had two steamers could you not get better service?

Chief Williams, yes if I had them in different parts of the city.

Councilman Gilson, could you not get better service with more hydrants?

Chief Williams, yes.

Councilman Moir asked if any examination had been made of the steamer.

The Chief knew of none.

Councilman Bean asked the councilman from Ward six if any agent had approached him as to buying an engine.

Councilman Moir. That is an insult for which he should apologize. You must think I am an ass.

Councilman Beal, Did you not recommend to the committee to repair the old engine and purchase a new one ?

Chief Williams, yes.

Councilman Flynn asked about the

GUESTS OF CATHOLIC CLUB

Knights of Columbus Eat Many Rare-Bits

MAYOR SHEA ALSO PARTAKES OF TEMPTING DISHES

Excellent Entertainment follows Chafing Dish Supper

One of the most enjoyable social evenings of the many held by the ladies of the Quincy Catholic club was that of Monday evening when they had as guests, the members of Quincy Council Knights of Columbus. It was given to the Knights as a mark of appreciation for the courtesy extended to the ladies in granting them the use of the club rooms for their meetings. A short business session was held at 8 o'clock at which Mrs. Joseph A. Dasha chairman of the Board of Directors read an interesting report of the work the club was doing among the poor.

At the conclusion of the meeting the members of the Knights of Columbus were invited to join them. During the first part of the evening there was a very pleasing entertainment which included selections by the mandolin club, readings by Miss Nellie Read, guitar solo by Mrs. J. E. Neary and vocal solo by Miss Belle Murphy, Miss Theresa Keating and Miss Helen Galvin. The entertainment was excellent and greatly enjoyed.

Chafing dishes were then brought forward and some very tempting dishes were served by Mrs. E. J. Murphy, Mrs. W. L. Russell, Mrs. T. J. Carey, Miss Mary W. Dinegan, Miss Christina McPherson, Miss Elizabeth Moynihan, Miss Sara Dunphy, Mrs. J. J. McAnarney, Miss Katherine Roche, Miss Mary Colligan and Miss Anna W. Woodward.

Following this there was a social hour during which there was dancing. His Honor the Mayor, who had been detained at the City Council meeting was unfortunate enough to arrive after the chafing dishes had been put away but they were brought forward again and he had an opportunity to personally judge of the excellence of the cooking qualifications of the ladies.

The evening was one long to be remembered by those fortunate to be present.

—The flow of water in the Androscoggin river fell so low the other day that for several hours there was barely enough to keep going the boilers of the mills from Berlin, N. H., to Rumford, Me., and many were obliged to shut down. The exact cause of this phenomenon is not known.

—Korea will be represented at Seattle next year by an exhibit of brass wares, carved woods, linens and silks. An exporter in Seoul is preparing a fine exhibit for the 1909 exhibition to show the progress of the Pacific country.

WITH INCREASED ATTENDANCE.

Second Week of Evangelistic Campaign Opens at Bethany Church.

Th second week of the Evangelistic campaign opened Monday night with a large attendance. The music was under the new leader Mr. Briggs, the choir being assisted by the Y. M. C. A. orchestra. On the pulpit platform besides Dr. Weddell, were Rev. Edward Norton, Dr. Hardy, Rev. A. M. Thompson, Rev. E. A. Chase and Rev. R. J. Davis .

Rev. Mr. Norton led the prayer and Dr. Hardy gave notices of bible readings to be given. These readings are for the benefit of those who cannot attend the evening services.

The subject was "The Battle is On." The sermon was full of enthusiasm and Dr. Weddell held his audience from beginning to end.

Rev. E. A .Chase gave the closing prayer. At the close of the services an after meeting was held at which 150 were present.

QUINCY CHORAL SOCIETY.

The fact that Sunday afternoon rehearsals of sacred music might prove popular in the Quincy Choral society was well proven by Sunday's meeting, which brought out the largest gathering of the season, including an unusually large number of men and a few associate members who were interested listeners.

Quincy, through its Choral society, should be the future musical centre for the surrounding towns. In each of the outlying districts are numbers of people with splendid singing voices, but in none of them is the number large enough to form an independent society. If the present nucleous, this chorus of eighty people, nearly all of whom are residents of Quincy, receives the financial support of audiences such as it deserves, in the early years of its life, there is no doubt that it will in time grow to be one of the largest and best singing societies in the country.

MANET SOCIAL CLUB.

The officers of the Manet Social club, a new club just formed in Plummer's hall, were installed Saturday at the clubrooms. The club comprises of fifteen members, all of whom are well known youths of Quincy. The following officers were installed: Daniel Mahan, president; William Baker, vice president; Russell Tingley, secretary; Gunner Johnson, treasurer.

MRS. MARGARET FARREN BURIED.

The funeral of Mrs. Margaret Farren, aged 45, who died Sunday, was held this morning from her late home at 46 Winter street. A requiem high mass was celebrated at 9 o'clock in St. John's church, Rev. John J. Casey officiating. The regular choir sang the Gregorian mass. Miss Mary Burns singing the Pie Jesu. Miss Mary McConarty presided at the organ. The burial was in St. Mary's cemetery, West Quincy.

FORGERIES AND FALSE ENTRIES

Handwriting Expert Speaks Before Men's Club

BLACKBOARD ILLUSTRATIONS ADD MUCH TO INTEREST

Many Unfathomed Secrets Laid Bare Before Audience

The regular semi-monthly meeting of the Men's club of Christs church was held Monday evening.

The club was very fortunate in securing W. E. Hingston for the speaker of the evening, his subject being "Forgeries and False Entries."

Mr. Hingston is an expert on hand writing and he was quite a prominent figure in the Tucker trial a few years ago.

Mr. Hingston has traveled the length and breadth of the country many times, tracing and convicting many of the country's greatest embezzlers. In his years of experience he has come in contact with many characteristics, of human nature. His fine display of various differences, between one being and another, in the unconscious and uncontrolled movements in hand-writing, as he illustrated, one after another, on the blackboard, was a pleasure ,that one receives only once in a lifetime. Many an unfathomed secret was laid bare before his audience. Though his topic, was very entertaining, his chief message to his hearers was, "never make a false entry of any kind, for the interest of it. You will pay every hour, though you rectify it, its memory will haunt you until you shake off these mortal coils."

There was a large number of the club members, present intermingled with several guests.

A short entertainment followed the address of Mr. Hingston, during which the club caterer, H. P. Furnald served refreshments.

FEAST OF THE PURIFICATION.

Catholic Churches Hold Special Celebration.

Candlemas day was celebrated in all the Catholic churches today. On this day the candles for the ensuing year are blessed and the palms are burned in preparation for Ash Wednesday. The Christmas decorations are removed and the church is thoroughly cleaned. It is also known as the feast of the Purification.

For on this day Mary went with the Christ child to the temple to be purified, and presented as an offering a pair of turtle doves. Hence the dove has become known as the symbol of purity and hence the day gets the name of the Feast of the Purification.

FOR QUINCY BOYS.

An event of great interest to every live boy in Quincy will take place at the Y. M. C. A. Gym., Saturday afternoon at 2. It will be a free open athletic meet in which any boy who is not a member of the Y. M. C. A. may enter and win a prize if he is able. Prizes are on exhibition at the association building.

The events for boys under 14 years are 15 yard dash, roll ups, standing broad jump and potato race.

Boys 14-16 will have the same events except the broad jump is changed to three broad jumps.

As the boys have been allowed to practice at the gym a good meet is assured. A large number have already entered. Entries will close at noon on Saturday.

On Saturday at 10 A. M., a similar meet will be held for Y. M. C. A. members.

Little beggar boy crying—"I'm an orphan, and father's broke his legs and is in jail, and mother's in an asylum, and if I go home without any money, they'll lick me."

Candlemas today.

Sleighing parties are in order.

The groundhog will crawl back into his hole today and cold, cold winter will take another flight.

According to recent statistics five divorces for cruelty are granted in the United States to the wife for every one granted to the husband. And yet we wonder why men are called brutes.

The present crusade of the anti-vaccinationists seems to be directed chiefly against the use of vaccine virus prepared by dealers who sell it for the market. In Massachusetts the state has charge of compulsory vaccination and supplies the virus, therefore it seems like a waste of energy to continue the fight in this state.

The preliminary report of the Massachusetts commission on old age pensions, annuities and insurance recently submitted to the Legislature contains much that should be of interest to the citizens of Quincy, inasmuch as a local committee has been formed to select a permanent committee to aid in establishing a system of agencies in Quincy. In its report the committee give a brief resume of the work it has already accomplished, which may be summarized as follows: The commission has held, up to date, thirty-one meetings. Twenty-one persons have appeared before the commission at its request, and have presented statments relating to various hases of the subject under investigation. Three public hearings have been held as follows: Boston, Feb. 26, 1908; Pittsfield, Oct. 8, 1908; Springfield, Oct. 15, 1908. The total attendance at these hearings was over three hundred.

The work so far according to the report has been eminently satisfactory, and much necessary data has been acquired.

EDITORIAL COMMENTS.

When Roosevelt starts for Africa he will leave behind him a full union of States if the plans in regard to the last two territories materialize. Statehood bills for Arizona and New Mexico are practically assured. President Roosevelt has had but one opportunity to sign a bill admitting a State, and he would like to add two more to his record, and leave to his successor a union composed wholly of States. Cleveland admitted Utah, and Harrison signed the bills for North and South Dakota, Montana, Washington, Idaho and Wyoming. Before 1889, when the Dakotas were admitted, there had been no entrance of States into the Union since 1876. The new States to be are not very large in population, New Mexico having 195,310 and Arizona 122,931, but they will grow to full State size in a comparatively short time as have the territories which have recently preceded them into the Union. The District of Alaska will be asking for territorial government before long, for there is already a population of 63,592. When the Union was threatened with disruption there were only 34 States, and if the plans succeed, President Roosevelt will leave behind him to the care of his successor 48 States, which will stand as the full measure of the nation for generations. The nation was established under Washington, the Union preserved under Lincoln and the Union of States completed under Roosevelt. Such a consummation may well be a matter of pride to the President who retires on the 4th of March.—Lynn Item.

WEYMOUTH.

A Boston Sunday paper in its account of the resignation of superintendent of schools A. A. Badger says that it was brought about by the closing of the schools in one ward by the local committeeman during the hour of the funeral of Rev. J. J. Murphy, and for 45 minutes at the time of the launching of the battleship North Dakota. The local committeeman was interviewed by the Ledger correspondent and he says that surely the latter closing could not be the trouble inasmuch as he merely followed the precedent established by Superintendent Badger, who at the time of the launching of the battleship Vermont gave the principal of the Hunt grammar school permission to close, which he did and took the members of the class to the launching. While the committee has a rule that no member shall incur an expense of more than $10. without a vote of the committee.

It is said that Superintendent Badger has paid no notice to the rule and has even bought as much as fifteen hundred dollars worth of supplies without authority from the school committee.

Although Mr. Badger's resignation does not take effect until May 1st, applicants are already applying for the position. It is thought probable that at the annual town meeting the school committee will be instructed to appoint one of its members, or a teacher or citizen of the town to the position as it is pointed out that there are a number of towns people who are eminently qualified to fill the position. It has long been contended by some of the most prominent citizens of the town that it was money thrown away to pay a superintendent of schools $2000 a year when the real work is done by the committeemen and as there is a statute law requiring a town to employ a superintendent of schools. It is thought the appointment of a citizen or teacher to the position would be a more acceptable way out of the difficulty.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deainess (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

TAFT'S VISIT TO CANAL ZONE

CORDIAL TO ALL FACTIONS

Will Look Into Controversy Over Commissary System, From Which Luxuries Will Be Separated—Possibility of Accident to Taft Avoided by Removing Dynamite From Culebra Cut Before His Visit to That Place

Panama, Feb. 2.—That Mr. Taft is acting as pacifier for the strong post-election factional feeling, which at times has been very marked, is shown by the fact that invitations have been sent to both President Obaldia and Senor Arias, at one time opposition candidates for the presidency, to the dinner and reception arranged by Herbert G. Squiers, the American minister, in honor of the American president-elect.

Monday afternoon Mr. Taft called on ex-President Amador, who is ill. Amador and Obaldia have not been on friendly terms for a long time, because of political differences. Taft wishes to make it plain that his cordiality is toward Panama as a whole, and not towards one or another political faction, and he has endeavored during his stay here to treat all men and all parties in the same cordial manner.

Both sides of the controversy which has arisen from the commissary system will be given a hearing, but he will make no recommendations with regard to the treaty, which refers the question to arbitration. Without doubt the commissary will continue, although so-called luxuries will be eliminated. Taft has expressed full confidence in the judgment of Secretary Root in this matter.

Prior to the visit of Taft and the board of engineers to Culebra cut Monday, all dynamite was removed from the workings, so the possibility of accident to the president-elect might be avoided.

Although not speaking for public, the engineers do not conceal their satisfaction over the feasibility of the Gatun dam. Chief engineer Goethals and the army engineers engaged in the construction work are much gratified at the results of the investigation of the special engineers. Gothals says that naval vessels will sail through the lock canal by Jan. 1, 1915.

WORST IN FORTY YEARS

Missionary Barnum Reports Widespread Suffering In Harpoot

Boston, Feb. 2.—Universal poverty and suffering prevails in the Harpoot district of Armenia, according to a communication from Rev. Dr. H. N. Barnum to the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions. Barnum, who has lived in Harpoot for forty years, says that he never saw so much distress as now exists.

"We have had local famines," he states, "but now there seems to be intense suffering everywhere." Immediate aid, Barnum says, is necessary to save life, as the winter is unusually severe.

"WHITE SLAVE" TRAFFIC

One of Its Promoters Sentenced to Prison and Fine of $2500

Chicago, Feb. 2.—The pitiful story of a beautiful girl, Marie Peuroy, aged 19, being snatched from the streets of Paris when 14 years old and lured to the United States, resulted in the conviction of Henry Lair, charged by the government with promoting "white slave" traffic in this country.

Lair was sentenced on Monday to serve two years in the government prison at Leavenworth, Kas., and to pay a $2500 fine.

Bulldog Comes Off Victorious In Short Battle With an Ant Eater

Huntsville, Ala., Feb. 2.—The first battle ever waged in the United States between an American bulldog and a long-clawed ant-eater from Brazil was pulled off here before a club of wealthy men.

The tropical animal, imported especially to meet the bulldog, which has never lost a battle, survived the battle for only two minutes.

The Muskogee Land Frauds

"A VIOLENT OPINION"

Juror Whitworth Thinks Governor Had a Hand In Carmack Murder

Nashville, Feb. 2.—For the first time, the name of Governor Patterson was mentioned Monday in the trial of Duncan B. Cooper, Robin J. Cooper and John D. Sharpe, for killing E. W. Carmack. This followed a decision by Judge Hart that Juror Whitworth was physically able to continue in the box.

Immediately, Attorney Anderson of the defense announced that he had evidence that Whitforth had expressed a violent opinion and therefore was incompetent.

One of the first witnesses called by the defense in this connection swore that Whitworth declared that the killing of Carmack cost Patterson many followers and that Whitworth believed the governor had a hand in the murder.

At the conclusion of the defense's testimony on Whitworth the state asked for time to meet the charges and court adjourned.

MISHAP TO THE ST. LOUIS

Passengers Not Alarmed by Big Liner's Crippled Rudder

New York, Feb. 2.—The American line steamship St. Louis, which lost the two lower sections of her rudder in the heavy seas 1200 miles from Sandy Hook, reached her dock twenty-four hours behind her schedule. She steamed in by her twin screws at reduced speed and two tugs acted as rudders for her coming up the bay.

There was no excitement among the passengers after the accident. They were kept in ignorance of the mishap until Friday, when a bulletin was posted in the saloon explaining the cause for the ship's slow progress.

It will be necessary to drydock the liner to repair her rudder. Permission was obtained from the government authorities to use the Brooklyn navy yard drydock.

SAYS CONVENTION WAS PACKED

Walker Won't Contest For Presidency of Mine Workers

Indianapolis, Feb. 2.—The convention of the United Mine Workers of America underwent a change since last week and last evening found the Lewis administration victorious over its opponents, led by John Walker, who was Lewis' rival in the election for the national presidency.

Walker furnished a statement that he would not contest the election, because he believed such action hopeless. The convention had been packed against him, he said. The report of the tellers of the vote will show that Lewis' majority is about 16,000.

JURY ACQUITS WHITE

Doctor Was Charged With Second Degree Murder of Miss Lane

Exeter, N. H., Feb. 2.—A verdict of not guilty was returned by the jury which had been listening to the evidence in the case of Dr. Herbert A. White, charged with murder in the second degree on account of the death of Miss Mary A. Lane, aged 19, of Stratham.

Miss Lane died in the hospital at Portsmouth from acute peritonitis, which was declared to have resulted from a criminal operation, performed before the girl entered the hospital.

WIFE MURDER AND SUICIDE

Little Ones Found Weeping Over Bodies of Their Dead Parents

New York, Feb. 2.—Fred Voigt shot and killed his wife in their apartment in Brooklyn and then shot himself, inflicting a wound from which he died shortly afterwards.

When the police broke in the doors of the Voigt home they found two little children weeping piteously near the bodies of their parents.

Wall Paper Company a Trust

Washington, Feb. 2.—The case of the Continental Wall Paper company vs. Lewis Voight & Sons of Cincinnati was decided by the supreme court of the United States in the Voights' favor. The suit was brought by the company on a debt of $57,000, the payment of which was resisted on the ground that the paper company is a trust.

Feb. 12 a Holiday

Washington, Feb. 2.—The senate passed without amendment a house bill declaring Feb. 12, 1909, the centennary of the birth of Abraham Lincoln, to be a legal holiday, and recommended a general observation of that day.

BRANDENBURG FORFEITS BAIL

Bench Warrant Issued For Magazine Writer's Arrest

CHARGED WITH GRAND LARCENY

Failed to Appear When Called to Bar to Explain Sale to New York Times of Article Purporting to Have Been Written by Grover Cleveland—Notables Were to Testify Against Him

New York, Feb. 2.—A warrant for the arrest of Broughton Brandenburg, the magazine writer, whose sale to the New York Times of an article alleged to have been written by Grover Cleveland resulted in his indictment on a charge of grand larceny a few days ago, has been issued by Justice Dowling.

The case against Brandenburg was to have come up before Justice Dowling in the supreme court Monday, but when the time came for calling of the defendant to the bar, Brandenburg, who had been out on $1500 bail furnished by a bonding company, could not be found.

After ordering the calling of his name by the clerk of the court, Dowling forfeited Brandenburg's bail and issued a bench warrant for his arrest.

No trace of Brandenburg has been found. Samuel B. Thomas, Brandenburg's attorney, says that he received no word from his client since Sunday night, when he had had a telephonic conversation with him, and he was in ignorance of the writer's present whereabouts.

The case against Brandenburg grew out of the sale by him of an article purporting to have been written by the late Grover Cleveland, in which the former president advocated the election of William H. Taft. After its publication the article was widely circulated as campaign literature.

The article was brought to the attention of Mrs. Cleveland, who is alleged to have declared it entirely apocryphal, and an investigation ensued which resulted in the indictment of Brandenburg on a charge of grand larceny in the second degree, preferred by The Times.

Among those who had expected to testify in the case were Mrs. Cleveland, Richard W. Gilder, editor of Century; John H. Finley, president of the College of the City of New York; David N. Carvalho, the handwriting expert; Dr. Joseph D. Bryant, Mr. Cleveland's family physician; George F. Parker; John G. Carlisle, secretary of the treasury during the second Cleveland administration; George R. Sheldon, treasurer of the Republican national committee, and Richard V. Oulahan, who had charge of the committee's publicity work during the past campaign.

HARD ON WEST POINTERS

Cadets May Not Be Able to Participate In Inaugural Parade

Washington, Feb. 2.—Unless the senate comes to their rescue, the West Point cadets will not be able to march in the inaugural parade, March 4, at the expense of the government.

The cadets have been one of the big attractions of the inaugural ceremonies for many years past. By a point of order, an item providing funds for the cadets' trip to Washington was stricken from the military appropriation bill.

DOG GUARDS FROZEN BODY

Had to Be Beaten Away From the Remains of His Master

Rochester, N. H., Feb. 2.—A faithful hound was found guarding the body of his master, Warren Hanscom, a shoemaker, who had been frozen to death while returning home from a hunting expedition.

The dog had circled the body until he had worn a path around it, and when searchers appeared he opposed their approach until he had been beaten off.

American Coin Not Wanted

Ottawa, Feb. 2.—There is a large amount of United States silver coin in circulation in Canada. As it displaces Canadian coin and deprives the government of this country of the seignorage it has been decided to collect American coin as fast as it comes in and send it back to the United States.

Forty-Seven Men Drowned

Melbourne, Feb. 2.—The British steamer Clan Ranald is a total wreck near Edinburg, and the captain and forty-six of the crew, most of whom were Asiatics, were drowned. Eighteen members of the crew were picked up.

Daring Robbery at Goldfield

Goldfield, Nev., Feb. 2.—Three masked men held up the Mohawk saloon, lined up twenty men in front of the bar, and robbed the safe of $3000. The robbers escaped.

Slayer Dies In Chair

Ossining, N. Y., Feb. 2.—Salvatore Governale, who killed two policemen in New York, was put to death in the electric chair in Sing Sing prison.

DRASTIC ACTION IN NEVADA

Legislative Committee Favorably Reports Bill Designating Japanese as "Parasites of the World" and Calling For Their Perpetual Expulsion From This Country—If We Are to Have War, Have It Now

Carson, Nev., Feb. 2.—A resolution declaring in favor of drastic legislation against Japanese, criticising President Roosevelt, and designating the Japanese as "parasites of the world" and a menace to civilization and progress on the Pacific coast, was reported favorably by a committee of the whole in special session of the Nevada legislature. The resolution will be voted today under a special order.

After stating that Japanese are acquiring lands and property in this and other states, the resolution says:

"The president has seen fit to take advantage of his high office to the extent of attempting to coerce and intimidate legislation in California upon this subject; and

"Whereas, we view with alarm the attempted encroachment of the government on state rights; therefore be it

"Resolved, that we, the people of the state of Nevada, represented in senate and assembly, do hereby recommend to the state of California to pay no attention whatever to the admonishing of the president in this particular, but go ahead and enact such stringent measures as will absolutely stop forthwith the encroachment of the Japanese and the further acquiring of foothold in this nation; and,

"Whereas, we believe there is no danger of war with the Japanese as it is advanced by those who oppose our views, but we believe that if we must have war with the Japanese empire sooner or later, now is a better time to lay down terms to that empire and teach those arrogant people that American rights cannot be encroached upon and they cannot, nor never will be, allowed or given an opportunity to acquire a foothold in this country, or to assimilate with our race; and we further censure Theodore Roosevelt, the President of the United States, for his so-called interference in attempting to deprive the citizens of the great commonwealth of California by threats and coercion from exercising their lawful rights by protecting themselves from the Japanese hordes; and be it further

"Resolved, that a copy of this resolution be forwarded to our representatives in congress, urging them to use their influence in enacting an exclusion act against the Japanese and Chinese which will perpetually exclude them from coming into this country."

Will Push Anti-Jap Legislation

Sacramento, Cal., Feb. 2.—While the letters of President Roosevelt to Governor Gillett regarding the Japanese question made a deep impression upon the legislature, the two leaders of the proposed legislation against Japanese declare that they will push their measures to a vote as soon as possible.

The judiciary committee furnished a report Monday, favoring the passage of the Drew measure without change, and it was made a special order of business for Wednesday to take precedence over the Johnson bill denying Japanese the right to be members of corporations and segregating them not only in the schools, as attempted by the San Francisco board of education two years ago, but also in residential quarters, at the option of boards of supervisors.

Standard Oil Subpoenas

Chicago, Feb. 2.—Fifty subpoenas issued by Judge Landis for District Attorney Sims have been given to the United States marshal for service on witnesses to appear for the government at the second trial of the $29,240,000 case against the Standard Oil company of Indiana. The trial is set for Feb. 23 before Judge Anderson of Indianapolis.

A Concession to Zayas

Havana, Feb. 2.—President Gomez signed a decree appointing Jose Ugarte chief of the secret police. This closes the sensational incident arising out of the proposal to appoint Ricardo Arnauto to that office, which was frustrated by Vice President Zayas' threat to resign.

Conservation Plans Approved

Ottawa, Feb. 2.—The Canadian parliament discussed the proposal by President Roosevelt that the United States, Canada and Mexico shall cooperate for the conservation of the natural resources of North America. The leaders of both parties expressed hearty approval of the plan.

Naval Delegates Call on King

London, Feb. 2.—The delegates to the international naval congress, which has been in session in London since December, were received in private adulence today by King Edward at Buckingham palace.

WAS ONLY A BONFIRE.

Wollaston Fire Apparatus Makes Long Run for Nothing.

Because his wife asked him to burn up an old mattress Mr. Gardner caused the Wollaston apparatus to be called out on a still alarm, Saturday evening.

Mr. Gardner was burning up the mattress in a vacant lot beside the house just vacated by him on Old Colony avenue.

A boy on Beale street near the railroad bridge saw the reflection from the bonfire and thinking some house was on fire reported the matter at the fire station.

The firemen also thought the blaze serious and the combination was sent with all speed to the scene.

When they arrived and saw the cause of their run there was a great deal of good natured chaffing between the firemen and the guardian of the bonfire.

Mr. Gardner says that he is sorry he caused the fire department any trouble but is glad that the mattress is burnt up.

To Aid Italian Sufferers.

Benefit Fair and Dance Held in Hibernian Hall.

A large number of Italians were present Saturday night at the fair and dance at Hibernian hall in aid of the earthquake sufferers of Italy. Mayor Shea was present during the early part of the evening and was given an enthusiastic reception.

Those in charge of the affair were Emilio Catalini and Santino DiChiesa. The dance was in charge of Peter Josephine and Erico Macagni. Quite a sum was netted by the affair.

DID NOT STRIKE HORSE

Mother of May Rhoades Comes to Defense of President Roosevelt

Washington, Feb. 2.—For the first time making public a disclaimer of published reports that President Roosevelt, while riding in Rock Creek park, near this city, struck the horse ridden by a young woman who happened to ride near his party, the White House Monday gave out a letter received from the young woman's mother, Elizabeth M. Rhoades. It was dated at Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 27, and read as follows:

"My daughter, Miss May Rhoades, whose horse, it has been widely reported, you struck while riding in the park last Thanksgiving Day, most emphatically denies any knowledge of such an occurrence, and as it is deemed of such importance as to be referred to in congress, may I be permitted to ask you why you do not deny this story?"

BULLET IN HIS HEAD

Wife of Justice of the Peace Thinks Husband Was Murdered

Newark, N. J., Feb. 2.—The dead body of Frank Wilhelm, a real estate dealer and justice of the peace, was found last night by his wife in his home with a bullet wound in the head. It is believed by Mrs. Wilhelm that her husband was murdered, and the police are searching for an Italian who is said to have threatened him with death.

Wilhelm was found lying in front of the rear basement door of his residence, which was unlocked, but closed. This door opens upon a small yard which faces upon a rear street.

If Wilhelm was murdered, robbery evidently was not the motive, for in his pockets were a gold watch and a considerable sum of money. A diamond stud in his necktie also was in its place.

MINISTER AND WIFE KILLED BY GAS

Indications That They Had Not Been Prosperous

New York, Feb. 2.—With the gas radiator turned on full, Frederick Vahey and his wife fere found dead from asphyxiation in their apartment in Jersey City. There was no note or message left by either of the couple to indicate that their death was other than accidental.

Vahey was a regular ordained minister of the Christian Methodist Church of the Living God. He was 40 years old and his wife was a few years younger.

Letters found in the house, which was poorly furnished, showed that the clergyman endeavored to obtain employment outside of his calling.

THE HATTERS' STRIKE

Manufacturers Not Expected to Recede From "Open Shop" Position

South Norwalk, Conn., Feb. 2.—The promised statement from the Associated Hat Manufacturers, which is to be given out today at New York, is being awaited among the hatters in this state with keen interest, although it has already been made public that the manufacturers have decided not to yield in their original order to discontinue the use of the union label in the product of their factories.

This action, it is asserted by a manufacturer representing one of the most prominent concerns in the association, will, without doubt, mean the "open shop" on Feb. 9, the date set for the re-opening.

UNWISE INVESTMENTS

Bank Commissioner Orders the Closing of Institution at Greenfield

Greenfield, Mass., Feb. 2.—Questioning the soundness of certain investments made by the Greenfield Savings bank, Bank Commissioner Jay ordered that institution to close its doors, pending an examination and retrenchment.

The order authorizing the closing of the bank came in the form of an injunction issued by Judge Sheldon of the supreme court and occasioned much surprise.

The present condition of the bank is said to be mostly due to unwise investments made some years ago in real estate loans.

Church Destroyed by Fire

Palmer, Mass., Feb. 2.—The Second Congregational church, one of the finest structures in this village, was burned last night with most of its furnishings. The loss is $25,000. The fire started in the rear of the building, apparently from defective electric light wiring.

Rain Continues In Messina

Messina, Feb. 2.—The rain still continues, causing much discomfort to the refugees, although some progress has been made in the last few days in the construction of shelters. The municipal council now has quarters in one of the newly erected huts.

In Honor of Selfridge

Washington, Feb. 2.—The name Selfrdige has been given a battery on the Fort Upton, Hawaii, military reservation in honor of First Lieutenant Thomas E. Selfridge, who died from injuries last September from a fall with the Wright aeroplane.

QUINCY LOCALS BRIEFLY TOLD

The pupils of Mrs. Frank K. Butler are to give a recital in elocution in Atlantic Music hall on Thursday evening.

Rev. and Mrs. A. Edwin Clattenburg of 523 Hancock street, Wollaston, are receiving congratulations on the birth of a boy, born this morning.

Lawyer Tirrell has moved from the Wilson building, where he was located during the past fifteen years, and taken an office in the Johnson building.

Arthur B. Hultman has taken an office in the Johnson building to conduct a real estate and insurance business. He will also qualify in a few days to serve civil papers in litigation.

Miss Elorence G. Foreman of Warren, R. I., spent the week-end with Miss Katherine T. Roche of Baxter avenue. Miss Roche also entertained Miss Ada Campbell of Norwood and Waldo Carpenter of Providence, R. I.

Rev. J. C. Powell of the Crowley fathers of St. John's, Boston, addressed the members of the Christ church altar guild Monday afternoon in Christ church. It was the eve of the Purification and Fr. Powell took the feast of the Purification for his subject. His talk was very interesting and instructive. The services were opened and closed with singing.

It is rumored that the Redmond estate on Atlantic street is to be opened for a boarding house this summer. This is a necessity that Atlantic has always been without and those outsiders who wish to visit Atlantic have hitherto been obiliged to make one day trips. Now that the bouvelard has invited motorists into that vicinity, a boarding house is much in demand.

The Quincy Council, Knights of Columbus, are to present the musical comedy "The Mikado" after Lent. The play will be presented under the personal direction of Daniel E. Bowen of the Boston Dramatic society. Edward P. Histen, who has so successfully managed the Quincy Point Social club minstrel shows, is chairman of the committee, and the best talent will be procured.

Last Saturday at the home of Mr. George B. Doring of Norfolk Theatricals held a humorous entertainment presenting plays entitled "Bridget Brannagans Troubles" and "The Nigger Boarding House" which were presented by: Arthur Axberg, Harry Wilson, Stanley Doring, Donald Welsh, Edward Carlson, Pitt Robinson, who credibly acted their parts keeping the audience in an uproar. Edwin Finnigan very readily ushered the ladies to their seats. The play was largely attended in the afternoon and evening performances. Music was rendered by the Davenport orchestra consisting of:—Miss Bertha Davenport, Miss Edna Crockett, Miss Mabel Crockett, Miss Mary Beale, Pitt Robinson. Arthur Axberg showed remarkable talent as a mimic in the difficult female part he took and Harry Wilson distinguished himself as "Moses" in a colored role. The whole entertainment was ably managed by Frank Doring.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul G. Curtis, nee Sprague were in Wollaston on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Cady Loud, nee Alice Newcomb of Wibird street welcomed a little daughter to their home last week.

The O. I. club, members of the Quincy Telephone exchange are to give a dancing party in Hibernian hall Thursday evening.

Mrs. E. E. Field of Hancock street, returned Monday from Portland, Maine, where she has been visiting her daughter Mrs. L. F. Beaumont.

Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Ames of Whitney road observed the sixteenth anniversary of their marriage on Monday evening at their home, entertaining relatives and friends.

John Darrihee, who has been in the employ of Timberlake & Small for a long time has severed his connection with that store and accepted a position with Grant's grocery store on Hancock street.

Dr. Weddell who is in charge of the revival services in Quincy, held a meeting at the Fore River gate Monday noon. Dr. Weddell spoke about fifteen minutes and made a marked impression on the 250 workmen who listened to him.

The patrons of the Quincy Adams station are enjoying, an increase in the train service from and to Boston. The 7.52 A.M. express from Boston, stops to leave Boston passengers and the train, arriving in Boston at 3.17 P. M. makes a flag stop, at 3.01 P. M. for Boston passengers.

BEN HADLEY'S LEGACY

Money Left to "President of United States" Will Not Be Accepted

Boston, Feb. 2.—President Roosevelt, in a letter to attorneys for the administrator, declares that under no condition will he accept the legacy of $10,000 left him by the last will of Benjamin Hadley, the Somerville recluse, who died Dec. 16, 1907.

The will was found on a doorstep in Wiltshire, Eng., and in the disposition of a property of some $150,000 was a legacy of "$10,000 to the President of the United States."

The will was brought to Boston and will come up for probate on Feb. 15. The president in his letter says he cannot accept a legacy from a private individual.

SUICIDE IS IDENTIFIED

Man Infatuated With Actress Had Deserted Wife and Baby

Woonsocket, R. I., Feb. 2.—The man who committed suicide in a hotel here last Saturday afternoon, after leaving a note addressed to an actress, to whom he had paid attentions and proposed marriage, has been identified as Charles T. Lewis of Reading, Mass. His wife, whom he is said to have deserted several weeks ago with her four months old baby, made the identification.

It is said that a warrant was out for the arrest of Lewis in Massachusetts on a charge of stealing $400 from a man for whom he formerly worked.

GET INSIDE.

Rubbing the back won't cure backache.

A liniment may relieve, but can't cure.

Here is Quincy proof that this is so:

Mrs. Fred Curtis, living at 18 Quarry street, Quincy, Mass., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills have been used with such satisfactory results in my family that I feel it my duty to publicly recommend them. My husband was in pretty bad shape as the result of backache. He tried plasters and used several remedies, in an effort to get relief, but did not succeed until he began using Doan's Kidney Pills, which he procured at the Cox Drug Store. This remedy cured him in a short time and he is now feeling better than for years. I have also used Doan's Kidney Pills and found them to be an excellent remedy for regulating the action of the kidney secretions and toning up the general system."

City Council Meeting

fire in the Fore River district where the water coming through 700 feet of hose would not break a window.

Chief Williams said that was so.

Councilman Abele moved the order be laid on the table. Voted.

The Finance Committee reported reference to the Executive Department of the petition of John P. Rizzi for refund of poll tax.

Reference to the Executive Department of the order appropriating $300 for a horse for the police department.

The Finance Committee reported reference to the Executive on the order that city laborers be paid $2 per day of eight hours, in as much as this interferes with the Executive department, as the Charter provides that the Legislative department shall not exercise any executive power.

Councilman McDevitt, this is the place to decide such an order. We should not be afraid to vote. If the city can not pay $2 a day it is only nonsense for me to come here. I intend for every member to show his hand.

Councilman Smith asked of the Chairman of the Finance Committee if the order was refered because the council had no authority to pass the order.

Councilman Bryant replying said the City Council had no right to pass such an order. Personally he did not care how much the men were paid. We might pass a resolution. The fact is it is an executive proposition. We pass the budget giving the Mayor certain money to carry out the different departments. We can not interfere with him in the expending of that money. He can pay $2.50 for six hours' work if he desires. He said he believed we had a Mayor who had the courage to act.

Councilman Walsh was in favor of the order if it was legal. If there was any way of getting around it he would vote for it.

Councilman McDevitt said that he had consulted legal authority. "I am on to this little game. You have got to show your hands. I wish to be one to ask for the roll call."

Councilman Bryant asked the ruling of the City Solicitor.

City Solicitor McAnarney said that as a matter of law the Council has no legal right to interfere with the authority of the Mayor.

Councilman Flynn, "who provides how much shall be paid the police and firemen?"

Councilman Bryant, "the City Ordinances provide that."

Councilman McDevitt asked of the City Solicitor, "Is this an official ruling where the Mayor does not favor? Can not the law be interpreted so that the order can be passed?"

City Solicitor McAnarney. My opinions are not smoothed over. I only give what I consider to be the law of this Commonwealth.

Councilman Bryant on reply to a question by Councilman McDevitt said that the matter of police salaries came under the ordinances and not the charter.

Councilman McDevitt, "I am on to this little game to send the order to the Mayor who will give it to the Commissioner where it dies."

Councilman Richards asked the City Solicitor as to department salaries.

Councilman Russell hoped if it was possible to increase the pay it would be done. It ought to be the sense of the Council that the men be paid $2.

Councilman Walsh asked, "If we pass this order and the Mayor signs it and it becomes in force, can not the Mayor be compelled to pay it?"

City Solicitor McAnarney. "No. You can not compel the Mayor to pay."

Councilman Moir raised the point of order that under rule 11 if objection was made a member shall not speak on a question more than twice.

Councilman McDevitt attempted to speak and Councilman Moir raised the same point and objection.

Councilman McDevitt asked the question of personal privilege to speak.

Councilman Russell moved the Councilman be permitted to speak to the question. Voted.

Councilman McDevitt, "The gentleman from ward six who was questioning so much in regard to telephone wires has probably got the wires tangled up in his head. I sat and listened to a lot of his nonsensical questions. I want to ask the Solicitor if the council passes the order and the Mayor signs it will be legal?"

City Solicitor McAnarney. "If the Mayor believes the men should be paid $2 he has a right to do it. You can not take any right from him."

Councilman McDevitt. "Will it do any harm to pass it?"

City Solicitor McAnarney, "That is not a part of my function. I can only deal with it as a matter of law."

Councilman McDevitt, "I know that this bill is to be sidetracked."

Councilman Gilson, "Ie is very evident that all agree that the men should be paid $2." He said he thought if the matter was passed as a resolution as a wish of the Council it would be all right.

Cuncilman Smith then offered a resolution to that effect but the President ruled the motion not in order at that time.

Councilman McDevitt, "I told you there was a little game on."

Councilman McDevitt then asked Councilman Smith as to a conversation he had with him and if he did not say that he thought the order would not pass, and that the Mayor would not do it.

Councilman Smith, "I did say that I thought the order would not pass. I did not quote the Mayor's opinion. I said that my opinion was that the Mayor would favor $2."

Councilman Bishop said he favored the $2 a day but he should vote for the acceptance of the report as it would not be legal to pass the order.

The report was then acecpted. Vote doubted. On a rising vote the report of the committee was accepted, 15 voting yes and four no.

MOTIONS.

Councilman Smith offered a resolution that in the opinion of the City Council the city laborers should receive $2 per day, of eight hours and that the Mayor be requested to place this rate of renumeration for such labor in effect.

Councilman Gilson amended by adding the date Feb. 1.

This resolution was passed. The vote was doubted. On a rising vote the resolve was passed 13 voting yes and five no.

Councilman Moir asked of the Commissioner why he had not reported on the order asking for certain information as to Squantum street.

Mayor Shea replied and said that the order was on his desk and had not gone to the Commissioner.

Councilman Bryant asked of the clerk why he had sent the order to the Mayor.

The clerk replied that he considered it an executive matter and had sent the order to the Mayor.

Councilman McDevitt offered an order for a committee of three to investigate all departments of the city. If passed he said he would save the city $25,000.

Order rejected 17 voting no and one yes.

Councilman Flynn offered an order requesting the Commissioner to furnish the Council with the names of all streets bearing the same name. Adopted.

Councilman Moir moved that the clerk forward the Commissioner a copy of order 22 and that he be requested to reply at the next meeting. Voted.

Councilman Gardner offered an order for two lights on Weston avenue. Referred to Executive department.

Councilman Moir asked the Chief of Police what had been done about the dog muzzling order.

The Chief replied that the notice was not published until last week and that nothing had been done. Since the notice had been published he had given orders to enforce the order.

Councilman Gilson offered an order transferring $91.03 from the Ward Six school furnishings to be placed to the credit of the Ward Six school for planting trees and building fence. Adopted.

Councilman Bean offered an order for two lights on Marlboro street. Referred to Executive.

The application of F. F. Crane for an auctioneers license was taken from the table and Councilman Hadlock offered an order granting the license.

Councilman Bryant moved the order be referred to the Committee on License. Motion lost. The order was then adopted and the bond approved.

Councilman Abele offered a resolve that the Commissioner of Public Works furnish the Council at its next meeting with the names of all private ways on which electric or gas lights were located. Adopted.

Voted to adjourn.

Adjourned at 10.48 until Feb. 15.

The Constipation Evil

IS RESPONSIBLE FOR MOST CASES OF PILES.

Constipation paralyzes the blood vessels of the lower bowel, and often causes piles. Women, and all other indoor workers, are the most frequent sufferers. But curing constipation alone won't cure piles. A special medicine is needed—internal treatment, to strengthen the flabby veins and start pure blood circulating.

Dr. Leonhardt's Hem-Roid is the only internal pile cure. Sold under guarantee. $1 at Clyde T. Cox's Quincy, Mass., or Dr. Leonhardt Co., Station B. Buffalo, N. Y. Write for booklet.

MRS. J. H. GILBERT.

The passing of this quiet, little gentle-woman removes a familiar figure from the Centre, where for about half a century she went in and out among our homes and stores. Many of our older citizens readily remember the early location of Dr. Gilbert's house and office near site of present post-office and also recall pleasant greeting of Mrs. Gilbert when asked "Is the Doctor in?" Have we stopped to think of the inevitable loneliness which pressed upon our friend for many years by reason of loss of hearing? She will be missed by many recipients of her thoughtful generosity, as well as by storekeepers who appreciated the kindness and promptness of her business dealings, and knew she did not expect all of the biggest eggs and oranges to be put into her basket.

In earlier days she was an ardent lover of music and regularly attended rehearsals of Handel and Haydn society.

Mrs. Gilbert was a member of Bethany church from 1863 to her decease January 24, 1909, and has left memory of constant interest, attendance and u sport—continuing through years of infirmity while cut off from every sound in the sanctuary excepting that of the still, small voice.

Our aged friend will be missed by many who wish for her the fulfilment of ancient prophecy that "Deaf ears shall be unstopped."

Her much loved sister, Miss Copeland of Middletown, Ct., was in the home during the last days and shared in the tender ministries bestowed upon her until tongue at last companied with the ear in silence. She rests beside the "Beloved Physician" who preceded her about ten years ago.

An Old Acquaintance.

The Health of Your Horse

will be best promoted—best preserved—if you are ready to give the proper remedy at the proper time. The proper remedy for all strains, sprains, or colic is Perry's Painkiller. The proper time to use it is when the trouble first shows itself. Be prompt and you'll not only save the horse suffering, but you'll spare yourself trouble and expense—maybe save a long time waiting. You ought to have a bottle ready. The new size bottle costs 35 cents; one larger, 50 cents. Be sure your druggist gives you Perry Davis'.

"Johnnie" Binns, the wireless operator of the ill fated steamer Republic, refuses to make a dime museum exhibit of himself, which shows what a level head he has. It was undoubtedly a hard thing for him to refuse an offer of $10,000 to exhibit himself for 10 weeks, and few men would have done it. Binns, however, is evidently not "out for the money," neither is he fond of having bouquets thrown at him for what he merely considers doing his duty.

—The use of the word "blue" to denote melancholy or terror, as in the phrases to "feel blue," "blue devils" a "blue funk," and so on, is not entirely figurative, says the New York Herald if we are to credit a recent medical writer.

The classof phenomena that includes fainting, vertigo, nausea, etc, is controlled by certain brain centers that also bring about a sort of cramp of the external muscles of the eye. The resulting compression of the organ causes objects to look gray or bluish, and ultimately produces apparent darkness.

The use of the word, having a physiological basis, is common to many languages. The French say, for instance, "I see blue." A writer says that the French word eblouisseme nt (giddiness) should be spelled ebleuissement, and has the same origin.

WHO IS "RESPONSIBLE" FOR ERECTION OF CRANES?

J. Q. A. Field Endeavors To Place Credit or Blame In Communication to Ledger

Editor Daily Ledger:

In your columns of late I notice the Board of Trade has been attacked for not accomplishing anything of value to the City of Quincy. One question raised in your columns was, "Who is responsible for the erection of those cranes at Quincy Adams?" The word "responsible" is good. "Culpable" would be even better, as I will endeavor to show, presently. As I was a member of the Board of Trade in April, 1907, I beg to state a few facts for which members of the Board of Trade were responsible.

At a meeting held on April 3, 1907, a vote was passed by the Board authorizing and directing the President to appoint a committee of five to wait upon the N. Y. N. H. & H. R. R., officials for the purpose of securing increased freight facilities at Quincy Adams, and, failing to obtain satisfaction from said officials, to petition the Railroad Commissioners for the above purpose. The President appointed the following members to constitute the committee:—J. Q. A. Field, chairman; E. J. Sandberg, John R. Richards, H. E. Crane, William H. Deacon.

The Chairman waited upon Mr. A. W. Martin, asst. gen. Supt., and arranged for a conference with the committee. The conference took place, and the following letter, sent by Mr. Martin to the Chairman, speaks for itself as to what was accomplished.

The N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. Co.
Office of the Assistant General Supt.
Boston, Mass., April 22, 1907.

Mr. J. Q. A. Field, Chairman.

Dear Sirs:—With reference to the conference held in my office Wednesday, April 17th, I take pleasure in advising you that President Mellen has authorized an appropriation of $15,000.00 for traveling crane and tracks at Quincy Adams for handling stone business at that point. The crane will be ordered immediately, and its installation will be made as quickly as the manufacturers can furnish the material. On that I can give you no definite date, but we will push the completion of the work as rapidly as possible.

The men for the hand derricks are, as promised, already on, and I understand are doing good work.

Trusting that this will enable you to make a very satisfactory report, and that you will have the crane within a reasonable time, I remain,

Yours very truly,
A. W. Martin,
Assistant General Superintendent.

At the time of the meeting, I do not remember of the question arising, nor was it settled at that time what kind of a crane we should have.

At the next meeting (Wednesday evening, May 1st) after considerable debate, there was an almost unanimous vote for a crane; and in due time we got it. At that time I understood there was a petition being circulated for an overhead crane by the Granite Manufacturers' Association. Of this fact I have only hearsay evidence; I did not see the petition.

On or about May 3 the following report appeared in the Ledger relative to the situation:

The only business Wednesday evening was relative to freight facilities for loading granite at the Quincy Adams station.

J. Q. A. Field, the chairman of the committee to interview the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R., made a lengthy explanation of the work of the committee and the situation as he understood it. He said the railroad wanted to learn on Thursday whether the Board of Trade wanted a traveling crane or derricks. The chief engineer favored two boom derricks similar to West Quincy to be operated by power. The railroad was also willing to put in scales.

Mr. Field was anxious that the Board of Trade should favor derricks, not something for which they would be cursed by granite men in the future.

The granite men present did not agree with Mr. Field however.

John R. Richards said the committee when they went to Boston were all in favor of a travelling crane, and with the exception of Mr. Field they favored an up-to-date crane now.

Councilman George Hunter favored a travelling crane, and thought it unnecessary to have a bulkhead wall on the Marsh street end of the new freight yard.

Councilman W. H. Deacon of the Committee favored a crane.

It was moved by W. H. Teasdale that it was the sense of the Board of Trade that a travelling crane was wanted at Quincy Adams.

The motion prevailed unanimously.

J. Q. A. Field, chairman of the committee, then tendered his resignation. He was urged to reconsider and told to think it over, but he positively declined to serve further. No action, however, was taken.

A vote of thanks to the committee was passed, and they were asked to serve until the improvement is obtained.

Personally, I was much opposed to an overhead crane being erected at Quincy Adams, and for the following reasons:

First:—In the winter there is much trouble with ice and snow. No later than this morning the present crane refused to work, and two weeks ago, when we had a heavy rain and snow, it was laid up for three days.

Second:—With the present crane there is only one "purchase," (except-ing a heavy one which cannot be used in conjunction with the other) to handle all the granite and other material that comes to and is shipped from that station. The erection of the crane does not leave any room upon the grounds to erect any other contrivance or apparatus that would be of any service. The premises are so shaped that there was ample room for the erection and operation of three boom derricks; and had those been erected, instead of the crane, our facilities would have been thereby trebled. As it is, our facilities are not appreciably increased. The overhead crane is inadequate to the needs and demands of the place.

Third:—This cramping of our facilities virtually bars out the quarry owners from taking orders for rough cellar stone. During the year that has closed contracts for such stock were offered me, and I was obliged to decline them for the above reason. The overhead crane being unable to take care of the work, it is a common thing to see a dozen or more teams waiting their turn at one time, and it is by no means uncommon for a team to have to wait half a day to get unloaded. The expense of keeping teams is, of course, great, and the expense and congestion combined keep the people who run quarries in this part of the commons from bidding on the above kind of work. They simply cannot compete with parties who have adequate facilities for unloading.

I favored the boom derricks, foreseeing how we would be cramped by an overhead crane. The committee favored the overhead crane and reported accordingly. For that reason I resigned from the Committee. I expected then that the granite men would see their folly in tying their hands to an overhead crane. I think they see it now. The crane has been weighed in the balance and found wanting; it has been fairly tried and tested and it has not "made good," as any candid observer will admit. With the exception of my esteemed and bellicose friend, J. L. Miller, no one has stood up and claimed credit or admitted blame for having the crane erected.

The railroad gave the granite men what they asked for. In view of that fact, it would be difficult to induce the company to give us further equipment for a long time. The teaming business is suffering, and will suffer greatly as business increases. It is a condition that confronts us, Mr. Editor, and not a mere historical question. And what are we going to do about it?

I feel that this letter will take considerable space, Mr. Editor, but the importance of the subject warrants the exhaustive treatment I have tried to give it. I thank you for this opportunity of laying the facts before the citizens of Quincy.

Yours truly,
J. Q. A. Field.

The Health of Your Horse

will be best promoted—best preserved—if you are ready to give the proper remedy at the proper time. The proper remedy for all strains, sprains, or colic is Perry's Painkiller. The proper time to use it is when the trouble first shows itself. Be prompt and you'll not only save the horse suffering, but you'll spare yourself trouble and expense—maybe save a long time waiting. You ought to have a bottle ready. The new size bottle costs 35 cents; one larger, 50 cents. Be sure your druggist gives you Perry Davis'.

WEST QUINCY WOMAN HELD FOR MURDER

Ida Oja Must Answer to Charge Of Strangling New Born Infant

Ida Oja aged about 27 years, residing at 15 Common street who was arrested Jan. 20, in connection with the finding of the body of an infant buried in an ash heap has been held without bail for the grand jury for murder.

The infant was found by Officer Hinchon in the rear of an out building at the corner of West and Centre streets. That same day information was received by the police from a physician who attended a Finn girl who had given birth to a child Tuesday.

Following up this clew the Oja woman was arrested and taken to the Quincy Home where she was confined until the Medical Examiner made an autopsy on the body of the child.

This week the woman was arraigned before Judge Avery and several witnesses were examined including Medical Examiner Jones.

His testimony is said to have been that the child died from strangulation and exposure.

The New England near-poets and maiden ladies cannot forgive Poe for having been a great poet.

Of course, the South will be able to spare Mr. Taft long enough to enable him to attend his own inauguration.

In nominating Root, Senator Raines said: "God bless Thomas C. Platt." Raines evidently thinks lovingly of the good old days when grafting was easy. But alas.

One of Mr. Peary's Eskimo boys is preparing to make a search for the Pole on his own account. It would be just like some cheap piker to drag the thing in while no one was looking.

Now, why wouldn't it be a good idea for Mr. Taft to abolish the referee system in the North, also? Federal patronage is not handled any more creditably in the North than in the South.

If councilmen ever played to the gallery some of those who took part in the discussion of the questions at Monday night's meeting certainly did. It was by far the warmest meeting the City Council ever held and was anything but creditable to some of the participants. City officials and others who appeared before the council could hardly have been submitted to a more raking cross examination had they been witnesses in a murder trial and they would have been fully justified in refusing to answer certain questions put to them. It was a most farcical exhibition. President Hobbs time and again brought the gavel down upon the granite block until at last the gavel was splintered and it looked at one time as though it would be necessary to call on the police to preserve order.

The debates and long examinations prolonged the meeting until nearly 11 o'clock.

The resolution reported by a committee of the whole in special session of the legislature of Nevada, declaring in favor of drastic legislation against the Japanese, and criticising President Roosevelt for what the resolution calls his attempt to coerce and intimidate legislation in California, is likely to cause a serious rupture in the now friendly relations enjoyed by the United States with Japan.

Where the fault lies or what causes such a feeling of animosity on the part of the citizens of California against the Japanese is hard for Easterners to understand, although it can probably be attributed to the same reason that causes the frequent demonstrations against the negroes in the south race prejudice. Still a simple matter of color, or customs is hardly a sufficient reason for unfriendliness in a republic like the United States, or in fact in any other country, whose citizens make any pretensions to intellectuality or a high state of civilization.

In the East we do not find the Japanses objectionable, on the contrary in nearly every place where they have settled they have become peaceable and law abiding citizens, adopting our customs and language with an alacrity that is surprising. They are ambitious and have an inborn love of country we admit, but what of that. Are not the Irish or the Italians or in fact any other of our foreign born citizens just as ambitions, and love their mother country with just as strong a love? And yet we do not try to stop immigrants from these countries from landing or settling in the United States.

This threat of excluding anti-Japanese legislation, if carried on is likely to plunge this country into a war for which we are totally unprepared, and which the majority of citizens would hate to see. Therefore it is the duty of every citizen who loves his country and his fellowmen to do all he can to block all legislation tending to create a rupture with Japan. Give the Japanese fair play and treat them with the spirit of friendliness, and consideration accorded the natives of any other foreign power, and Japan will undoubtedly do her part to maintain the existing relations, and the United States will steer clear of any unpleasantness now or in the future.

EDITORIAL COMMENTS.

The expereince which this community has already had on such days as Memorial day, Thanksgiving day and the now discarded "Fast day" has shown that making a day a holiday does not always tend to dignify or to make general the serious observance of the event thus commemorated. A holiday (on any day but a Sunday) means, in most cases, that wage earners, especially those who are most dependent on their wages, lose their income for that day. Business houses always feel the break in the usual run of trade. The proposition to make a holiday of February 12, this year, would have more to commend it if there were not another general holiday a little more than a week latter. And the protest of the school authorities especially should have weight, for they have shown that to grant a holiday on Lincoln day would be to close the public school for three days in this month, so far as the regular studies are concerned. The suggestion does not come from the public nor is it inspired by the wisest regard for Lincoln's memory—Boston Advertiser.

The world is still thrilling with pride and happiness over the victory won by the wireless telegraph and the watertight bulkhead against wreck and fog and storm when the Republic and the Florida collided off our Massachusetts coast. It has been rightfully acclaimed as a signal triumph for human ingenuity.

No great battle won between men could so flatter the race as this bloodless conquest of peace, this latest illustration of the power of man to baffle and defeat the mighty forces of nature. The furious sea, surging in through the riven hulls of the ships, beat in vain against the stanch compartments within their holds, while the very winds, which reveled about them and fain would sing their requiem, were harnessed by a boy and made to bear across the vast and raging wastes his shrill fall for reinforcements. And these came racing to the scene from every quarter, like firemen responding to a general alarm.

Meanwhile the newspapers of two hemispheres reported in their hourly extras the progress of the unseen combat, movement by movement, charge by charge, and the brave captain on the bridge, even when he could not see his hand before him, heard above the angry uproar of the hungry waves the words of counsel and cheer which were flashed to him by his employers on the distant shore. It was all so magical that it fairly intoxicated the understanding.—Boston Globe.

ANTI-JAPANESE AGITATION

SHOWING A LACK OF STRENGTH

Transportation Companies Which Profit by Influx of Coolies May Be Responsible For Extreme Utterances In California and Nevada—President Will Do All Possible to Prevent Enactment of Dangerous Legislation

Washington, Feb. 3.—No single question, nor, indeed, any group of questions, is absorbing the interest and concern of the administration at this moment as are certain phases of the anti-Japanese agitation in California.

The president has been in communication with many persons who should be thoroughly informed as to the conditions on the Pacific coast, but a significant feature of its lack of strength is the fact that the labor leaders have taken no prominent part in it.

Indeed, it has been stated to the administration that the real mainspring of the agitation was in some of the great corporations that had found their profitable business of coolie transportation threatened with destruction by the success attending the efforts of the administration to stop this class of immigration.

For the fact is, that in the opinion of the administration the negotiations with Japan for a practically complete closure of American ports to the entry of Japanese laborers are certainly jeopardized by the extreme utterances of certain persons in California and by the mere consideration of such resolutions as were entertained by the Nevada legislature.

Even agreements already reached, which are being carried out in perfect good faith on the part of the Japanese government, are endangered in the sense that the present agitation might very naturally tend to abate the interest of the Japanese officials in the execution of their obligations in view of the unfriendly attitude assumed by some elements on the Pacific coast.

It is these considerations that have influenced the president in reaching the conclusion that everything possible should be done to prevent the enactment of legislation by any state that would discriminate against the Japanese as a class apart from other foreign elements entering America.

There is no objection whatever by the administration to laws prohibiting all aliens from holding land. This is now, under the revised statutes, the law in the District of Columbia and the territories and some of the states. Indeed, there is a similar law in Japan, and the government of that country consequently could not regard it as anti-Japanese legislation if adopted in California.

The president has confidence in the people of the Pacific coast, and is certain that they will do right in this matter.

Roosevelt Censure Eliminated

Carson City, Feb. 3.—The anti-Japanese resolution that was introduced in the assembly Monday by Speaker Giffen was shorn of its vindictive points Tuesday. The matter was taken up by the governor and the leaders of both political parties, and after a conference it was decided to eliminate the portions censuring President Roosevelt.

The resolution as amended declares that the state of California is justified in its action and urges that that state pass a law that will tend to exclude the Japanese race; also that Nevada views with alarm the attempted encroachment of the government on state rights.

The resolution will go to the senate, where it probably will be trimmed further, as the Republican members of that body express the view that it is passing the bounds of good judgment.

Exclusion League Kept Busy

San Francisco, Feb. 3.—The anti-Japanese agitation on the Pacific coast, which has been fanned into new life by the introduction of radical measures in the legislatures of California and Nevada, has been carried on quietly for some time by the Asiatic Exclusion League, but apparently is causing no excitement in either state outside of the capitals.

All of the bills introduced in the California legislature have been made the special order of business in the assembly for today and lively debates may be anticipated.

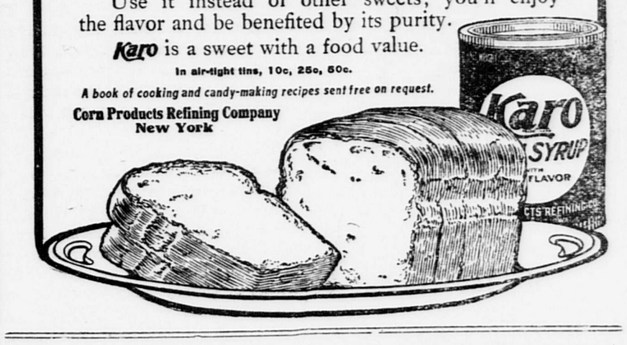

Two Aeronauts Killed

Saint Pons, France, Feb. 3.—A balloon which was drifting over the mountains was overcome by a gale. The occupants of the car, two Bordeaux aeronauts, tried in vain to make a descent, but a violent gust dashed the balloon against a boulder and the aeronauts were killed.

Death Sentence For Assault

Clinton, N. C., Feb. 3.—Will Ward, the negro who criminally assaulted Mrs. Millie McLeod, wife of a farmer, on Jan. 19, and who was placed in state prison to prevent lynching, was tried here and sentenced to be hanged on March 3.

OF QUINCY, MASS.
(Legal Title - Incorporated 1892.)
The Directors of the YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION of Quincy, with a firm faith in the great value of the work which is being done for the young men and boys of our city, make their appeal for donations and bequests toward paying the mortgage indebtedness on the new Association Building. When the building is free from debt it will serve as an Endowment, as there is a goodly income from the dormitories.
Should the Donor prefer, such sum as might be given could be used as an Endowment for an educational class or classes, the Boys Department, or as a special fund in other ways, and could be designated with the name of the Donor.
The Treasurer, WILLIAM F. CUMMINGS, 7 Clive Street, Quincy, or the General Secretary, ERNEST G. GAY, will be happy to answer inquiries

OUR HOSPITAL
(Legal Title: City Hospital of Quincy)
INCORPORATED 1889
The Trustees of the City Hospital of Quincy earnestly appeal for donations and bequests for the Endowment fund. This now amounts to over $60,000 but a fund of at least $100,000 is urgently needed
Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000) will endow a Free Bed to which such name may be given as the Donor may desire, but any sum for this noble institution which stands ready to serve us all in the hour of need, will be most gratefully received.
The Secretary, TIMOTHY REED, Adams St. Quincy, or the Treasurer, RICHARD D. CHASE Savings Bank Building, Quincy, will be very glad to confer with any one or to answer any inquiries.

WESTINGHOUSE SAILS AWAY

Daughter of Rich English Baronet to Become American's Bride

New York, Feb. 3.—Sailing for England today on the Mauretania was George Westinghouse, Jr., whose errand abroad is his marriage to an English girl. The wedding was originally set for last month, but was postponed by Mr. Westinghouse's illness. As seen on the deck of the steamer today, Mr. Westinghouse seemed to be in excellent health. He is to marry Miss Evelyn Violet Brocklebank.

Mr. Westinghouse is the son of the famous and wealthy inventor of the air brake. His bride is the daughter of Sir Thomas Brocklebank, a very rich English baronet. She is a twin, her sister being Miss Agnes Sylvia Brocklebank

The arrangements and the date of the wedding will be decided upon after the arrival in England of Mr. Westinghouse.

The ceremony will take place at Irton Hall, in Holbrook, Cumberland county, the ancestral home of the Brocklebanks.

"SHUT-INS" REMEMBERED

Recipients of Bouquets From Churches of Greater Boston

Boston, Feb. 3.—Cut flowers were showered upon the churches where revival meetings were in progress last night. Today there were delivered to the hospitals, homes and prisons 10,000 bouquets, each tied with a silk ribbon, with a card attached, bearing the following inscription:

"Christian Greetings from the United Churches of Greater Boston."

Five hundred men and women worked into the late hours of the night making bouquets, and as many more delivered them today.

The meetings of yesterday were crowded as on the previous days of the revival, and last night, the end of the first week, it was estimated that at least 2500 converts have already been made in Boston.

HOUSE BALKS AT AUTOMOBILES

Not Inclined to Furnish Them For White House

Washington, Feb. 3.—The house locked horns with the senate on the question of automobiles for the White House and refused to accept an amendment to the urgent deficiency bill, striking out the appropriation of $12,000 for that purpose.

The bill was sent to conference after a humorous debate, in which several members took occasion to refer to the bodily proportions of the president-elect.

THIRTY ARRESTS MADE

Alleged Frauds In the New York Street Cleaning Department

New York, Feb. 3.—Following an investigation into alleged snow removal frauds, the police took into custody thirty employes of the street cleaning department on charges of grand larceny.

The method by which the alleged frauds were committed was not made known, but it is said that the city stands to lose between $50,000 and $60,000.

Commisssioner Edwards has ardered all the men having contracts with the city for removing snow to stop work and, beginning today, the city will do its own carting and removing.

HOPKINS IN THE WAY

Prevents Breaking of the Senatorial Deadlock In Illinois

Springfield, Ills., Feb. 3.—Three more ballots for senator in joint session of the general assembly demonstrated that the deadlock is as firm as ever. No one in Springfield expects the senatorship to be settled this week.

So long as Senator Hopkins, Republican primary choice for re-election, remains a candidate, there appears to be little chance to break the deadlock.

Feared He Would Become Insane

New York, Feb. 3.—Horace Butler, a member of one of the oldest families of Manhattan, died from a bullet wound in his right temple. Butler left several letters in which he declared that the fear of going insane had driven him to suicide.

Prohibition Move In Missouri

Jefferson City, Mo., Feb. 3.—Petitions were presented to both branches of the legislature for the submission of amendments to the state constitution prohibiting the manufacture or sale of intoxicating liquors in Missouri.

Magoon In Washington

Washington, Feb. 3.—Charles E. Magoon, former governor general of Cuba, has arrived here, and will call upon the president and the secretary of war today. He will remain here until Feb. 10.

SHAKEN TO DEATH BY A BULLDOG

Little Fellow's Spine Broken and Neck Lacerated

Newburyport, Mass., Feb. 3.—Two-year-old Bert Leadbetter's fondness for dogs resulted in his death, the child dying within a few minutes after being shaken by the teeth of a Boston terrier bulldog, owned by the lad's uncle, John P. Colby.

The child's spine was broken and the nape of his neck badly lacerated by the dog's teeth before Colby beat the terrier away from the child.

It is supposed that the terrier, in a temporary fit of anger, grabbed the child's neck, and like his kind shook the object upon which he had fastened his teeth.

FINE GIFT TO BALTIMORE

Baltimore, Feb. 3.—With the opening of the Walters splendid art gallery to the public today Baltimore has the opportunity of claiming for its own one of the finest collections of art objects in the world.

The new white marble building at the corner of Charles and Center street contains not only the famous Massarenti collection of old masters and ceramics, purchased in 1902 for nearly $1,000,000, but also the works of art previously owned by Mr. Walters and those since added to his collections.

Henry Walters, the art collector, whose generosity has given Baltimoreans the new gallery, is one of the city's best known capitalists and philanthropists. He is the largest stockholder in the Atlantic Coast line and has many other extensive business interests. He is an enthusiastic yachtsman.

GRISCOM TO THE RESCUE

Ambassador Sends Relief Party to Mountain Villages of Calabria

Rome, Feb. 3.—Such distressing reports have been received here concerning the suffering in the mountain villages of Calabria, which have been inadequately reached by the work of the large relief committees, that Ambassador Griscom has decided to send a small relief party to those regions. This party has been given $6000 for distribution, together with an abundance of supplies. Other supplies will be forwarded from Rome according to the needs.

Prince Scalea, who has just returned from Calabria, brings reports of some telluric phenomena which seems almost incredible. One of the villages, he says, was carried 250 feet under ground by the opening up of the earth and the subsequent landslides.

CANNOT RETAIN EXPERTS

So Brandenburg Disappeared Until He Can Secure Necessary Funds

New York, Feb. 3.—A statement justifying his failure to respond to the calling of his name in court, to answer to the charge of grand larceny, was given out by Broughton Brandenburg, the writer, through his wife.

Brandenburg gives as his reasons for forfeiting his bail the fact that he is without funds with which to retain handwriting and other experts to refute the expert testimony to be offered by the prosecution.

As soon as he has obtained money enough to cover the cost of such expert testimony, he declares in his statement, he will return and face trial.

PREVALENT AT OUTPOSTS

Smallpox In Newfoundland Leads to Quarantine Regulations at Halifax

Halifax, Feb. 3.—The Halifax customs authorities have been ordered from Ottawa that, in view of the fact that smallpox is prevalent at a number of the outposts of Newfoundland, all steamers and sailing vessels from Newfoundland ports will have to remain at quarantine until the port surgeon makes his inspection.

Although there is no smallpox reported at St. John's, reports from other places indicate that the disease is prevalent at a number of outposts.

PITTSBURG NEGROES ARE GATHERED IN

More Than Two Hundred May Be Sent to Workhouse

Pittsburg, Feb. 3.—More than 200 negroes were arrested last night in an effort by the police department to render the Herron Hill residence section of the city safe.

In the last few weeks numerous attacks have been made by negroes upon young women and girls. The police force was increased, but the attacks continued, and a raid was made through the negro quarter and every negro who could not show that he was employed was arrested as a vagrant.

An effort will be made to send all of them to the workhouse today.

OUR SHIPS OF COMMERCE

Should Be Encouraged to Seek South America's Rich Markets

New York, Feb. 3.—A plea for a larger American mercantile marine as a means of acquiring new commercial outlets in South America was made by John Barrett, director of the International Bureau of American Republics, at last night's session of the National Merchant Marine congress.

Mr. Barrett quoted statistics recently compiled by his bureau to show that the commerce of the twenty independent republics comprising Latin America has increased over $1,000,000,000 in the last ten years and urged the subsidizing of United States ships of commerce, to the end that the advantage of the nearer proximity of the United States be not surrendered to European nations having established lines of rapid communication by sea with the rich markets of South America, now in process of active development.

TO APPEAR IN COURT

Patrick Will Leave Sing Sing Prison, Temporarily at Least

New York, Feb. 3.—Justice Gaynor of the appellate division of the supreme court in Brooklyn has granted a writ of habeas corpus calling for the appearance of Lawyer Albert T. Patrick, now serving a commuted sentence of life imprisonment in Sing Sing for the murder of William M. Rice, before the full appellate division.

William L. McDonald, counsel for Patrick, asked for the writ on the legal proposition that the commutation of the death penalty to life imprisonment by the late Governor Higgins was not warranted, in that it was a change of punishment not provided by statute for the crime for which Patrick was convicted, and that the change was to the prisoner's disadvantage in that it was an imposition of a different and greater punishment.

BULLETS FLY IN COURT

Woman With an Automatic Revolver Cuts a Wide Swath

Gatesville, Tex., Feb. 3.—Using an automatic revolver, Miss Verna Ware, daughter of a farmer, fired repeatedly into a crowded courtroom, killing John Haines, a merchant of Jonesboro, for whom the bullets were intended, and propably fatally wounding James Smith and David Ross, bystanders, A. R. Wiley, Jr., another bystander, was seriously wounded.

OPPOSITION TO CRUM

Tillman Opposes His Confirmation as Collector of Customs

Washington, Feb. 3.—The nomination of W. D. Crum to be collector of customs of Charleston was before the senate in executive session for more than four hours, but no substantial progress was made toward confirmation.

Mr. Tillman read communications from various commercial bodies of Charleston in opposition to the confirmation of the Crum nomination as an indication that his protest against Crum fully represented the popular sentiment in Charleston.

AMONG THE CLUBS.

the Quincy Women's club will be held Thursday morning at ten o'clock at the club house.

The Feb. 9th meeting under the auspices of the Philanthropic committee will be a public meeting. Rev. Edward Cummings of Cambridge will speak on "Progress." Music will be furnished by Miss Laura R. Herrig, violinist, pupil of Loefler, with Mrs. John F. Hunt as accompanist. A fine meeting is promised in every way.

Rehearsals for the dramatics are progressing finely and the performance is eagerly looked forward to by club members.

The card party at the club house on the afternoon of Feb. 16 from two until five is attracting members and there have been many subscribers. It is held under the auspices of the Civic committee and is for the benefit of the culb house grounds. Subscriptions to the party are being received by members of the Civic committee.

Arrangements are also perfected for the Atlantic Assembly on Friday evening, Feb. 19th, at Music Hall, Atlantic, by the same committee. The proceeds go for Atlantic improvements.

DAUGHTERS OF THE REVOLUTION

Adams Chapter Daughters of the Revolution met on Monday afternoon at the home of the regent for the last meeting before the annual which will be held the first day of March at the birthplace of President John Adams. The clear cold day brought out a large attendance of members and a pleasant meeting was held.

During the business meeting a new member was voted in. Mrs. Stoddard a member presented the chapter for the Adams house a parchment of Lincoln's speech at Gettysburg which she will suitably frame. Another gift greatly appreciated was early copies of Stuarts' George and Martha Washington presented by the Martha Washington chapter of Boston. This chapter will be guests of Adams chapter at a social meeting to be held after the annual meeting when a formal presentation will be made.

Continuing the furnishing of the John Adams birthplace was informally discussed as was also a gift for the Paul Revere house in Boston.

Following the business a paper on "Early French settlers of Northern New York" was read by Mrs. Williams Ward Whitcher of Atlantic a well known club woman, being president of the Atlantic Shakespeare society and chairman of the Civic Committee of the Quincy Women's club. The paper was written by Mrs. Martha Whitcher a writer of note in New York and was read before the New York Federation of Women's clubs. The reading of it on Monday marked the fifth anniversary of the death of Mrs. Whitcher. As read by her daughter-in-law Mrs. W. W. Whitcher it proved very interesting especially the sketches of the Bonapartes who were among the early settlers of New York.

During the social hour which closed the afternoon the hostesses Mrs. Francis Guild Mayo, Mrs. Frank F. Prescott and Miss Annie L. Prescott served refreshments.

STIRRING MEETING AT BETHANY CHURCH

Large Audience Hears Forceful Sermon By Dr. Weddell

Another large audience attended the Evangelistic meeting at Bethany church last night. Ten clergymen of the Quincy churches and neighboring towns were present. Rev. Frederick Merrill of North Weymouth brought over a delegation from his church.

The music was again a feature. Mr. Briggs, of Briggs & Briggs, music dealers in Cambridge, director of the singing of one of the largest churches in that city, is giving the music here the position in the program which it is entitled to. His solos are a pleasing feature.

Dr. Weddell was again at his best and held has audience from the start.

A quiet sane method was used to obtain expression from those desiring prayers of christian people. About twenty-five persons thus expressed themselves. An after meeting was held for twenty minutes which was well attended.

Dr. Weddell gave a Bible reading at the Wollaston Congregational church this afternoon at three o'clock. This evening's service will be a strong one again. The choir will be assisted by the full Y. M. C. A. orchestra.

The Quincy group is participating in "Flower Day" today sending bouquets to City Hospital, the city home and other institutions.

The Cochato club of Braintree holds a bridge party at the club house on Friday evening. Those in charge of the arrangements are: Mrs. George H. Wetherbee, Mrs. Atherton N. Hunt, Mrs. Harry L. Pattern and Mrs. Frank H. Waters.

Gordon Sherwin of Cleve street, who has been ill with pneumonia, had a sudden change for the worse Sunday, and was removed to the Massachusetts General hospital for an operation, a sack having formed under his left lung.

Mrs. Wiwall, who has been in poor health for some time, died at her home at the corner of Willow and Beach streets on Tuesday. She leaves two sons well known in Wollaston, Frank Burgess of Beach street and Harry Burgess of Bass street.

Henry P. Dowst of Greenleaf street, recently junior partner of Ellis & Dowst has gone has gone back to his former position with the H. B. Humphrey Co., advertising agents of Boston. Mr. Dowst entered the Humphrey agency soon after graduating from Harvard, later entering into partnership of Ellis & Dowst.

Miss Ardelia Barber of Botolph street gave a Baby party Tuesday evening for the Roundabout club. Each member was obliged to don a bib at the table and partook of crackers and milk from small bowls. Sticks of candy and other food for small tots was served. Guessing games and childish frolics were entered into with a great deal of fun and the party was most originally carried out in all details. There were ten present and the bibs ranged from blue gingham to colored oil-cloth. Miss Barber was roundly complimented on her novel method of entertainment.

Are doctors good for anything?

Foolish question! Yet some people act as if a medicine could take the place of a doctor! The best medicine in the world cannot do this. Have a family doctor, consult him frequently. If we did not believe doctors endorsed Ayer's Cherry Pectoral for coughs and colds, we would not offer it to you.

PADEREWSKI OF BANJO.

Alfred A. Farland Holds Audience Spellbound at Colonial Hall.

That Alfred A. Farland is the "Paderewski of the banjo" was borne witness to on Tuesday evening in Colonial hall, when for two solid hours this world renouned musician held spell-bound an audience that completely filled the hall. The execution of this artist is marvellous, but wonderful as it is, the poetic interpretations of the great masters and the delicacy of touch and tone were even more admirable.

The program was arranged to suit everyone, several popular and familiar airs being mixed with the classic masterpieces of the world. Mr. Farland played each number with equal skill, the different tones and chords showing the wonderful possibilities of the banjo. Every number was applauded loudly and Mr. Farland was forced to bow repeatedly.

BOWLING.

The Bulldogs got busy Tuesday night at the Associates alleys and beat the Bucko's three straight. The string total was very low for both teams. FACED POE'S REVOLVER.

Col. John H. Montague of Richmond says the New York Tribune tells of the unique distinction if so it may be called, of gazing down the barrel of a revolver behind which gleamed the eyes of Edgar Allen Poe.

"The editor of "The Whig' and Poe kept bachelors' hall at the time," said Col. Montague. "I recall that on one occasion they had entertained some friends at dinner. Happening to be passing the house about nightfall, and hearing a great noise from within, I entered.

"I had not gone many steps before I saw Poe standing at the top of the landing, half dressed, with a gun in his hand, which he was levelling at me. I was almost paralyzed with apprehension, but dared not turn and run back.

"Being very young and active, I dived under the gun, and, embracing the poet asked him if he could give me a drink. The question and my expression touched his heart, and he invited me in."

Only three other persons are now alive in Richmond who knew Poe. They are Mrs. Susan Archer Weiss, John Fergusou, who had the distinction of eating a piece of Poe's wedding cake, and Dr. Richard G. Crouch.

REGULAR COMMUNICATION.

There was a large attendance of members and visitors at the regular communication of Wollaston Masonic lodge Tuesday evening. CATASTROPHE IS INEVITABLE

GIVES REASONS FOR OPINION

Lack of Supporting Power of "Thick Marine Deposit of Blue Clay"—Placing of Counterweights on Both Sides to Prevent Ground From Escaping Under Weight of Dam Will Not Prevent Disaster

Paris, Feb. 3.—M. Bunau-Varilla, in an interview, himself replies to Colonel Goethal's reply to his statements regarding the instability of the future Gatun dam of the Panama canal.

"The lack of supporting power of the 'thick marine deposit of blue clay' which will underlie the Gatun dam is now revealed by the slide of the Gatun dam rock toe and by the 'pushing up of the clay underneath,' as happened at La Boca," said Bunau-Varilla.

"It leads therefore to the conclusion that the sentence written by Colonel Goethals in his August report about the material below the Gatun dam is now and forever withdrawn and condemned. This sentence is so worded:

"'The material encountered is of such character ts to be amply strong for supporting the structure.'

"From now on it may be said that the structure which was conceived by the minority of the consulting board is condemned, as was condemned the other dam of the same project, the La Boca dam.

"Both have been demonstrated by facts impossible of execution under the form and by the methods which were projected for them. For the La Boca dam the solution was to abandon the site. For the Gatun dam the remedy proposed is less radical; it consists in placing counterweights on both sides to prevent the ground from escaping under the weight of the dam.

"I consider this solution as entirely illusionary, and therefore of the most dangerous character.

"The injection of the water into the whole mass at the first movement which it will make in its effort to obtain a new equilibrum under the new condition of forces will entail, sooner or later, the inevitable catastrophe.

"When the conclusion demonstrated by facts is that a dam is not stable naturally, no artificial expedients of such kind should be resorted to. The only remedy is to condemn the dam."

MAN IN WRONG BERTH

Woman Seeks to Recover $10,000 Damages From Pullman Company

New Orleans, Feb. 3.—The alleged carelessness of a negro porter in putting a man into the wrong berth of a sleeping car was the basis of a $10,000 suit brought in the federal court here by Mrs. Amelia M. Dubourg of this city against the Pullman company.

Mrs. Dubourg says she was the victim of the serious mistake. She alleges that she was severely injured by the man being "thrown" into her berth. The occurrence is said to have taken place on the night of Jan. 22, while she was en route from Deming, N. M., to New Orleans.

DETACHED FROM DUTY

Court Martial For Army Surgeon Because of Middy's Injuries

Washington, Feb. 3.—Surgeon Francis S. Nash, who has been on duty at the naval academy at Annapolis, is to be tried by court martial in Washington Feb. 10 on charges of having administered improper professional treatment to Midshipman Harry W. Stephenson of Nebraska.

Nash was detached from duty and ordered to his home. It is charged that he used too strong a solution of nitrate of silver in treating Stephenson's eyes and that Stephenson's sight has been impaired.

Manchester Wants State House

Manchester, N. H., Feb. 3.—A resolution was introduced in the board of aldermen recommending the appropriation of $1,000,000 for the purpose of building a state house in this city. The resolution was passed by the aldermen and awaits the concurrence of the common council.

Congress Bars Opium Trade

Washington, Feb. 3.—The importation of opium into the United States, except for medicinal purposes, is prohibited by a house bill passed by the senate. The bill will become law when signed by the president.

Increase In State Tax

Concord, N. H., Feb. 3.—The New Hampshire house of representatives passed a bill increasing the state tax for the year 1909 from $500,000 to $800,000, to meet an existing deficit in the state treasury.

Publishing Company Fails

Chicago, Feb. 3.—The American Trust and Savings bank was appointed receiver for the Winona Publishing company of this city. The liabilities are placed at $70,000 and the assets at $23,000.

DAY NURSERY.

Mrs. Mabel Jones, who has as matron served the Nursery so faithfully and well for a year and a half, has resigned her position. She has undertaken a business for herself and the directors of the Day Nursery, while sincerely regretting her going, wish her every success in her new venture.

Fortunately a matron has been found, fully qualified and ready to step at once into the position.

Among the donations reported for the month was one of $25. from Unity Circle of King's Daughters and two fine record books from Samuel Ward of Boston, dishes from Mrs. Gilson and food from Makaria Fraternity.

Board of Trade Discusses Local Industrial Situation at Monthly Meeting

The regular monthly meeting of the Board of Trade was held Wednesday evening in the Adams building. Although the attendance was not as large as was expected, the meeting was very interesting those present speaking earnestly on the important matters that came before the meeting. President John R. Richards was in the chair.

After the regular routine of business, a communication was read from Supt. Frank E. Parlin of the Quincy schools. In this letter Mr. Parlin states that he is heartily in favor of the stand taken by the Board in regard to sloyd work in the schools. A sloyd department has been established in the high school and Mr. Parlin advocates the same thing in the public schools.

The next business was the reading of a communication and bill received from the secretary of the Essex County Associated Boards of Trade, in regard to improving the harbors and inland waterways of the Commonwealth. Frank F. Crane spoke on the question and the importance of making public the facts in regard to it. He then moved to have the bill and the letter published in the Daily Ledger, which he said was willing to publish anything that would in anyway lead to the advancement of Quincy.

The letter received and the bill, now before the Massachusetts House, follows:

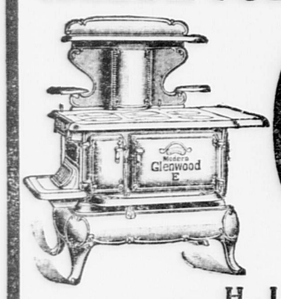

Lynn, Mass., Jan. 29, 1909.
Secretary Quincy Board of Trade.

Dear Sir.—Your organization should be actively interested, in the passage of the enclosed bill for the improvement of the Harbors and Inland Waterways of this State. It means much for the industrial and commercial progress of your locality. You know your commercial possibilities have been suppressed for years by the neglect of our Commonwealth.

New York State alone has from her own resources spent over $251,000,000 in improving her Inland Waterways, and coastwise Harbors, and only last

Y. M. C. A. ORCHESTRA ASSISTS CHOIR

Entire City Represented At Evangelistic Meeting

VESTRY CROWDED TO DOORS AT REGULAR AFTERMEETING

Call For Personal Testimony Brings Forth Enthusiastic Response

The subject at the Evangelistic meeting last night at Bethany church was "Surrendered to service." Dr. Weddell's quiet, yet forceful and magnetic style was particularly effective last night. One of the largest audiences of the campaign was present to enjoy the inspiring chorus, which was assisted by the Y. M. C. A. orchestra. The whole city was represented in the audience, all the way from Atlantic to West Quincy, and Germantown to Quincy Point.

After the sermon Dr. Weddell called for testimony along the line of his subject from christian people, responses were general and enthusiastic. Promptly at nine o'clock as usual, the main meeting closed and an aftermeeting was held in the vestry.

The committee on the distribution of flowers were able to send bouquets to 17 sick and shut-in people, to the 10 patients at our city hospital, to the city home, to the Snug Harbor Home and to the National Sailors' Home. The kindness of individuals and the florists who so generously contributed flowers, is much appreciated by the committee. The influence of the campaign and the King's Business was then extended.

ORGAN RECITAL.

The date set for the Organ Recital at Christ church, by Mr. Albert W. Snow, organist at the Church of the Advent, Boston, is Monday, February 15th, at 8 P. M. There is to be no charge for admission to the church, but as the seating capacity is limited, no person can be admitted to the church without a ticket.

Tickets can be had upon application to Mr. Luce, the church organist, at 6 School street.

GRANITE CITY WHIST.

Some exceptionally good scores were made at the weekly whist tournament of the Granite City club Wednesday evening and none that were exceedingly low, 20 per cent being the low water mark. For the high scores the two highest were E. E. Morgan and Horace E. Spear. Mr. Morgan in the twenty-five hands played won 40 and lost 77 or 78 plus per cent. Mr. Spear won 49 and lost 19 or 72 plus per cent. Refreshments were served.

This report has been delayed as it was desirable that all bills be paid before publishing the statement.

The League is grateful to all who contributed toward the payment of the expense of the Campaign, and to all who in any way helped to secure the large "NO" vote. While the majority was slightly under that of the extremely large majority of the previous year, it was also the largest "NO" vote in the history of Quincy.

The expense of the Campaign is the smallest since 1904.

PLAYGROUNDS AND GRAND JURY.

Mention has been made of the act of the Massachusetts Legislature providing for public playgrounds in cities and towns, and it has been pointed out that the example thus set merits general emulation. The fact is that Massachusetts is the only State that has yet seriously taken up this matter. Elsewhere whatever progress has been made is due to purely local action. In Pennsylvania, for instance, no headway has been made, beyond securing here and there the use of school grounds for public recreation purposes at certain stated times. Noting this, the Philadelphia grand jury has made the departure, singular enough for a body of such character, of recommending the adoption of a general playground system for the entire city. The grand jury accounts for its taking the initiative by the explanation that playgrounds are essential for the prevention of crime among the young. The truth of this assumption is unquestionable. It has been established by practical experience, especially in European cities where juvenile crime is found to be materially abated under the good influence of the playground system. Nor is its importance to be denied. The obligation to safe-guard the morals as well as the health of the young is one which State and local authorities are alike bound to respect and the observance of which cannot be too strongly and persistently urged.—Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

RECEIVED WITH GREAT FAVOR.

Word has been received from Congressman J. Hampton Moore, president of the Atlantic Deeper Waterways Association that the bill of Congressman Greene asking for a United States government survey of the New York, Brockton and Boston canal, has been received with great favor, and unless something unforeseen occurs to check it has every probability of going through.

LABOR CONDITION NO DETRIMEMT

Quincy Ideal Place for Shoe Manufacturing Plants.

H. T. DRAKE SAYS ALL CITY LACKS IS SUITABLE BUILDING

Too Near Brockton For W. L. Douglas Co. To Establish P'ant

There have been several rumors about the city of late that the Douglas shoe company of Brockton was seeking a location for a factory in Quincy and that a little hustle on the part of the Citizens Association and Board of Trade would secure for Quincy a new industry. While it is true that a little hustle would doubtless secure a new industry for this city the Douglas company has no intention at present of locating one of its factories here.

Herbert T. Drake general superintendent of the Douglas factories is the authority for this statement. Mr. Drake when seen by a representative of the Ledger, said, that as far as he knew the Douglas company had not considered the proposition of coming to Quincy. In the first place there was no suitable factory building in the city, and then the Douglas company in spreading out its factories believed it desirable to locate them in some place more remote from Brocton than Quincy. Mr. Drake however said that he considered Quincy an ideal place for a shoe factory, for the reason that it had a large field from which to draw workmen. There were many men of this craft residing in Weymouth and Braintree, and Quincy would be very convienant for these workmen, much more so than Brockton.

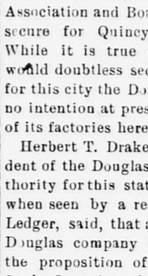

When asked if he thought any difficulty would be found in getting a shoe manufacturing plant to locate here if a suitable building was provided, Mr. Drake said no. If Quincy by popular subscription or otherwise should erect a large factory building there was no question but what an occupant for it could readily be found. Asked if he thought that the labor unions in Quincy would be any detriment to manufacturing firms locating here as had been stated by some. Mr. Drake said no, that as far as he understood the situation the Quincy labor unions would be no drawback to any firm seeking a location here.

COMPLETES FORTY FIFTH YEAR

Quincy Mothers' Association In Flourishing Condition.

FEBRUARY MEETING HELD AT BETHANY CHAPEL

Election of Officers Follows Discussion Of "Homeless Child" Movement

The Mothers' Association of Quincy held its February meeting Wednesday afternoon in Bethany chapel. This meeting completed the forty-fifth year of the association. Mrs. Doble, president, in the opening talk, spoke of the "Homeless child and Childless Home Movement," originated by Theodore Dreiser, editor of Delineator.

A short business session followed; the annual report was read by the secretaryMrs. Hunt, and the following officers were chosen for the coming year: President, Mrs. W. H. Doble; vice-president, Mrs. V. E. Miller; secretary and treasurer, Mrs. Arthur Fitts. A rising vote of thanks was given to Mrs. Hunt, the retiring secretary, for two years' faithful and efficient service, both as secretary and accompanist.

The subject of the afternoon was "Comradeship." Mrs. Frank W. Crane in the devotional exercises, spoke of the beautiful feeling of companionship which we should have with God, the Father and Christ, the Brother, followed by prayer.

Mrs. Eben W. Sheppard was the speaker of the afternoon and her paper greatly interested the audience. She spoke of the comradeship of friends, of parents and children, of work and play and of books, illustrating the different points by many interesting incidents.

Mrs. Wonson of Gloucester, sister of Mrs. Henry W. Tirrell of this city, was the soloist. She sang most charmingly "Rose Softly Blooming" from Spohr's opera, and "Si mes vere" by Hahn.

At the social hour, Mrs. W. E. Blanchard, assisted by ladies of the committee, served refreshments and Mrs. Ernest W. Branch had charge of the kindergarten.

MASQUERADE AT Y. M. C. A.

Next Saturday evening, Feb. 6, will be ladies' night at the gym. Admission is free to the public and every body over fifteen is cordially invited to attend.

Those who take part are to be dressed in fancy or grotesque costumes. The program will consist of regular class work interspersed with funny, numbers, wrestling and boxing, bouts, games, etc., etc.

The employed boys basket ball team will play a team from the Boston Y. M. C. A. between 7 and 8. Program to begin at 8.

Judging from those messages the Outlook's editorials will fill the entire paper, after March 4th.

California is about to enact an anti-racing bill. California evidently hates all the races, horse or yellow.

Mr. Taft shook hands with Mr. Rocefellow at Augusta, a process that is not as dangerous in January as it would have been in October.

The Senate proposes to allow the Vice President and Speaker $5,000 a year each for carriage hire. Why not buy each an automobile and a yacht.

The opinion now among public men and journalists is that President Taft will start out with an entire new cabinet and that not one of the Roosevelt Cabinet will remain. This as it should be for Cabinet Ministers are but men with memories, jealousies and prejudicies. Some of the members of the Roosevelt Cabinet have aspired to the presidency. Only one has attained it. There are at least a hundred available men from whom the new President may select his advisers and assistants.

It is as evident now as at any time during the last seven years that the people of the country are siding with the Executive and against Congress. The reason is plain. The voters look upon the President as a truer and sincerer representative of their interests than is the Legislative Body. There is only one way for Congress to make itself popular with the people and that is to show itself as earnest and as intelligent in the reform of long tolerated abuses as is the President himself. The people are with the Executive in nearly all that he has accomplished or attempted to do. The people are not with Congress because it has been unresponsive to popular demands.

The building of the greatest Wireless Telegraphy station in the world will be undertaken in Washington within a few days and the Navy Department expects to have it in operation within twelve months. The station will have an area of communication of three thousand miles. This means that Bureau chiefs may sit in their offices in the Navy Department Building and talk with battleships at almost any point on the North Atlantic. It is even hinted that they hope to communicate with the French station on the Eifel Tower in Paris. The station here will be by virtue of its power a central station for others along the coast. The tower will be of masonry and of steel six hundred feet high. Just where the tower will be located is not decided but by erecting it on Mt. Pleasant or near the New Naval Observatory it will start from an elevation two or three hundred feet higher than if located on low ground like the Washington Monument.

IN MEMORY OF MENDELSSOHN.

Yesterday, Feb. 3, was the centenary of the birth of the noted musical composer, Mendelssohn. The Ladies' Aid Society connected with the Washington Street Congregational church, observed the occasion by an all day sewing-bee held in the vestry. At noon there was a program consisting of a good dinner after which the pastor, Rev. A. R. Atwood, delivered an address on Mendelssohn's life, and the members sang selections from his composition. At the close of the program, the president in behalf of the society presented to the pastor's wife a purse of gold, and an original poem, written by one of the officers, was read.

ANTI-JAPANESE BILL IS KILLED

Aroused a Storm of Opposition In California Assembly

WAS MODIFIED BY ITS AUTHOR

As Finally Presented It Applied to All Aliens, Which Meant Driving of at Least $1,000,000,000 of Foreign Capital From the State—Drew's Claim as to Japanese Population Not Substantiated

Sacramento, Cal., Feb. 4.—After a debate lasting from 11 o'clock Wednesday morning until 6 last evening, the assembly, by a vote of 48 to 28, rejected the bill drawn by A. M. Drew, barring aliens from ownership of land in California.

The bill had been amended at the request of President Roosevelt and Secretary Root so that the clause applying it to Japanese only was eliminated, making the bill apply to all aliens, but the measure aroused such a storm of opposition that long before the debate was closed by Drew it was apparent that the measure would be defeated.

In substance the objection to it was that it would drive at least $1,000,000,000 of foreign capital out of the state and might jeopardize the present friendly relations with Japan.

The supporters of the bill contended that the state was being overrun by thrifty Japanese, who were gradually gaining an impregnable position as land owners and whose government was trying to dictate to California regarding legislation.

Two sensational speeches were made, one for and one against the measure. Assemblyman Johnson, congressman and author of four bills segregating Japanese in schools and residential districts and preventing aliens being members of corporations, made an impassioned appeal for the enactment of the bill.

Nathan G. Cole, who was elected with the endorsement of the Union Labor party, opposed the bill on the ground that it was in conflict with the state constitution, that it was inimical to union labor, and that it was not favored by the national administration, which, he said, was dealing with a delicate problem and should be supported by the people of California.

In his opening remarks Drew said that already there were in California 40,000 Japanese, most of whom had belonged to the Japanese army, who could be mobilized at a moment's notice in case of hostilities.

Richard Melrose, who had gathered statistics in opposition to the bill, declared there were not more than 25,000 Japanese in California. He quoted from statistics compiled by the Asiatic Exclusion League to the effect that there were not more than seventy-five Japanese property owners in the state.

Mr. Melrose, who spoke for Governor Gillett, Speaker Stanton and other leaders in both branches of the legislature, counselled delay to enable the state labor commissioner to take a census of the Japanese. Recently Stanton introduced a bill appropriating $10,000 for such a canvass and as soon as the other anti-Japanese measures are disposed of this bill will be rushed to passage and the labor bureau will begin its task. The object is to obtain all the statistics possible to be submitted in the form of a report at the next session.

But One Negative Vote

Carson, Nev. Feb. 4.—The assembly of the Nevada legislature passed the anti-Japanese resolution as amended. The amendments eliminate all reference to federal interference, but urge the state of California to pass stringent measures to exclude Japanese. There was but one vote against the measure.

FAITHFUL STENOGRAPHER

Gets Good Will and Patronage of Business of Her Employer

Boston, Feb. 4.—Amos B. Hall, a real estate broker, who died recently, left his office, good-will and patronage by will to Miss Mary E. Holmes, who had been his stenographer and private secretay for a quarter of a century, as a reward for faithful service.

It is understood that Hall's widow and son were acquainted with his purpose to remember Miss Holmes and sympathize with it.

Hall had been in the real estate and insurance business for about forty years.

Spain to Have New Squadron

Madrid, Feb. 4.—The cabinet has decided to accept the tender of Vickers' Sons & Maxim, the English shipbuilders, for the construction of the new Spanish squadron, on condition that the firm consent to certain modifications. The amount of the contract is $40,000,000.

No Memorial to Pierce

Concord, N. H., Feb. 4.—A statue of Franklin Pierce, the only New Hampshire man ever elected president, will not be erected by the state at this time. The house of representatives killed a bill providing for the erection of such a memorial.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

NO EVIDENCE OF SETTLEMENT IN SIGHT

Crucial Period of Hat Strike Comes Next Week

South Norwalk, Conn., Feb. 4.—If there was anything lacking to emphasize the seriousness of the present hat strike, it was furnished by the spectacle of the employes of the big Crofut & Knapp plant transporting their tools of the trade from the factory to their homes.

The situation gives no indication of clearing. The trade has maintained that there is nothing to arbitrate and the manufacturers declare it is the "open shop" now, without any qualifications.

The crucial period of the great struggle is counted upon to develop next Tuesday, the date settled upon by the manufacturers of the association to re-open their plants.

EVIDENCE ALL IN

Battleship's Captain Accused of Being Intoxicated at Reception

Gibraltar, Feb. 4.—All the evidence in the court martial of Captain Edward F. Qualtrough of the battleship Georgia, on charges preferred by Rear Admiral Wainwright that he was under the influence of intoxicants at a reception given at Tangier by the American minister, Samuel R. Gummere, was presented Wednesday.

The hearing in the case was held on the battleship Louisiana and a number of witnesses testified that Qualtrough was intoxicated and unfit for duty.

The accused officer made a lengthy statement to the effect that he was sick and suffering greatly from fatigue and that he had only taken one glass of sherry and nothing afterwards. He had smoked a strong cigar.

The pleadings will be made today, but the decision will not be officially given out until finally approved. In the meantime Qualtrough will remain aboard the Georgia under arrest.

THIRTY-NINE ARE FINED

Police of Pittsburg Making Active Crusade Against Idle Negroes

Pittsburg, Feb. 4.—Despite many threats of armed resistance by negroes if the police continue their wholesale arrests of members of their race who are without employment in the Herron Hill district of the city, no outbreak has occurred.

No further attack upon women or girls has been reported since Tuesday night, but should one occur the temper of the citizens is such that violence very probably would be done the assailant if caught.

Local orators are influencing the negroes to resist and the feeling is high. The police, however, seem to have the situation well in hand.

Of the negroes arrested Tuesday night thirty-nine were fined, most of them going to the workhouse.

EXCEPTIONS ARE FILED

Efforts to Secure New Trial For Financier King, Now In Prison

Boston, Feb. 4.—A bill of exceptions and an appeal for a new trial for Cardenio F. King, former financial agent, now serving a sentence of from ten to fourteen years in the state prison for larceny, has been filed with the supreme court by Herbert Parker, counsel for King.

In case the court should grant a new trial, an effort will be made to secure the release of King on bail.

The exceptions are on the general ground that the prisoner was not convicted of a specific crime under the indictment.

NEW BATCH OF VENIREMEN

But Eleven Jurors Secured to Try Alleged Slayers of Carmack

Nashville, Feb. 4.—After two new jurors had been obtained Wednesday, making eleven now in the box, the trial of Duncan B. Cooper, Robin J. Cooper and John D. Sharpe, for the murder of E. W. Carmack, was abruptly interrupted because of a lack of veniremen. A fifth venire of 500 men was ordered to court on Monday, when an effort will be made to complete the jury.

The hearing of the charges against Juror Whitworth, accused of expressing prejudice, was taken up, but was not completed.

QUAKE RELIEF MUCH DELAYED

Due to Italian Controversies and Lack of Ability

MILLIONS TIED UP IN BANKS

Of No Immediate Use to Thousands of Refugees—Little Expended by Italian Red Cross, Which Shows Deplorable Inexperience—Admirable Work Being Done by American Residents of Italy

Boston, Feb. 4.—Lack of administration of the earthquake fund on the part of the authorities in Italy is shown by the report of the Massachusetts Italian relief committee, just made public.

Despite the dire need of the sufferers, millions are piled up in the banks at Rome, all because of a lack of executive ability.

The committee therefore feels fully justified in its precaution of sending Mr. Billings personally to the scene of the relief work, and is doing everything in its power, while avoiding all friction with the Italian Red Cross, to expedite the administration of funds sent for the relief of the earthquake victims. The report says in part:

"There has been, it would seem, a most extraordinary delay to funds shipped through government channels, and it is proved beyond peradventure that the most efficient help has been rendered by funds shipped direct to committees of Americans working in Italy, who are not hampered by bureaucracy and the embarrassment of official diplomacy.

"The Italian Red Cross is headed by Count Taverna, too advanced in years to cope with the tremendous energy and active genius required for such a tremendous problem. Up to Jan. 14 very little of the enormous funds in the hands of the Italian Red Cross had been expended, the committee having wasted much time in controversy.

"The Duchess d'Aosta is most efficient, but it is not she, but her husband, who unfortunately does not possess those capabilities, who is at the head of the Italian official committee. Besides these two committees, there is in Italy an unofficial American committee formed of American residents of Naples, and headed by the American ambassador, who are doing admirable work.

"The need of money is very great at the scene of the disaster, though millions are uselessly piled up in the banks in Rome. Consul Bishop at Palermo says he has 10,000 refugees on hand, and many wounded, with only $300 for their relief.

"There does not appear to be the smallest hint of graft, but lack of executive ability and experience in the handling of such a disaster, together with some unfortunate jealousies in the two Italian committees who are receiving the funds, is causing dreadful delay."

Incorporated in the report is a letter from Consul Crowningshield at Naples, who says that in that city there are 12,000 refugees, including 3000 wounded, and more arriving daily.

MISS COAKLEY'S FORTUNE

Boston, Feb. 4.—Robert E. Belcher, an attorney at law, pleaded guilty in the superior criminal court to the larceny of $9500 from Miss Mary T. Coakley.

Miss Coakley was employed in a private family when she was left $5000 in a will and subsequently awarded $5662 on a claim against the estate. She engaged Belcher as attorney to collect the money. It was alleged that Belcher so manipulated the proceeds that Miss Coakley lost all.

Belcher is 30 years old and lives in Ashland. Judge Bishop will announce sentence later.

WOOL MEN TALK TARIFF

Are Against Revision of Schedule Relating to Wool and Woolens

Boston, Feb. 4.—A proposition of certain reformers to place the tariff under a permanent commission, thereby taking it out of the hands of the ways and means committee of congress, was condemned by the National Association of Wool Manufacturers, which held its forty-fourth annual meeting in this city. The association declared itself in favor of leaving the schedule relating to wool and woolens unchanged in the coming revision of the tariff.

OUR INTERESTS ARE INJURED

By Limiting Field of Usefulness of the Civil Service

THE PRESIDENT AGAIN SPEAKS

Says That If the Government Is to Act With Full Efficiency Against Criminals It Must Have Trained Agents Who Can Act Anywhere—Outlines Position of the Administration In the Matter

Washington, Feb. 4.—President Roosevelt, in a statement made public from the White House, emphatically reiterated his opposition to restricting the field of usefulness of the secret service.

The statement was called forth by "misleading statements appearing in some of the afternoon papers" to the effect that the work of the secret service has not been hampered and that the investigation of cases aside from the detection of counterfeiters and the protection of the president has not been circumscribed by restrictive legislation at the last session of congress.

"At no time has the president or any administrative officer claimed that the restrictive legislation of the last session affected the secret service division of the treasury department in the matter of suppressing counterfeiting or protecting the president.

"As a matter of fact, the limitation did not apply in the slightest degree to the normal functions of that service, and the claim that the secret service was not hampered in looking after counterfeiters is admitted; but the assertion that the restriction was harmless to the government's interests is not correct.

"The effect of the limitation was materially to circumscribe the field of usefulness in which the trained agents of the secret service had hitherto been advantageously employed. Under the limitation it became impossible to use these investigators in the class of cases in which they have been conspicuously successful for many years.

"The phraseology of the restrictive legislation is such that any person who was employed in or under the secret service division during 1909 for even so short a period as an hour became disqualified for promotion or employment in any branch of the government service where either his compensation or expenses would be payable from any appropriation in the sundry civil act.

"The limitations tied the hands of the secretary of the treasury and made it impossible for him to continue the employment of these men in any cases of irregularities or wrong-doing in those branches of the treasury department devoted to the issuing, redemption and handling of the obligations, securities and coins of the government.

"It is the contention of the executive branch of the government that it should be permitted to use the best means of investigating criminal cases; and when legislation is enacted that deprives the executive branch of a particularly desirable and effective investigating force, the government's interests, which are the interests of the people are injured, and the only gainers are the evil doers who may therefore escape detection and punishment.

"The question is, is it right or wise or proper specifically to discriminate against one particular division of the government's investigating force and prevent its employment where it might be used to great advantage? It is an evasion of the question to answer that in one particular and circumscribed field—suppressing counterfeiting and protecting the president—its activities are not affected by the limitation.

"If the government is to act with full efficiency against criminals it must have some force of secret service agents by preference under the department of justice, who can act against criminals anywhere; and the position of the administration is that it is against sound public policy to discriminate in favor of criminals by discriminating against the use of the secret service to detect and punish them."

A Tip to Ministers

Bangor, Me., Feb. 4.—A warning to ministers against too much enthusiasm over the Emmanuel movement was sounded by Rev. Alfred J. Lyman, D. D., of Brooklyn during the exercises in connection with the Bangor seminary convocation week.

CHILD IN PITIABLE PLIGHT

Man of Family Charged With Felonious Assault Upon Her

Baltimore, Feb. 4.—Joseph M. Janer, aged 34 years, of Brooklyn, a married man, with children, was held without bail after a hearing before Magistrate Grannan for the action of the grand jury. The charge, stripped of its legal technicalities, is felonous assault upon Catherine Loerch, also of Brooklyn. She told the magistrate she would be 12 years old on Feb. 22 next.

Janer came here with the girl last Monday night. They spent the night at a hotel, but were requested to leave there by the proprietor the next morning. Then they obtained lodgings at a boarding house.

The little girl told the magistrate that she was greatly in fear of Janer. She is in a pitiable nervous condition and is in charge of the police matron.

A PROGRESSIVE CITIZEN

Death of Jose De Navarro, Who Fathered Many Great Enterprises

New York, Feb. 4.—Jose F. De Navarro, the last surviving original director of the Equitable Life Assurance Society, the father of Antonio De Navarro, husband of Mary Anderson, the former actress, died at his home here. He was 71 years old and was born in Spain. His two sons, Alfonso and Antonio, were with him when he died.

De Navarro built the first iron seagoing steamship that was constructed in the United States and brought about the construction of the first elevated railway line in this city. He also created the Portland cement industry in this country. He came to New York in 1865.

PASSENGER TRAIN LEAVES THE RAILS

Two Cars Are Wrecked, but No One Is Seriously Injured

Scarboro, Me., Feb. 4.—All the cars of a passenger train from Boston left the rails while running past Scarboro Crossing last night, but no one was seriously injured, although the baggage car and the Pullman car were thrown a considerable distance from the rails and tipped over on their sides in the ditch. The locomotive and tender were not derailed.

The accident was apparently due to a defect in the rail, which was broken, possibly, by the passage of the locomotive. Part of the train struck the old station at the junction, moving it bodily about eight feet.

There were very few passengers on the train and all of them escaped injury. The trainmen were equally fortunate. The overturned cars were badly wrecked.

THREE TIMES AND OUT

Prediction as to Kelly's Fate In His Bout With Attell

New Orleans, Feb. 4.—There will be some easy picking for Abe Attell, featherweight champion of the world, tonight at the Southern Athletic club, when he meets Eddie Kelly of Chicago, unless the stars in the pugilistic sky are lying. Kelly has heard the referee's "nine, ten," twice before when he met Attell, and it will be three times and out for Eddie tonight. If not, there will be a new featherweight champion tomorrow.

The bout will go ten rounds unless one of the boys goes to the hay sooner. There will be a big crowd of sports at the ringside.

FOUND LOADED REVOLVER

Little Fellow Played With It and Caused Child's Death

Hartford, Feb. 4.—While playing with a revolver Charles Waiver, 6 years old, accidentally shot and killed Ruth Northam, aged 5, at the home of her parents at East Hartford.

The bullet entered the child's side, penetrating the liver, death following a few minutes later. The boy will not be prosecuted.

PUBLIC DOCUMENTS

Contention That They Are Subject to Inspection of Congress

Washington, Feb. 4.—Senator Teller addressed the senate in support of Senator Bacon's resolution declaring that the senate has a right to any information in possession of the executive departments and cited various precedents to sustain his contention.

He argued that only in exceptional cases is the president warranted in withholding information, and he declared that congress has never failed to respect such action by the executive when it has been based on consideration of public interest.

Vermont Gets Gunnery Pennant

Washington, Feb. 4.—For comparative battle efficiency by vessels of the navy of the battleship class, in combined night and day practice, the battleship Vermont, now at Gibraltar with the Atlantic fleet, has won first place. Instructions were cabled to Admiral Sperry to order the Vermont to hoist the gunnery pennant, which she is entitled to hold for one year.

LEWIS-WALKER FIGHT STILL ON

Charges and Counter Charges In the Miners' Union

Indianapolis, Feb. 4.—After celebrating with cheers the re-election of President Thomas L. Lewis the convention of the United Mine Workers of America engaged in an excited revival of the controversy between the Lewis faction and the faction led by his opponent for the presidency, John H. Walker, district president of Illinois.

Speaking of an unsigned letter received by some of the leaders charging that Ohio union officers "sold out" to operators, Secretary Savage of the Ohio district bitterly arraigned "certain parties that, not being in power themselves, would destroy the organization so as to destroy those who are in power."

John H. Walker took the floor to say that he had been the victim of libelous statements. He said the organization was being exploited by some one for the selfish ends of certain of its leaders.

President Lewis said the Ohio letter was the last link in a conspiracy to disrupt the organization, because he was its president. He read from an Illinois trade paper articles which he called "scurrilous," condemning his administration as corrupt and extolling Walker. He read letters indicating this edition of the newspaper was paid for by Illinois officers.

VON BERNSTORFF'S MISSION

It Is to Continue and Deepen Friendship Between America and Germany

New York, Feb. 4.—Count Johann Heinrich von Bernstoff, the new ambassador from Germany, is the guest of the city today. This afternoon he was entertained at a reception by the chamber of commerce,

"From the time of the birth of the people of the United States as a nation down to the present day there has been unbroken friendship between Germany and the United States. My mission to this country can be summed up in the one wish that this friendship may continue and always deepen.

"The enormous development of wealth and industry, based on the great natural advantages which nature has given to the United States and due to the active, enterprising and courageous spirit of their people, has never been regarded with unfriendly or jealous eyes from our banks of the North and Baltic seas.

"Great and civilized nations consider the prosperity and happiness of other people not as hindering but as helping their own."

Most of the prominent German-Americans of this city and many from other places will assemble at the dinner, which will be given in honor of the diplomat by the New Yorker Staats-Zeitung. Herman Ridder, manager of the Staats-Zeitung, will preside at the dinner.

WANTED IN EMPIRE STATE

Holyoke Man Suspected of Complicity In Murder and Robbery

Holyoke, Mass., Feb. 4.—Napoleon Monat, who was arrested here at the request of the Poughkeepsie, N. Y., police, suspected of complicity in a murder and robbery, has consented to accompany the officers back to Poughkeepsie without requisition papers.

Monat is suspected of being one of two men who, on Jan. 25, killed John Cliff and seriously injured Cliff's wife while robbing the home of the couple at Poughkeepsie. The robbers are said to have secured $900.

Monat denied that he had any connection with the murder. His wife and two children have been living in this city for the last three months.

New Motor In Wright Aeroplane

Pau, France, Feb. 4.—Wilbur Wright's aeroplane has been equipped with a new motor, which has turned out to be a great improvement on the old motor. The aeronaut made the first of a series of flights Thursday. He was in the air six minutes.

Cook's Nomination Rejected

Albany, Feb. 4.—The senate rejected the nomination of Herbert E. Cook as the minority member of the new state highway commission. The question of party regularity was the sole objection raised against him.

Taft Pleased With Canal Work

Culebra, Feb. 4.—President-elect Taft has now completed his inspection of the entire line of the canal. He expressed himself as greatly gratified with the result of the labors of the engineers.

STARTS OFF WITH FIFTY MEMBERS

Ladies of Houghs Neck Organize Auxiliary.

If actions amount to anything, the auxiliary to the Houghs Neck Associates that was organized by the ladies Wednesday night at the Associates clubhouse, will certainly accomplish a great deal. Over fifty of the women of the Neck were present in an answer to call for members.

A committee from the Houghs Neck Associates was present and assisted the ladies to organize and elect officers. The following officers were elected, Mrs. Neil J. Regan, president, Mrs. George McEwan, first vice president, Mrs. Clara Catarius, treasurer, and Mrs. Edna Catarius, secretary.

After the officers were elected the chair appointed the following ladies as a committee on by-laws, Mrs. Achilles N. LaBrecque, Mrs. Josephine Taylor and Mrs. William Norteman, Sr. An entertainment committee was also appointed as follows, Mrs. John Merriam, Mrs. P. F. O'Brien, Mrs. Fenner, Mrs. Archie F. Baird and Mrs. Hiram Darrow.

It was voted to hold whist parties and dances to raise funds for the Associates clubhouse. The dues of the new auxiliary are fifty cents a year The committee that was delegated by the Associates reported to the ladies that the Associates would give the ladies a supper on February 22.

The object of the new auxiliary will be to help the Associates raise money for a permanent home and also to bring the ladies of the Neck together in a social way. Any lady 18 or over is eligible to membership. The new organization starts with a membership of fifty and promises to increase very rapidly.

PILE SUFFERERS!

DO YOU KNOW THESE FACTS?

The cause of piles is internal—
Sluggish circulation in the lower bowel.
Piles can't be thoroughly cured by outward treatment.
An internal remedy is needed to cure the cause.
Send for our booklet, "How Piles Can be Cured by Internal Medicine," or talk with Clyde T. Cox, Quincy, Mass., who sells Dr. Leonhardt's Hem-Roid at $1 per bottle, and guarantee it to cure.

Humor and Philosophy

By DUNCAN M. SMITH

PERT PARAGRAPHS.

Some people speak before they think, being naturally fond of talking.

Many a promising young man has been a splendid example of the nothing doing policy.

Human nature is the thing that makes a man want to act like a brute when things do not go the way he thinks they should go.

Lots of people are poor just because some people are so awfully rich. S'pose they just like to be contrary?

Undoubtedly a high degree of learning will be acquired by the next generation and many a flight of fancy indulged in under the guidance of a skillful and highly developed aviator.

It is just as easy for some men to lie as to tell the truth and a whole lot more natural.

Don't talk to a woman. It isn't any use, and she would a lot rather you would listen.

Too many people consider before they promise how they can best get out of keeping the promise.

Silence sounds awfully loud when the boss comes in unexpectedly.

The man who gets a cold reception sometimes turns to with so much vim and vigor that he makes a hot finish.

Wilted Young.

Alas,
Good resolutions,
Like several
Other things,
Including birds
And money,
Are fitted out
With wings,
And they,
As you have noticed,
Are much inclined
To flit,
Although
In their existence
So brief
They made a hit.
As carefully
You signed them,
As though
They were a will
Or a receipt
Dictated
For some Forgotten bill,
And, very much
In earnest,
You took
The quill in hand
And said,
"By this same token
All habits
Bad are canned."
You were
A hopeful party
On that bright
New Year's morn
When these same
Resolutions
Right with the year
Were born,
And I could not
Reproach you
Because they were a bluff,
For man, you know,
Is mortal,
And that's excuse enough.

Disseminator of Old Jokes.

"That man's name is Tree."
"Indeed."
"Yes; you have often heard of him."
"Don't remember it."
"Oh, yes, you have; he is the old original spreading chestnut tree."

Bad Business.

"Some people seem to hate to be obliging."
"Yes, but it might be worse."
"I'd like to know how."
"They might try to be."

WHEN A MAN IS MARRIED—

He can't help noticing what a fine fellow the other girls didn't catch, and he takes to watching them slyly to see if he can detect any signs of pining away on their part.

He thinks it is a blamed shame the way some of the unmarried fellows treat some of the girls of his acquaintance. If he had a chance now—er—well, confound it, come to remember he is married.

He can't see why his wife will insist upon his taking care of his things. Hang it all, what does a man have a house for? Of course he considers the top of the piano a most convenient place of deposit whenever he wants to unload his pockets of an indiscriminate mass of letters old and young, cards, cigarette papers, tobacco, bills, clippings and what not, some of which he wants and some he doesn't want. But why should any one object to that? And what did she do with those he wanted anyway?

year appropriated $101,000,000 more for the same purpose.

What has our own State done along these lines of development? Practically nothing. How can your local industries hope to compete with those located in states that are spending millions to make commerce easier and cheaper.

Now is the time to try and improve these conditions in our own State. Pick out a few "live wires" and have them see personally each one of your representatives and senators, and put this up to them right. Don't write letters or pass resolutions, they won't win. See the editors of your local papers and get from them the support of their publicity. Awaken and mould public opinion our way and we win. Give public meetings inviting everyone interested and tell them what this means for their own prosperity. Attend the hearings at the State House with large and enthusiastic delegations—this counts for something. Keep everlastingly at it and we will win-no other policy ever will.

The business organizations of these cities are supporting this bill, Salem, Haverhill, Lawrence, Newburyport, Beverly, Lynn, Boston, Quincy, Fall River, Brockton, Taunton, Holyoke and Springfield.

Let us all pull together.

Very respectfully,
H. W. Pelton, Secretary.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Court Assembled as follows:

Section 1. The Board of Harbor and Land Commissioners is hereby authorized and directed to prepare and adopt a comprehensive scheme for the improvement and development of such harbors and inland waterways in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts as will promote the commercial and industrial progress of the Commonwealth. For the said purposes they may expend ten million dollars, to be raised in the manner hereinafter provided. Provided, however, that such expenditures shall not exceed in any one calendar year the sum of two million dollars.

Section 2. No expenditure of money authorized by this section shall be made by the said Board of Harbor and Land Commissioners upon any harbor or inland waterway until the local cities or towns directly interested in such improvement shall have, at their own expense procured adequate engineering plans from competent engineers of the proposed construction or improvement, showing in detail the total amount of work necessary to be done, describing the character of the work, giving in detail reliable estimates of the total cost of such work, and such other information as may be necessary to convince the said Board of the commercial or industrial necessity or advantage of such proposed construction or improvement.

Section 3. The said Board of Harbor and Land Commissioners in preparing the said scheme of development of harbors and inland waterways, shall give special attention and consideration to the Connecticut River, the Merrimac River, the harbors of Lynn and Salem and the proposed Boston, Quincy, Brockton, Taunton and Fall River Canal.

Section 4. To meet the expense incurred under the provisions of this act, the Treasurer and Receiver General shall, with the approval of the Governor and Council, issue script or certificate of debt, in the name and behalf of the Commonwealth and under its seal, to an amount not exceeding ten million dollars, for a term not exceeding twenty years. Said script or certificate of debt shall be issued as registered bond, or with interest coupons attached, and shall bear interest, not to exceed four per cent per annum, payable semi-annually on the first day of January and July in each year. Said script or certificate of debt shall be designated on the face as the "Waterway and Harbors Improvement Loan," shall be countersigned by the Governor and shall be deemed a pledge of the faith and credit of the Commonwealth, and the principal and interest shall be paid at the time specified therein, in gold coin of the United States, and said script or certificate of debt shall be sold or disposed of at such times and prices and in such amounts and at such rates of interest, not exceeding the rate specified as the Governor and Council shall deem best.

The Treasurer and Receiver General shall from time to time advertise for proposals for the amount to be issued or for the several amounts to be issued in two daily newspapers of general circulation published in the city of Boston; two daily newspapers of general circulation published in the city of Worcester and two daily newspapers of general circulation published in the city of Springfield. Said script or certificate of debt shall be sold to the highest responsible bidder, the Treasurer and Receiver General reserving the right to reject any and all bids. In case no bids shalt be accepted, said Treasurer and Receiver General shall forthwith advertise for new proposals in the manner above provided.

The funds necessary for the redemption of said script or certificates of debt and the interest accruing thereon, shall be provided for by taxation and a sum not exceeding five hundred thousand dollars to be included in the state tax for the year 1910, and for each year thereafter, until the entire amount of said script or certificates of debt and the interest accruing thereon shall have been paid.

Section 5. This Act shall take effect upon its passage.

Mr. Crane also embodied in his motion that a committee be appointed to push the thing along. President Richards said that he would appoint a special committee to act on this question.

The following were elected to membership: Empire Granite company, represented by Clarke and Martin; Columbia Granite company, represented by Richard Gordon; and Smith Granite Company, represented by W. A. Smith.

The matter of inducing industries to come to Quincy was then brought up, the question of the best methods of bringing this about being discussed at length by the members.

Messrs. Foster, Williams, Sockett, Tisdale, Stetson, McDonnell, Richards, Crane and Burgess spoke on the question. Two opinions seemed to prevail. One that if there were houses to accomodate the employees of a factory, the factories would come; the other that the industries should be secured first and then the houses would come afterward.

President Richards struck the nail on the head when he said that the best way to induce new companies to locate here was to foster the industries we have now. Then he said if any new industry thinks of locating here and asks some of the local firms what the city is doing for them, the local firms can say a good word for the city. If a new firm is told that Quincy won't do anything to help it, the natural consequence would be that the firm would go elsewhere.

Mr. Crane then arose and said that he agreed heartily with Mr. Richards. He congratulated the president and said it was the best speech he had ever listened to, in regard to this question. Mr. Crane gave it as his opinion that as soon as the city realized the fact that it was not fostering home industries as it should, the sooner would new industries come to Quincy.

Mr. Burgess of the Boston Gear Works, spoke at length on the matter, telling how he was drawn to locate here by the natural physical conditions and not by any inducements offered by the city. Mr. Burgess advocated a committee of one or two, not more, who would be paid to seek industries to locate here. He said that if one live man was appointed to do this, he was sure that inside of a year an industry would be located here that would bring $100,000 a year into the city.

It was then voted to refer the matter to the committee on Industries and Trades.

The question of revision in tariff on Scotch, Swedish and Norwegian granite was discussed and it was then voted to have the secretary, assisted by the president, write a letter to the Massachusetts members of Congress, giving reasons why the tariff should not be revised, why it should remain as it is. The meeting adjourned at 10.45.

GET INSIDE.

Rubbing the back won't cure backache.

A liniment may relieve, but can't cure.

Doan's Kidney Pills get inside—
They cure sick kidneys.

Here is Quincy proof that this is so:

Mrs. Fred Curtis, living at 18 Quarry street, Quincy, Mass., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills have been used with such satisfactory results in my family that I feel it my duty to publicly recommend them. My husband was in pretty bad shape as the result of backache. He tried plasters and used several remedies, in an effort to get relief, but did not succeed until he began using Doan's Kidney Pills, which he procured at the Cox Drug Store. This remedy cured him in a short time and he is now feeling better than for years. I have also used Doan's Kidney Pills and found them to be an excellent remedy for regulating the action of the kidney secretions and toning up the general system."

ODD EPITAPHS.

The Tombstone Inscription Willed by an Ardent Republican.

At Attica in the little burying ground is the grave of Nathaniel Grigsby. He died in 1890 and was a man of much force. He had a war record, serving as second lieutenant in Company G, Tenth Indiana cavalry. Grigsby was an ardent Republican. He stood by the G. O. P. at all times and even in death. This epitaph is on his tombstone:

> Through this inscription
> I wish to enter my dying > protest against what is > called the Democratic party.
> I have watched it closely > since the days of Jackson > and know that all the misfortunes of our nation have > come to it through this so > called party. Therefore beware of this party of treason.

Grigsby's heirs did not want this inscription to go on the tombstone, but the lawyer declared that the will provided that it must be used, and the family had to agree. But the inscription is headed with a line that Grigsby's will made the epitaph mandatory.

At Lincoln is a very odd tombstone. A traveling man of that town, who had been on the road many years and was quite eccentric, framed an epitaph that is decidedly original. He died several years ago, and a traveling bag hewn out of marble stands at the head of his grave. On one side of the bag is this line:

"Here is where Bill stopped last!"—Kansas City Journal.

A VISION ON THE VELDT.

The Form on the Rocks That Confronted the Soldier.

I thought I saw a form of some kind between the bowlders. I jumped to the conclusion that it was a soldier. In one second it had vanished. I challenged, but got no answer. Those pieces of rock seemed to terrify me.

I advanced toward them, but saw nothing. I retired back and took up my position, leaning on my rifle. My eyes went again to the same place, and there, standing between the two bowlders, was the outline of a woman. I brought my rifle to the present, covering the form which stood before me. I saw her walk from one piece of rock to the other.

I watched and saw her repeat her action. She then stopped and leaned up against one of the bowlders with her back toward me. I again advanced to where she stood. When I had got to within forty or fifty yards of her I saw her turn round and look straight at me with a careworn and sorrowful face.

Then I saw and knew who she was. It was my own mother. I was not mistaken, for she walked within a few yards of me, at the same time looking me dead in the face. She then turned about and walked to the two pieces of rock, and I saw no more of her. About three weeks after I received a letter from home telling me of her death and burial.—"A Grenadier's South African Reminiscence" in Occult Review.

Gambling For Maids.

"Many queer reasons are advanced by servant girls for losing a place," said the manager of the employment bureau, "but the queerest I have ever heard was given by a girl who blew in here last week. Her late mistress was a bridge fiend. One day for the want of money to bet she and her friends played with their maids for stakes. At the end of the game each woman considered herself in honor bound to stick to her agreement, and an attempt was really made to swap servants according to the ups and downs of the game. Some of the girls thus raffled off changed places willingly enough, but that client of mine refused to be swapped and hustled around hunting a new job."—New York Sun.

Rough on His Lordship.

A carpenter in an English town having neglected to make a gibbet that had been ordered by the hangman on the ground that he had not been paid for the last one he had erected gave so much offense that the next time the judge came to the circuit he was sent for.

"Fellow," said the judge in a stern tone, "how came you to neglect making the gibbet that was ordered on my account?"

"I humbly beg your pardon," replied the carpenter. "Had I known it was for your lordship it would have been done immediately."

The Wave of Indulgence.

Indulgence nowadays is very much exaggerated. We have even come to admire clever thieves, and as long as we are not the victims of the theft we are quite enthusiastic for the rogue who shows great cunning and daring in his crimes. He is almost a hero in our eyes, and we call him a genius.—Paris Figaro.

He Discovered Why.

Mr. Oldboy—Why do you bring so much water, Tommy? I merely asked for a drink.

Tommy—I thought you'd need more than a glassful, 'cause sister said you was the driest old stick she ever knew.—Illustrated Bits.

Mostly Down.

Brown (expatiating on the merits of his latest bargain in motors)—I don't say she's much to look at, but you should see the way she takes a hill! Friend (callously)—Up or down?—London Punch.

O. I. T. Club Holds Successful Dance at Hibernian Hall

Fully fifty couples were present Thursday evening at the second dancing party of the O. I. C. club of the Quincy telephone exchange. As the participants included many of those connected with telephone exchanges in the immediate vicinity, the affair was something like a family reunion and consequently very enjoyable.

One would naturally expect at a gathering of telephone people to hear such expressions as "The line is busy, shall I call you?" "What number please?" But none were heard. It was not even noticed that the young ladies seemed to care whether the "Monitor" was near or not.

Manager Crane of the Quincy exchange was present and also Miss Walsh the chief operator and there were several connected with other departments in the telephone building also present.

Cuff's orchestra furnished the music and dancing was in order from 8 to 1 o'clock. Frappe was served during the entire evening.

Those in charge of the affair were: Floor Directress, Miss Katherine C. Walsh; Assistant Floor Directress, Miss Margaret A. Leary; Aids, Miss Alma M. LeClair, Miss Mary A. Cain, Miss Alice J. Harkins, Miss Josephine W. O'Brien, Miss Annie F. Flaherty, Miss Geneveive M. Magee, Miss Mary E. Duggan, Miss Annie G. Corcoran, Miss Elizabeth A. Connell, Miss Katherine E. Maloney, Miss A. S. ICE HARVESTING IN FULL SWING

Meadow Brook Co. Expects to Complete Work Saturday Night

The modus operandi of harvesting a winters crop of ice, from the time the horse plows mark the cakes off into 48 inch squares, until they are stored away in the houses, there to remain until warm weather, is a very interesting operation to watch. Modern ideas are just as much in evidence here as in any up-to-date business. Years ago the harvesting of ice was a slow laborious process. Then the cakes were much smaller than at present and the machines were run by horse power. Today modern machinery and steam power do the work much quicker and easier.

Just at the present time ice harvesting is in full swing at the pond of the Meadow Brook Ice Co., at South Quincy. Work was commenced filling the houses Wednesday and at the present rate the company's houses at this pond, will be filled by Saturday night.

The ice being cut averages twelve inches, but is being planed to ten inches, before it is storred away, as this thickness is much more economical to handle in the summer season. After the pond has been marked off into 48 inch squares by a horse plow men with pikes break it up into floats of six and eight cakes each. These floats are then rafted to the run through which the endless elevator passes. Here the floats are broken into single cakes, and floated onto the elevator.

As they are hoisted up, they pass beneath a series of three knives which not only plane the cakes to the desired thickness but serve as well to remove any foreign matter. Just here the company have this year installed a new machine, that automatically carries off the broken pieces of ice and the material planed from the cakes. This machine consists of an endless elevator, that runs at right angles to the elevator that carries the cakes to the house runs. As the surpulas material is planed from the ice, it drops into a pocket from which it is taken by the elevator and carried some distance from the houses and dumped into a pile. Previous to this year, this surplus material accumulated about the run and was a great inconvenience.

Near the planer the man who operates it stands. At his right hand are two levers by which he can instantly stop the elevator, should occasion demand. This is also a new idea for the old method was to pull a string, which rang a bell in the engine room, which at times meant a delay, that might be serious. As the cakes are run into the houses by their own momentum they are taken by other men and stored away in layers.

Each of the cakes weighs about 600 pounds and they are run into the house at the rate of 15 per minute. That is to say over four tons a minute. This would mean 240 tons per hour if it were possible to run without stops. At this rate it takes three days to fill the houses.

The ice being cut this year is considerably better than that of last year. That is there is this year comparatively no foreign matter in it such as sticks, leaves or cinders.

Aside from this pond the Meadow Brook Co., have a pond at Quincy Neck which they will commence to cut next week. The ice here is of much better quality. It is fully as thick, and at the same time very much clearer. So clear is it that it is almost transparent. This ice is what the company use for their family trade. The pond is so sheltered that it has no foreign matter of any kind, the leaves that fall into the pond in the fall, being removed before freezing weather.

The Meadow Brook Company say that if the present cold weather only holds for a few days longer, as it seems likely to, there will be no danger of an ice famine next summer.

NEW PASTOR ARRIVES.

Rev. Joseph Walther Takes Charge of Wollaston Baptist Church.

Rev. Joseph Walther, the new pastor of the Wollaston Baptist church, began his duties there Thursday. Mr. Walther comes to Quincy from Keene, N. H., where he has been pastor of the Keene Baptist church since 1902. He was also president of the New Hampshire State Baptist Association. The Wollaston church is his third pastorate, he having been located in Holden Mass., for seven years before going to Keene.

He was the unanimous choice of the members of the Wollaston church, every member voting for Mr. Walther, and several who could not attend the meeting sending word that they held both hands up in his favor.

Rev. Mr. Walther was born in Bridgeport, Conn., and received his early education in Worcester Academy, graduating with the class of 1889. In 1893 he graduated from Brown University and entered the Newton Theological Seminary, Newton Centre, graduating in 1896. He was ordained in Holden, Mass., and remained there seven years, when he was called to Keene.

In the summer of 1905 Mr. Walther was sent by the Keene church to the World's Baptist Congress in London, and at that time visited all the interesting places in England and France. He also attended the great revival meeting in Wales, conferring with all the great revivalists there.

On Dec. 21, 1908 he received the call to come to the Wollaston Baptist church and on Jan. 2, 1909 he read his resignation to the members of the Keene Baptist church, to take effect the last Sunday of January.

Mr. Walther is married and has three children, two sons and a daughter.

Dr. Weddell Preaches Strong Sermon at Bethany Church.

Last night reached high water mark in line of attendance at the Bethany church evangelistic meetings, more people being present than at any previous week night service. The audience was also a representative Quincy audience many of the best families being represented.

Rev. C. H. Hill Crathern of the South Congregational church, South Braintree was present with a large delegation of his people. Revs. Crathern, Atwood and Davidson assisted Dr. Hardy and Dr. Weddell in the service.

The musical programme was varied again this time by a vocal solo by Mrs. A. P. Briggs.

Dr. Weddell's subject was "Slain for Service" and proved interesting and helpful. The usual aftermeeting was held and good results were obtained. Dr. Weddell gave a bible reading at 3 o'clock today in Bethany church which was well attended.

Tonight is the closing service of the week, the subject will be "The Tribunal of the Cross." Elaborate plans are being made for the Sunday service.

CHILDREN SHOW REMARKABLE TALENT

Recital In Elocution Fills Atlantic Music Hall

A large and appreciative audience filled Atlantic Music hall, Thursday evening at the recital in elocution given by the pupils of Mrs. Frank K. Butler.

Elsie Williams in "The loves of Mary Ann" and, dressed as a boy, "I've got to go to school" was the star of the evening, her monologues taking the house by storm.

All the pupils did credit to the training of Mrs. Butler and, considering their age, more could not have been expected.

The McDonald sisters executed their dances with great dexterity. The highland fling, sword dance, sailor's hornpipe and clog were all given in appropriate costumes accompanied by the bagpipe.

The Oxford male quartette consisting of Charles W. Crocker, George F. Hughes, Melvin C. Hill and Irving A. Priest contributed several snappy and comic songs which were received with great applause, especially by the balcony which consisted of the younger element.

The young ladies of the Dorchester Philharmonic orchestra with their sweet music and attractive costumes contributed toward making the evening a success.

Following is the program:

WRECK AT QUINCY ADAMS.

The Boston bound train, due to leave Quincy Adams at 12.10, was stalled near the Quincy Adams station this noon and trafic was held up on the inward track for some time. The cause of the tie-up was the breaking of the journal on the rear trucks of the tender. No one was injured as the train coming to a stop when the break came.

All northbound trains were flagged until the stalled train was taken along by the wrecking car which was sent for.

Washington may not be in the earthquake zone, but it is all of a quiver these days.

Thanks to wireless telegraphy ocean travel may be considered at least as safe as railway travel.

California does not seem to be duly impressed by the splendid welcome given the fleet by Japan.

There would be plenty of money in circulation here if everybody made haste to pay his small bills.

If the Kaiser is really hard up, why doesn't he get into the dollar-a-ward class? Teddy can show him how.

George Bernard Shaw is bothered by newspaper interviews. There was a time when he was thankful to be noticed.

It has been suggested that it would be well if Dr. Weddell would hold an evangelistic service in the Council chamber February 15.

Just to show that it's no joke about Kansas farmers riding in automobiles, a Topeka paper prints a half-tone engraving not less than twenty-five of them lined up on one city block.

James R. Garfield, Secretary of the Interior has denied the report that he is to be given a Diplomatic mission as ambassador to Italy. He announces that he has had enough of public life and that he will now open a law office in Cleveland, Ohio.

The proposition to increase the salary of the President of the United States to $100,000 is a good one—not so much perhaps, because he needs the money, as because "Uncle Sam" can afford to be more generous in that respect than he has been heretofore.

Speaker Wadsworth, of New York, takes up the challenge thrown down by Governor Hughes on the subject of nominations by primaries. The subject is very important, and the discussion on both sides should be led by men of good standing and ability. "Young Jim" is rather "light" and youthful to measure swords with such an intellectual and moral giant as the governor, but on the score of character, he is all that could be desired. We may expect a spirited controversy. Machine politics in New York is both strongly established and scientific and any proposition to change the old order for a new is resisted with the might and main of the machine of both parties. Governor Hughes has entered on the fight of his life.

But few weeks of the Roosevelt administration remain and it is evident that these final days are to be as fully crowded with a strenuous work as any period of the remarkable seven years of this administration. There is much curious comment on the fact that the President has deferred the attempt to reform the Naval Establishment until the last month of his administration, and it is considered the more remarkable from the fact that owing to his familiarity with the Naval situation, acquired when he was Assistant Secretary of the Navy at the beginning of the Spanish War, he should have waited until these final days to begin a reform. Evidently he expects Mr. Taft as the inheritor of the Roosevelt Policies to continue the Naval reformation when he is in the antipodes.

Notwithstanding there has been great improvement in the race of horses, cows, pigs, fowls and vegetables there has not for hundreds of years been any appreciable improvement in the genus Homo. This is all the more remarkable in view of the thorough knowledge possessed by scientists and breeders of the conditions necessary for the improvement of the species. At a large meeting of Chicago physicians held recently Dr. Davenport of the University of Illinois created a sensation by advocating the application of eugenics for the improvement of the human race. His treatment of the subject was based on his wide experience in the matter of live stock breeding. His proposal was nothing less than all the "culls" and "scallow-waggs" of the human race should be taken before the courts, scientifically investigated and if found unfit, seggegated and permitted to die off.

EDITORIAL COMMENTS.

"Greed, greed, greed!" exclaims John Muir, naturalist, "Citizens want to encroach more and more on government reservations every year, and if all the parks were gobbled up, with only one giant tree remaining, you would find a lawyer and a lumberman at the base of the tree, arguing it would be for better to cut it down for firewood than save it for the people of these United States. Greed, the curse of America! Greed, greed, greed!" People who do not care to hear or see the plain, blunt truth are advised not to read this paragraph.—Los Angeles Herald.

"It is not the city charter that gives a city the best form of government but everything depends on the men who are chosen to execute or administer its provisions. It is too often considered only necessary to enact a law for the government of a city, and then go about our regular business or occupation and expect the charter to execute itself. If the amount of time, thought and energy that is expended to frame and enact a charter was applied to the election of ideal city officials there would be less complaint of the way municipal affairs are conducted. But the men best suited to the public positions will not make the sacrifice of their time and their reputations, and inferior men are chosen and scandals follow. We need a revival of civic righteousness more than anything else."—Lynn Item.

The Harvard Crimson states that "dishonesty in the class rooms" is prevalent. Says the Crimson: "Many undergraduates rely on others to do their work for them. Reports and theses are often copied outright from those handed in in former years and many of these appear year after year."

Unpleasant news. This sort of thing sometimes happens in a school, but the college men ought to be above that sort of thing. They are old enough to realize that they are working for something; the "kid" in a school is oftentimes merely trying to do enough work to stay in his class and avoid trouble at home. The "kid" is forgiven, even if the teachers draw long faces and seem brokenhearted over the affair. The man knows better than to fake his way through college, and the man who tries it does a wrong to those who are paying his bills as well as to his college and to himself. What's the use of sending a boy to college and paying his way just to have him show enough of his smartness of the pretty larceny expert to steal his way along, and learn nothing but the location of the Boston theatres and chophouses and how to use an automobile?—Brockton Enterprise.

The first passion of a woman is her love for her children.

Is that true?

If it is true, her second passion is her desire to make a man of her husband.

We hear much about self-made men. It might do us good to hear more about wife-made men.

There are a lot of them. Many of the best men in the world—the greatest in statesmanship, science, art and literature—have freely acknowledged their indebtedness to women. Perhaps to their wives they are indebted—possibly to other women.

A wise wife is she who completely fills her function, being comrade and source of inspiration. If she doesn't do it, some other woman may. Not every wife earnestly seeks to be a helpful companion. Not every one who tries succeeds.

The wife who contributes to her husbands uplift and helps to enlarge his vision must not be denied high credit for his career. The best part of many a man is the femininity which comes from his wife. High character which counts for his success may have originated in her. His ideals may have come from her; to her he may owe his purposes.

And her joy in it is exquisite. This is a woman's greatest work, next to the rearing of her children—if it is second to that. And in all great work there is keen pleasure.—Beverly Times

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

NEWFOUNDLAND IS SATISFIED

Concessions by United States In the Fisheries Controversy

AN AGREEMENT TO ARBITRATE

Americans Fished In West Coast Inlets For Ninety Years Without Rights Being Questioned—Colonial Government Now Claims That Treaty of 1818 Permitted Americans to Fish Only Along the Seaboard

St. John's, Feb. 5.—Premier Bond announced last night that an agreement on the fisheries dispute between the United States and Newfoundland had been reached and that Newfoundland had gained certain concessions.

The government claims that the terms of the agreement as a whole are of a satisfactory character. It is announced that the Americans agreed to the arbitration of the question of their rights to fish within the inlets of the west coast.

The Americans have contended that the treaty of 1818 gave them the unquestioned right to fish in these inlets, but recently the Newfoundland government set up the claim that the treaty permitted the Americans to fish only along the seaboard.

At Washington it is pointed out by representatives of the United States that the American vessels had fished in these inlets for ninety years without question until Bond objected in 1905.

Should The Hague tribunal, before which the whole fisheries dispute will be taken, decide that the treaty of 1818 does not give the Americans the right to fish in the west coast inlets, the important frozen herring industry, in which scores of New England vessels are engaged each year, will have to be abandoned.

Other features of the agreement were not made public here.

Will Be Rushed Through

Washington, Feb. 5.—Ambassador Bryce and the Newfoundland authorities have reached an agreement in the matter of the questions in the fisheries controversy to be submitted to The Hague court for arbitration. Some concessions were made to the colonial government at the recent conference in Washington between Bryce, Secretary Root and Minister Kent of Newfoundland, which were incorporated in the treaty signed with reservations by Bryce and Root.

This compromise has won over the Newfoundland authorities and as soon as the signed treaties are formally exchanged, the treaty will be sent to the senate for ratification. State department officials are anxious to obtain action upon it before the present session of congress expires.

POLICE SEND OUT DECOYS

Armed Men Dressed as Women Hunt For Wicked Negroes

Pittsburg, Feb. 5.—The situation in the Herron Hill district, where over 150 negroes have been arrested, following many attacks on young white girls in that section of the city, is quiet, but a double force of police and plain clothes men is still on duty, for there is a strong undercurrent of racial feeling.

The authorities have sent out decoys in the troubled section in an effort to catch negroes who have been troubling women. Young men, dressed as women and armed with blackjacks, walked through the district, hoping to have the guilty negroes accost or attack them.

ATTEL STILL CHAMPION

Puts Kelly Down and Out In Seventh Round of Featherweight Contest

New Orleans, Feb. 5.—Abe Attel found no difficulty in retaining the featherweight championship when he met Eddie Kelly in a scheduled ten round bout here last night.

When Kelly came up for the seventh round Attel sent him to the floor four times in quick succession, and his seconds, seeing that he could not last longer, gave up the fight.

Mercury Takes Big Drop

Manchester, N. H., Feb. 5.—The temperature recorded by several thermometers at Barnstead Thursday was 50 degrees below zero. Woodsville reported a temperature of 45 below, Henniker 30 below. The lowest in Manchester was 24 below. The air was still, and little suffering is reported. Today the weather is much warmer.

Big Reception at White House

Washington, Feb. 5.—The congressional reception at the White House last night was one of the largest ever held at the White House. The army and navy reception is the only other official reception still to be held.

Train Kills Six on Track

New York, Feb. 5.—A construction train on the New York Central railroad ran into a group of track walkers in Bronx borough. Six of the track walkers were killed. No passenger train was involved in the accident.

WILLING TO FORFEIT BAIL

Brokaw Apparently Anxious to Be Rid of Son-In-Law Fisher-Hansen

New York, Feb. 5.—An attempt to obtain the release, on a writ of habeas corpus, of Carl Fisher-Hansen, the lawyer now awaiting trial in the Tombs prison on a charge of bribery, was frustrated by District Attorney Jerome, who told Justice Gerard in the supreme court that Fisher-Hansen had made every preparation to jump the $15,000 bail originally furnished by his father-in-law, Isaac V. Brokaw, when he was re-arrested and jailed by order of the district attorney.

Mr. Jerome said that in his anxiety to be rid of his son-in-law Brokaw not only consented to forfeit the $15,000 bail put up by him, but agreed to give him an annual income if he would consent to a legal separation from his daughter. Fisher-Hansen, Jerome declared, accepted the proposition, and even signed an agreement of separation, but later repudiated it unless a larger allowance was made him.

The writ was dismissed and Fisher-Hansen was renmanded to the Tombs.

PUPILS ALL ESCAPE

Value of Fire Drill Amply Proven In a Burning Schoolhouse

Sydney, N. S., Feb. 5.—St. Joseph's public school was destroyed by fire. Though the flames spread rapidly throughout the building there was no panic and the discipline was excellent.

There were four teachers and 277 pupils in the school when the fire broke out, all of whom escaped without the slightest mishap, as a result of the efficiency in fire drill.

When the alarm was given the teachers assembled the children together with all possible speed and marshalled them through the smoke filled halls into the open air. Everything was done so quickly that the children had to lose their hats, cloaks and coats in the burning building.

The fire is said to have been caused by a break in the hot-air furnace.

ENRAGED MAN MURDERS WOMAN

Quickly Repents by Taking Own Life by Hanging

New York, Feb. 5.—A sensational tragedy occurred at Farmingdale, L. I., when Frederick Buckholt, 40 years old, shot and killed Mrs. Elizabeth Rust, wounded her two children as they stood clinging to her skirts, and then hanged himself in the attic of his home. The murder occurred in the presence of Buckholt's wife.

Mrs. Rust was a divorced woman who did servants' work about the village. Her two children boarded at Buckholt's home and last night, when she came to see them, Buckholt demanded an increase in the board she was paying. A dispute followed and in a sudden rage Buckholt killed her.

UPBRAIDED THE JUDGE

Woman Who Could Not Control Her Tongue Is Punished For It

Atlantic City, Feb. 5.—Arrested for annoying women on the street and fined $7.50 by Judge Hayes, Rose Cook, a neatly attired gorl with a temper, talked herself into a sentence of forty-five days in the county prison.

"Every word you say will add a day to your sentence," Hayes warned, when the prisoner started to upbraid him.

Clerks and police officials kept the record, and when the count tallied at forty-five, and Miss Cook was out of breath, she was removed to prison.

LAWYER GOES TO PRISON

Belcher Pleaded Guilty to Stealing $9500 From Female Client

Boston, Feb. 5.—A sentence of not less than five nor more than six years in state prison was imposed by Judge Bishop in the superior court upon Robert E. Belcher, for the larceny of $9500 from a client, Miss Mary T. Coakley of Hillsborough, N. H.

Belcher, who is a local attorney and was at one time lieutenant in the signal corps of the Massachusetts Volunteer militia, pleaded guilty.

Banker Laidlaw's Sudden Death

New York, Feb. 5.—Charles E. Laidlaw, senior member of the banking firm of Laidlaw & Co., prominent in Wall street for the past forty years, died suddenly of heart failure at his home here. He was born in this city 69 years ago.

NEWS IN BRIEF

EARTHQUAKE FUND OF $3,641,000

Response to Call For Aid Has Been Most Generous

Washington, Feb. 5.—Funds raised by the relief organizations for the earthquake victims in Italy have reached a total of $3,641,000, this sum representing the contributions which poured in from all quarters through the three leading organizations, the American National Red Cross, the Italian government committee and the Italian Red Cross.

This information is based upon a message from Ambassador Griscom to Chairman Davis of the central committee of the American Red Cross. The relief fund is divided as follows:

Italian government committee $2,000,000; Italian Red Cross, $800,000, and the American National Red Cross, $841,000. About one-third of the total amount has been distributed for the relief of the sufferers.

Reports criticising the manner of handling the funds are discredited at the war department and the headquarters of the National Red Cross.

ANOTHER MARATHON RUN

Shrubb and Longboat Meet In Long Race In Madison Square Garden

New York, Feb. 5.—Tonight in Madison Square Garden two of the greatest runners in the world will try to discover the briefest possible time in which 26 miles and 385 yards can be run around a circular indoor track, ten laps to a mile.

TOM LONGBOAT.

The contestants are Alfred Shrubb, the phenomenal English distance runner and holder of several world's records, and Tom Longboat, the Canadian Indian, conqueror of Dorando, who has won a reputation for speed and endurance.

Shrubb for ten miles at least is probably the fastest man in the world. He possesses remarkable endurance and phenomenal sprinting ability. If the Indian cannot keep pace with Shrubb in the last twelve miles and the latter is able to agin a lap it is generally believed that Longboat will suffer defeat.

Longboat's two victories over Dorando have caused him to be regarded as a high class long distance man, but the experts say that both Dorando and Hayes have been overrated.

BANK DOORS TO REOPEN

Impairment In Somersworth Institution's Capital Is Made Good

Somersworth, N. H., Feb. 5.—The reopening of the First National Bank of Somersworth some time next week is assured, according to a statement issued by the directors of the institution.

The impairment in the bank's capital, caused by the alleged defalcation of $85,000 by its cashier, Fred M. Varney, has been made good.

Melvin L. Stevens, for the past few years employed in the office of the treasurer of the Boston and Maine railroad in Boston, will be the new cashier of the institution.

RIVET IS FOUND GUILTY

Jury Thinks He Killed Galloux For $500 Life Insurance Policy

Lowell, Mass., Feb. 5.—Circumstantial evidence, with a $500 life insurance policy as the motive, was sufficient in the minds of a jury to convict Napoleon J. Rivet of this city of the murder in the first degree of his friend, Joseph Galloux, on the night of Feb. 29, 1908.

The body of Galloux was found the morning after with the skull crushed, the face burned with acid and the gas in his little plumbing shop turned on.

People Dispensed With Luxuries

Paris, Feb. 5.—French exports to the United States in 1908 aggregated $91,776,658, a decrease of $36,286,994 as compared with 1907. This serious falling off was due to the financial stringency in the United States, where the people went without the luxuries supplied by France.

ROOSEVELT TAKES A HAND

He Denounces Bill Segregating Japanese Schoolchildren

"THE MOST OFFENSIVE OF ALL"

Unexpectedly Passed by California Assembly In the Midst of Pro-Japanese Rejoicing Over Defeat of Anti-Alien Land Bill—News Received In Washington With Surprise and Consternation

Sacramento, Cal., Feb. 5.—With the defeat in the lower house of two of the anti-Japanese measures, but the unexpected passage of a third bill segregating Japanese schoolchildren in separate schools along with Chinese, Koreans and other Asiatics, President Roosevelt has again taken a hand in the anti-Japanese legislation which for the last week has drawn international attention to California.

Hardly had the bill been passed by the assembly before Governor Gillett received the following telegram from the president:

"What is the rumor that the California legislature has passed a bill excluding the Japanese children from the public schools? This is the most offensive bill of all, and in my judgment is clearly unconstitutional and we should at once have to test it in the courts. Can it be stopped in the legislature or by veto?"

The governor at once sent a reply, the nature of which he declines at present to make public, and he requested from the president an immediate answer. Until he receives another telegram from President Roosevelt, the governor declines to discuss the action of the assembly.

The bill passed Thursday, which was one of three anti-Japanese measures introduced by Assemblyman Johnson, places the Japanese in the same category with other Asiatics and inserts the word "Japanese" in the present state statute providing for the segregation in separate schools of "Mongolian" children.

By this action the lower house of the California legislature has taken the step which the board of education of San Francisco intended to take two years ago, which was abandoned after the board and former Mayor Schmitz were called to Washington and had several conferences with President Roosevelt.

At that time it was contended by the Japanese that they were not "Mongolians" and they resented the efforts to place them in the same class with other Asiatic races. The question was also raised whether under the law the segregation of Japanese school children could be enforced in the absence of specific mention of the word "Japanese."

Upon the return of the delegation from Washington, the San Francisco school board contented itself with the adoption of a rule limiting the age of pupils who would be permitted to attend the lower grades of the public schools, one of the principal objections to the Japanese being that adults were attending the primary grades and in daily association with white children of tender years.

The passage of the Japanese school segregation bill Thursday was unexpected, owing to the defeat on Wednesday of Drew's anti-alien land bill, which was generally believed to foreshadow the rejection of all of the measures aimed at the Japanese. The defeat Thursday of more anti-Japanese bills added to the surprise occasioned by the vote on the school segregation bill.

Consternation at Washington

Washington, Feb. 5.—News of the passage by the assembly of the California legislature of the bill providing for the segregation of Japanese school children was received in official quarters here with surprise and consternation.

President Roosevelt indicates clearly in his telegram to Governor Gillett that he has not changed in his attitude of two years ago, when he declared in his annual message to congress, submitted just previous to the visit of the San Francisco delegations, that "to shut them (the Japanese) out from the common schools is a wicked absurdity, when there are no first class colleges in the land, including the University and College of California, which do not gladly welcome Japanese students, and on which Japanese students do not reflect credit.

"We have as much to learn," said the president at that time, "from Japan as Japan has to learn from us, and no nation is fit to teach unless it is also willing to learn."

Will Be Smothered In Committee

Carson, Nev., Feb. 5.—The Giffin anti-Japanese resolution, shorn of its reference to President Roosevelt, came up in the senate and was referred to the judiciary committee. It is said this committee will smother it, in accordance with the wishes of United States Senators Nixon and Newlands.

Vanderbilt Loses Auto License

Boston, Feb. 5.—The automobile license of Harold S. Vanderbilt was suspended and should he lose his appeal from the verdict which found him guilty of reckless driving it is understood the license will be revoked.

BLOOD POISON SET IN

Editor Woodson Succumbs to Injuries Received While Boarding Train

Yonkers, N. Y., Feb. 5.—William L. Woodson, editor of The American Press, died at St John's hospital here.

While trying to board a train here last Saturday Mr. Woodson fell and his right foot was amputated. After being taken to the hospital it was found that amputation of the leg below the knee was necessary. The immediate cause of death was blood poisoning. The burial will occur in Lynchburg, Va.

Mr. Woodson as editor of The American Press became known to newspaper men throughout the country. He had been connected with the American Press Association many years. Mr. Woodson was formerly one of the best known newspaper men of the south. He was a native of Virginia, but lived also in Georgia and other southern states.

Arthur J. Palmer is acting as editor of The American Press.

BIGAMY IS ALLEGED

Man Murdered at Newark Said to Have Three Wives Living

Newark, N. J., Feb. 5.—There were sensational developments in the case of Frank Wilhelm, who was found murdered in his home here Monday, though the actual clearing up of the mystery which surrounds the tragedy has not yet occurred.

The revelations included the charge that Wilhelm had three wives living and that he was never divorced.

Another occurrence of interest was the action of the police in suddenly bringing the widow, Mrs. Mary J. Wilhelm, and Nicholas Sicca, both of whom are held concerning the murder, before the body of the murdered man. Mrs. Wilhelm, though she became hysterical, withstood the test fairly well, but Sicca was so disturbed that his arraignment had to be postponed.

HASKELL TO HAVE MANY ATTORNEYS

Trial of Town Lot Cases Is Some Distance Off

Muskogee, Okla., Feb. 5.—No method of procedure in the town lot fraud indictment cases will be decided upon until after the arrival of Governor Haskell here.

Attorneys for the indicted men have not yet reached a decision as to whether they will demur to the indictments or not.

Governor Haskell will be represented by an array of attorneys when placed on trial, which probably will not take place till May or June next.

BOSTON DRIVERS FINED

Police Enforce Rules to Relieve Congestion In Crowded Thoroughfares

Boston, Feb. 5.—"You mustn't drive unless you learn the rules," was the admonition given by Judge Wentworth to fifty-two teamsters brought before him in the municipal court, charged with violation of the new traffic regulations of this city.

While the rules have been in effect for about a month, the authorities gave the teamsters some time to become familiar with the numerous changes from the previous regulation before making any arrests.

All but one of the fifty-two men in court were fined $5 each. The only man whose case was placed on file was one who had been temporarily taking the place of a regular teamster to fill a rush order.

GIRL RETURNS TO LIFE

Undertaker Was Preparing to Embalm Her Body For Burial

Clarksburg, W. Va., Feb. 5.—Nellie Andre, 22, had a narrow escape from being put in the grave before death.

She was taken suddenly ill and soon lapsed into unconsciousness. Later all signs of life disappeared, and the family, convinced that she was dead, called an undertaker, who, while preparing to embalm the body, noticed faint traces of life.

California Racing Knocked Out

Sacramento, Cal., Feb. 5.—Racing in the state of California suffered a vital blow when the senate, by a vote of 33 to 7, passed the anti-race track gambling bill, which prohibits pool selling, book-making or gambling on horse races. The bill had already passed the assembly. Governor Gillett has signified his intention of signing the measure.

New Home For Aged Men

Newport, R. I., Feb. 5.—A gift of $125,000 to the city of Newport for the erection and maintenance of a home for aged men, provided by the will of William H. Anderson, who died in 1897, has now become available, according to an announcement made by the trustees of the Anderson estate to Mayor Boyle.

CONFESSES TO KILLING KLIFF

Monet Struck Down Aged Man With a Draft Bolt

GIVES DETAILS OF THE CRIME

Entered Lunch Room Ostensibly to Buy a Pipe and Committed Crime as Proprietor Turned to Get It—Wife Comes to His Aid and Is Also Assaulted—Divided Stolen Money With His Accomplice

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Feb. 5.—Napoleon Monat, arrested at Holyoke, Mass., for the murder on Jan. 24 of John Kliff, an aged restaurant keeper at Hopewell Junction, told the authorities his own story of the horrible crime. George Conrow, Monat's accomplice, is also in jail, charged with murder.

"It was all prearranged by Conrow and myself," said Monat to Chief of Police McCabe. "We left the caboose in the yard in which we had been sleeping a little after 4 o'clock Sunday morning. I procured a draft bolt and we went toward the Kliff house together. Conrow agreed to watch at the crossing while I got the money.

"When I entered the lunch room I laid a nickel on the counter and asked for a cob pipe. Kliff turned to get the pipe and I struck him on the head with the bolt. He did not fall and I struck him again, causing him to fall the floor.

"The noise awakened Mrs. Kliff and she came out and grabbed me by the shoulders. I struck her with the bolt and she fell in my arms. I carried her back to her bed, wrapped her in the bedclothes, and I then took the money from a handbag. There was $500 in bills and $25 in silver.

"I then left the building, whistled for Conrow and together we went back to the caboose to divide the money. We each took $250 of the bills and I kept the silver.

"That morning Conrow and I both viewed the remains after the discovery of the murder. We then went to New Haven, where we bought clothes and lavished our money on women. From there I went to Holyoke, where I was arrested."

Both men will be arraigned in court today, charged with murder in the first degree.

VON BERNSTORFF DINED

Pledges of Friendship Between America and Germany Renewed

New York, Feb. 5.—Count Johann H. Von Bernstorff, German ambassador to the United States, received a gracious welcome from a large and distinguished gathering last night, when the New Yorker Staats Zeitung tendered him a dinner.

As a prelude to the festivities a cable dispatch was sent to Emperor William containing greetings to him and emphasizing the enduring friendship that exists between Germany and the United States.

The keynote of the speeches, as of the telegrams, was praise of the amity which exists between the two countries and the good work which is going on in furtherance of this feeling.

The count's greeting was, in a way, an introduction to the representatives of literature, education, religion and the press of the city.

A NOCTURNAL PROWLER

Supposed Wildcat Sending Shivers Down the Spines of Villagers

Greenwich, Conn., Feb. 5.—Information was received here that a large wildcat is lurking about the village of Northcastle, N. Y., seven miles from here, and frightening the people by its wild cries.

Herbert Mead, a butcher, says that last night the "cat" followed him from Long Ridge, nine miles away, while he was driving with a load of beef. He feared it would attack him and drove as fast as the horses could travel home.

From his description the "cat" is though to be a Canadian lynx.

Held by Immigration Officers

Boston, Feb. 5.—The immigration authorities detained Francois Micheles of Lowell and Mrs. Marie Claus of Belgium, who arrived on the steamer Ivernia, pending an investigation. It is claimed that Micheles has a wife in this country and that the woman deserted her husband and children in Belgium.

Money to Fight Moth Pests

Concord, N. H., Feb. 5.—A bill appropriating $25,000 to fight the gypsy and brown-tail moths during the coming year was passed by the New Hampshire house of representatives.

Aged Man Burned to Death

Lowell, Mass., Feb. 5.—Albert G. Norcross, aged 77, was burned to death by setting fire to his clothing with a candle which he was carrying up stairs to his bedroom.

Ban on Liquor Making

Nashville, Feb. 5.—The bill prohibiting the manufacture of intoxicating liquors in Tennessee was passed by the house over the governor's veto.

Costly Law Robes.

An English judge's outfit in the way of robes imposes a heavy tax upon the newly appointed judge, although the cost is not nearly so great as it was in the early days of Queen Victoria. Then it was the custom for the law luminaries to attend court functions in figured damask silk gowns, with costly lace bands and ruffles. Thesiger, a celebrated legal dignitary of that day, is said on one occasion to have spent £100 on bands alone. The lord chancellor's robes cost something like £150, and even a judge's stockings are an expensive item. The wardrobe of a judge costs anything from £500 to £600, and if the newly fledged "my lord" is attached to the king's bench division he will require five gowns, a girdle, a scarf, a casting hood, a black cap, a three cornered cap, a beaver hat, a cocked hat, a silk hat, lace bands and two full court suits, swords, etc., to keep up the majesty of the law.—London Globe.

What They Said.

"Did the girls say anything when they heard of my engagement?" she asked, with a little curiosity.

"Very little," was the reply of her dearest friend.

"But they said something?"

"Oh, yes; they said something."

"Well, what was it?"

"Well, most of them merely exclaimed, 'At last!'"

There was a pause, and then she asked:

"Well, what did some of the others say?"

"One of them said, 'Who'd have thought it?' Another, 'Will wonders never cease?' And a third"—

"Oh, never mind the rest," interrupted the fiancee. "I never did have much curiosity."

Was He Delirious?

"Almost every man," says a Baltimore specialist, "learns sooner or later to think of his doctor as one of his best friends, but this fact does not hinder the world from laughing at the profession.

"'How is our patient this morning?' asked a physician, a fellow graduate of mine, of a patient's brother.

"'Oh, he's much worse,' came from the other in a tone of dejection. 'He's been delirious for several hours. At 3 o'clock he said, "What an old woman that doctor of mine is!" and he hasn't made a rational remark since.'"—Lippincott's.

Good Guess.

"When is a cat not a cat?"
"Easy."
"Well?"
"When she is a woman."

CONVERSATION FOR WHOLE CONTINENT.

Arrangements for the North American Conservation Conference between representatives of the United States, Canada and Mexico, at the White House, Feb. 18, are going forward rapidly, following the cordial acceptance by Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Premier, and Earl Grey, Governor-General, of Canada, and President Diaz of Mexico, of President Roosevelt's invitation to send delegates. The Conference will discuss the situation with regard to the natural resources of the respective countries and help prepare a general plan adapted to promote the welfare of the Nations concerned in accordance with President Roosevelt's suggestion.

This International Conference will meet at the White House by President Roosevelt's invitation. It will not be a large gathering as was the Conference of Governors at the White House last May, or the joint Conservation Conference last December between the National Conservation Commission, the Governors and the representatives of State Conservation Commissions and Conservation Committees of National organizations. The attendance will be limited to the representatives of Canada and Mexico and representatives of the state department of the United States Government and of other executive departments which can render particular assistance to the Conferees in their deliberations, and the National Conservation Commission.

Canada has already taken active steps in preparation for the Conference and recently sent to the National Conservation Commission a number of carefully prepared maps which show the present status of the puplic lands of the Dominion as well as the distribution of the principal natural resources and the development of its transportation systems. The Canadian authorities have also gathered together and sent to the Chairman of the Commission a comprehensive collection of Government documents bearing on the natural resources of the country. These have been carefully indexed and bound together according to subjects. They will be used at the forthcoming Conference.

President Roosevelt feels that the connection between the United States and the two Nations which lie to the North and South is so intimate that they can consider their mutual interests with regard to natural resources from the standpoint of the general welfare of the Continent with small regard to the political boundary lines which separate them. Indeed, it is said that he considered inviting Canada and Mexico to the first Conservation Conference at the White House but that he refrained from doing so because he was unwilling to run the remotest risk of asking these two Nations to associate themselves with the Conservation movement before it was certain that it was going to succeed. Now that success is assured he feels that since the two Nations have identical interests and identical aspirations they can work together along Conservation lines just as the representatives of the States work together without regard to State boundaries.

WIVES ARE SERVANTS.

Polygamy is the rule in Nigeria, the reason given by the natives being that it is impossible for one woman to do all the work of the house, look after the children, prepare and cook the food, fetch the daily supply of water (often an arduous job,) cultivate the plantation and go to market.

And the reason is that the African is an exceedingly hungry person. It is their custom to eat several times a day when at home, and the men spend most of their day sitting in the palavar house or market place, while the women bring the food all day long.

One wife could not possibly do this. Besides the African lady encourages it, for she says: "The more wives the less work."

Among the Ahiaras, Onichas, Obuwus and the lower class of pagan tribes in the interior there is very little form of marriage. As soon as a man has the means he pays the parents what they want in the shape of goats, cows, beads, money and takes the girl. There is no ceremony at all. The more wives he has indicates a richer man and that he will be better looked after.

If, of course, they can manage to seize a woman from the neighboring tribe while she is fetching water or working on her farm so much the cheaper.—New York World.

GOOD BOWLING SCORES MADE

John Ericksons Defeat Roger Wolcotts on Alleys.

The John Ericson Order of Foresters and Rodger Wolcott Order of West Quincy met in a bowling match at the GRANITE STREET ALLEYS Thursday evening, the former five taking three straight strings and winning 1273 to 1206 on totals. O. Halquist was high man on singles rolling 106, Bill Smith with 102 being a close second. Hermanson was high man for three strings his total being 288. The Ericsons challenge any Fraternity team in the city.

The summary:

All kinds of records were smashed at the Houghs Neck Associate alleys Thursday night when the Bucko"s bucked the Bantams to the tune of three strings straight. Hutchinson of the Bucko's was easily the star man of the night getting fine scores for each of the three strings with a pin fall of 1304. The victory tonight ties the Bucko's with the Bantams for first place. The Bantams have lost five strings out of six this week.

JOLLY SLEIGHRIDE.

A party known as the "jolly crowd" of South Quincy went on a sleigh-ride Thudrsday night a "jolly" time they had. The party started at 7 o'clock from the home of Miss Florence Williams and thence the course was to Mattapan, Randolph and return.

At Mattapan the boys and girls had hot drinks and supplied themselves with sweets of all kinds for the return trip. It was in the wee small hours of the morning when a bugle call sounded the arrival of the party in Quincy.

LINCOLN MEMORIAL SERVICE.

The special committee of Paul Revere Post 88, G. A. R., composed of Commander George L. Phillips, Francis P. Loud, Elisha Packard, Dr. H. C. Hallowell and Edward J. Lennon are busily at work completing arrangements for the Lincoln Memorial service to be held Friday evening, Feb. 12 in the Council chamber, City Hall. A general invitation is extended to the city government and public to attend the exercises.

The program will include brief addresses on the life of Lincoln by well known citizens, readings and vocal and instrumental music.

TODAY'S COURT.

Bartholomew Miller was sentenced to six months in the house of correction for drunkenness at Weymouth.

Numerous sleighing parties have been enjoyed by Wollaston young people this week, the moon favoring. Wednesday evening a crowd of high school pupils went to Mattapan and Thursday the seventh grade of the Massachusetts Fields school went on a two hours' ride.

Citizens' No-License League Files Annual Report.

The Citizens' No-License League has a very gratifying report to make as a result of it sannual campaign in Quincy last December in the interest of temperance.

While the majority for "No" was not quite as large as the extremely large majority of the previous year, it is pleasing to note that the "No" vote was the largest in the history of Quincy.

The League feels very grateful to all who contributed toward the payment of the expense of the campaign as well as to all who in any way helped along the good cause.

Another source of gratification is that the expense of the campaign was nearly $500 smaller than in 1907 and is also the smallest since 1904.

This report has been delayed as it was desirable that all bills be paid before publishing the statement.

The League is grateful to all who contributed toward the payment of the expense of the Campaign, and to all who in any way helped to secure the large "NO" vote. While the majority was slightly under that of the extremely large majority of the previous year it was also the largest "NO" vote in the history of Quincy.

The expense of the Campaign is the smallest since 1904.

If that you call "religion" is a thing
For Sunday hours and churchly walls alone
'Tis wrongly named, for true religion goes
Through all the week on virture-bearing wing;
In daily work and play its strength is known—
By character its sterling worth it shows!

Invitations are out for the wedding of Mr. Edwin M. Morse younger son of Mrs. Joseph C. Morse of Presidents hill and Miss Bertha L. Bartlett, on Wednesday, February tenth, at the home of the bride, on Gould avenue, Malden.

Club members are showing their interest in the card party at the Quin-Women's club house on February sixteenth by subscribing liberally and a large party is anticipated.

The Enigma club was entertained last evening by Misses Gerna and Catherine Saville in a most novel way. Each member was dressed to represent some play such as, The Little Minister, Wildfire, The Rivals, Polly of the Circus, The Vanderbild Cup, Strongheart and so on. After all were assembled the characters were guessed, after which each was requested to vote for the best make-up. Prizes were awarded, Miss Dorothy Fry as Madomeiselle Modiste and Mr. James Claflin as the Devil. The rest of the evening was spent playing progressive games. After refreshments the evening ended in singing popular songs.

Mrs. May Willis Hatch who has been enjoying the winter weather and fine sleighing in Vermont expects to return to Quincy in a few days to the home of her cousins the James H. Stetsons of School street.

Miss Laura Coles of Faxon road has been in Newton a few days this week going over to attend the Hunnewell club dance.

Mr. and Mrs. Morrison D. Capron are receiving many expressions of condolence from their friends, owing to the sudden death of their aunt Miss Caroline L. Flagg of Grafton, Mass. Miss Flagg died after a week's illness of double pneumonia.

Mr. and Mrs. James H. Stetson are leaving next week to join several friends in a trip through the south. They will visit their favorite resorts at St. Augustine, Fla., Hampton Terrace, Georgia and Summerville in the pine woods. Mrs. Stetson has had some beautiful gowns and hats for the trip and will enter into social affairs while away with her usual enjoyment.

Mistress—Bridget, I'm beginning to lose patience with you. There wouldn't be a blessed thing done about the house if I didn't keep telling you to do it. You couldn't possibly be worse.

Bridget—Oh, I don't know, ma'am. I moight rayfuse teh do what ye towld me.—Philadelphia Press.

—Some one has said that good resolutions are now marked down to make room for spring goods.

SPECIAL SERVICES FOR SUNDAY

Evangelists to Speak at Y. M. C. A. and Local Churches.

The solo, "Face to Face" was sung by W. H. Gay of Somerville as the opening number of the evangelistic meeting in Bethany church. This beautiful song was finely rendered and gave a right ring at the start. Revs. Thompson and Mowrie assisted in the devotional exercises. A chorus of children sang the old song "I am so glad that Jesus loves me" with splendid effect.

Dr. Weddell's discourse was from the text: "Take ye Him and crucify Him for I find no fault with Him."

After the sermon, Dr. Weddell, Mr. Briggs and Mr. Gay sang most effectively.

The meeting closed at nine o'clock when over fifty men joined in an after meeting led by Dr. Weddell in the chapel. Dr. Hardy led the women's service in the main auditorium until 9.30.

The Sunday services which are connected with the campaign are as follows: At 3.30 at the Y. M. C. A. meeting for older boys addressed by Herbert Cassidy of Boston University Theological school. At 4 o'clock at Wollaston Congregational church a mixed meeting addressed by Dr. Weddell, solos by Mr. Briggs. At 4 o'clock in the Presbyterian church Water street, a men's meeting under the direction of the Y. M. C. A., addresed by A. P. Call of the Dover Street, Rescue Mission, Boston. The Granite City Male quartet sings and other musical programs will be furnished.

The big mass meeting will be held in the evening at Bethany church as usual. A special musical program has been arranged and it is expected that this will be the largest and most attractive service yet held.

JANUARY WEATHER.

The weather throughout January was much milder than that usually experienced. The temperature rose above freezing on 18 days, the warmest day being the 22d with a maximum temperature of 56 degrees, while the lowest reached was 2 degrees below zero on the 19th. The total precipitation was 10 percent more than usual and a measurable quantity of rain or snow fell on 18 days.

During the month there was 3.12 inches of rain and 15 inches of snow. The greatest snowfall on any day was six inches on the 30th and the greatest amount on the ground at any time was 6.5 inches on the 31st. There was much cloudy weather and on 10 days there was no sunshine. The total number of hours of sunshine was 19 percent less than the average. The predominating wind direction was west an dthe mean velocity was slightly less than is customary. There were no gales during the month and the highest velocity was 48 miles per hour from the northwest on the 26th.

QUINCY CHORAL SOCIEAY.

The members of the executive board are giving much thought to the matter of establishing the Quincy Choral society on a firm financial basis, believing that this method alone will insure a long and active life to the organization. As a means to this end they have solicited the aid of quarantors and intend to secure the names of fifty or more people who will support the society in any financial loss it may sustain in its annual work. The yearly limit of each quarantor's liability is a reasonable one and the movement is meeting with much favor among the city's business and professional men and the clergy of the various denominations. This plan will give the society confidence to attempt very ambitious work which will, if continued, be of great educational value to local singers.

Those who have already agreed to become quarantors for this year are, Brooks Adams, Dr. John F. Welch, Mrs. George W. Morton, Mrs. William B. Rice, Mrs. J. Henry Emery, Mrs. Otho A. Hayward, Richard D. Chase, D. L. F. Chase, Delcevare King, W. W. Osborne, Elmer F. Ricker, Frederick H. Smith, Dr. John A. Gordon, William R. Bateman, Henry M. Faxon, Dexter E. Wadsworth, George H. Henry Totman aged 74, one of the oldest and best known residents of Quincy Point died last night at his and lingering illness. Mr. Totman has home 96 Chubbuck street, after a long been ailing for the last year and for the past three months has been confined to his bed. Besides a wife he leaves a daughter, Mrs. Frank Pray and a niece Mrs. Rollin H. Newcomb.

MILTON.

The Christian Endeavorers of the East Milton Baptist church went on a sleigh ride Tuesday evening, after which a luncheon was enjoyed at the church.

Milton Academy is to have Lincoln exercises on Friday. In the morning Mr. Alley will speak on "Abraham Lincoln." The orchestra will rehearse at five o'clock and the Glee club in the evening at eight o'clock.

Chief of Police Pierce attended the meeting and dinner of the Massachusetts Chief of Police club in Boston Thursday evening.

Miss Mary McKay, formerly organist at St. Mary's church, West Quincy, is on a visit to her brother who is superintendent in a steel mill at Steelton, Pa.

Paul Babcock who has been visiting his old home in East Milton for several months has returned to New Orleans.

The Thursday evening club held whist party at its rooms this week

A. F. Becker has returned from business trip to Chicago.

The warrant for the annual town meeting will be posted next week.

The annual reports of the town officers are in the hands of the printer and the book will be out before the town meeting.

But few changes in town officers are looked for this year although there are several that are being talked of for assessors.

INDIAN OUTRUNS ENGLISHMAN

Tom Longboat Wins Exciting Indoor Marathon Race

SHRUBB COLLAPSES ON TRACK

Started Off at Remarkable Clip and Gained Lap After Lap on Rival—Weakened Near End of Race, and Longboat, Who Continued to Run In Steady Fashion, Finishes Alone and In Good Condition

New York, Feb. 6.—Maintaining an even, swinging stride which rarely varied, Tom Longboat, the Onondaga Indian from Canada, won the in-door Marathon race last night at Madison Square Garden when victory seemed almost within the grasp of the plucky English champion runner, Alfred Shrubb, who collapsed in the twenty-fifth mile, leaving the Indian to finish alone.

Longboat's time for the race was 2 hours, 53 minutes, 40 2-5 seconds, which is nearly eight minutes behind the record made by Dorando, the Italian, in his race with Johnny Hayes, the Olympic Marathon winner, last fall. The Indian finished in fine fettle and was in nowise distressed.

The big garden was thronged with excited thousands who cheered the two contestants almost continually throughout the race.

Shrubb, as was predicted by his followers, set out at the pistol shot at a pace that was remarkable. He gained lap after lap on his Indian rival, who continued to run in steady fashion. Only once or twice and that after the first fifteen miles had been passed, did Longboat increase his pace. Then finding that Shrubb was still strong, he fell back again to his former pace.

Pandemonium broke loose during the twenty-second mile, when Shrubb walked a few yards. It was apparent that he was in some distress, but he was soon off again with a swinging stride, though it could be seen that his pace had slackened perceptibly.

Cheered on by his bride and the shouts of his friends Longboat increased his pace and soon began rapidly to cut down the lead of the now fast tiring Englishman.

The end of the twenty-third mile found Longboat only four laps behind Shrubb, who frequently broke his pace and walked to rest himself. The Indian kept relentlessly on and in the first half of the twenty-fourth mile caused a hurricane of applause by regaining another lap on his rival.

Shrubb was in evident distress and it was only by a plucky effort that he kept struggling on. Longboat regained another lap at the end of the twenty-fourth mile and was now setting the pace, with Shrubb manfully following him.

The thousands of spectators were now in a turmoil. They yelled and cheered as the Indian slowly moved up abreast of the Englishman, who was now but a scant lap ahead in the second lap of the twenty-fifth mile. Longboat ran without any seeming distress, while Shrubb, unable to run any further, began to walk.

Longboat quickly took the lead and the Englishman collapsed on the track in the fifth lap and gave up the contest, leaving the triumphant Indian to finish the race alone.

SCORE OF PERSONS KILLED

Heavy Loss of Property In Tornadoes Which Swept Part of South

Louisville, Feb. 6.—The death of probably twenty persons, the loss of hundreds of thousands of dollars in property, and the crippling of many telegraph wires resulted from a series of small tornadoes which swept the south central states from the Tennessee line to the Texas Pan-Handle.

The storms were accompanied in most cases by hail, darkness, terrific lightning and sheets of rain.

Most of the towns where losses of life accurred are off the railroads, so that news from them has been coming in slowly.

As to School Secret Societies

Boston, Feb. 6.—The arguments in favor of a measure which shall place the control of school secret societies with school committees proved convincing and the legislative committee on education reported a bill to that effect, but exempting religious societies.

Church Prelates Will Be Absent

Louisville, Feb. 6.—A letter from Cardinal Gibbons states that he will be unable to attend the Lincoln Day exercises at Hodgenville next week. Bishop Galloway of Jackson, Mich., has declined the invitation to be present at Hodgenville.

Accident to Wright Aeroplane

Pau, France, Feb. 6.—While leaving the ground with Paul Tissandier as a passenger, Wilbur Wright broke the rudder of his aeroplane. Neither Wright nor Tissandier was injured.

Texas' Stand on Prohibition

Austin, Feb. 6.—The Texas legislature decided against the proposal to submit to a vote of the people a constitutional amendment providing for state-wide prohibition.

DIRECT NOMINATIONS

Speaker of New York Assembly Opposes Ideas of Hughes

Albany, Feb. 6.—In an address before the New York State Lumbermen's association last night Speaker Wadsworth of the assembly came out strongly against Governor Hughes in the matter of direct nominations. In voicing the opposition of the Republican state leaders to the plan which the governor is advocating vigorously Mr. Wadsworth said:

"If the party voters exercise the powers which are theirs under the present sytem, is is safe to assume that the nominee of the convention will represent in a great majority of instances the sentiments of a great majority of his party. In a direct primary election, however, no such percentage is necessary to success; a mere plurality may be sufficient.

"Effective fusion between two parties is practically impossible under direct nominations. When you establish direct primaries you had better make up your minds to say goodby to judges without opposition, and you may as well prepare to see the judiciary thrown into politics to just such a greater degree.

"The greatest of the practical objections, however, is the question of expense—not so much the expense to which the public would be subjected by having two elections a year and the consequent disturbance of business, but rather the expense to which the candidates will be subjected. It is already proved that in those states which have established this system a poor man cannot hope to remain in public life.

ENGINEER AT FAULT

Failed to Observe Danger Signals and Derailment Resulted

Boston, Feb. 6.—The derailing of an express train from Boston for Portland last Wednesday night at Scarboro Crossing, Me., was due to the failure of the engineer to observe the danger signals, according to Superintendent C. E. Lee. It was at first reported that a broken rail was probably the cause of the accident.

"The accident was solely due to the failure of the train's locomotive engineer to obey the home and distant interlocking signals that were set at danger," says Lee, "and the train left the track at the derailing switch, which was open, as is always the case when the signals are set at danger."

MURDER CHARGE IS PREFERRED

Architect Is Accused of Slaying a Contractor

Newark, N. J., Feb. 6.—After several days of investigation into the strange circumstances surrounding the death of Frank Wilhelm, the contractor, who was found shot to death in his cellar, the police arraigned Nicholas Sicca, an Italian architect, before Judge Hahn and charged him with murder in the first degree. Hahn held the Italian without bail for the action of the grand jury.

Mrs. Wilhelm has been detained as a material witness in the case with Sicca and she will be brought into court next Monday.

It is said here that Mrs. Fredericka Wilhelm of New York, who claims to be the legal wife of Frank Wilhelm, is about to take steps through counsel to lay claim to the contractor's estate. Mrs. Wilhelm declared that she recognized her husband as he lay in the casket. The property of the contractor is at present in the name of Mrs. Frank Wilhelm.

RATIONS ARE REDUCED

Many Earthquake Refugees Are Now Able to Support Themselves

Messina, Feb. 6.—The daily rations distributed here have been reduced from 60,000 to 40,000, which shows that with the revival of work the people are enabled to support themselves.

The number of bodies excavated from the ruins now are more than 100 daily. Friday the workmen stayed at their tasks for an hour longer than usual and 145 bodies were recovered.

Several persons have been arrested here charged with theft. They include two grave diggers, who were caught in the act of robbing the dead.

Negro Assaults Aged Woman

Johnstown, Pa., Feb. 6.—Mrs. Mary Kruise, aged 80 years, was attacked at her home near here by a negro, who left his victim in a critical condition. Arthur Cochran was arrested and is being closely guarded, as neighbors of Mrs. Kruise threaten to do him bodily harm.

NEWS IN BRIEF

The Kelley block, a two-story frame business building at Jonesport, Me., was burned with most of its contents. The loss is estimated at $25,000.

A Boston wrecking company has contracted to float the schooner Helena, which ran ashore at Scituate, Mass., while bound for Portland, Me., from New York.

A new dining hall, built and equipped at a cost of $90,000, was dedicated at Mt. Vernon school, Northfield, Mass., in connection with the observance of the seventy-second anniversary of the birth of Dwight L. Moody.

The Scrap Book

Suspicious.

Admiral Robley D. Evans told this story against himself. He had a congressman for a guest, but had almost run out of his favorite brand of whisky and had stocked up with something he could not guarantee. He explained this and added, "Here, however, is some brandy that I've kept untouched for a good deal more than twenty years."

"Just hand me the whisky decanter," was the reply.

"Why," said the admiral, "what's the matter with the brandy?"

"That's just what I want to know, Bob," said the guest. "But if you have had it untouched in your possession for more than twenty years there must be something pretty bad the matter with it!"

The Mystery.

That awful shadow of some unseen power
Floats, though unseen, amongst us, visiting
This various world with as inconstant wing
As summer winds that creep from flower to flower.
Like moonbeams that behind some piny mountain shower,
It visits with inconstant glance
Each human heart and countenance;
Like hues and harmonies of evening,
Like clouds in starlight widely spread,
Like memory of music fled,
Like aught that for its grace may be
Dear and yet dearer for its mystery.
—Percy Bysshe Shelley.

Trouble Ahead.

"This happened to me, and I want to publish it as a warning to other married men," said a business man the other day. "I was busy at the office until late, and there dropped in unexpectedly a friend whom I hadn't seen for some time. Of course we immediately adjourned to a popular Chestnut street cafe, where we set 'em up a couple of times. Then my friend insisted it was due us to have dinner right where we were. Well, I had said I was coming home to dinner, so I knew there would be explanations coming if I tried to break that off, but I also knew that there would be more if I didn't let the wife know. Anyhow, I marched to the telephone, which hung conveniently near, and called up my house. As soon as I heard my wife at the other end I pathetically murmured: 'Can't get home to dinner, dear; I'm crowded with work at the office and will stay late.' There was silence for a second, and then I nearly threw a fit. My wife answered back firmly, 'Well, of course, I believe you, and we will not wait dinner, but when you get home you'll have to explain to me how they happen to have an orchestra in your office.'"—Philadelphia Record.

Recently Incapacitated.

There were some deficiencies in the early education of Mrs. Donahoe, but she never mentioned them or admitted their existence. "Will you sign your name here?" said the young lawyer whom Mrs. Donahoe had asked to draw up a deed transferring a parcel of land to her daughter.

"You sign yoursilf, an' I'll make me marrk," said the old woman quickly. "Since me eyes gave out I'm not able to write a wurrd, young man."

"How do you spell it?" he asked, pen poised above the proper space.

"Spell it whativer way you plaze," said Mrs. Donahoe recklessly. "Since I lost me teeth there's not a wurrd in the wurrld I can spell."

Exonerated the Crowd.

"Somebody's got my pocketbook!" piped a shrill, agonized voice in the crowded street car, and a hump shouldered, watery eyed man with a ginger colored beard on his chin jumped up and began convulsively clapping his hands on his various pockets.

"Sit down, you fool!" exclaimed the portly, resolute matron by his side, assisting him by a vigorous pull on his coattail. "I've got it. I knew you'd lose it if I didn't take it. You'd lose your head if it wasn't fastened on your shoulders."

Meekly he sat down.

Raising his head presently, he gave a comprehensive glance around the car and said in the same shrill voice:

"I beg everybody's pardon."

For which voluntary acknowledgment that he no longer considered everybody in the car a pickpocket he was rewarded by the glassy and unanimous stare.

The Light That Does Not Fail.

It is grand to look forward and see the heavens brighten with the dawn of a new day, but there never yet was light upon the sky which was not meant to illuminate the ground about our feet and show each of us his bit of work waiting for him there.—George Adam Smith.

A Friend In Need.

In the Hungarian parliamentary session of 1841 a certain Baron Szjel lived in Pressburg with two intimate friends, George Majlath and Barthel Szemere. One day the baron became envious of their laurels. He called Szemere aside and said to him, "My good Szemere, write me a speech." "Most willingly, my dear friend. About what would you like to speak?" "It is all the same to me, if the speech is only a nice one—wonderfully nice." "You will be satisfied with me," he answered, and next day brought the manuscript. The baron memorized the speech and delivered it on the third day. The chamber re-echoed with "vivas" and applause. At this moment the president rose and asked, "Is anybody here to answer this speech?" The baron looked sneeringly around. The members all remained silent. Then Bartholomew Szemere arose. He began, "Worthy gentlemen, what the orator said is from beginning to end incorrect." And then he began to show, in an able speech, the mistakes the baron had made. "Don't you believe him, gentlemen!" the baron cried angrily, interrupting him suddenly. "It was I himself who wrote the speech for me." Every one of the fifty-two members rolled in his seat nearly convulsed with laughter, and then and there the baron made a vow never again to speak in public.

He Wanted More.

A prominent western sheep rancher ran short of hands and hired a green man, who boasted that he could herd sheep with any of them. He received a big drove to herd and returned at the end of the month.

"Do you want me to herd sheep?" he asked of his employer.

"Do I want you to herd sheep?" said the latter. "Why, what did I hire you for?"

"Well," said the herder calmly, "do you want me to keep on herdin' 'em, you'll have to get me another drove 'cause them I had is all gone!"

Would Change the Bill.

A repertoire company was walking into a small town, says the Saturday Evening Post, where they were billed to play "Romeo and Juliet." The leading man approached the manager, who strode moodily ahead on the ties.

"Boss," he said, "I've got to have fifteen cents."

"Fifteen cents!" growled the manager. "You're always yelling for money. What do you want 15 cents for?"

"What do I want 15 cents for?" repeated the leading man bitterly. "I want it for a shave, that's what I want it for. I can't play Romeo with five days' black beard on my face!"

"Oh, well," said the manager, "you won't get no 15 cents. We'll change the bill to 'Othello.'"

A Crushing Climax.

One of the stories of "Private John Allen of Mississippi was about the experiences of a certain Major Blank of Mississippi. Major Blank tried for years to secure a Democratic nomination to congress, but signally failed each time. Finally he turned Republican and was given the Republican nomination. He made a "whirlwind tour" of his district and felt confident of the result. When the returns were counted it was found that Major Blank had received just two votes. And the next day the major was arrested on the charge of "repeating."

The Soul.

Each soul is a world in which all good is accessible and all evil possible. Each soul is also a battlefield in which the vast hosts of good and evil, folly and wisdom, are forever at war. The individual is an autocrat, an emperor, a czar, who can advance at will the standard of right or wrong within his own soul.—Orlando Jay Smith.

A Ready Medico.

"While I was waiting to take the order of a merchant in a small town in Indiana," said the dry goods drummer, "I went prowling about his store and a box fell against me. I regarded it as a trifle at the time, but an hour later I felt a severe pain in my side. I have always been afraid of appendicitis, and it occurred to me that it had come on to me bigger'n a house. Away I rushed to the village doctor, and he felt of my pulse, looked at my tongue and shook his head and said:

"'My friend, you've got it this time for sure.'

"'And I've got to be operated on?' I asked.

"'You shouldn't lose a minute.'

"With that I took off my coat and vest to have a look at the spot, and a minute later I was a surprised and pleased man. A splinter from the box was sticking in my side. I looked from the splinter to the doctor and back, and he looked from the splinter to me and back. Then I asked:

"'Doctor, how much to pay?'

"'Five dollars,' he replied.

"'But how do you make that out?'

"'Two and a half apiece for being the two biggest fools in the state!'"

It Wasn't Catching.

A kindergarten teacher tells the following:

The rules require when a child reports illness in the family that the teacher shall find out whether such illness is contagious or not, and it is customary to send the child home for a statement of facts. One morning one of the younger boys reported that "his mamma was sick." He was sent home to find out the nature of the illness and soon returned with the information:

"Mamma says it ain't catching."

"That won't do," replied the teacher. "You must go home and find out and then come and tell me just what is the matter with your mamma."

Pretty soon the boy came toddling back into the room. "Teacher," said he, "mamma says it's all right. She says it's a boy and it ain't catching."

In Sections.

In the spring of 1895 the distinguished Dutch novelist known by the pen name of Maarten Maartens was elected an honorary member of the Authors' club of New York, says the Bookman. When the name Joost Marius M. Van der Poorten-Schwartz came to the attention of the membership committee there was a gasp of astonishment. Finally the late Bill Nye came to the rescue with the suggestion that the first half of the name should be acted on at once, but that the last half should be held over until the autumn, when the weather would be cool.

REPUTATION WAS SPOTLESS

Body of a Missing Girl Is Found In a Cistern

HER DEATH DUE TO VIOLENCE

Indications That She Was Enticed Into Vacant House In Broad Daylight and Slain—Another Added to Series of Mysterious Murders of Young Women In Dayton—Expert Detectives Are Put to Work

Dayton, O., Feb. 6.—The body of Lizzie Fulhart, aged 18, of Vandalia, was dragged out of a cistern in the rear of a vacant house here last evening. She has always borne a spotless reputation at her home. She came to this city on Dec. 29 to look for employment and was staying with her aunt, Mrs. Deeters.

The discovery was made by Charles O. Waver, a contractor, who was employed by the owner of the Matthews residence to prepare the residence for occupancy. He at once notified the police.

The body was badly decomposed and discolored and the features are almost unrecognizable. The face shows bruises and other evidences of violence are plainly visible. A burlap bag enshrouded the upper portion of the body. The steel cover of the cistern is about eighteen inches in diameter and was fitted closely over the opening.

Adam Fulhart, brother of the dead girl, is confident that she had no acquaintances in the city and is unable to advance any theory which would throw any light on his sister's terrible fate.

The girl left her aunt's home in the morning in search of work and was expected to return at noon. The fact that she failed to do so indicates that the crime must have been committed in broad daylight and that she was enticed into the vacant house and there murdered.

Albert Wilkie, employed at a sewing machine factory, was arrested last night on suspicion. Wilkie was the sweetheart of the murdered girl, but says he has not seen her since she came to the city on Dec. 29.

With the death of Lizzie Fulhart, four girls have been killed in Dayton in the last three years. In no case is it certain that the guilty person has been brought to justice. Only a little over two weeks ago Mary Forschner was found dead on the outskirts of the city. The others who have been murdered are Dona Gilman and Anna Markowitz. On the neck of each were the finger marks of the murderer.

Dona Gilman, 20 years old, was killed on the night of Nov, 20, 1906.

Anna Markowitz, the second victim, was choked to death in a thicket not far from that in which the mutilated body of Dona Gilman was found, the night of Aug. 5, 1907. A month later Layton Hines was arrested. He is now serving a life sentence in the Ohio penitentiary.

Next to die came MaryForschner, 15 years old, and very pretty. Her father found her maltreated body hidden in the rear of Grafton Kennedy's stables. Arrests made have come to naught.

Chief Alaback has detailed twelve of his best detectives on the Forschner case and he will detail still more of his detective force to this latest tragedy.

IN MEMORY OF ALLISON

Speeches Eulogizing Dead Statesman Are Delivered In the Senate

Washington, Feb. 6.—The senate transacted no public business today, its time being devoted to eulogies of the career of the late William Boyd Allison,, senator from Iowa, who died Aug. 4, 1908.

An unusual note of feeling ran through the addresses. They had little of the perfunctory nature generally marking the obituary exercises in the senate, as senator Allison's long service in the upper national house and the qualities of his character commanded the respect of his colleagues. The principal address was made by Senator Dolliver of Iowa.

Admits Smuggling Jewelry

Portland, Me., Feb. 6.—Pleading guilty to a warrant alleging the smuggling of jewelry to the value of $1000, Benjamin J. Priest, chief steward of the steamship Haverford, from Liverpool, waived a hearing before Commissioner Bradley and was held for appearance before the United States court.

Killed by His Own Kin

Colorado Springs, Col., Feb. 6.—That Charles P. Essick, an aged man, was murdered by his 16-year-old son, Paul, and his son-in-law, Robert E. Player, and that Mrs. Flora Essick, wife of the murdered man, has a guilty knowledge of the crime, was the verdict of the coroner's jury.

Moth Nests From France

New Haven, Feb. 6.—The brown-tail moth has appeared in Connecticut for the first time. The moth nests were on stock received from France by one of the state nurseries. All nurserymen have been warned to inspect their stock.

FINDING HIS INITIAL.

A Tangle of Letters That Was Finally Made O. K.

The man with a soft, low voice had just completed his purchases.

"What is the name?" asked the clerk.

"Jepson," replied the man.

"Jefferson?"

"No, Jepson; J-e-p-s-o-n."

"Jepson?"

"That's it. Eighty-two"—

"Your first name—initial, please."

"Oh, K."

"O. K. Jepson?"

"Excuse me, it isn't O. K. I said 'Oh.'"

"O. Jepson?"

"No, rub out the O. and let the K. stand."

The assistant looked annoyed.

"Will you please give me your initials again?"

"I said K."

"I beg your pardon, you said O. K. Perhaps you had better write it yourself."

"I said 'Oh'"—

"Just now you said K."

"Allow me to finish what I started to say. I said 'Oh' because I did not understand what you were asking me. I did not mean that it was my initial. My name is Kirby Jepson."

"Oh!"

"No, not O., but K.," said the man. "Give me the pencil and I'll write it down for you myself. There; it's O. K. now!"

THE HAUGHTY TURK.

High Handed Diplomatic Methods of the Seventeenth Century.

Indignities to which foreign envoys were formerly subjected in China were mild in comparison with those occasionally meted out to them in Constantinople. M. Julian Klaczks in his "Etude de Diplomatie Contemporaine" relates that in 1673 the grand vizier, having intercepted some French dispatches, tried to force Del la Haye, first secretary to the French embassy and son of the ambassador, to give him the cipher of the embassy. The young diplomat indignantly refused and was in consequence bastinadoed, struck in the face with such force that his teeth were broken, and he was thrown into prison. No attempt was made by Louis XIV. to obtain redress for the wrongs inflicted on his representative.

Until the beginning of the eighteenth century Christian envoys to the porte were forbidden to visit one another or even to confer with one another on neutral ground. They were not allowed to drive in public with their wives, and at one time it was proposed to prevent them from importing wine for their own consumption. A compromise was effected on this point, on the understanding that the accursed liquor was to be conveyed from the harbor to the embassies at night and in great secrecy.

The Order of the Seraphim.

The Order of the Seraphim is the oldest and most famous of the decorations in the gift of the king of Sweden. Originally it was instituted by Magnus IV., some 600 years ago, to commemorate the siege of Upsala, the ancient capital of the Swedish kings, and its statutes bound the recipients of the order to fight to the death for the maintenance of their religion and to constitute themselves the special protectors of the widow and the fatherless. When it was revived about the middle of the eighteenth century by King Frederick the obligations laid upon the members were somewhat less onerous. The decoration consists of an eight pointed star in white enamel with cherubs' heads of gold and is worn on a broad band of pale blue ribbon.—Boston Transcript.

Without Horns.

A clergyman was an important witness in a horse dealing case. He gave a somewhat confused account of the transaction in dispute, and the cross examining counsel, after making several blustering but ineffective attempts to obtain a more satisfactory statement, said:

"Pray, sir, do you know the difference between a horse and a cow?"

"I acknowledge my ignorance," replied the reverend gentleman. "I hardly know the difference between a horse and a cow or between a bull and a bully—only a bull, I am told, has horns, and a bully"—here he made a respectful bow to the advocate—"luckily for me, has none."

Beans, Spanish Style.

Soak overnight two cupfuls of white or pink beans. In the morning boil with a pinch of soda fifteen minutes and drain. Fry one large sliced onion with a piece of pork or bacon. Add these to the beans; also a cup of canned tomatoes, two shredded chili peppers, salt and sufficient hot water to cover well. Boil briskly for ten minutes on the stove before putting in the cooker. Leave in for five hours —Good Housekeeping.

Dental Incubation.

"Tommy," said the visiting uncle, "seems to me that baby sister of yours is pretty slow. She hasn't any teeth yet, has she?"

"She's got plenty of teeth," replied the indignant Tommy. "She's got a whole mouthful of teeth, only they ain't hatched yet."—Woman's Home Companion.

Barefaced.

"Freddie," said the visitor, "I hear your father gave you a watch on your birthday. Was it a hunting case watch?"

"No, ma'am," replied Freddie. "It was a barefaced watch."—Exchange.

Why Do Country Boys Flock to Big Cities?

Most small towns are short of young men. As a rule there are plenty of agreeable girls who would not object to matrimony; there are plenty of old people and enough babies to go around. But the boy—oh, where is he?

The boy, the young man, has gone to the city, where he imagines there are opportunities. To him the old home town is dull and stupid. He sees no future for himself there. Both for social and financial considerations he rushes off to the great city. Very frequently he finds that he is lonesomer there than at home—nearly always so; and even more frequently he finds that riches do not grow on ten story walls.

BUT STILL HE GOES TO THE CITY.

In going there the boy simply follows his daddy's dollars. For years his daddy and his mother and his big sister and his Aunt Mary Ann have been mailing their money to the big city for Mail Order bargains.

Result: Home merchants don't thrive, grass grows in the streets, no jobs are to be had, no opening for a new business, and the young man goes to the city because it is a place where people have traded at home and built up their own community and provided opportunities for outsiders as well as for themselves.

IF YOU WANT TO KEEP YOUR BOY AT HOME BUILD UP YOUR TOWN SO THAT HE CAN BUILD UP HIS CAREER AMONG HIS HOME FOLKS.

THE CASE OF QUALTROUGH

Findings of Serious Nature Against Captain of Battleship Georgia

Gibraltar, Feb. 6.—The findings of the court martial which heard the evidence against Captain Qualtrough of the battleship Georgia on a charge of intoxication at Tangier during a reception given there by American Minister Gummere were approved by Rear Admiral Sperry, commander-in-chief of the Atlantic battleship fleet, and forwarded to Washington.

The findings were not made public here, but it is stated with certainty that Qualtrough was not acquitted. It is believed, on the contrary, that the findings are of so grave a nature that he will not be restored to duty. The rumor is abroad in the fleet that should the findings be approved by the navy department at Washington, Qualtrough will be disgraced and possibly dismissed from the service.

Lieutenant Commander Kline will be in command of the Georgia for the voyage home from this port.

FINE PRIZES OFFERED

Crack Athletes Will Get Together Tonight In New York

New York, Feb. 6.—Another of the big athletic meets that mark the winter season in this city will be held tonight, when the fast men on the track and handy men with the weights will meet at the annual games of the Irish American Athletic club. The games will be held in Madison Square Garden.

The club, which numbers among its membership many of the best athletes of America, has offered fine prizes in all the events, and they have attracted the entries of the best men in the country. Tonight the six leading athletes recently suspended and reinstated by the Amateur Athletic union—Sheppard, Bellars, Bacon, Bonhag, Lee and Porter—will get together for the first time since their reinstatement.

CRUM MAY LOSE COLLECTORSHIP

Senate Again Discusses Appointment of Collector

Washington, Feb. 6.—Another long session over the nomination of William D. Crum, the negro collector of customs at Charleston, who was re-appointed by President Roosevelt, was held by the senate Friday, but no vote was reached.

The debate was confined to a discussion of the race question, in which which Crum's qualifications did not enter to any marked degree.

There is a disposition on the part of senators to cease pressing the Crum case if the Democratic objections take the form of a filibuster. They do not agree that it will be necessary for Mr. Taft to re-appoint Crum if he should fail of confirmation at the present session. Crum has held the office for six years.

BARELY TIME TO ESCAPE

Fire Causes Hosiery Mill Employes to Flee In a Hurry

Tilton, N. H., Feb. 6.—A fire in the drying room of the hosiery mill of G. H. Tilton & Son forced twenty-two men employed there to flee in a hurry to save their lives and caused property damage approximating $10,000.

The fire was in the third story of a building occupied by the finishing department, where about 200 hands are employed.

Of late the mill has been run at night to catch up with a rush of orders, and the night crew had just started work in the drying room last evening when fire was discovered in a large blowing fan. It spread very quickly to all parts of the room. After a two hours' fight the firemen got the blaze under control.

NEGROES TO TAKE ACTION

Better Class In Pittsburg Realize Gravity of the Situation

Pittsburg, Feb. 6.—To bring to justice the perpetrators of the many recent attacks on white women and girls in this city and to take steps to prevent a recurrence of the crimes, the better element of the negroes have issued a call for a general mass meeting to be held next Tuesday night.

The feeling between the white people and the negroes is becoming more acute as each day brings its quota of attacks and reported attacks on white girls by negroes. Only the utmost vigilance by a double force of policemen prevents a serious clash between the races.

Profitable Telephone Business

Winnipeg, Man., Feb. 6.—Under government ownership, Manitoba's telephone system shows a surplus of $250,000 for the first year, it is announced. In January, 1908, the provincial government bought the telephone lines and equipment then existing in the provinces for $4,000,000.

Retail Trade Is Dull

New York, Feb. 6.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says that dullness of retail trade is somewhat more pronounced than usual at this season, and distribution in wholesale lines continues considerably restricted.

The Rockland Mystery.

[Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.]

Rockland had been a rough town, but it had settled down into a town without the adjective.

One day a man without a record came to town. Since he gave no name, as was customary in such cases, a name was given him. But this was not till it was noticed that he appeared to be looking for some one. Then they called him "the shadower." He had no confidants, no associates. He entered upon no business, but seemed to have what money he needed. He was continually walking about, always with a revolver at each hip, and it was noticed that he usually kept an eye toward his rear.

He was a well favored man about twenty-eight, and what few young women there were in Rockland adored him. Perhaps it was the mystery there was about him, though he never took any notice of them. One of the girls, Eunice Parks, bet she could make him smile, but she lost the bet. Nevertheless she succeeded in at least establishing an acquaintance. They were seen occasionally walking together and usually in earnest conversation. Eunice was a good deal of a hoyden, just the girl to make such a bet, but from the time she fell in with the shadower she began to get sober, and it wasn't long before she was going about apparently with just such a load on her shoulders as the stranger seemed to be carrying.

Her intimate friends questioned her about the mysterious man who never smiled and who seemed to have drawn her under the spell by which he was influenced. They got nothing out of her, and by and by her parents, perceiving that there was something wrong with her, made every effort to induce her to give them her confidence. They succeeded no better than her companions, who were her companions no longer, for, like the stranger, she was without associates, without confidants. When she was asked if he had confided in her she answered "No," but hesitatingly, as much as to say that she was in a measure at least in the dark. Was he influencing her without telling his story, or had he no story to tell?

Wherever there is a mystery there are a thousand explanations, and of the mystery of the shadower now extended to Eunice Parks no two explanations were alike. After Eunice was drawn into the vortex the parents of those who had been her friends feared that their daughters might be contaminated as people catch diseases from one another. But if this contributed to the separation between her and her former associates it was but a slight part, for Eunice dropped them before any of them dropped her.

As time went on the shadower grew more cautious in his motions, as if the altercation he seemed to be expecting might be more imminent. He was seen on one occasion while walking through the town to turn suddenly, clapping his hand to his right hip. It was noticed that when coming to a corner before advancing to cross a street he would hastily glance to the right and left as people in crowded cities do to avoid swift moving vehicles.

One afternoon the shadower was seen walking rapidly toward a wood on the outskirts of the town. A boy who saw him said he was talking to himself. Suddenly from the wood several shots rang out. There was no doubt about this, for they were heard by four different people who noticed them particularly, there having been no shooting in the town or vicinity for a long while. They differed, however, in the number of the shots.

Two of these persons were chatting together when the shots were fired. They were talking about the stranger, who had hurried past them a few minutes before. They went to the wood, and there lay the shadower with a bullet in his temple. One chamber of his revolver had been emptied, and after searching a ball was found in the trunk of a tree near by.

The body of the shadower, who now seemed to have been really the shadowed, was examined and the clothing searched carefully for evidence of his identity. On the body a number of scars were found, and the clothing was bare of any evidence whatever. Search was made for the man who had killed him, but he was not found. The ground was examined for his tracks, but it was not of a character to receive impressions, being coarse and covered with dead leaves. Some were surprised that the bullet found in the tree was of the same caliber as those of the stranger's weapons, both being 45 caliber. But in that country everybody carried a 45 caliber revolver.

People were divided between several opinions. There were those who maintained, as appearance indicated, that the stranger had been killed by an enemy. There were those who believed the man had committed some crime and feared retribution till he imagined he was followed and had eventually killed himself. A third class believed that punishment had been visited upon him by the ghost of some one he had wronged.

Of course every effort was made to induce Eunice Parks to tell what she knew—if, indeed, she knew anything. She did not admit that she knew anything and would tell nothing. She was much affected by the stranger's death and would not look at his body after death. It was buried where it fell and a stone put up bearing only two words, "The Unknown."

Eunice Parks pined away and died.

That Texas schoolgirl who hugged her teacher till she cracked three ribs is the whole squeeze.

Now that the courts have ruled that Mr. Hariman doesn't have to talk every time the courts call on him, he is showing quite an inclination to talk.

Of course there are southern Democrats who will not feel obliged to vote for every eminent visitor who discovers that possum makes an inviting dish.

What must be done to bring industries to our city ? What are the best methods that can be used to induce manufacturing concerns to locate in Quincy ? These are two questions that are puzzling the men who have the interest of the city at heart. According to President Richards of the Board of Trade, the best way to begin is to foster the industries that we have at the present time. If we refuse to grant any favors to our home industries, what will these same industries say to a new industry that considers locating here ? Will they say, "This is just the place you want. The city treats you in fine style."

Hardly. They will say this is not the place to start a business. The city won't grant any favors and you will have to get along on your own resources.

Would it not be better to have the home industries say a good word to the prospective ones? The whole secret seems to be to foster the home industries and then the new ones will come.

"If New England wants the Weeks forest reserve bill to pass, it must show its interest." This is what the new Boston Chamber of Commerce advises.

The merchants are now advocating that influential constituents write personal letters to the New England congressmen and senators, urging united support for the Weeks bill. It is not a party question in Washington, and the bill seems to be favorably regarded. The representatives of New England, the South, and the Middle States are unanimous. What they wish now is to make the members from the Western States understand the importance of the legislation.

The Weeks bill differs from former forest reserve bills. It provides for the purchase of forest lands on any watershed, to be reserved as national forests. These reserves shall be purchased from moneys realized from the revenues of existing national forests. A million dollars during the coming fiscal year and two million in each subsequent year for ten years is the proposed rate of expenditure. The final vote in the House Committee on Agriculture was in favor of this bill, and the report is now being printed.

A Washington dispatch states that "it is understood that forestry officials will begin work first in the White Mountains, because that section is regarded as in need of immediate attention."

Commercial organizations in Fitchburg, Abington, Haverhill, Lowell, Lynn, Springfield, Marlborough, Hartford, New Haven, Pawtucket, Westerly, Providence, Bangor, Lewiston, Portland, Manchester, Claremont, and St. Johnsbury have endorsed the Weeks bill, and many influential men are sending personal letters of commendation to their Senators or Congressmen.

—"I suppose you have read Shakespeare's works?" said the young man from the East. "Yes, all of them," replied Miss Fitz of St. Louis; "that is, unless he has written something within the past year."

AMATEURS GIVE CLEVER COMEDY

"Miss Busby's Boarders" Amuses Large Audience.

"Miss Busby's Boarders" was the title of the three act comedy presented last night in Music hall by the Sans Souci Dramatic club. The play was given under the direction of Mrs. A. Isabelle Davis of Quincy and was one of the best amateur performances ever presented in Music hall. The clever acting and interpretation of the comedy reflects great credit on Mrs. Davis.

The plot was built around Lillian Wendale, portrayed by Miss Jennie Grassick. She was captivated by one Felix Marden whom she consented to marry secretly. She found out later that, although he had plenty of money, he was a scoundrel at heart. She then refused to marry him and he became furious and revengeful.

One day when Lillian was at his house he placed a diamond pin in her pocket and then had her searched, accusing her of theft. She at once left the house and went for concealment to Miss Busby's boarding house in Harlem. Marden placed a detective on her trail and she was tracked to the house.

Fred G. Malcolm, as the detective, Mr. Smith, pretended to be an absent-minded fellow but all the time was watching Lillian. But Jerome Townsend, another suitor for Lillian's hand, heard of her plight, and coming to the house ordered her to leave at once. Smith said she would leave at her peril and she decided to stay, later being locked in her room by Smith..

Florinda, the colored maid, released her and she went for assistance and advice to Margueritte Marr, a vaudeville star, who was a boarder at the house and a true friend to Lillian. Lillian told her story to Miss Marr, who made plans to get her out of the trouble. Another actress Pansy Purple was induced to go automobiling with Marden, who had lately come upon the scene in person and then to lure him to the boarding house.

Smith had been discovered and all was ready for the climax at 11 o'clock in the boarding house. Pansy played her part and Marden came. The first one he met was Lillian and he tried to tell her that it was all a joke. He then threatens her and says she has no witnesses. But Miss Marr who had been in the room all the time unknown to Marden, steps out and he is enraged.

He attempts to strike her but the old lover Jerome Townsend jumps and he and Marden start to settle things. Smith, the detective stops the fight, and then in comes Jimmie Spangler, Pansy's lover, who has a grudge on Marden because the latter smiled and winked at Pansy. He is out for revenge and starts to fight Marden, but Smith again interferes.

Miss Marr then takes charge and dismisses Marden and Smith. Jerome and Lillian, and Jimmie and Pansy become engaged at once and all agree to stay with Miss Busby who promises to be mother to them all.

Alexander Pettifer and his wife Mrs. Pettifer, played by Robert J. Mitchell, Jr., and Georgianna Michael, were not directly connected with the plot, but added to the comedy of the play.

It is hard to pick out the stars in the play, but the girls seemed to be more fitted for the parts than the boys.

Miss Helen Troupe as Miss Marr gave a clever exhibition of acting, as did Miss Jennie Grassick and Miss Margaret Craig, as Lillian and Pansy. Miss Anna Giles played the part of the old maid boarding-mistress to perfection, and Louise Driscoll, as Florinda the colored maid, acted naturally and cleverly.

All the boys were good John Q. Giles seeming to be the most natural of all. Between the acts there was singing by the Granite City quartet, composed of W. C. Warmington, Fred T. Warmington, J. Ernest ("Honey") Collins and George T. Guston. They received great applause for their work and were encored several times.

After the play the hall was cleared and dancing was in order, Wilson's orchestra furnishing the music.

The floor was in charge of J. Ernest Collins, assisted by Misses Margaret Craig, Jennie Grassick, Helen Troupe and Robert Mitchell and Fred Malcolm.

"No, he's no better," said a woman when the doctor came to visit her husband. "You told me to give him as much of the powder as would lay on a ten cent piece. I hadn't a ten, but I gave him as much as would go on ten ones, and he's worse, if anything."

Dolley—"Do you ever have hash at your boarding house?"

Dumplin—"Never, but we have croquettes every other day."—Life.

BRAINTREE.

John C. Anthony, the superintendent of schools, attended on Tuesday evening the annual meeting and banquet of the Brown alumni.

The next meeting of the Jolly Six will be withMiss Mae Gove of Tremont street, South Braintree, who is planning very mysteriously, to have a Valentine social, which is expected to be unusualy enjoyable.

The Knights of Pythias are also having a revival, district meetings being held all over the state this month, in charge of George W. Penniman, grand chancellor. At Brockton, February 15, there will be a grand banquet, to which Braintree knights are invited.

Miss Gladys Perry entertained last Saturday evening at her home at 102 Park street, friends from Cambridge, Charlestown, Wollaston, Brockton, Medford and Braintree, including some of the Rindge Manual Training school basket ball players.

The annual town meeting is near at hand. The registrars of voters give notice that meetings will be held in different parts of the town Feb. 13, 17 and 20, to add names to the voting lists.

Miss Rosamond Dean Hunt, soprano soloist sang at the Beacon church, Brookline, last Sunday, and at the last meeting of Boston Tea party chapter, D. A. R. held in Brookline a short time ago. Her accompanist at the latter was Miss Clara Holbrook.

Bert F. Hollis, the engineer, passed away yesterday, at the residence of his father, Bradford Hollis of Washington street, aged 35 years. He leaves a wife.

The Pond Cemetery association will meet next Tuesday afternoon with Mrs. G. H. Hamblett, Lowell street.

Edgar Norris attended on Tuesday evening the monthly dinner of the Boston Society of Architects at the Parker House. The guest of honor was Mr. Williams, the recent winner of the "Grand prize of Rome." The topic for discussion was the advance from a five per cent. to a ten per cent. basis.

It looks as if Braintree would not be represented in the Old Colony base ball league this year, but there is one more team wanted. The present membership includes the Deweys of Weymouth, the Randolphs, Stoughtons, Rocklands and Tauntons. It is said Quincy, Dorchester, Brockton or Mansfield may enter.

A very enjoyable bridge party was held by the Cochato club last evening, there being fourteen tables in play. Some high scores were made but first prizes went to Mrs. Frank Perry and Mr. George H. Wetherbee, Jr., while second prizes were awarded to Mrs. C. O. Miller and Mr. George Burnham.

BELCHER SENTENCED.

Robert E. Belcher, the lawyer, was on Thursday sentenced to five to six years in States prison, having pleaded guilty to larceny of $9,500 from Miss Mary T. Coakley. Belcher was formerly lieutenant of the Signal Corps, M. V. M., and the indictment against him for larceny of $686 due 25 soldiers for duty at the Chelsea fire, has been placed on file. Belcher was one of the Massachusetts agents who carried relief to the earthquake sufferers at San Francisco.

Doan's Kidney Pills get inside—They cure sick kidneys.

Here is Quincy proof that this is so:

Mrs. Fred Curtis, living at 18 Quarry street, Quincy, Mass., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills have been used with such satisfactory results in my family that I feel it my duty to publicly recommend them. My husband was in pretty bad shape as the result of backache. He tried plasters and used several remedies, in an effort to get relief, but did not succeed until he began using Doan's Kidney Pills, which he procured at the Cox Drug Store. This remedy cured him in a short time and he is now feeling better than for years. I have also used Doan's Kidney Pills and found them to be an excellent remedy for regulating the action of the kidney secretions and toning up the general system."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

HOW TO DISPLAY THE FLAG.

When and how the national flag should be displayed at full staff is plainly set forth in a circular issued by the Sons of the Revolution. These are the dates and the directions:

Lincoln's birthday, Feb. 12.
Washington's birthday, Feb. 22.
Battle of Lexington, April 19.
Memorial day, May 30. On Memorial day the flag should fly at half-staff from sunrise to noon, and full staff from noon to sunset.
Flag day, June 14.
Battle of Bunker Hill, June 17.
Independence day, July 4.
Battle of Saratoga, Oct. 17.
Surrender of Yorktown, Oct. 19.
Evacuation day, Nov. 25.

The flag should not be hoisted before sunrise nor allowed to remain up after sunset.

At retreat, sunset, civilian spectators should stand at attention and uncover during the playing of "The Star Spangled Banner." Military pectators are required by regulation to sand at attention and give the military salute. During the playing of the hymn at retreat the flag should be lowered but not then allowed to touch the ground.

When the national colors are passing on parade, or in review, the spectators should, if walking, halt, and if sitting, arise, and stand at attention and uncover.

When the national and state or other flags fly together, the national flag should be placed on the right.

When the flag is flown at half-staff as a sign of mourning, it should be hoisted to full-staff at the conclusion of the funeral.

In placing the flag at half-staff, it should first be hoisted to the top of the staff and then lowered to position, and preliminary to lowering to half-staff it should first be raised to the top.

The national salute is one gun for every state. The international salute is, under the Law of Nations, twenty-one guns.

BOWLING.

Team No. 4 did the trick this week. Although their pinfall was not the largest of the week, they captured 10 points, and moved up from third place a week ago to the first place. Teams 7 and 8 broke their tie, the latter taking second place. Team 6 is close behind, and teams 2 and 3 are tied for next place. Team 1 has resigned last place to team 9.

	Nights	Pinfall	Points
Team 4	4	4669	30 1-2
Team 8	4	4750	27 1-2

Tuesday Night.

Team 3 made a scoop on Tuesday evening when Capt. Thayer's aggregation lined-up against teams 7 and 5. They won the first and second strings and were second on the third. Their total, however, was only one pin ahead of team 7 which won the third string. Team 5's only point was second best on the first string. Mr. Thayer's total stands out conspicuous.

HORSES RUNAWAY.

Bad Accident Narrowly Averted at City Square.

The loosening of the bridle on one of the horses attached to a team belonging to Ferguson's the baker caused Driver Claflin to lose control of the horses and incidentally caused quite a little excitement in Quincy square Friday afternoon.

The team had started from Berry Bros. store and was headed for the square when the mishap came. Up Hancock street the spirited pair went, keeping in the gutter all the time on the City hall side of the street. The driver did his best to stop the horses but to no avail.

In front of City Hall stood a horse and carriage and straight at this hitch the excited horses dashed. For a time it looked as if there would be a crash, but a few feet from the carriage the horses swerved and passed by with but a few inches to spare.

In front of Hearn's store "Eddie" Colligan jumped to the rescue and grabbing one of the horses by the head brought the team to a stop. The bridle was fixed and the team proceeded peacefully on its way. Nobody was hurt, but it was a wonder that something serious did not happen, for the horses were going at a terrific clip when stopped by the courageous "Eddie."

—Congress has appropriated $300,000 for control over the gypsy moth in New England, and $75,000 for seed distribution. We venture the opinion says the Athol Chronicle that if the farmers had a vote on the question as to whether the latter amount be spent for seeds or added to the gypsy moth fund, they would decide in favor of the latter, believing that it would be placing it where it would do the most good. We know of a number who have annually received farm and garden seeds from the agricultural department that have found them worthless ,and will no longer experiment with them.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED. by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

AN OLD COAT.

Stephen Birt and Mary, his wife, had fallen out, not by any means for the first time. Both were young, hot tempered, high spirited and prone to jealousy.

Today matters had come to a climax. The two young people, white, angry, with blazing eyes, stood facing one another. It did not make matters any better, and they spoke slowly and deliberately.

"I'm tired of these scenes," Mary said, "sick to death of them. I can't go out, I can't talk to an old friend, but what you accuse me of flirting. I can't spend a day with a girl chum but what you say I neglect you. I can't—"

"You never spend a day with me; you haven't given me a whole day since we returned from our honeymoon. I might be the greatest stranger instead of your husband of six months for all the notice you take of me. You're cold as an icicle, and indifferent as—as—"

"You are! I shape my course entirely in accordance with yours. If we do go out together you are never by my side from the time we enter a house to the time we leave it. You can laugh and talk with other women; you never have a joke to tell me, or a smile for me. We never ought to have married; I'm sorry, heartily sorry, we ever did."

His hands, resting on the back of a chair, gripped it tightly.

"You mean that?" he said, his tone changing, his expression hardening; "you really mean it?"

Her clasped hands gripped one another.

"So much so that I mean to do what I can to rectify our mistake. We can't live in peace together. I have tried; I dare say—I do you that much justice—you have tried; it seems impossible. That being so" —her voice was level, hard, though her heart was beating in loud thumps, "the best thing we can do is to part. Fortunately I have my own income. I only have to leave this house and make a home for myself elsewhere."

Her words startled, staggered him. He made a step forward, caught her hands.

"You mean that?" he asked again. "You are serious?"

"I—I never was more serious in my life."

"You would leave me?"

"This is your house. Since it is best we should part, I must leave you."

"Did you never love me?" She tried to draw her hands from his, but failed; he held them closely claspetd, waiting for her answer.

"Perhaps we were both too young to understand what love should be," she answered. "Perhaps we took mutual admiration for a deeper feeling. Anyway"—she felt a fear tightening around her heart as she spoke—"it is quite clear that love has waned. Anything is better than being together with constant scenes. It will be wiser to part."

He tried to draw her to him; she held away.

"I will not let you go!" he said; "you are mine—my wife—I love you. If I have seemed indifferent, it—it has been only this—a man expects his wife to know he loves her, not to need telling day after day; that is a lover's business. Mary, if we have made mistakes surely we can put them right; if we have disappointed one another—and you, I must confess, have disappointed me—can't we begin all over again, wipe out the last six months?"

Her face softened for a minute; now once more it hardened. So she had disappointed him—she who had done everything she could to make him happy—while he—

"I have no wish to begin again," she answered. "We have tried to be happy, I supose; we have been miserable. I, you say, have disappointed you; you have disappointed me. I would rather not talk any more. I will tell the servants I am going on a journey. I don't want to make things disagreeable for you. And I shall go today."

He dropped her hands; he looked at her for a moment—at her white, set face, her eyes that did not soften in the least as his glance met hers. Then a proud, boyish rage entered his heart. If she could go, if she could leave him, then, indeed, she did not, never had, loved him.

"You will please yourself, of course," he answered, "but whether you remain with me or leave me you are still my wife—you are still bound to me; be good enough not to forget that."

He scarcely saw his way as he crossed the room and left her—left her with a great anger in his heart against her.

"She never loved me," he said to himself, "never; let her go!"

He found his way to his study, sat down, staring blankly before him for a while, and scattering his papers heedlessly on the floor. Then his head dropped upon his hands, and his eyes were wet.

As the door closed after him Mary trembled. So she had accepted the situation! Then, indeed, he did not love her. She had expected pleading, protestations; she had meant to forgive him; she had thought, indeed, they might begin again.

"He never loved me," she said to herself. "I did not mean to leave him. I shall go now; I owe it to my pride, to go now."

She dragged her steps to her room; she must put her things together. Where she should go she did not know—and did it matter? If she was not with him she did not care where she was. There were plenty of hotels, but how lonely she would be.

She opened her wardrobe and flung dress after dress upon the floor. She must take something with her; it didn't matter what. Wherever she was he would not be there to see her.

The light was growing gray outside; the room seemed cold. She wondered what he was doing. He had not gone from the house; he was waiting to see her off, perhaps —wondering why she was so long. Could she have looked at him then she would have seen him sitting with a miniature in his hand, looking at the pretty face with tear dimmed eyes—would have heard his words, "My little wife!"—seen him lift it to his lips.

She had taken out all the dresses now There was still something at the back of the wardrobe—something soft. She took it down, drew it out, and a swift rush of color swept over her face.

In her hands she held an old velvet smoking coat; but the sight of it brought back a flood of memories. She remembered so well he had strolled over to her father's house wearing it; he had found her in the conservatory, tending the plants; he had told her then that he loved her, had taken her for the first time in his arms, kissed her, gained her promise that she would be his wife.

As she stood with the coat in her hand she remembered she had been so happy; she could recall each word he had said, each kiss he had given; and his arms, his dear arms, how tenderly, how closely, how fondly they had held her!

She sank into a chair, the coat now close against her breast. A little sob rose in her throat, tears came into her eyes. It was all over—all over! —his arms would never hold her again, his lips would never kiss her more!

Outside it grew darker still. She felt sad, lonely, and she must go soon. She had cut the ground under her feet, burned her boats behind her; he would be wondering why she did not go.

If only he would come to her! After all, he did love her; she knew that well. They had been foolish—proud. If only he would come!

She lifted the coat. Then, while in the semi-darkness the color burned in her face, she threw it around her—drew the arms right across her. A faint smell of smoke clung to it yet. She could almost fancy she was in his arms, that their quarrel was a dream, that she was not leaving his home nd hers forever.

He had laughed at her often for keeping the old coat, for loving it almost as though it was something human. She would take it away with her; he would never miss it.

And then, quietly, she began to cry, her soft cheek pressed to the old velvet, sometimes her quivering lips. If only he would come to her! How could she go away?

How long she cried, quietly but bitterly—how soon, utterly exhausted, she dropped to sleep—she did not know. The opening of the door aroused her; the switching on of the electric light. And once more husband and wife—almost children both —looked at one another.

Looked and understood that parting was impossible; that love was still there; looked while, as his eyes fell upon the old velvet coat, and he understood, a flush swept her face. Then, with one swift stride, wife, coat and all were taken into a passionate embrace, words of love and forgiveness stumbled across their lips, and parting was something that would never come while life should last.—Alice Maud Meadows, in Chicago Tribune.

MESSAGE VETOING CENSUS BILL SENT TO HOUSE

President Says Noncompetitive Examination Would Be Fraud On Public

Washington, Feb. 5. — President Roosevelt sent today to the house of representatives a special message vetoing the bill which provides for the taking of the next census. He bases his objection to the bill on the provision that appointments to the census force shall be made by noncompetitive examination.

The president says:

To the House of Representatives:

I herewith return without approval house resolution 16,954, entitled "An act to provide for the thirteenth and subsequent decennial censuses." I do this with extreme reluctance, because I fully realize the importance of supplying the director of the census at as early a date as possible with the force necessary to the carrying on of his work. But it is of high consequence to the country that the statistical work of the census shall be conducted with entire accuracy. This is as important from the standpoint of business and industry as from the scientific standpoint. It is therefore, in my judgment, essential that the result should not be open to the suspicion of bias on political and personal grounds, that it should not be open to the reasonable suspicion of being a waste of the people's money and a fraud.

Section 7 of the act provides in effect that appointments to the census shall be under the spoils system, for this is the real meaning of the provision that they shall be subject only to noncompetitive examination. The proviso is added that they shall be selected without regard to political party affiliations. But there is only one way to guarantee that they shall be selected without regard to politics and on merit, and that is by choosing them after competitive examination from the lists of eligibles provided by the civil service commission.

Objects to Spoils Idea.

To provide that the clerks and other employees shall be appointed after noncompetitive examination and yet to provide that they shall be selected without regard to political party affiliations means merely that the appointments shall be treated as the perquisites of the politicians of both parties instead of as the perquisites of the politicians of one party. I do not believe in the doctrine that to the victor belong the spoils, but I think even less of the doctrine that the spoils shall be divided without a fight by the professional politicians on both sides, and this would be the result of permitting the bill in its present shape to become a law. Both of the last censuses, the eleventh and the twelfth, were taken under a provision of law excluding competition—that is, necessitating the appointments being made under the spoils system. Every man competent to speak with authority because of his knowledge of and familiarity with the work of those censuses has stated that the result was to produce extravagance and demoralization.

[The president here quotes in support of his contentions Robert P. Porter, who took the census of 1890; Frederick H. Wines, the assistant director of the census of 1900, and Carroll D. Wright, director of the census bureau after the census of 1890. The last named says that $2,000,000 and more than a year's time would have been saved if the census force had been brought into the classified service.]

"Fraud Upon the Public."

The noncompetitive examination in a case like this is not only vicious, but is in effect a fraud upon the public. No essential change is effected by providing that it be conducted by the civil service commission, and to provide that the employees shall be selected without regard to political party affiliations is empty and misleading unless at the same time it is made effective in the only way in which it is possible to make it effective—that is, by providing that the examination shall be made competitive.

I also recommend that if provision is made that the census printing work may be done outside the government printing office it shall be explicitly provided that the government authorities shall see that the eight hour law is applied in effective fashion to these outside offices.

Outside of these matters I believe that the bill is, on the whole, satisfactory and represents an improvement upon previous legislation on the subject. But it is of vital consequence that we should not once again permit the usefulness of this great decennial undertaking on behalf of the whole people to be marred by permitting it to be turned into an engine to further the self interest of that small section of the people which makes a profession of politics.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.
The White House, Feb. 5, 1909.

EAST BRAINTREE.

Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Bowditch of Quincy avenue spent last week in New York.

The Registrars of voters will meet at the engine house at East Braintree, Wednesday evening, Feb. 17.

Mr and Mrs. Theodore H. Tyndale of Boston, well known here, sailed for Northern Africa on Saturday from Boston.

Miss Mary L. Osborn of Quincy avenue, who died on Friday of last week, was a native of Portland, Maine. The interment was at Mt. Hope cemetery on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Glover, with their two daughters, have returned to their home on Washington street, Weymouth, after a visit with Mr. and Mrs. George Walsh.

Miss Grace B. Crane of Quincy avenue has been to Glen Falls, N. Y. She attended the wedding of her cousin, William Morton Carpenter, who wedded Miss Beulah Mason of Glen Falls on January 20th.

The committee on Harbors and Public Lands of the Legislature give notice today of a hearing to be held next Monday at the State House on the petition of J. F. Sheppard & Sons for the dredging of the upper part of Fore River.

The seventh and eighth grades of the Jonas Perkins school went on a sleigh-ride Thursday afternoon after the close of school. Miss Rowley, the principal, and Miss Lavallett, teacher of the seventh grade accompanied them. The boys and girls crowded the large party sleigh and also filled a smaller one. Their songs and shouts mingled with their bugle calls and sounding horns, making the echoes as they glided swiftly along.

The next meeting of the Jonas Perkins School association will be held in the school hall next Thursday evening at 8 o'clock. Miss Ellen T. Emerson of the Massachusetts General Hospital, Boston, will speak on "How parents can assist in preventing tuberculosis." Miss Emerson's hospital work, and her treatment of her subject from her experience is sure to be valuable to the parents of our town. All are cordially invited to be present. Admission free.

The Union Literary Circle will meet with Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Lund of Commercial street, Weymouth on next Tuesday evening. Miss Jessie Macgregor and Miss Mary Gove will give the papers "The sixty years in one village," given at the last meeting by Mrs. Harriet K. Gutterson was much enjoyed.

Mrs. N. F. Hunt of Quincy avenue who has been confined to the bed with la grippe since January 1, is slowly convalescing, and is able now to sit up a short time each day.

An enjoyable evening has been planned for next Tuesday when a reception will be tendered to the teachers of the Jonas Perkins school in the school hall from 8 to 11. A special invitation is hereby extended to members of the Jonas Perkins School Association, the Penniman School Association and friends of the teachers.

Vagaries of a Cold.

You can never be quite sure where a cold is going to hit you. In the fall and winter it may settle in the bowels, producing severe pain. In the summer it may give you colic with diarrhea or summer complaint. Do not be alarmed nor torment yourself with fears of appendicitis or inflammation of the bowels. At the first sign of the pain or cramp take Perry Davis' Painkiller in warm, sweetened water and relief will come at once. There is but one Painkiller, Perry Davis'. It is now put up in a large 35c. size as well as the regular 50c. size.

—Dr. Gordon told the people of Harvard church, Brookline, last week that they had done a remarkable thing in installing a pastor simply as a Christian, when he had said that he could not define himself either as a Trinitarian or Unitarian. To people of the older generation, the significant change which has come over the face of orthodox Christianity must find a striking example in this instance. Dr. Vernon is a young and perhaps typical representative of the new orthodox Christianity. It is interesting to notice how a clergyman, without actually stamping himself as a religious liberal, can align himself with old time tendencies without professing their insincerities and fictions.

WOULD BENEFIT ALL CONCERNED

Insurance Men Should Start Hygienic Campaign

New York, Feb. 6.—Dr. Irving Fisher, professor of political economy at Yale and president of the committee of one hundred on national health, speaking at a meeting of life insurance presidents, proposed the expenditure of money by life insurance companies in a campaign of education to improve hygienic conditions throughout the United States.

The practical application of all the reforms now known to modern hygiene, he said, would increase the span of human life in America more than fifteen years—or over one-third.

This decreased mortality, he said, would so lessen the cost of insurance that the returns to policyholders would be many times more than the original expenditure. Then, too, there would be a vast economical gain to the country in general by reason of the prolongation of the lives of trained, efficient men.

STRIKERS START A RIOT

One Is Killed in Fight to Prevent Destruction of Tailor Shop

New York, Feb. 6.—One man was killed and three others were badly injured in a riot incited, the police declare, by walking delegates of a garment makers' union, who descended upon the tailoring establishment of Jacob Greenfield and attempted to coerce the employes of the place into quitting work.

The alleged walking delegates, accompanied by fifty striking garment workers, broke into the work rooms of the establishment and upon refusal of those at work to join them in their strike, proceeded to wreck the place. Jacob Greenfield and Wolf Greenfield, a brother, attempted to prevent the destruction of the shop and a melee ensued.

A call for the police brought the reserves and the rioters were dispersed. In the debris of machinery and work benches the police found Samuel Kann, said to be one of the strikers, lying unconscious with a fractured skull. Kann died in a short time.

SCHOOL BILL GOES OVER

California Assembly May Yet Recede From Anti-Japanese Position

Sacramento, Cal., Feb. 6.—Speaker Stanton of the lower house of the California legislature took the floor and by a strong personal appeal obtained unanimous consent of the assembly to postpone further action of the Japanese school segregation bill which was passed Thursday, until next Wednesday. He declared he had information which he could not reveal, which proved that the assembly was treading upon dangerous ground in passing the bill.

On the conclusion of the speaker's speech, Grove L. Johnson, author of the measure, asked that the matter of reconsideration be put over until Wednesday and his motion carried without dissent.

Governor Gillett sent a special message to the house recommending raising the point of the bill's constitutionality and this was the subject of a long debate.

TO REOPEN NEXT WEEK

Impairment of Somersworth National Bank Stock Has Been Remedied

Somersworth, N. H., Feb. 6.—Word was received last night from the comptroller of the currency authorizing the reopening of the First National Bank of Somersworth on Feb. 8. The bank has been in the hands of Bank Examiner Bean, as temporary receiver, since Dec. 16, 1908, when a shortage said to amount to $85,000 was discovered in the accounts of the cashier, F. M. Varney.

When the bank re-opens next Monday, Melvin L. Stevens will be at the cashier's desk. The case of Varney, who is now under $10,000 bail, will come up in court at Portsmouth on March 16 next.

STATE HOUSE LETTER.

Boston, Feb. 3, 1909.

Unless signs fail, this session is likely to produce some spectacular demonstrations. Perhaps the biggest thing on the tapis thus far is the suffragette demonstration at the woman suffrage hearing which is scheduled to occur in Room 240 on February 23. Rumors are current that the women are preparing to march upon the state house 1,000 strong and make a demonstration which shall cause the hard-hearted legislators either to tremble in their boots or melt before the dissolving power of the aggregation. Charles R. Saunders of Boston, the chief debater against the woman suffrage bills in the several session of the House and dramatic reader of the "Dear Nellie" letter, describing the fearful nervous strain of the suffrage collisions in Colorado, has been at the state house looking over the battlefield, presumably placing in his mind the strategic points of the battle. As the capacity of the committee room will not accommodate half of the 1,000, to say nothing of the members of the other side who will want to hear, it is evident that the demonstration must be made, for the most part, in the corridors or, perhaps, on Boston common, after the precedent of Morrison I. Swift and his army of the unemployed when they marched up to the presence of Gov. Greenhalge and were given good advice.

Again, the complications over the New Haven railroad and the merger situation generally thicken even before the main propositions are fairly in sight. Here comes this morning the news from Connecticut of the movements made there for a determination whether Massachusetts is encroaching upon the Connecticut, rights of the New Haven ,and the petition of John L. Billard, in Connecticut, for authority to hold Boston and Maine stock all of which complicates.

There was a sensational hearing yesterday before the committee on water supply, though the persons who made the sensation were remarkably inappreciative of their main point and brought forward a great deal of other testimony when they might well rest upon the danger to life. Fairview, a village in Chicopee, wants a water supply. For ten years it has been trying to get it. All that time the majority of the city has voted down the proposition overwhelmingly and the situation has got so bad that the state board of health has analyzed the water in the wells used by Fairview. It finds that this water is seriously polluted by the sewage from the vault and cesspools which are near the wells and that the soil is very porous. Constant danger to health and life exists from this polluted water. Yet Fairview is forced to drink or go without and the remainder of Chicopee remains hostile to a pure supply, save that it was conceded that, now that a system of artesian wells is proposed whereby the system may pay for itself, it is possible that Chicopee may consent. But Fairview implores the committee not to put a referendum in the bill, for it believes that Chicopee would surely vote it down. If the Chicopee people could have realized what an impression they make upon men who have never heard the story before, they would slink home with their tails between their legs and give Fairview pure water, no matter what it costs.

Insurance Commissioner Hardison and Bank Commissioner Jay have jointly sent in their report upon the operation of the law for savings bank insurance. But little is to be told, for the Whitman savings bank was the only one to begin business early enough to have any statement to make by October 30, when the official year ends. This bank has issued a total of 286 policies of all kinds, of which 222 are endowment policies, and the aggregate value represented is $116,676. Nothing is said about the success of the plan, nor anything given beyond a statement of history and these figures, including much detail of no public interest. Evidently the two commissioners are not disposed to discuss the theory of the law, but to wait for facts of operation upon which to base what they may have to say. Hence there is not likely to be anything official for a year further.

Senator Lodge may be expected to accept the invitation to deliver an oration on February 12 to the legislature assembled in joint convention. At first the resolution read that he be invited to speak about Abraham Lincoln, as was manifestly suitable on the 100th anniversary of his birth. But afterward the wording was changed, presumably at the senator's suggestion, so that no subject is assigned, so that he can speak upon whatever he pleases.

The first prolonged debate of the House, aside from that on rule about pairing ,has occurred on two days this week over the bill to prevent city and town authorities from printing, in their annual reports, the names of persons who have received public aid. The law now gives option to each municipality whether to print or not, so that names may be withheld at discretion. Sympathy for worthy poor was the argument for the bill. The necessity of knowing where the money went and the wisdom of leaving the matter to the local authorities ,as a fair detail of local self-government were the considerations on the other side. Mr. Mellen of Worcester was one of the chief speakers against "advertising a person's poverty to the world." But the unanimous report of the committee on legal affairs, that the bill should be rejected, was sustained by a roll call of 114 to 96.

Mr. Denny of Worcester has the satisfaction of getting his bill through the House without opposition or debate, which provides that the national and state flags shall be displayed in all suitable weather from the main or administration building of every state institution, the money to come out of the regular appropriation. It is to be expected that the bill will also pass the Senate without any opposition. These flags are hung together in the hall of the House and are displayed from the state house flag staffs, when they are not used by Senate and House flags.

By vote of 119 to 56 the House upset the unanimous report of the committee on legal affairs and voted to make a legal holiday, for this year only, of February 12, the centenary of the birth of Abraham Lincoln. Incidentally the action of Congress was referred to, making the day a legal holiday, and the answer to the question what right Congress has to step in and interfere with business matters in the states was made by the information that the act of Congress can apply only to the District of Columbia and to territories which are under the direct government of Congress. The congressional act does not have any validity in the states. It is to be presumed that now the Senate will concur with the House in the passage of the bill, notwithstanding the objections of labor people who do not want to lose the time from Thursday to Monday, as they fear, and in spite of protests from school teachers all over the state who have arranged Lincoln memorial exercises for their schools for the day, and those exercises must be given up, except so far as the attendance may be voluntary.

President Treadway stands by the expediency of his rule for the exclusion of the lobby from the Senate floor and all adjacent parts of the building, even though it excludes all registered counsel, including some distinguished men. The rule goes no further than the House rule, and that has commended general respect. One of the most experienced lobbyists, who is hit by the rule, says he is perfectly will to observe it provided the Senate will do as the House is reported to do, make public, to any inquirer, the names of senators who invite visitors to the floor. The cards of invitation will show this. Unregistered lobbyists get in by this evasion and that is why the registered lobbyist kicks. We get to efficiency slowly in this matter. Rule.

BIG SHIP NAMED FOR LITTLE STATE

Delaware, New Dreadnought, Launched Today

TO BE OUR LARGEST WARSHIP

She Will Displace Twenty Thousand Tons of Water and Make Twenty-One Knots—Named by Daughter of State, Surrounded by State's Officials and Prominent Men—Sister Ship of the North Dakota

Newport News, Va., Feb. 6.—Bearing the name of the next to the smallest state in the union, the Delaware, the largest battleship of the United States, was launched here today. She shares with her sister ship, the North Dakota, recently launched at Fore River, Mass., the honor of being the first American dreadnought.

Standing sponsor for the Delaware was Miss Anna P. Cahall, a daughter of the state for which the new ship is named. She is a resident of Bridgeville, Del., and a niece of Governor Pennewill of Deleware. Assisting Miss Cahall in the task of smashing the bottle of champagne on the bow of the Delaware and naming the huge hull was Miss Hazel of Dover, Del., a niece of Mrs. James Pennewill, a sister-in-law of the governor.

Despite the agitation of the temperance societies of Delaware to have the state's namesake christened with water, the customary bottle of champagne played its usual sacrificial part in the launching of the Delaware.

Governor Pennewill, his brother, Judge James Pennewill; Delaware's representatives in the national legislature and the members of the state legislature, as well as a large number of prominent citizens of Dover, Wilmington and other places, were present to see the batleship take the water.

When completed the Delaware will be a first class armored battleship of 20,000 tons displacement. He general dimensions are as follows: Length over all, 518 feet 9 inches; beam, 85 feet 2 inches; depth, 44 feet 6 inches. Her main battery will consist of ten twelve-inch guns mounted in pairs in turrets. She will be propelled by twin screws driven by two four-cylinder triple expansion engines capable of sending her through the water at a 21 knot gait. She will cost almost $4,000,000.

GOING ON LONG TOUR

Eliot to Make Many Stops In His Journey East and South

Cambridge, Mass., Feb. 6.—President Charles W. Eliot of Harvard university, who retires from his office in May, will begin tomorrow a tour of the eastern and southern sections of the United States. Considering the length of the tour and the frequency of stops, it will be one of the most remarkable journeys ever undertaken by a man of Dr. Eliot's age. The venerable president of Harvard will be 75 years old in March.

President Eliot's trip will extend as far as Texas. He will make many stops on the way to that state, visiting universities and colleges and acting as guest of honor at gatherings of Harvard men. His return journey will be marked by similar breaks. He is due back in Cambridge on April 3.

THE BOSTON REVIVAL

Evangelist Chapman's Work Wins Approval of Episcopal Churchmen

Boston, Feb. 6.—The work of Rev. Dr. Chapman was endorsed by Rev. Dr. Van Allen, rector of the Church of the Advent (Episcopal).

The clergy of the Episcopal church, especially those of the so-called high church party, have seldom associated themselves with other denominations in evangelistic work, and they have taken no part in the present campaign. Van Allen is an extreme high churchman and one of the leaders of that party in the church at large.

Dr. Van Allen's attitude is endorsed by several others of the clergy of the Episcopal church.

BOUNTY OF ONE DOLLAR

Legislator's Inducement For Women of Iowa to Become Mothers

Des Moines, Feb. 6.—One dollar will be paid to the mother of every baby born in Iowa if a bill introduced by Representative Fulliam is made a law.

The bill provides that every mother shall be paid $1 by the county treasurer upon receipt of a birth certificate signed by the mother and the attending physician.

A LITTLE FISH'S TRICK.

How the Puffer Discomfits His Enemy and Saves Himself.

All the little sea folk have their own clever way of protecting themselves from their enemies, but the spiny boxfish has about the cleverest way of all.

He belongs to the great family called puffer, and you will see in a moment how well the name fits him.

Just imagine the little puffer swimming around in the water looking like a small round box with a head on. A big fish comes along, sees the little puffer and thinks: "There's just a good mouthful for me!" But just as he darts toward him the little puffer blows himself up like a ball, turns over on his back and floats around with all his sharp prickers sticking out toward his enemy.

The big fish is dazed; he stares at the puffer and thinks, "Can that great prickly thing be the same little fish I tried to swallow?" He can't understand it, but he sees there is no use trying, so he goes sadly on his way, and when the little puffer is sure he is gone he just empties the water out of his skin and goes back to his usual size.

Now, isn't that a pretty clever trick for a little fish to play? But, you see, Mother Nature gave the little puffer just that kind of a body that he might escape from his enemies.—St. Nicholas.

A SCOTCH RING.

One of the Royal Jewels, It Had a Melancholy History.

The traditional history of the Scotch regalia ring is of the most tragic, not to say melancholy, character. It is believed that it was the favorite ring of Mary Stuart and that after her judicial murder in Fotheringay castle it was transmitted to her son. From James it descended to Charles I., at whose coronation at Scone in 1633 it played a distinct part. Once more did this ill fated ring figure at an untimely and ill merited death, for, with almost his last breath upon the scaffold at Whitehall, Charles bequeathed it to Bishop Juxon in trust for his son.

In due course of time the ring came into the possession of James II. and was carried away with him on his flight to the continent. When, however, he was detained by the fishermen at Sheerness, the ring, which had been secreted in the king's underclothing, only escaped robbery by the luckiest of mistakes on the part of the sailor who searched him. Thus the ring was passed on uninjured to James' descendants till by bequest of Cardinal York it became the property of the reigning dynasty once more and was by them replaced among the royal jewels of Scotland, from which it had been separated for many a long year.—St. James' Gazette.

A Penalty of Genius.

It seems to be the frequent penalty of genius that it is denied the privilege of perpetuating its name and kind beyond a few generations at most. Thus it is said that there is not now living a single descendant in the male line of Chaucer, Shakespeare, Spenser, Milton, Cowley, Butler, Dryden, Pope, Cowper, Goldsmith, Byron or Moore; not one of Sir Philip Sidney or of Sir Walter Raleigh; not one of Drake, Cromwell, Hampden, Monk, Marlborough, Petersborough or Nelson; not one of Bolingbroke, Walpole, Chatham, Pitt, Fox, Burke, Graham or Channing; not one of Bacon, Locke, Newton or Davy; not one of Hume, Gibbon or Macaulay; not one of Hogarth, Sir Joshua Reynolds or Sir Thomas Lawrence; not one of David Garrick, John Kemble or Edmund Kean.—London Standard.

Raikes' Ragged Regiment.

"Bobby Wild Goose and his ragged regiment" was the name hooted after Robert Raikes, the first modern Sunday school advocate, and his scholars. The thoroughfare was Sooty alley, and the scholars were the ragged boys who toiled in the pin factories of Gloucester, England. Robert Raikes paid Mrs. Brandon, a poor woman, a shilling each Sunday to teach the boys the Bible. That was in 1780. Four years later there were 250,000 boys and girls attending Sunday school in the kingdom.—Delineator.

Wearing Work.

"How's your husband doing?" said the pale woman.

"'Bout the same," answered the thin woman.

"Hasn't he got any regular work yet?"

"Yes. He said he felt the need of some steady occupation. So he thought he'd make it his business to wind the clock."

"Did he stick to it?"

"For awhile, but now he's kicking for an eight day clock."—Kansas City Independent.

The Bishop's Rebuke.

A conceited young cleric once said to an American prelate, "Do you not think that I may well feel flattered that so great a crowd came to hear me preach?"

"No," was the answer, "for twice as many would come to see you hanged."—From "The Old Time Parson," by P. H. Ditchfield, M. A.

Ambiguous.

Dobber—I don't know whether that critic meant to praise or blame my work. Cutter—What did he say? Dobber—Well, I had a picture of "The Dead Sea," and he said it was full of life.—Cleveland Leader.

The hand can never execute anything higher than the character can aspire.—Emerson.

A NOTRE DAME LADY'S APPEAL.

To all knowing sufferers of rheumatism, whether muscular or of the joints, sciatica, lumbagos, backache, pains in the kidneys or neuralgia pains, to write to her for a home treatment which has repeatedly cured all of these tortures. She feels it her duty to send it to all sufferers FREE. You cure yourself at home as thousands will testify—no change of climate being necessary. This simple discovery banishes uric acid from the blood, loosens the stiffened joints, purifies the blood, and brightens the eyes, giving elasticity and tone to the whole system. If the above interests you, for proof address Mrs. M. Summers, Box R, Notre Dame, Ind.

THE

(Legal Title ~ Incorporated 1892.)

The Directors of the YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION of Quincy, with a firm faith in the great value of the work which is being done for the young men and boys of our city, make their appeal for donations and bequests toward paying the mortgage indebtedness on the new Association Building. When the building is free from debt it will serve as an Endowment, as there is a goodly income from the dormitories.

Should the Donor prefer, such sum as might be given could be used as an Endowment for an educational class or classes, the Boys Department, or as a special fund in other ways, and could be designated with the name of the Donor.

The Treasurer, WILLIAM F. CUMMINGS, 7 Clive Street, Quincy, or the General Secretary, ERNEST G. GAY, will be happy to answer inquiries.

OUR HOSPITAL

INCORPORATED 1889

The Trustees of the City Hospital of Quincy earnestly appeal for donations and bequests for the Endowment fund. This now amounts to over $60,000 but a fund of at least $100,000 is urgently needed.

Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000) will endow a Free Bed to which such name may be given as the Donor may desire, but any sum for this noble institution which stands ready to serve us all in the hour of need, will be most gratefully received.

The Secretary, TIMOTHY REED, Adams St, Quincy, or the Treasurer, RICHARD D. CHASE Savings Bank Building, Quincy, will be very glad to confer with any one or to answer any inquiries.

Humor and Philosophy

By DUNCAN M. SMITH

GENEROUS.

It's very healthy—
Yes, I know—
To hustle forth
And shovel snow.
I'll generous be
If that's the case
And let another
Take my place.

I'm needing health
With work to cope,
But not as bad
As that, I hope.
Some other fellow,
By the bye,
Might need the health
Much more than I.

They say it's better
Far than pills
For several of
Our standard ills.
The man who tosses
Off my snow
I really hope
Will find it so.

So let him putter
Round the yard,
And, though his ears
Are frozen hard,
I hope 'twill give him
No concern
And that he will
Have health to burn.

No Comfort.

"I was held up last night."

"Did you report it to the police?"

"What's the use? They would only laugh at me."

"Are they that heartless and inefficient?"

"They would be when I told them where it was."

"And where was it?"

"At a church fair."

Sly Girl.

"What is it that the silly girl always says to the nice young man?"

"Give it up."

"She says, 'Oh, how brave you are,' only"—

"Only what?"

"It is the young man that is silly—afterward."

Just For a Trial.

Let's be good a little while Anyway.
Those who've tried it on declare
It will pay.
Though we do not resolute,
Friends may whisper, "Ain't he cute?"
As our halo starts to shoot.
What y' say?

Polite.

"Walk right behind that horse."

"Isn't he dangerous?"

"Not if you speak to him first."

"But we have not been introduced."

Wise.

"That fellow knows too much."

"Why don't you tell him so?"

"Oh, I know too much."

Mean Thing!

"Don't try to be disagreeable."

"Why?"

"It isn't necessary."

PERT PARAGRAPHS.

When a man is earnestly engaged in revising his own private history it isn't a bad guess that there has been something doing.

Next to knowing how to do a thing comes the knowing how to keep still about it.

The woman who doesn't love a bargain when she sees it is blind; also a dead one.

Never say dye—to a baldheaded man.

Unlike charity, graft doesn't begin at home and is hard to bring there.

Some people are so stupid that they couldn't tell a fortune if they were to see it coming down the street right at them.

There is a decided difference between assuming to be amusing and amusing by assuming.

Undoubtedly Standard Oil by any other name would be just as lubricating.

Ever notice how sorry for themselves some men act when they head toward home?

It is a powerful swat at the moralist that a glad heart and a cheerful liar often travel in company.

The man who thinks he knows it all is rarely a man of large ideas.

Don't be afraid to speak the truth; it is harmless, though not guaranteed to be specially pleasing.

BAD CIRCULATION

CAUSES PILES—EXTERNAL TREATMENT WON'T CURE THEM.

Free circulation of blood in the lower bowel will cure any case of piles. Piles may be due to constipation or any of a dozen other causes. Dr. Leonhardt's Hem-Roid, the only internal, tablet remedy for piles, opens a free circulation in the bowel, and cures the cause. 24 days' treament is sold for $1 at Clyde T. QUINCY LOCALS BRIEFLY TOLD

Frank L. Cross of Wayland street returned Friday from New York.

Sunday school teachers of St. Chrysostom's church meet this evening at eight o'clock at the rectory.

Junior Auxiliary of St. Chrysostom's church is to present the play "Carroty Nell" on Thursday evening, Feb. 18th.

Rev. Paul S. Phalen of Hingham preaches at First church on Sunday morning and Rev. C. B. Ames, assistant pastor preaches at Hingham.

Next regular meeting of Corps 103 will be held Tuesday, Feb. 9th, at 2.30 P. M. A bean and salad supper at 6.15 will be served and whist will be played in the evening.

The granite for the foundation of the addition to the Lincoln school has arrived on the ground and the contractor Dennis F. Crowley will commence work Monday morning.

Warm weather and the disappearance of the snow has been a great disappointment to those who travel afar on snowshoes. Many of our people have been enjoying the sport also coasting and tobogganing.

Mr. Tien Lin Choa of Harvard college is to speak on "Confucianism" at the meeting of the Y. P. R. U. of First church on Sunday evening and Mr. Joseph Barraja-Frauenfelder will be the soloist.

The Rev. John W. Weddell D. D., of Cleveland, Ohio, who is conducting the evangelistic meetings at Quincy will speak at the Memorial Congregational church of Atlantic, Monday at 4 P. M. Public invited.

The Relief Committee of the Anti-Tuberculosis Association will hold a meeting Monday, Feb. 8th, at 3 P. M. at the home of the chairman, Mr. Frederick W. Plummer, Greenleaf street.

The free ladies' night exhibition at the Y. M. C. A. this evening will take the form of a masquerade. Everyone who goes on the floor must be masqued and disguised in some way. There will also be a grotesque basket ball game between two picked teams.

Miss Charlotte F. Donovan entertained the Merry-go-round whist club last evening at her home on Chubbuck street. High scores were made and the games were closely contested. After the whist refreshments were served.

The W. C. T. U. wish to extend their most hearty appreciation to the editors of the local papers, as they have excluded liquor advertisements from the columns as forty of our leading magazines have done. Let us take courage perserverse and with our Faxon L. T. L. and leader Mrs. Isabelle Davis, we can but succeed in the temperance cause.

C. W. Guy seems to be the originator of many helpful ideas. He is the founder of the Boston newsboys' day which has given the paper boys over $7,000 the past three Christmas seasons. His latest departure is the keeping of a library of interesting books for the employes at his store on Canal street, Boston, which they can read during their leisure time.

SUNDAY SERVICES.

SEPTUAGESIMA SUNDAY.

Church services are inserted in this paper without charge, but none will be accepted to run until fnrthur order. A notice should besent each week even though it is but a renewal. Give subject and special services when possible. Let all churches be represented.—

SUNDAY: 12 TO 1—SHARP

Bethany Church, City Square

If YOU are a young man, and not associated with any other Quincy church, YOU are most cordially invited to come to our meeting.

A warm welcome—Hearty singing—A helpful hour together.

—In the matter of the purchase of an automobile, says the Scientific American the questions to be considered are the weight and the horsepower. Other things being equal, a motor car should average less than one hundred pounds to the horsepower, and it follows that the lighter the weight of the car, when materials are not sacrificed in its construction, the greater will be the economy in fuel and tires.

—Captain D. F. Tozier of Brockton of the United States revenue cutter service, has sold for $40,000 his collection of Indian totems, baskets, slatestone carvings, ceremonial masks, pottery, hampers, beadwork and other handicraft of the Indians of the west, northwest and Alaska. the collection numbering 10,000 pieces and claimed to be the most complete in existence. The Seattle chamber of commerce is the purchaser, having federal government, which sent an agent to Brockton last week.—Hingham Journal.

WEYMOUTH

At the annual meeting of the Board of Trade held Thursday evening these officers were elected: President, Nathan D. Canterbury; vice president, E. E. Leonard; secretary, William H. Pratt; treasurer, H. E. Hanley; executive committee, George E. Bicknell, Fred Humphrey, A. C. Heald, George A. Walker and W. P. Denbroedor. The evening was spent in discussing how to give Weymouth more puublicity. The papers were criticised for not printing more Weymouth news.

The funeral of Mrs. Catherine Dwyer took place from the church of the Sacred Heart yesterday morning. Rev. J. B. Holland celebrated mass. Interment was at St. Francis Xavier cemetery.

The annual concert and ball of the Weymouth Firemen's Relief Association was held at town hall Friday evening. Maxim's orchestra furnished the music for the concert and dance. The affair was well attended. The chiefs of the fire departments of the surrounding towns and the city of Quincy attended.

On invitation of Rev. E. L. Bradford, pastor of the East Weymouth Congregational church, the members of Reynolds Post 58, G. A. R., will attend a patriotic Lincoln service Sunday evening.

Rev. C. H. Carey, the new pastor of the First Baptist church, and Mrs. Carey were tendered a reception in the church parlors Friday evening, which was attended not only by the members of that church, but citizens generally. The fifty-fifth anniversary of the organization of the church falls on Sunday and it was thought best to celebrate the event with a reception to the new pastor. An entertainment and lunch was included in the evening's program.

Henry Delorey has moved from Summer street to Hobart street, East Braintree.

Tomorrow morning, Rev. R. H. Cochrane, pastor of the Union Congregational church of Weymouth and Braintree will preach an anniversary sermon on "The Secrets of Lincoln's Greatness" in the Congregational church, Rockland, and Rev. E. C. Wheeler will preach at Union church.

Mr. and Mrs. Minot P. Garey celebrated the 32d anniversary of their marriage at their home on Randall avenue a few evenings ago, entertaining their children and a few intimate friends.

Hon. Allan E. Treadway, president of the Massachusetts Senate, will address the Men's club of the Third Universalist church, Monday evening.

Miss Nellie Hart is on a visit to friends in Cambridge, N. Y.

Dr. Oliver G. Tinkham of Taunton made a short visit with his parents on Thurday after attending a meeting of Medical faternity at Boston.

The funeral of Mrs. T. C. Mellen who died on Thursday will be held on Sunday afternoon at her late residence. Mrs. Mellen was a native of North Easton (Mary J. Lamb) she married Mr. T. C. Mellen and has been a resident of Weymouth for many years. Her daughter Mrs. G. E. Hopkins and grand daughter survive.

Mrs. A. J. Richards and daughter Miss Annie E. Richards of Commercial street with Mrs. W. B. Clapp and sister Miss Hattie Nash of Front street left on Wednesday for New York. They sailed for the Mediterranean and Egypt on Thursday. Their many friends wish them a safe and pleasant vayage and a delightful season of travel.

AMUSEMENTS.

Galety Theatre.

It has remained for Messrs. Jacobs and Jermon owners of the great "Golden Crook" Extravaganza Company and other burlesque shows to raise burlesque to the proper place as a legitimate theatrical form. The stigma which so long attached to the name burlesque is due, it is maintained, to the introduction of features which made the performance almost impossible for a mixed audience. This has now all been changed. The legitimate function of the burlesque in the field of dramatic art is almost identical with that of the artist in the realm of painting. The productions of the "Golden Crook" Extravaganza Company, it is said, are free from vulgar witticisms being clean enough to be witnessed by the most fastidious without embarrassment. It is an unusually strong company numbering fifty people and an entirely different performance from the general run of burlesque shows. This will be the attraction for the week at the Gaiety Theatre on Washington Street, near Boylston Street, with daily matinees at 2.15 o'clock.

Park Theatre.

If you have laughs prepare to spread them now, as Shakespeare or some one else said—or at any rate bring them with you to the Park Theatre for "Fluffy-Ruffles." It's "Fluffy" here and "Fluffy" there—wherever men or women, or matineie girls, get a-talking about the theatre. Ask anyone who has attended the Park during this week who he or she would recommend for the Hall of Fame and the answer would be Hattie Williams.

"Fluffy Ruffles" is the most rollicking musical shows we have had since Miss Williams first brought "The Little Cherub" to Boston two years ago, and her famous "Experience" song of that production has a rattling successor this year in "Willie's Got Another Girl Now"—a song with a sad tale that will bring tears of laughter to your eyes and send you away from the theatre humming and dancing to its swing. The Boston engagement is a limited one for Miss Williams, is to play a return engagement in New York before the end of the season, and how the Park is going to hold all the people who already want to see Hattie and "Fluffy" is a question. There are Wednesday and Saturday matinees as well as regular evening performances.

KEITHS THEATRE.

Without question the greatest individual attraction now in vaudeville is Eva Tanguay, the comedian, for she is the only American artist who by her striking originality and mannerisms, who has been able to outdo in every particular the famous artists of Europe who have been appearing in American vaudeville during the past few years. Miss Tanguay is the idol of New York and in order to bring her to Boston Mr. Keith was obliged to terminate a most extraordinary run at one of his New York houses. Another feature never seen outside of New York is the Mirza Golom Troupe, one of the biggest European aggregations ever brought to this country for the New York Hippidrome. Another act that will be seen for the first time is Laura Burt and Henry Stanford in "The Order of the Bath." Violet Allen and Company will appear in a sketch and for real fun there is nothing surpasses Brown, Harris and Brown and Sam Watson's Farmyard Circus with its educated animals. Also on the bill are Steely and Edwards; Burt and Bertha Grant and a splendid singing production with beautiful scienic effects entitled "L'Angelus."

Majestic Theatre.

That great Boston favorite, Mr. John Mason, will begin an engagement of three weeks at the Majestic Theatre, Boston, on Monday evening, February 15, appearing in Augustus Thomas' great play, "The Witching Hour." This is one of the great dramas of the decade, and the playgoers of Boston and its vicinity are eagerly waiting its presentation. The engagement at the Majestic will be the only one played in New England. The box-office sale will open on Tuesday morning February 9th. There will be Wednesday and Saturday matinees and a special matinee on Washington's Birthday, Monday, February 22. Every critic in New York considered "The Witching Hour" to be the best play that Augustus Thomas has ever written, and at the same time the best that has been produced in New York in a decade. During its long run in the metropolis the theatre at every performance was packed to its utmost capacity by enthusiastic theatre-goers. Mr. Mason has been surrounded by the Messrs. Shubert by such well known players as Amelia Gardner, Russ Whytal, Charles Balsar, Julia Hay, George Nash, George Gaston, E. L. Walton, W. E. Butterfield, Harry S. Hadfield, Thomas P. Jackson, Ethel Winthrop, Freeman Barnes, S. E. Hines, etc.

Castle Square Theatre.

Nothing but superlatives will suffice to give a satisfactory idea of the great success of "The Circus Girl" at the Castle Square. Ever since Christmas eve that delightful comedy has run to audiences that have filled the Castle Square Theatre to the doors, and from all appearances this state of things might continue indefinitely. Its popularity is phenomenal, it has broken all records at the Castle Square, and there would appear to be no limit to its success. On Monday begins the seventh week of its run, and although more than one hundred and twenty thousand people have already seen "The Circus Girl," as many more are clamoring to see it. Moreover, it is an entertainment that pleases so well that many more are impelled to see it again, and again, and we know of one patron of the Castle Square who acknowledges no less than twenty-one visits, while there are many who have seen "The Circus Girl" at least a dozen times. With such great popularity, it is no wonder that Mr. Craig is compelled to withdraw all his other plans, and to give the public "The Circus Girl" as long as it wants to see that great musical comedy. Song and music, spectactle and dancing, are its chief features, and there is not a dull moment in it from beginning to end.

Orpheum Theatre.

The management of the Orpheum moved by the many requests from society people for an extension of Mrs. Brown Potter's engagement has decided to keep the former society queen over for another week. Accordingly next week will, positively be her last appearance in Boston. Aside from the natural curiosty to see the woman who has scorned a fortune in order to pursue her stage career thousands came to the Orpheum last week to admire the art of this wonderful woman. And many who came purely out of curiosity went away satisfied that they had seen a true dramatic artiste. The fact that Mrs. Potter is getting the enormous sum of two thousand dollars a week has not deterred the management from surrounding her with another all star bill. The pace set under the London Music hall policy will be continued with the merry Farceurs, John C. Rice and Sally Cohen in their new Winslow comedy "The Bachelor's Wife." The time for performances will remain the same 1.30 for the matinee and 7.30 in the evening.

LIBRARY NOTES.

It is interesting to note that the Shakespeare society of Atlantic showed their appreciation of the Library Art club exhibit this month at the Thomas Crane Public library by coming in a body yesterday afternoon to see the pictures. There are 24 large prints from Boydells Illustrations of Shakespeare, and will remain at the library until the 13th inst.

John Boydell ,an English engraver and publisher formed an extensive plan for the illustration of Shakespeare with engravings from pictures painted by the most famous English artists. Thirty-four painters and thirty-three engravers were engaged in the work begun in 1785 and finished in 1804 and each was given his own time and price. The enormous cost involved Boydell in bankruptcy but the wealthy English nobility came to his aid and the work was completed and published at a price of $1,000 per copy for the first 300 impressions.

In 1848 an American purchased the worn copper plates for $50,000, had them re-cut, and these prints are examples of the edition issued from them. The original paintings were scattered, and only one, Benjamin West's King Lear, now in the Boston Art Museum ,has ever come to America.

On the bulletin board may be seen a few prints from steel plates of pictures and cartoons of Abraham Lincoln. The cartoons of that day were coarse and crude and are of value from the historical point of view only. One of these two shows the opponents of anti-slavery and the other the jubilancy of the victors in the presidential campaign of 1860, representing Lincoln as the successful base ball player.

Three new books have been added to the Lincoln literature since the printing of the list of those already in the library. These are the following:

Reminiscences of Abraham Lincoln by distinguished men of his time, edited by Allen T. Rice (Shelf No. 415.101); Lincoln and the sleeping sentinel, by L. E. Chittenden (415.102); and The memory of Lincoln; a collection of poems, edited by M. A. DeWolfe Howe (513.84.)

SCHOOLMATE OF EMPEROR WILLIAM

Rev. Carl G. Horst a Native of Germany.

NEW WOLLASTON MINISTER HAS BRILLIANT RECORD.

Preaches First Sermon Before Large Audience at Unitarian Church.

A large congregation greeted Rev. Carl G. Horst Sunday morning at the Wollaston Unitarian church on the occasion of his first appearance as pastor.

After the preliminary service of prayer and praise, Mr. Horst spoke a few words of kindly greeting, and gave as the text for his sermon the fifty-first verse of the second chapter of the first book of Maccabees, "Call to remembrance what acts our fathers did in their time; so shall ye receive great honor and an everlasting name."

He said it was fitting that we should at this time "call to remembrance" a few of the traits which made Abraham Lincoln the great man that he was, a man worthy of remembrance and honor.

He spoke of the ancestry of Lincoln emphasizing the fact that his early biographers liked to dwell upon his humble origin as reflecting so much more credit upon the man, that so great a man had sprung from so lowly a source.

He pointed out that later biographers had developed the fact that Lincoln had come of an illustrious ancestry, that in early days in England there had been many a Lincoln who had suffered persecution for what he believed to be right, and that later, after the family had come to this country, there were many Lincolns who occupied, and proved themselves worthy of positions of trust and honour.

On the mother's side the ancestry of the Hanks family had been traced back to the time of Alfred the Great. Nancy Hanks Lincoln was a woman of refinement and beauty of character, and though she died when Abraham was only nine years old, he never forgot her teachings, and in later life attributed all that he was and all that he might become to the influence of his mother.

Mr. Horst said that in so brief an address it was impossible to depict fully so many-sided a character as Lincoln's. He therefore confined himself to three great traits which stood out boldly as emblematic of the man, worthy of all praise and emulation,—his devotion to principle, his tender heartedness, and his reverence for God and religion.

These traits were all aptly illustrated by quotations from Lincoln's biographers and the lesson drawn, that after all they were simple, homely traits that might well be patterned after by the people of this generation.

The service closed with the singing of America.

Rev. Mr. Horst was born in Cassell, Germany, June 8, 1867. At the age of six years he entered the public schools and three years later the Gymnasium, where he had for one of his schoolmates the present Emperor of Germany. In May 1882 he came to the United States and spent two years in Lexington, Ky.

In the fall of 1884 Mr. Horst entered Seymour (Ind.) High school and was at once admitted to the senior class, graduating in 1885. His course here was principally to acquire a ready use of the English language. After graduating from high school he spent a year with his brother, Rev. George Horst, who was then pastor of a German church in Newport, Ky. Much of his time here was spent in preparation for entering the theological seminary.

In the fall of 1886 he entered the Meadville (Pa.) Theological school, graduating in June 1890, being the youngest member of his class. During the summer vacations before graduation he supplied the pulpit of the Union church at Prospect Harbor, Maine.

After leaving Meadville he entered Harvard and took a post-graduate course in the Divinity school. Before leaving Harvard he had received calls to the Unitarian churches in Deerfield, Bratton, Marlboro and Pittsfield. He accepted the last call and succeeded Rev. Prof. W. W. Fenn, now Dean of the Harvard Divinity school, as pastor of Unity church and was ordained Sept. 25, 1891. He remained in Pittsfield until May 31, 1895, when he accepted a call to the second Unitarian church of Athol, Mass., where he stayed until Sept. 30, 1900. He then went to West Upton, where he remained until Dec. 31, 1908.

From there he came to Quincy. A serious attack of pneumonia in December prevented him from taking up his duties here Jan. 1 as planned.

FORE RIVER NOTES.

Fulton Blake, manager of the Submarine Signal Company, who for a number of years was in the employ of the Fore River Shipbuilding Co., is nowadays receiving many congratulations for the efficiency of the submarine signal on ocean-going craft in promoting safety of life and property at sea in time of accident. There seems to be a considerable inquiry for the stock of the Submarine Signal Co., on the Boston curb exchange. The company has been more in the public eye since the disaster to the steamship Republic, for it was by means of the bells of the submarine signals installed by the Submarine Signal Co., that the steamship Baltic located the position of the crippled Republic. On the curb Friday, 100 shares of this stock changed hands at seven and one half.

Repairs to the overhead crane track in the machine shop are being made.

The entire roof of the mold loft will be recovered with "Paroid" roofing paper.

An overhead trolley and track is in process of installation at the foundry.

New drinking water lines are being installed all over the plant.

A large amount of forge and machine work is being done for the General Electric and other companies.

Repairs to the marine railway caused by the breaking of a chain are under way.

In the power house a barometric condenser for turbine generators is being installed.

Two circulating pumps and engines complete have been built for the Willeamette Iron and steel Works.

For comparative battle efficency by vessels of the navy of the battleship class, in combined night and day practice, the battleship Vermont built at the works of the Fore River Shipbuilding Co., in this city, now with the Atlantic fleet on the way from Gibralter, has won first place. Instructions were cabled to Admiral Sperry at Gibralter to order the Vermont to hoist the gunnery pennant, which she is entitled to hold for one year.

Target practice of the battleship fleet at Manila bay last November showed the greatest improvement in gunnery made during any one year since the new system of target practice has been in operation. The improvement with heavy guns was over 100 per cent greater than that of the preceding year. The Vermont was the battleship pennant winner with a standing of 58.271.

CARL J. CARLSON BURIED.

The funeral of Carl J. Carlson was held Sunday afternoon from the Swedish Lutheran church and was largely attended, John Erickson Court Foresters of America attending in a body.

The remains were escorted to Mt. Wollaston cemetery by the Foresters, who conducted its burial service at the grave.

CAMBRIDGE TEAM BADLY TRIMMED

West Quincy Boys Pile Up Score of 22 to 16.

GROVELANDS OF DORCHESTER ALSO TAKEN INTO CAMP.

"Bill" Duggan Star Player for St. Mary's First Team.

The St. Mary's first and second teams won Saturday night at St. Mary's hall, in two of the fastest games of the season. The first team trimmed the strong Cambridge Five 22 to 10, and between the halves the second team took the Grovelands of Dorchester into camp to the tune of 22 to 16.

The big game was one of the best of the season, but it was one continual roughhouse. However, all the players were good-natured and seemed to enjoy the play. The game was in doubt up to the last few minutes, when "Bill" Duggan managed to lose his man and caged the ball three times in succession. This put the game on ice and although the husky Ainsmith did his best to score, he couldn't get away from "Dan" Duggan.

The Cambridge boys played in hard luck, for in the first half two of their men were forced to leave the floor. M. Ramsey was the first, two injured ribs, received in a game against Cushing academy a few weeks ago, rendering him unable to continue in the game. This necessitated a change so Merrill took Carr's place at back and Carr went into M. Ramsey's place. Muir went in centre and in a few minutes had to leave the floor with a broken finger.

The little finger on his left hand was the injured member and Dr. Ash was called to fix it up. The game was then resumed without the services of Muir. Robertson was substituted and the change broke up the team play. The visitors played a good uphill game however, but were unable to score on the aggressive St. Mary's boys.

Dan Duggan and Ainsmith, the two "huskies," had a battle royal. The struggle was pretty even, although Dan scored two baskets to Ainsmith's one. "Charlie" Morrill also played a good game, showing some of his old time speed. The boys evidently trained for this game, for they stayed strong all the time. Carr and Ainsmith played best for the Cambridge Five.

The second game was also exciting all the time, especially in the second half. The first half ended in 16 to 2, in favor of the home team, but the visitors braced and tied the score in the second half. It was only a flash in the pan, however, for the West Quincy five went ahead again and won by the score of 22 to 16. Morrill, Duggan and Canavan played best for St. Mary's and Sullivan and Hickey excelled for Groveland. The summaries:

MARAVIGLI—MAGNOLI.

There was a pretty home wedding at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Antonio Magnioli of No. 6, Old Coach road, West Quincy, Sunday noon, when their daughter Miss Luisa Magnioli was united in wedlock to John Maravigli, senior member of the granite manufacturing firm of John Maravigli & Co., of South Quincy.

The nuptial knot was tied by William M. Marden, Esq., in the presence of the immediate family connections and near friends of the happy couple.

Frank Magnioli, a brother of the bride, was best man while the bride was attended by Miss Josephine Fabucci.

CHRISTIANITY IN CHINA.

Chinese Law Student Gives Interesting Talk at First Church.

The Young People's Religious union of First church held a very interesting meeting Sunday evening. Mr. Chao of the Harvard Law school was the speaker. First he told very clearly how each religion, including Christianity, was received in China. He said he was very sorry, but the missionaries we sent had turned the Chinese governmnt against Christianity because of the missionaries harboring state prisoners. Christianity is now looked upon as unpatriotic. After Mr. Chao finished his lecture he asked if there were any who would like to question him. Then for about twenty minutes a most interesting informal talk was held. It certainly was one of the best lectures the Union ever had. Singing by Mr. Joseph Barraja Frauenfelder added much to the meeting.

BAKER—BATES.

Festoons of laurel, asparagus fern and white sweet peas made an effective decoration at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Bates, 99 Brook street, Wollaston, on Saturday evening for the wedding of their daughter Louise G., and Lowell M. Baker, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Baker of Winthrop avenue, Wollaston.

The ceremony was solemnized at half past seven by Rev. Edward A. Chase of the Wollaston Congregational church, Miss Henrietta Gram officiated at the piano. Mr. Frank E. Harlow of Dorchester was best man and the maid of honor was Miss Florence I. Bulfinch of Swampscott. The bride entered with her father who gave her in marriage. She was very beautifully gowned in a white silk batiste over white liberty and the bridal bouquet was of white roses. In charming contrast was the maid of honor in a lavender silk batiste.

Following the ceremony a reception was held from eight until half-past nine, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Baker and Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Bates assisting the young people in receiving. The ushers were Mr. Emerson T. Bates of Concord, N. H., and Mr. Montgomery Winship of Wollaston.

Amid good wishes and a shower of confetti Mr. and Mrs. Baker left for a wedding trip to Atlantic City to be away a week, after which they will reside at 920 Prospect place, Brooklyn, N. Y., receiving their friends after March first.

MENDELSSOHN NIGHT.

Artists Interpret Works of Composer at Wollaston Unity Club.

The meeting of the Wollaston Unity club was the mecca of music lovers of Wollaston and Quincy on Friday evening, when gifted artists interpreted the works of the great composer Mendelssohn.

The evening was termed a Mendelssohn centennial and was in charge of Miss Clara G. Thayer.

The audience was a large one and close attention and well merited applause greeted each piece.

Among those who contributed to the evening's pleasure were, Mrs. Chandler W. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Y. Follett, Mrs. Frank A. Page, Mrs. Nathaniel Hunting, Mrs. Edgar King, Miss Marion Moorehouse and Miss Ernestine Litchfield.

Miss Thayer opened the program with a short sketch of the life and works of Mendelssohn after which the evening was given up to music.

OLD LIGHTS REMOVED.

A new system of lighting has been installed at the Quincy depot by the Electric Light Co., and the depot is now better lighted than ever before. The old electric bulbs have been removed and the tungsten lights have been installed.

In the main waiting room are three clusters of four lights each and one light has been placed in each of the toilet rooms.

The depot platform however is where the lights are the most noticable. Here seventeen of these lights have been put in, two of which are on the east side lighting up the two entrances to the depot from that side. The others are arranged along the main platform making it as light as day.

SENIOR CLASS DANCE.

Much credit should be given the class of 1909, of the Braintree High School, for the pleasant time which it extended to all dancers, in the Braintree High School reception rooms on Friday evening.

A large attendance showed full well the appreciation of their efforts.

E. A. Shaw, the principal and all the teachers were present, and may well feel elated with the outcome of their work.

The matrons of the evening were Miss J. Shar, Mrs. F. Stacy and Mrs. H. Prouty.

Light refreshments were served.

Cuff's orchestra furnished the music for dancing.

PREACHES FIRST SERMON.

Rev. Joseph Walther recently of Keene, N. H., began his duties as pastor of the Wollaston Baptist church Sunday morning preaching to a large audience. After the service the communion of the Lord's supper was administered.

Rev. Preston Gurney a former pastor made a short address of welcome to the new pastor.

CHURCH PACKED TO DOORS

Bethany Chapel Opened to Accommoda'e Overflow.

EVANGELISTIC MASS MEETING DRAWS LARGE ATTENDANCE.

Over Three Hundred Remain For Regular Aftermeeting.

Packed to the outer doors and an overflow meeting in the chapel was the record of attendance at Bethany church evangelistic meeting Sunday evening.

The explanation is that a splendid program had been advertised and that this great movement for revival of spiritual faith has gained a surprising impetus in our city.

The musical program deserves special mention for its excellence. Mr. Briggs was assisted by solos with autoharp accompaniment by Mr. Hall and a duet by Mrs. Moore and Mr. Hall.

Six pieces of the Y. M. C. A. orchestra helped make the chorus singing go with a splendid swing. It was an enthusiastic meeting from start to finish.

Dr. Weddell took his text from Phil. 2-5—"Let this mind be in you which was also in Christ Jesus "and made a wonderful strong and eloquent address holding his hearers with rivited attention.

After the meeting closed nearly 300 people remained for an after-meeting which was the largest and evidenced the best spirit of any yet held.

Other meetings of the day connected with the campaign were held at Wollaston Congregational church filling the house, a men's meeting under the direction of the Y. M. C. A. at First Presbyterian church and an older boys meeting at the Y. M. C. A. building.

The week now on will be full of good things with big services every night at Bethany church. Bible readings at three points in the city and boys' meeting at the Y. M. C. A. Saturday morning.

The meeting tonight will be full of life and spirit, the subject will be "The Watch for Souls."

LINCOLN SERVICE.

The Sunday school of the First Parish held an interesting service yesterday in commemoration of the birthday of Abraham Lincoln, under the direction of the superintendent of the school, Charles H. Johnson. The chapel was tastefully decorated with flags and bunting and a large picture of Lincoln draped with flags on the platform. A delegation of Post 88, G. A. R. were present and occupied seats upon the platform. The whole service was one to stir the hearts of all. A stirring and patriotic address by the superintendent, verses and readings by the children, interspersed with stirring patriotic songs by the school under the direction of E. Landis Snyder, and at the close, remarks by Commander George Phillips of Post 88, that were received with marked attention by the children. There was a large attendance.

RECENT DEATHS.

William W. Thomas.

Mr. Thomas was for many years prominently identified with the granite industry in Quincy. He leaves a widow, two sons and two daughters.

Mrs. Ann Richards Steadman.

Word has been received of the death Sunday at Norton, of Mrs. Ann widow of Mr. Richard Steadman. Mrs. Steadman was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Shea of West Quincy. Here she passed her girlhood days, and was one of West Quincy's most popular young ladies. She leaves four children.

Edward B. Tarbell.

Edward B. Tarbell, 59, of Springfield died Sunday at his home after three months' illness. He was the brother of Mrs. John R. Wade, Mrs. Paul Baxter and Miss Minnie Tarbell of Quincy. Mr. Tarbell was a well-known railroad man having been connected with the Boston & Main railroad for over 40 years.

Japan is determined to maintain peace with the United States if she has to fight for it.

According to the Romson board of noted scientists there is such a thing as having our pure food too pure.

"Hades is right here on earth," says a Chicago preacher. Why should a man knock his own town in that fashion?

"Nick Carter" and old "Cap Collier" missed a rich field when they failed to locate their detective stories in Washington.

Judge Taft has tried meals in all lands, including the land of the possum, and his stomach is now international.

We fear the octopus won't mind Senator Davis' attacks nowadays. It will be rather a long time until the next election.

Maybe the President should have a larger salary, but it is to be remembered that the Government furnishes the typwriter ribbons.

A Chicago court has decided that a wedding ring cannot be seized for debt. Perhaps that's one season why every woman wants one.

After neglecting her forests for hundreds of years, Great Britain has come to the front with the most far-sighted proposal for forest work and land improvement ever advanced by any nation in a single plan.

The recommendation just made to the British Government by the Royal Commission on Afforestation and Coast Erosion will make England self-supporting in the production of timber if successfully carried out.

The report embraces two separate proposals, involving the forestation in one case of 9,000,000, and in the other of 6,000,000 acres. The former proposal calls for the forest planting of 150,000 acres a year for sixty years at an annual cost of $450,000 at the beginning to over $15,00,000 at the end of the period. After the fortieth year,, however, the forest would become helf-supporting. After eighty years, the forest would have a value of $2,810,000,000, which is $535,000,000 in excess of the cost of producing it, and would yield a net annual revenue of $87,500,00, or $9.73 per acre from land now barely producing 50 cents per acre.

Great Britain has long been dependent upon outside sources for her wood supplies. But the constantly increasing demand for wood, together with the overdrain already made upon these sources, indicates a world shortage of wood unless those countries which now have to import are able to establish and maintain their forest independence and grow the needed wood at home. Most of the countries of Europe have taken care to keep up the home wood output by looking after their forests before they were destroyed or hopelessly depleted, and managing them for a sustained annual yield about equal to the demand. The British Isles, however, are practically stripped of productive forests. If Great Britain is to grow her own wood, she will have to begin at the beginning, set out the seedlings on treeless grounds,and wait for them to reach marketable size. The Commission recommends that this work of starting future national forests from the seed be undertaken "as a sound and remunerative investment."

The proposal of the commission is especially interesting to Americans in view of the fact that the measures that are now being proposed in the United States are so much simpler and less expensive. In this country the forests are already on the ground. All that is necessary is to bring them to a state of full productiveness. The present annual production of forests in the United States is scarcely more than twelve cubic feet per acre of all kinds of wood. The centuries of experience in Saxony, Switzerland, and France show that the same kind of land will grow three to eight times as much wood under wise forest management. Protection and proper cutting begun now and steadily followed as a policy will keep America from reaching a point, where, like Great Britian, it will be necessary, except in the prairie region, to start the forests of the future from the seed, and wait for them to grow. A tithe of the great outlay which the British Commission contemplates would easily guarantee this country's forest independence for all time. And the wood needed each year could be got out of the forests right along.

EDITORIAL COMMENTS.

The senate showed more balance and more understanding of the fitness of things in its treatment of the Lincoln day holiday scheme than did the house of representatives, which had unwisely voted in favor of making the day a legal holiday this year. The lightest criticism of the house's action which can be made is to say that any such holiday-creating should have been effected, if at all, many weeks ago. To take such action almost at the 11th hour, when arrangements have been made for the day's dignified celebration, in schools and elsewhere, would have been disturbing and a setback to the days' proper observance. The experience which the public has had with legal holidays is not such as to encourage the idea that Lincoln day would gain anything from such a status as the house would give it.

This centenary celebration, as planned outside of the state house, has dignity and flavor. Attention is focused upon the man and upon the immense significance of his life and death. In the differentiation of this day from the common run of holidays there is a distinctive mark of respect and adequate realization of the day's lesson. This point evidently escaped the house, which reasoned on a lower level and without any proper conception of the note which pervades this centenary. With Lincoln day this year converted into a "legal holiday" in the common acceptance of the term, there would be about as much dignity and seriousness to the day as pertains to July 4 and other days when freedom from care beckons celebrators to the theatre and other places where they may, as far as possible, forget that the day means anything except that they are not at work.—Boston Advertiser.

DECAY OF THE TEETH.

The Three Principal Couses—Food That is Cleansing in Effect.

Of all physical ailments to which the human race is subject, decay of the teeth is perhaps the most general and widespread. This is true at least of modren times, for examination of ancient skulls has shown that although the ancients suffered from decaying teeth they did not suffer to such an extent as we do today. The examination of the school children of the present day betrays an appalling state of affaris in this regard.

We know that the tooth itself is covered with a shield of enamel which is intended to remain intact and preserve the dentine or real tooth material, from the assaults of harmful germs formed in the mouth, principally by reason of the lodgment of particles of food between the teeth or in small depressions and dents. Certain kinds of food, especially sugars and starchy foods, if allowed to remain in contact with the teeth set up an acid fermentation, during which the bacteria which are produced literally feed upon the teeth, first eating away the enamel and when that is gone burrowing down into the dentine until the pulp of the tooth is exposed. As soon as they reach the nerve of the tooth a terrible toothache announces the fact.

There are three causes behind all this trouble—improper food, wrong ways of eating and lack of cleanliness. The mistake of serving too much overcooked, soft food is responsible for much of the trouble, and this is just as true for little children as it is for adults. The teeth were given us to bite with and to chew with, and if they are defrauded of their natural work they become unhealthy.

In addition to this, certain articles of food, such as raw apples and nuts, which call for mastication before swallowing, are absolutely cleansing in their effect upon the teeth. Mechanically they remove masses of soft decomposing material. Besides this, masticating promotes the flow of saliva, which in its turn helps the growth of the good germs which are needed to fight the bad ones, for it should be remembered when it is said that the mouth is always full of bacteria that the good germs are making a brave fight there as well as anywhere else in the body.

Finally a toothbrush should be the first birthday present, and its regular and persistant use should be made a most important part of the child's early training. A simple alkaline toothwash or cream should be used once a day, and the dentist should be consulted at regular intervals, because there is no matter in which prevention is so surely better than cure as in the care of the teeth.

TAILORS ATTEND CONVENTION.

New York, Feb. 6—New England will be the most strongly represented section of the country when five hundred delegates meet here next Tuesday, at the annual convention of the Merchant Tailors' National Exchange representing business amounting to more than 100,000,000 annually. A large majority of the officers of the organization are from New England states, H. W. Gardner, the president, coming from Providence, S. H. Spring, the secretary, from Boston, Henry Fryer, treasurer, from Willimantic, W. A. Lytle, from Worcester, and F. W. Maynard from Nashua. The two most important topics to be considered are the tariff and the question of extension of credit. In the matter of the tariff it is announced that a committee will be appointed to present the views of the Exchange at Washington. It is also proposed to perfect a national credit bureau for the protection of tailors. for the purpose of placing theirs in the same class with other commercial obligations instead of allowing them to continue as debts, the payment of which may be postponed indefinitely. Through the credit bureau any tailor will be able to get a complete record of any person applying for credit, if that person has ever done business with any other member of the association. In this manner it is expected the difficulties of the situation can be met. An exhibition of the new styles will also take place during the convention. The chief features, however, will have to deal with commercial factors. It is expected that definite action will be taken concerning the amount of clothing which the Exchange believes a person coming into this country should be allowed to bring free of duty.

USED RIFLE WITH DEADLY EFFECT

Two Persons Killed and Others Badly Hurt by Crazy Man

Shelbourne, Ont., Feb. 8.—George Stewart, a young farmer, who is mentally unbalanced and was staying with his brother at Reddickville, started out Sunday armed with a rifle. His brother attempted to restrain him and was attacked and beaten, but not seriously. Stewart than went to the home of John Spanhouse and fired at Mrs. Spanhouse twice, wounding her in the eye and arm. Her husband rushed to her assistance and was shot dead. The son, who was up stairs, came running down at the sound of the shooting and Stewart, whose rifle was empty, beat out his brains with the butt of the weapon.

Stewart then started for his own home, but stopped on the way at the house of Edwin Pounds. Here he attacked the hired man, George Beaumont, and the housekeeper, Mrs. Gowans, with the empty weapon, beating them both unconscious and fracturing the hired man's skull. He then fled to his father's home at Maple Valley, where he was arrested.

GLAD TO ESCAPE ALIVE

Fire Drives Many Persons From Home In Scanty Attire

Leominster, Mass., Feb. 8.—Between twenty-five and thirty people were aroused from their sleep and driven into the street scantily attired early Sunday when a fire broke out in the Tavern block, a three story brick building in the center of the town. The people were sleeping on the second and third floors, which were utilized as a lodging house by Mrs. Helen M. Wilcox. Mrs. F. C. Divoll, who was sleeping on the top floor, was found by two hosemen overcome from smoke and fright in the hallway and was taken to the ground after great difficulty. The others, however, managed to escape without difficulty.

The origin of the fire, which is thought to have started in the kitchen of the lodging house, was believed by the police to be incendiary, and an investigation was started by Fire Marshal Molt of the state police.

The loss will not exceed $15,000, and is covered by insurance.

DEER IN PUBLIC STREETS

Dash Through Plate Glass Window Puts End to His Career

Nashua, N. H., Feb. 8.—The Sunday afternoon quiet of this city was disturbed by the antics of spike-horned buck deer which ran amuck through Main street. The deer's rampage of more than an hour terminated in his crashing into a plate glass window in the Nashua Trust company's building. The window was valued at $200. The buck was so badly cut that it was necessary to kill him.

Although no person was injured by the deer in its passage through the city, Sunday school children were startled into flight and a number of strollers forced to make way for the buck's onward progress. In the course of his invasion the buck swam across the Nashua river and leaped nearly a score of backyard fences.

DOUBLE DROWNING

Two Men of Revenue Cutter Acushnet Meet Death While Skating

Woods Hole, Mass., Feb. 8.—While skating on a pond in a cedar swamp near this village Charles Gottliebsen, aged 24, wireless operator of the revenue cutter Acushnet, and Oscar Rongved, aged 23, also of the Acushnet, who made a brave attempt to rescue him, were drowned.

Several of their shipmates endeavored to reach the drowning men from the shore, but the ice kept breaking from under the would be rescuers. A tree was then secured, but before it could be put out on the ice, both men had gone under.

Gottliebsen was born in New York and served four years in the navy. Rongved was a native of Norway.

OLEST SHOEMAKER IN THE WORLD

South Weymouth Man Worked Eighty Years At His Trade

Newspapers all over the country are publishing stories about long service records of working people but the one that has them all beaten a mile is the record that is proudly borne by a South Weymouth man.

Starting in at an early age, Cornelius Tirrell has just rounded out his eighetieth year as a shoemaker. At the age of nine Mr. Tirrell's father took him into his shop and taught him the trade. For twenty-one years Cornelius Tirrell worked for his father, learning the shoemaker's trade from start to finish, after which he found employment as a cutter in one of the large modern shops.

Besides being the oldest shoemaker in the world, Mr. Tirrell has the distinction of being the oldest resident of all the Weymouths. He is still hale and hearty and keeps up with the younger men at the shop where he is employed.

In explaining his good health Mr. Tirrell said, "Walking is the only fad I have. I frequently walked to and from Abington, a distance of four miles, and think nothing of it. My motto is to live in the present and let the future take care of itself. To attain a good old age one must come of good stock, be of good cheer and regular habits. I rise at 4.45 A. M., each day, and after preparing the morning meal and doing a few chores, I am ready to go to work at 6.45, I am at the bench each morning at seven, work nine hours, and it doesn't tire me a bit. That's the reason why I think that I am going to reach the century mark.

Mr. Tirrell has always been interested in town affairs and for many years was an active participant in town politics. He was a member of the school board for nine years and served as a constable for a long term. He ran with the old Conqueror hand tub long before the town boasted of an organized fire department, and was identified with the local militia. He cast his first vote for Polk and Dallas and has not missed a state or national election since.

The town of Weymouth is proud of its grand old man and challenges any city or town to produce an older shoemaker than Mr. Tirrell.

WEYMOUTH

A patriotic Lincoln service was held Sunday evening at the East Weymouth Congregatonial church. L. O. Rankin of Boston gave an address on "The Life of Abraham Lincoln." The following organizations were represented at the service. Reynolds Post 58 G. A. R. Woman's Relief Corps 102 James L. Bates, Camp Sons of Veterans, Ladies Auxiliary and Daughters of Verterans.

Michael O'Connor of Brockton a former resident was in town Sunday calling on friends. He intends moving back to this town in the spring. His son George is seriously ill with no hope of recovery.

The funeral of Mrs. Thomas C. Mellen took place from her late residence on Front street Sunday afternoon and was conducted by Rev. Robert H. Cochrane of the Union Congregational church of Weymouth and Braintree and Rev. Melvin S. Nash of the First Universalist church.

Hon. George L. Barnes has been town elected chairman of the Republican committee.

Mrs. Bessie McCue who has been under treatment at the Carney hospital, expects to be able to leave that institution tomorrow, and will make a visit with friends in Randolph before returning home.

William H. Turner one of the oldest residents is quite ill at his home on Webb street.

The Puritana whist club will be entertained by Mrs. Charles W. Baker at her home on Washington street, Wednesday evening.

PROBABLY KILLED WITH A HAMMER

Body of New Haven Woman Found Jammed In Trunk

New Haven, Feb. 8.—At the coroner's examination it developed that the body of Mrs. James Hazelton, a negress, aged 34, which was found in a trunk at her home on Eaton street Saturday night, had not been dismembered, as had been first thought, but had been jammed in with a hammer.

The woman's husband has been charged with causing her death, and efforts are being made to locate him. According to the police, Hazelton probably killed his wife during a quarrel by hitting her on the head with a hammer, fracturing her skull and then jamming the body into the trunk with the hammer, covering it with bruises and cuts.

Mrs. Hazelton was last seen alive on Dec. 17 when her daughter called on her, and the murder was probably committed about that time, as no one has been seen around the tenement since then.

A FIGHTING PARSON

He Defies Church Authorities by Whom He Was Deposed

Bethel, Conn., Feb. 8.—Locked out of St. Thomas' Episcopal church, from the rectorship of which he had been deposed by the bishop, Rev. M. T. Bowie conducted services Sunday from the front steps of the edifice to fifteen of his followers in the parish and a large number of onlookers.

The trouble between Bowie and part of his flock became so acute two months ago that the matter was taken before Bishop Brewster and the diocese council and the rector deposed and ordered to move from the rectory on Feb. 1. Bowie refused to move or give up the keys to the church, and legal notice was served, ordering him to vacate. He paid no attention to the notice and the locks on the church doors were changed.

It is understood that other legal steps will be taken to remove the deposed rector and his belongings from the rectory.

HAVE NO MEANS TO TRAVEL

Thousands of Laborers Could Go to Work Had They Funds

Washington, Feb. 8.—For lack of funds for transportation many thousand aliens who today are living in the congested centers of the country and who appeal for work are deprived of obtaining remunerative employment. From all parts of the country the cry comes for efficient help, but the laborer in many instances is unable to answer the call because he has not the means to go to work.

This is the most serious situation which is confronting officials of the bureau of information of the department of commerce and labor.

It is stated by an official of this bureau that within the last ten weeks fully 14,000 laborers could have been sent out to different parts of the country if they had had the means to travel. It is probable that in the near future the matter will be presented to congress for action.

FEW REPAIRS NEEDED

New Features In Old Battleship Fleet Meet With Approval

Washington, Feb. 8.—From reports received at the navy department from the Atlantic battleship fleet, it developes that much less work in the way of repairs will be required on the vessels of the fleet than was anticipated.

The reports include those on features which have been installed on the vessels in an experimental way with the idea of increasing battle efficiency.

The reports show that approval is given to the new skeleton masts, with which all the vessels not having them will be equipped on arrival at their home yards.

The searchlights, the magazine cooling apparatus and certain modifications of the fire control system are also approved.

NEGLIGENT AND CORRUPT

Former Governor of Russian Province Mixed Up In Grain Scandals

St. Petersburg, Feb. 8.—General Freceriks, former governor of Nizhni-Novgorod, whose trial on charges of complicity in the grain scandals that attended the distribution of famine relief in 1906 has been going on for the past five days, was convicted of negligence and corruption.

He was sentenced to dismissal from the government service and a fine of $5000 was imposed, in default of the payment of which he will have to serve a year in prison.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR.

Editor of the Daily Ledger.

I have read with some interest the long letter from J. Q. A. Field in your issue of the 3d inst. There is very little to answer, and much to correct. After carefully reading his letter, one must come to the conclusion that the great burden of the writer is to show that he was chairman of a certain committee, and that when all the other members of the committee favored a crane in preference to a boom derrick, that he (Mr. Field) resigned.

He might also have told of another committee for the same purpose, of which he was a member (but two years earlier) where he so divided the committee that the railroad said "You are not agreed among yourselves as to what you want, so how can we know?" So the next year when the committe was made up it was thought best to leave Mr. Field off.

Then a petition was circulated and every granite manufacturer that was asked, signed for a crane. Yet Mr. Field would have people believe that he knew more than the ninety and nine, and they were beginning to see the light. Well, perhaps so, but they are very dumb about it, and Mr. Field, one of the smallest shippers does all the fault finding.

The railroad company has given Quincy Adams station and the granite industry one of the most powerful and best cranes in all New England. I have had a carload of 28 tons loaded in 30 minutes, and I have had a 20 ton block chained and put on the wagon in 10 minutes. What can beat that? Certainly not a boom derrick.

Our fathers in the granite industry used boom derricks and did their hoisting with oxen. They knew no better, but the oxen have now passed into history except with Mr. Field.

As to the crane being frozen up for three days, Mr. Field must be in a trance or someone was giving him wrong information, for four hours has been the longest time it was laid up. That was caused by the ice getting on the wires, and as it is the first winter it has been in operation the operator did not know what to do. There is absolutely no bother now. We have all seen electric cars stalled with sleet on the tracks and wires, yet Friend Field would not condemn the electric cars.

As to Mr. Field's imaginary cellar stone, there has been none shipped for years, as concrete has killed that business, except for some local cellars.

I admit that sometimes a few teams are waiting, but that is no fault of the crane. For instance the teamsters send say twenty teams to as many yards the first thing in the morning to be loaded for the crane. Very naturally many of them get to the crane at the same time and must wait their turn, and I never saw a boom derrick where they could get any better treatment.

Now Mr. Editor the crane will do more than any two derricks and do it safer and with less help to handle it.

Mr. Editor, I too received a letter that antedates Mr. Field's letter from Mr. Martin, and the letter follows:

Commonwealth of Massachusetts,
Board of Railroad Commissioners.
Boston, April 20, 1907.

Mr. J. L. Miller, Quincy, Mass.

Dear Sir:—Subsequent to our interview this morning, Mr. Curtis assured us that the Company would do everything that it could towards moving the freight in which you are interested, pending permanent changes about which we expect to give you early information.

As you are on the spot it might be well for you to talk directly with Mr. Curtis about the urgency of the situation, should you find the Company slow in taking steps to relieve it.

Yours very truly
James F. Jackson, Chairman.

Now Mr. Editor there are some things in which Mr. Field can surpass many in the granite industry, but for handling finished stones and conducting a granite business, there are many that would not go to him for lessons. They know what they want, and are glad that they have got a crane that will handle the heaviest as well as the lightest stone offered. It is of the greatest benefit to the whole business, so that we will not blame him, neither give him credit for getting the crane. When it is necessary another lighter one can be put on the same tracks and double the capacity.

Now, Mr. Field, don't be a kicker, but change and be a booster.

Your "bellicose" friend,
J. L. Miller.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Atlantic citizens are agitating the question of lighting the new boulevard before spring. Travel along this popular thoroughfare is impossible after six o'clock owing to the extreme darkness and this fact takes all the advantageousness of the boulevard away. The questioning of lights came up early last fall but received little attention. This month it has started again and it is hoped the result will be prompt action in behalf of a progressing avenue of travel.

JOHN B. MORAN PASSES AWAY

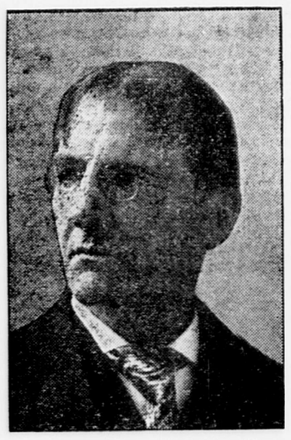

Never Flinched as He Entered the Valley of Death

KNOWN AS "MAN WHO DARES"

Became One of the Most Keen, Sarcastic and Brilliant Lawyers at the Massachusetts Bar—Won District Attorneyship After Fighting For Office For Years—Noted For Fearlessness, Energy and Industry

Boston, Feb. 8.—John B. Moran, district attorney of Suffolk county, who was stricken down with tuberculosis early last year, necessitating his visiting the Adirondacks in June, later going south and then to Denver, died Saturday night in Phoenix, Ari., where he had been for two weeks past, according to word received here.

In life Moran's greatest happiness was in promoting the happiness of others. It was therefore a fitting, a grimly felicitous ending of his remarkable career, that his spirit fled as he finished an anecdote that banished pain and suffering, convulsed his listeners with laughter, and left his own lips sealed with a smile. Thus the passing of John B. Moran.

JOHN. B. MORAN.

Attorney Moran showed indomitable courage throughout his illness and believed until the last that his life would be spared for many years to come and, in fact, seemed to be improving until within three days of his death. Then he was taken suddenly worse, but remained cheerful until the end, closing his life as he had lived it, joking and telling stories and full of good nature.

The district attorney was true to his soubriquet of "The Man Who Dares" when his physician rendered the verdict of ten months ago that he was suffering from tuberculosis and must go to another climate.

By indomitable will and brilliancy as a criminal lawyer and cross examiner, as well as public debater, John B. Moran forced himself into the public eye as few other men have done in the history of the commonwealth. Born in Wakefield 50 years ago he went through the schools of his native town, Phillips Andover academy and Boston university, entering the bar and practicing in Woburn and Boston.

He became one of the most keen, sarcastic and brilliant lawyers at the bar in the state. Year after year he opposed District Attorney Stevens in contests for that office and finally succeeded in 1905 in defeating District Attorney Sughue as a candidate of the Independent Democrats and was re-elected as an independent candidate in 1907 for a second three years' term.

In 1906 he ran for governor on four tickets, as Democrat, Prohibitionist, Independence Leaguer and as a citizen of Boston. In the final vote he polled 19,946, or but 7500 less than Governor Guild, who defeated him.

Fearless, energetic and industrious, Moran immediately entered into the solution of practically every apparent evil which threatened the commonwealth and her citizens and soon found himself overwhelmed with cases which the courts were not large enough, the days long enough or the evidence sufficiently voluminous to bring to definite conclusion.

Mr. Moran's independence was shown in starting the campaign for governor when he summarily discharged his three managers and conducted his campaign alone. He calmly refused to support Bryan and allied himself with the Hearst interests.

He leaves a widowed mother, who resides in Wakefield, and one brother.

Denman Thompson Critically Ill

The New England district council of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers at its semi-annual session in Boston, Sunday, elected Charles W. Hanscom of Quincy secretary-treasurer. The office of the secretary-treasurer will hereafter be located in Quincy.

A very successful dancing party was held in Wollaston hall on the evening of February fifth under the direction of Harold Gore and Philip Barnes. Wilson's orchestra furnished the music. Mrs. George H. York and Mrs. Henry Barnes acted as matrons.

The senior class of Boston College held a requiem high mass in St. Mary's church Saturday morning in memory of Mrs. Edward Buckley. Rev. Henry T. Grady, the pastor, celebrated the mass and the regular choir, Miss Rena Bizzozzero organist, sang the Gregorian mass.

Emerson Tower, the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. William Tower of Prospect street came very near putting out his eye last week while playing with a broken knife. Prompt medical aid was summoned, and it was reported Monday that Master Emerson is out of danger and on the road to clear sight once more.

HOUSE WARMING.

The Physical Culture club of Dorchester called on Mr. and Mrs. Ira M. Whittemore at their new home at 49 Bigelow street and gave them a genuine surprise Saturday evening. The club has been entertained many times at the former homes of the Whittemores in Dorchester and Great hill, Houghs Neck, and in appreciation, presented them with an electric drop light. The evening was enjoyably spent in whist and music. C. C. Whittemore of Boston catered. After wishing the Whittemores every success in their new home, the club left at 11.30 in a special car for Dorchester.

ALVA S. MORRISON.

Death entered the home of one of Braintree's oldest families on Monday night, and removed one of the town's most prominent business men. Alva S. Morrison was a gentleman of the old school, a successful manufacturer and reliable in his dealings. He was born in Braintree Nov. 9, 1835, being in his 74th year. He was the son of the late Alva and Myra (Southworth) Morrison. He attended the public schools of the town including the High school, and then entered the mill with his father, the firm of A. Morrison & Sons being the manufacturers of woolen yarn near the junction of Elm and Adams streets, for many years the leading industry of Braintree and vicinity. They were the originators of the blue-mixed woolen knitting yarn so popular in the household thirty years ago.

After the death of Mr. Morrison's father the firm name was changed to A. S. Morrison & Bros., and included Alva S., the late R. Elmer and Ibrahim Morrison. About 1904 the deceased retired from active business, and was in poor health for some years before his death.

About thirty years ago Mr. Morrison was a member of the Legislature from this town, and also served on the School Committee and took a great interest in public affairs.

Mr. Morrison was twice married. His first wife was Miss Elizabeth Curtis of Weymouth, and they had four children. The two sons, now deceased, became prominent in military affairs of old K company of the Fifth Massachusetts Volunteers. Walter E. Morrison was a major, and Fred Morrison was lieutenant. The daughters, now living, are Mrs. Aubrey S. Hilliard of Braintree and Mrs. Albert Kingsbury of Wollaston. Mr. Morrison's second wife, who survives him, was Miss Rebecca Holyoke of Marlboro ,and they had one daughter, Miss Alice Morrison.

Funeral services were held on Wednesday afternoon from the late home on Adams street, and the Rev. F. R. Griffin of All Souls church was the officiating clergyman. There was no eulogy, but in his scripture selections, a poem and prayer he paid tributes to the deceased. Favorite hymns of Mr. Morrison were sung by his cousins, Mrs. George Elsworth and Mr. L. W. Morrison, including "When the mists have rolled away," "Homeland" and "Go to thy rest." The floral tributes were beautiful, calla lilies and roses predominating. The interment was in the family lot in Mount Wollaston cemetery, Quincy.

TEN-DAY VISIT TO CANAL ZONE

President-Elect Taft and Party Are Homeward Bound

SATISFACTORY PROGRES MADE

Even the Humblest Laborer Interested In His Work—Type of Big Ditch and Continuance of Present Plans Will Depend Upon Report to Be Submitted by Engineers by Time New Orleans Is Reached

"I am not prepared now to make a statement as to the results of the trip to the isthmus, except to say that we have found the work progressing in a most satisfactory way, the organization better than ever before, the esprit de corps excellent and the determination of all, even the humblest laborer, directed to the building of the canal. I am sure this has impressed itself upon every one of the board of visiting engineers as it has upon me.

"With reference to the type of the canal and the continuance of the present plans, the engineers promise that they will be able to hand me their report by the time we land at New Orleans."

Mr. Taft and party reached Colon from Panama Sunday afternoon. Governor Melendez and a large gathering of the Panama Railroad and the isthmian canal commission employes were at the dock to bid the president-elect farewell. Chief Engineer Goethals accompanied Taft on the North Carolina. He will proceed to Washington to discuss the appropriations necessary for the completion of the work.

As the tug which transferred the visitors to the cruiser moved away, the crowds cheered heartily. Taft, looking the picture of health, bowed and called out, laughing: "Keep your eye on that subterranean lake at Gatun."

During his visit here, which lasted ten days, Taft, accompanied on many occasions by the special engineers who came to the isthmus with him, visited every section of the canal. His influence was exerted in bringing about a better feeling between various factions which have been opposing each other since the last election.

CRESCENT CITY PLANS

Frock Coats and Plug Hats the Rule at Coming Taft Reception

New Orleans, Feb. 8.—Quotations on high silk hats and frock coats have taken a sudden jump in the local market, owing to the demand for them for the reception of President-elect Taft this week. Taft will return from Panama via New Orleans next Thursday and will be the city's guest for two days. Several dozen committees are busy arranging a program for his entertainment.

It has been officially announced that everybody connected with the reception must wear the conventional frock coat and high silk hat. On account of climatic conditions this combination has never been a popular one in New Orleans, and in consequence there are several hundred committeemen who find their wardrobes still minus the precious articles and little hope of securing them in the depleted market.

FAST MEN ON RUNNERS

Will Line Up Tonight For Championship Races In New York

New York, Feb. 8.—In the St. Nicholas skating rink, in this city, tonight the pick of the country's amateur skaters will meet. The events will be the half mile and one mile international championship races and a special one mile race, Class A, handicap limit 100 yards. There will also be a half mile race for novices.

Among the entrants in the race are Edmund Lamy, the amateur champion; Lot Roe and Fred Robson, considered Canada's fastest men on the runners; O. Bush of Montreal, one of the speediest skaters in North America, despite the fact that he is minus an arm; Clarence Granger and Phil Kearney, the local cracks; Anderson and Kaad of Chicago, Fisher of Milwaukee, Ahlroth of Duluth and a lot of others.

American Red Cross Orphanage

Rome, Feb. 8.—The American National Red Cross has put $250,000 toward the establishment of an orphanage to be devoted to the care of children left homeless and without parents by the earthquake disaster. This institution will be called the American Red Cross orphanage.

Retains Ski Championship

Eau Claire, Wis., Feb. 8.—John Evanson of Duluth, national ski champion of America, won the professional run of the annual ski tournament of the National Ski association. His two jumps in the championship run were 118 and 121 feet.

PIANO RECITAL AT NORFOLK DOWNS

Interesting and Varied Program Pleases Large Audience.

The piano recital of Miss Marguerite L. Holbrook at Poland's hall, Norfolk Downs, Monday evening, drew an audience that completely filled the hall.

Miss Holbrook was assisted by a number of her pupils and by St. Clair A. Wodell bass soloist and Miss Anna Bjorkman, reader.

Miss Holbrook who is a pupil in piano of C. P. Scott and in voice of Frederick W. Wodell opened the program with Chopin's "Polonaise Militaire." She also gave several other piano numbers all of which were finely rendered. In addition she gave two vocal selections. Miss Holbrook has a sweet, sympathetic voice of wide range and her singing was greatly enjoyed.

Mr. Wodell gave two numbers and was given an enthusiastic reception. The readings of Miss Bjorkman were also greatly enjoyed.

Among Miss Holbrooks pupils who assisted were Miss Florence Martin, Miss Mary E. Collins, Miss Maria Purdy and Miss Edith Hoyt.

The work of the pupils showed careful and thorough training on the part of their teacher.

BY UNDERGROUND CONDUCT.

Telephone Wires Now Enter City Hall Direct.

A large gang of men were at work Monday night changing over the telephone wires that enter the different offices at City hall. These wires formerly came into a test box on the outside of the building from which they were carried into the building.

This box has been removed and the wires now enter the building by an underground conduct leading from the conducts on the west side of Hancock street.

This test box is now located in room 11 in the basement of City Hall.

The brick walk at the corner of City Hall where the police patrol box was formerly located has also been removed and the spot grassed over.

HUSTLING QUINCY LAWYER.

Probably one of the quickest organizations of a corporation on record was done by the office of James L. Edwards on Monday. At 9 A. M. the parties stated that in order to raise a loan to hold on to some valuable options which would expire in 48 hours, they must organize as a corporation under Massachusetts laws. Work was begun at once, papers drawn up, the meeting held, officers elected, and the many details attended to. At 4.30 P. M. the records were filed with and approved by the Commissioner at the State house.

CITY WINS TAX ABATEMENT CASE

Court Dismisses Action Brought by Finnish Association.

The case of the Finnish Workingmens' Association against the City of Quincy was dismissed in the superior court at Dedham Monday.

This was a case where the Finnish society sought to be exempted from paying taxes on its property in Quincy.

The assessment on the property amounted to something over $169.

The association appeared before the Assessors to have the tax abated on the ground that it was a benevolent and church association and therefore should be exempt from taxation. The assessors however refused to abate the tax.

The association then through its counsel A. Chesley York took an appeal and the case came up in the superior court at Dedham, Monday.

The city was represented by City Solicitor McAnarney upon whose motion the case was dismissed.

—Rockefeller told the Georgia farmers that he was no farmer, but his people, as far back as he could remember, were farmers. He might perhaps qualify as an efficient harvester.

WEYMOUTH

The Honey Boys club, an organization composed of a number of prominent young men of this place and East Braintree have fitted up a suite of rooms in the building on Washington square, over Spillane's store. And have organized with the following officers, president, Henry Daley; vice president, James Casey; secretary, John DeNeil; treasurer, George Dowd. They are arranging for a grand ball to be held in the near future.

It is reported that Millard P. Bryant a prominent business man and heavy tax payer is to be a candidate for the office of selectman.

The second annual cosmopolitan costume party of the Imaculate Conception associates will be held at town hall Friday evening, Feb. 19.

The rain and warm weather has put a stop to the ice cutting industry. But with a few cold days the work will be resumed.

The Men's club of the Third Universalist church of which Rev. Melvin S. Nash, senator from the first Plymouth district is pastor, held its monthly supper Monday evening; over 200 attended. The speaker of the evening was Allen Treadway president of the Massachusetts senate.

The school committee will recommend that the town sell the Bicknell school house and lot and use the proceeds for grading the grounds about the high school building.

Miss Nellie Hayden of Lynn has been the guest of local friends.

The Union literary circle will meet this evening with Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Lund.

The ladies of Trinity church are to hold a St. Valentine supper and entertainment at Pythian hall next Monday evening.

Patrick Casey is about again after his recent severe illness.

The Selectmen have issued a notice that all articles to be inserted in the annual town warrant must be received by some member of the board by 1.30 P. M. Saturday, Feb. 13.

The board of registrars of voters will hold a session at the town office this morning and tomorrow evening will be in session at engine hall North Weymouth.

Tirrell and Bailey have secured their crop of ice. It is eleven inches thick and of excellent quality.

FALLS HEIR TO LARGE ESTATE

W. J. Flanagan Receives News Of Unexpected Windfall.

Mark J. Flanagan, 35 years old of Ratchford street, Houghs Neck, received word today of an inheritance from the estate of his father amounting to over $18,000. His father, Michael A. Flanagan, a wealthy contractor died on the Steamship "Baltic," January 27th while on the high seas.

Mr. Flanagan's father was engaged in the contracting business for thirty years in Boston and left a fortune, amounting to nearly $150,000 to his eight children. While directing a crew of his workmen some time ago he suffered a strain, which made an operation imperative. Mr. Flanagan left Boston for Manchester, England, to consult a specialist. An operation was performed but at his advanced age he could not stand the shock. Knowing this he boarded the "Baltic" and made an attempt to get back to Boston so as to die among his children.

The eight heirs to the Flanagan estate are scattered all over the country. Mark was not expecting any share of his father's estate and he received the news with great surprise. When seen by a Ledger reporter, Mr. Flanagan said, "Yes, it is true that I am one of the heirs of my father's estate. I received word from his lawyer that I could get my share at any time. I was greatly surprised when I heard the news as I did not think that he was worth at the most over $25,000 and you can imagine my surprise when I heard of the amount." When asked what he would do with his share, he said, "I am going to put it in the bank and watch for a good opportunity to get in business for myself."

Ten above zero in some places at sunrise this morning. The predictions are for some snapping cold weather this week.

RECENT DEATHS.

Mrs. Ellen V. Mackey.

The funeral of Mrs. Ellen V. Mackey, widow of Richard D. Mackey was held this morning from the home of her sister Mrs. Katherine Talbot, 21 Goddard street. A high mass of requiem was celebrated at 9 o'clock in St. John's church by Rev. John J. Coan. The regular choir sang the Gregorian mass, Miss Mary McConarty singing the Pie Jesu. John Mahon presided at the organ.

The church was filled with many friends and relatives from Boston, Quincy and Taunton. The flowers were many and beautiful. The bearers were Bernard Galligan, Stephen Talbot, Frank Kiley and Bernard Talbot. The body was taken to Taunton for burial in the family lot in St. Francis cemetery.

Mrs. Annie Stedman.

The funeral of Mrs. Annie Stedman, widow of Richard Stedman, was held this morning from the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Shea 25 Larry place, West Quincy. Rev. William J. Duffy celebrated a requiem high mass at 9 o'clock in St. Mary's church. The regular choir sang the Gregorian mass, Miss Rena Bizzozzero presiding at the organ.

Mrs. Stedman was a former resident of Quincy, but at the time of her death, she was living in Norton, Mass. The burial was at St. Mary's cemetery, West Quincy.

Mrc. Florence I. LaBrecque.

The funeral of Mrs. Florence J. LaBrecque, wife of Arthur J. LaBrecque, was held Monday afternoon at 2.30 at the Great Hill House, Houghs Neck. Rev. E. C. Butler officiated. The floral tributes were beautiful. Burial was at Mt. Wollaston.

Henry S. Totman.

The funeral of Henry S. Totman, aged 74, was held Monday afternoon at his late home 96 Chubbuck street. The services were conducted by Rev. Alfred R. Atwood, pastor of the Washington Street Congregational church, assisted by Rev. George Benedict, a former pastor and an old friend of the family. A large number of relatives and friends attended the services. The floral tributes were many and beautiful. The burial was in Mt. Wollaston cemetery.

PRESIDENT TELLS OF COUNTRY

"Farm Life" Message Sent To Congress

Washington Feb. 9. — President Roosevelt sent to congress today a special message transmitting the report of the country life commission, appointed by him to investigate the conditions of life on the farms of the country and to make recommendations of ways and means whereby farm life may be made more remunerative and attractive.

In the message the president lays stress upon the fact that the farmers and their families are the stay and strength of the country and that whatever tends to make their lives less burdensome or unattractive is necessary to the interests of the nation. He praises the work of the members of the commission, who, as he says, have labored without pay and do not now ask compensation for their work. The only recommendation in the message is the request for an appropriation of $25,000 to enable the commission to digest the material it has collected and put it in such shape that it will be available for the nation.

In an appendix to the message, preceding the report of the commission, the president comments on the replies made by a Missouri farmer to the questions asked by the commission. "To the question, 'Is the supply of farm labor in your neighborhood satisfactory?' the answer is, 'No, because the people have gone out of the baby business,' and when asked as to the remedy he answers, 'Give a pention to every mother who gives birth to seven living boys on American soil.'"

The president's message is as follows:

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

I transmit herewith the report of the commission on country life. At the outset I desire to point out that not a dollar of the public money has been paid to any commissioner for his work on the commission.

The report shows the general condition of farming life in the open country and points out its larger problems. It indicates ways in which the government, national and state, may show the people how to solve some of these problems, and it suggests a continuance of the work which the commission began.

Methods of the Commission.

Judging by thirty public hearings, to which farmers and farmers' wives from forty states and territories came, and from 120,000 answers to printed questions sent out by the department of agriculture, the commission finds that the general level of country life is high compared with any preceding time or with any other land. If it has in recent years slipped down in some places, it has risen in more places. Its progress has been general, if not uniform.

Yet farming does not yield either the profit or the satisfaction that it ought to yield and may be made to yield. There is discontent in the country and in places discouragement. Farmers as a class do not magnify their calling, and the movement to the towns, though, I am happy to say, less than formerly, is still strong.

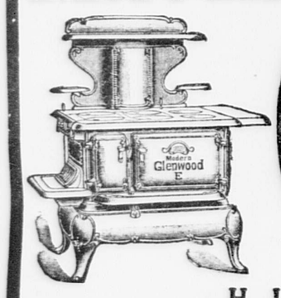

How Farmers Can Help Themselves.

Under our system it is helpful to promote discussion of ways in which the people can help themselves. There are three main directions in which the farmers can help themselves—namely, better farming, better business and better living on the farm. The national department of agriculture, which has rendered services equaled by no other similar department in any other time or place; the state departments of agriculture, the state colleges of agriculture and the mechanic arts, especially through their extension work; the state agricultural experiment stations, the Farmers' union, the grange, the agricultural press and other similar agencies have all combined to place within the reach of the American farmer an amount and quality of agricultural information which if applied would enable him over large areas to double the production of the farm.

The object of the commission on country life, therefore, is not to help the farmer raise better crops, but to call his attention to the opportunities for better business and better living on the farm. If country life is to become what it should be and what I believe it ultimately will be—one of the most dignified, desirable and sought after ways of earning a living—the farmer must take advantage not only of the agricultural knowledge which is at his disposal, but of the methods which have raised and continue to

FIRST AID TO INJURED.

Competent Instructors Engaged to Teach Class at Y. M. C. A.

Many lives are sacrificed every year in this country because in cases of accident, drowning, etc., there is no one at hand who knows the right thing to do. Every well equipped man or woman should have some training along this line. In some cities the regulations compel the police and firemen to study first aid.

In order to supply such training, a class in "first aid to the injured," will be started at the Y. M. C. A. tonight at 7 P. M., under the auspices of the National Red Cross society." Herman Ulrich of the B. U. Medical school and Dr. Sargent will act as teachers.

—It is expected that the speech to be made by Sen. Lodge before the Massachusetts legislature on the occasion of Lincoln's birthday will be one of the best efforts of his life. The senior senator had turned down scores of invitations from all parts of the country on the ground that he could not spare the time to prepare such a speech. If he spoke at all he wanted his address to be the best that his pen could produce. As soon as the Massachusetts legislative invitation came along he decided that he could not resist the call from his own state and his speech is now practically completed and those who will have an opportunity to listen to it will undoubtedly declare that it will go on record as the best address ever delivered before the great and general court.—Practical Politics.

A telephone message was received at City Hall Monday from Mayor Shea who is in New York, inquiring how things were in Quincy. He stated that he would leave Monday night with a party of friends for North Carolina. He will return before the next meeting of the City Council.

"Poverty is expensive," says the Dayton News. This high cost of business bobs up everywhere, it seems.

The University of Chicago sees no reason to doubt that the prosperity will continue.

We suppose somebody will declare Carrie Nation a myth some day but it will be long after she is unable to get at them.

The Senate is asking Bonaparte questions which he doesn't answer while Roosevelt is answering questions that are not asked.

According to the Allentown Call, a New Jersey minister marries couples and his son gets divorces for them. That's pretty fine team work, at all events.

It is contended that Edgar Allan Poe was born in three separate cities. By and by, Poe may equal Christopher Columbus' record and find himself buried in five or six.

With the passing of John B. Moran Massachusetts, especially Boston, has lost one of the most unique and powerful characters that appeared on the political horizon of the old Bay State. Although Mr. Moran had few friends, there are hundreds of people who admired, his wonderful personality and kind heart, and they will miss him.

According to a news item "disguises are reported in local automobile circles to be the latest trick resorted to by police in certain localities to trap overspeeders. According to the report ambitious sleuths are impersonating chauffeurs, even to the goggles and other "fixin's." These bogus chauffeurs plod along roads frequented by automobiles and when one comes along, hail it and ask for a lift. If their request is granted they jump in and take the speed at which they are going and if their unsuspecting "host" is exceeding the limit, he usually receives a summons. There have been many kinds of traps invented to stop overspeeding but in the slang of the day "this is the limit," and automobilists are pretty charry of "lifting" any automobileless chauffeurs, they chance to meet.

In a recent editorial, the Brockton Times makes certain sarcastic remarks about, the representatives of various towns and cities who are trying to induce Brockton shoe manufacturers to locate in their respective burgs. According to the Times "no less than half a dozen towns are after Brockton business," at the present time, and from the tone of the editorial one would imagine, that some of them at least were likely to succeed in their endeavors.

Among the towns mentioned, are Athol, Spencer, Beverly and Marlboro, which with the exception of Marlboro are probably no better adapted for shoe manufacturing purposes than is Quincy. According to Supt. Drake of the W. L. Douglas Company, Quincy is an ideal location for the shoe industry, and yet we regret to state, that so far as we know no effort has been made to get any business here. Would it not be well for the city to communicate with some of the firms who are talking of moving from Brockton and see if some agreement could not be reached whereby the firms could be induced to locate in this city?

Then if favorable reports were received, they could be laid before the citizens as a whole, for their approval or disapproval. Until something of this kind is done we cannot expect to get business here, so why delay? The expense will be nothing, while the results may be of inestimable value to the city. Although there seems to be a diversity of opinion, as to whether Quincy should be a commercial, or residential city we fully believe that all true citizens who have the interests of the city at heart, wish to see her grow commercially, and will do all in their power to help her attain this desired end, if the case is "put up" to them.

With the present unsettled and unsatisfactory conditions existing in Brockton, the time seems especially ripe for Quincy to get the right sort of business if we only make a bid for it. If we fail to succeed in our attempts we shall still have the satisfaction of having made a try at least, which is better then doing nothing.

EDITORIAL COMMENTS.

There is a $1000 fine attached to the crime, offense, or misdemeanor, whatever you may call it, of being behind time with the electoral vote of a State, but was it ever collected? Two of the messengers were delayed by storms, and came through as soon as travel was possible. Each of them started from home with the thought of a pleasure trip to Washington, with all expenses paid, but if they are obliged to pay the heavy fine that is the penalty of their tardiness, there will not be much fun in the business. There is a lot of red tape connected with the declaring, receiving and counting the electoral vote, and some more simple method ought to be devised. The present way has the virtue of age and established custom, but if the Congress would give us something a little less involved the people of the country would be as well served, and everybody as well satisfied.—Lynn Item.

In Maine some people are seeking to make trouble for the automobilists, and if all succeeded in their desires there would be a sort of checkboard made of the State, and the autoist would have to carry an airship with him in order to enable him to jump certain barred spaces. Mt. Desert, Eden, Tremont and Southwest Harbor are making a campaign against the machines. A bill seeks to cut the machines out of Sullivan, which would bar the way to Sorrento, where Chief Justice Fuller lives in the summertime. Another bill calls for barring automobiles from Athen and Solon three days in each week. If all these bills passed an automobile driver would have to go equipped with maps, machines to lift him, would have to figure what days of the week he could go through certain towns and in general would have so much trouble that it wouldn't be worth while to use an automoblie at all in certain sections of the State. That this would affect Maine's summer business would seem to be a fair inference to draw, and the Maine people, one of whose greatest industries is entertaining the summer visitors, might well pause and think it over before prosecuting this war on what is generally recognized as something that has come to stay.—Brockton Enterprise.

"Good for rich and poor alike," was the argument of Charles K. Fox in lauding the virtues of savings banks' insurance at the public conference in Unity hall yesterday night. That told the story in a sentence and secured the general approval of an attentive and intelligent audience representing every walk of life in this community. There were advocates of the old-line companies present, as a matter of course, ready to defend their standards and the industrial system had its counselors at hand. But in the main, it was admitted that the savings bank insurance plan is one that is pressing for solution.

"There is no question about the safety of the system," said Mr. Fox. "You cannot lose. This matter of savings bank insurance cannot be a step backward. There is no chance of a loss or miscarriage of confidence placed in it." His assertions were endorsed by the utterances of Robert G. Hunter, state actuary, who came to Haverhill at the earnest solicitation of Mr. Fox. There is no higher authority in this country. His service as a former actuary of the New York Life company entitles him to speak by the card on matters of insurance.

Mr. Hunter made clear the line of difference between the British system and the Massachusetts plan that seeks to make her superannuated workingmen independent instead of dependent and to relieve instead of further burdening general taxation. Her aim is to make the opportunities for saving money as numerous as the opportunities for wasting it to make saving popular by giving to the saver all that his money can earn.

Success of the Masachusetts system can, of course, come only with a full appreciation by the employe, the employer and the community that provision for old age and life insurance is an integral part of the daily cost of living; that no wage is a "living wage" which does not permit the workingmen to set apart each day or week or month the necessary cost of such provision for the future; that no workingman can be truly self-supporting and independent who does not make such provision; and that the savings banks will enable him to make the provision at the lowest possible cost—Haverhill Gazette.

President Wants Apparatus on Ocean-Going Ships

Washington, Feb. 9.—To prevent the loss of life by catastrophe at sea such as nearly befel when the transatlantic liner Republic went down recently, the president sent to congress a message urging the passage of a bill similar to that introduced by Representative Burke (Pa.), requiring the equipment of ocean-going vessels with wireless telegraph apparatus.

The president had been advised by the commissioner of navigation that in his opinion such legislation was most urgently demanded, and he urged in strong language the passage of this or a similar bill.

DAYTON POLICE BUSY

Trying to Trace the Movements of Girl Who Was Murdered

Dayton, O., Feb. 9.—Still groping for clues to the identity of Elizabeth Fulhart's murderer and to possess every scrap of information concerning the whereabouts of the girl prior to the crime, the police of Dayton have been unable as yet definitely to settle upon a stable theory about the mystery which continues to be the absorbing topic here.

The authorities claim to have information on which to base a belief that two girls answering the description of Miss Fulhart and the woman who was seen in her company applied for a place in a resort conducted by a women in Pearl street. The date given by the woman is Jan. 14.

Jacob Reedy, a shoemaker, says that two girls entered his shop on the afternoon of the same day. One of the girls had the heels of her shoes lowered, and these shoes were found on the dead girl's feet. According to Reedy his visitors admitted they had been drinking and said they were going to a theatre.

IMPORTANT CAPTURES

Brooklyn Police Think They Have Bagged Expert Criminals

New York, Feb. 9.—The Brooklyn police took into custody five men and a woman who they believe are members of a gang who have been operating in several cities. Richard Osborne, who, they say, is wanted in Washington, was arrested while sitting in a box at a theatre in Brooklyn. At the house where he had been stopping the police arrested Ernest Edwards, Harry Brennan, Peter Peterson, James Crosby and Mrs. Helen Pool. They are held on suspicion.

The police searched the apartment and found two magazine guns, $1500 in molten gold and silver, $2000 worth of jewelry, fulminating caps and two bottles of nitro-glycerine.

MAY ALLAY TENSION

Much Importance Attached to King Edward's Visit to Germany

Berlin, Feb. 9.—The visit of King Edward today is regarded generally as an event at the present moment of the greatest political significance and with the feeling that it would be an excellent thing for both nations if the meeting of the two monarchs resulted in a mutual understanding tending to allay international tension.

From no quarter, however, is the expectation voiced with any confidence that the visit of the English king will produce direct tangible effects.

King Edward is accompanied by Queen Alezandra and official circles welcomed the royal visitors in the most courtly tone.

One More Juror Needed to Complete Panel In Carmack Case

Nashville, Feb. 9.—The nineteenth day of the trial closed with the jury still incomplete in the case of the state against Duncan B. Cooper, Robin J. Cooper and John D. Sharpe, charged with the murder of E. W. Carmack.

One juror, the eleventh, was sent into the box Monday. To get him 221 talesmen were examined. Of these only seven were able to qualify and six of these seven were challenged peremptorily.

Eleanor Cowper's Will

Middletown, N. Y., Feb. 9.—The will of Mrs. Eleanor Cowper, the actress and playwright, who committed suicide in New York, leaves the entire estate to H. B. Royce of this city, in trust for Mrs. Cowper's mother, now of Portland, Me., who will receive a weekly allowance as long as the fund lasts.

Minister's Slayer Caught

Houston, Miss., Feb. 9.—Feeling is intense, but it is believed that mob violence to Rody Baskin, confessed slayer of Rev. W. T. Hudson, whose bullet-riddled body was found half submerged in a pond near Houston, has been averted by an announcement that a speedy trial will be held.

DEMANDS OF LYNN STRIKERS GRANTED

Shoe City May Have Local Board of Arbitration

Lynn, Mass., Feb. 9.—A strike of pullers-over and machine operators at the shoe factory of A. M. Creighton has been settled, Creighton agreeing to the demands of the men for an increase in pay amounting to ¼ cent on each pair of shoes of two particular grades. Sixty men have been out on strike since last Thursday.

Partly as a result of his experiences in this strike Mayor Rich will submit to the city council a plan for the formation of a permanent local arbitration board to consider labor disputes.

A LINCOLN MEMORIAL

Advice Given by National Institute of Arts and Letters

Washington, Feb. 9.—At the beautiful Octagon House, the home of the American Institute of Architects, the art council of thirty appointed by the president assembled for its first meeting today. The meeting was called primarily for organization, but the Lincoln memorial site question also came up for discussion.

The president is greatly interested in the subject and wishes to have the matter of the site for the proposed memorial to Lincoln in Washington settled as soon as possible.

Such questions as the site of the Lincoln memorial come properly within the province of the council, which consists of architects, painters, sculptors, landscape architects and laymen. The object of the council is the proffering of advice and assistance in the discussion of plans for public works into which architecture, painting and sculpture enter, such as monuments, parks, bridges, etc. It is also to make recommendations for the preservation of historical monuments.

The following resolution was adopted after some discussion:

"Resolved: That the National Institute of Arts and Letters heartily approves of the plan of a Lincoln memorial in Washington and the institute records its earnest conviction that historically, as well as artistically, it would be a mistake to locate the memorial between the railway station and the Capitol."

CUT HIS OWN THROAT

New Haven Man Commits Suicide After Trying to Kill Landlady

Bridgeport, Conn., Feb. 9.—After attempting to kill Mrs. Robert Unwin, with whom he boarded, William H. Hopkinson committed suicide. Mrs. Unwin will recover.

The affair was the outcome of a suit brought by Mrs. Unwin's husband against Hopkinson for $10,000 for the alienation of his wife's affections. Calling Mrs. Ulwin into his room, Hopkinson accused her of having ruined him financially through her friendship for him and cut her throat with a razor, after which he turned the razor on himself, severing the jugular vein.

Unwin called on his wife at the hospital and it is thought a reconciliation will be brought about.

Cambridge, Mass., Feb. 9.—A robbery of postoffice money orders from sub-station 33 of the Boston postoffice, which may net the thief $13,400, was effected here.

The sub-station is situated in the drug store of Maurice O'Donnell. The blanks taken numbered 134, and ranged from 15,366 to 15,400. In addition to the blanks the robber secured a die, marking the blanks as genuine, and several other qualifying materials.

Mauretania Makes Record

Queenstown, Feb. 9.—The Cunard line steamer Mauretania has established a record to Daunt's Rock lightship for the long route. The liner covered the distance, 2934 miles, at an average speed of 25.20 knots. The passage was made in 4 days, 20 hours and 27 minutes.

TO JOIN RELIGION AND EDUCATION

Aim of Association Meeting In Chicago Tonight

PROMINENT EDUCATORS THERE

Some of Country's Best Known Professors and Leaders of Thought at Convention—Movement Indorsed by President Roosevelt at Last Year's Convention—Aims of the Organization

Chicago, Feb. 9.—This city is the scene today of a notable gathering of men and women interested in the higher life of America and its relations to religion and education. They have assembled here to attend the sixth general convention of the Religious Education association, which will begin tonight a three days' meeting in Orchestra hall.

The sessions of the association will be opened by the address of the president of the association, Dr. Francis Greenwood Peabody, who is professor of Christian morals at Harvard university. He will speak on "The Social Conscience and the Religious Life." Benjamin Ide Wheeler of the University of California will speak on "Religious Education and Moral Efficiency" and Professor S. C. Mitchell, president-elect of the University of South Carolina, on "Religious Education and Racial Adjustment."

The convention has brought together scores of the most prominent educators and thinkers of the country who have identified themselves with the association and who are its most enthusiastic supporters and hundreds of men and women who, though less prominent, are just as heartily in sympathy with the objects of the association.

An extraordinary list of well known men will be in attendance, and the speakers at the popular meetings, besides those mentioned above, will include President Eliot of Harvard University, Ambassador James Bryce, Miss Jane Addams of Hull House, Marion Talbot, dean of the woman's college, University of Chicago; Professor Cyrus Northrop, president of the University of Minnesota, and others.

Organized in Chicago six years ago, the association has held largely attended conventions since then in Boston, Philadelphia, Rochester and Washington. At Washington President Roosevelt received the delegates at the White House and gave his heartiest indorsement to all the details of the movement. The purpose of the association is to inspire the educational forces of the country with the religious ideal, to inspire the religious forces of our country with the educational ideal and to keep before the public the ideal of religious education and the sense of its need and value.

The association now enrolls more than 2000 members, including laymen, college presidents and professors, pastors, teachers and parents, interested in the problem of character training. It knows no sectarian lines and has no theological platform.

BOSTON AUTOMOBILE SHOW.

In an interview with Mr. Chester I. Campbell, Manager of the Boston Automobile show, he said, "The forthcoming Boston Automobile show will be a record breaker in every sense of the word. I do not believe it would be too one-sided for me to make the very broad statement that Boston has always led in the automobile show line ever since the inception of this great exposition. While it is true, Paris has had the name up to within the last two years of having the most sensational show, especially in the way of decorations, yet Boston was the first to adopt the uniform decorative scheme and this has been followed by every other show in this country and they are commencing to take up the same idea throughout the European capitols. This is extremely gratifying to the dealers of this city for there is always a source of satisfaction in realizing that Boston and New England are setting the pace for the entire country, as well as many of the foreign cities and should not the exhibition be proud that it has gained for itself the greatest name and at which there has been the greatest amount of business done, in the short time since its birth? It is truly remarkable how the Boston Automobile Show has grown. Seven years ago, it was very hard work for the present Manager and a few assistants to get enough exhibitors to fill Symphony hall, and then even greater work to gather sufficient money together to guarantee the actual expenses of that show, but since that time the growth has been phenominal. From the original fourteen exhibitors we will have somthing over four hundred exhibitors with every known make of car and accessory in this or any other land. With all these achievements, should not the automobile dealers and automobile enthusiasts feel proud? Should they not lend their hands in making this the greatest show of its kind ever held? Should they not join together during this show to assist every legitimate Act or Law to be passed furthering the interests of the automobilists and to assist in everything pertaining to the improvement of road conditions? It is the greatest opportunity that has ever been presented to have the automobilists together and stand for what is right and just in automobile legislation and I am confident that we can show the proper authorities that the automobilists are the most law-abiding group of enthusiasts that have ever existed. They only want justice in their laws and they are willing to live up to and assist in carrying out of same.

All this is part of the show business, for the show creates interest—the interest makes the buyer and the buyer makes the user."

—Abrahom Lincoln was the first prominent public man in America to come out for woman suffrage. He declared for it in a letter to his constituents published in the Sangamon County Journal, as far back as 1836. The suffragists are recalling this fact, in connection with the preparations for the coming Lincoln centennial.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

WEEK END PARTY.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Carruthers of Edison street entertained a few friends Saturday evening to meet their eldest daughter Miss Mary Carruthers who was home over the week end. Among those who spent a very pleasant evening singing and dancing were Miss J. Joss, Miss H. Perse, Mr. and Mrs. R. Kuester and others..

Mr. Carruthers favored with a cornet solo; Miss Margaret Carruthers played the piano at which she is an expert; Mr. Kuester favored with his famous Donkey song remarking at the same time that the next one who asked him to sing it would need flowers. The evening wound up with a dainty supper. Miss Carruthers left for New Hampshire Sunday afternoon where she is principal of a school.

CRYSTAL ANNIVERSARY.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter J. Cahill, observed the fifteenth anniversary of their marriage, at their home 76 Franklin street, Quincy Adams, Friday evening. Cards and music were enjoyed and a dainty lunch served. They were the recipients of many beautiful remembrances. Guests were present from Quincy and the surrounding suburbs. All departed at a late hour, wishing Mr. and Mrs. Cahill many happy years of wedded life.

WHY SO WEAK?

Kidney Troubles May be Sapping Your Life Away. Quincy People Have Learned This Fact.

When a healthy man or woman begins to run down without apparent cause, becomes weak, lanquid, depressed, suffers backache, headache, dizzy spells and urinary disorders, look to the kidneys for the cause of it all. Keep the kidneys well and they will keep you well. Doan's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys and keep them well. Here is Quincy testimony to prove it.

Mrs. J. Boyle, living at 8 Marsh street, Quincy, Mass., says: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills and can say they are unequalled for the purpose for which they are intended. They built up my general system and in six weeks' time, freed me from kidney complaint from which I had suffered for a great many years. This valuable remedy can be procured at the Cox Drug Store."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

RESPONSIBLE FOR OWN MISCONDUCT

President Opposes Advancement of a Naval Officer

Washington, Feb. 9.—President Roosevelt sent a veto message to the house, returning without approval a bill which would advance in rank Lieutenant Commander Kenneth McAlpine of the navy.

The bill states that the officer left the service on July 17, 1903, as a result of his indulgence in alcoholic intoxicants. It declares that he was returned to the service by the act of March 3, 1905.

The president agrees with the opinion expressed by the secretary of the navy, that McAlpine has been shown considerable clemency and that the enactment of the bill would confer on him all the benefits to which he would have been entitled but for his own misconduct, which would be harmful to the discipline of the service.

MADE IT A LIFE STUDY

Dr. J. S. Leonhardt Found the Cause and Cure of Piles.

Dr. J. S. Leonhardt, the celebrated specialist of Lincoln, Neb., proved after years of study, that the cause of piles is internal—bad circulation. Then he perfected Hem-Roid ,an internal remedy, and in 1000 different cases it cured 98 per cent. By Dr. Leonhardt's order, Hem-Roid is sold under an iron-clad guarantee. If it fails, the money is paid back.

ANTI-JAPANESE SCHOOL BILL

Federal Courts May Be Asked to Test California Legislation

President Protests Against Action Which Combines Minimum of Efficiency With Maximum of Insult—Wants Legislators to Understand Inner Facts Without News Becoming Public and Making Trouble

Washington, Feb. 9.—"The policy of the administration is to combine the maximum of efficiency in achieving the real object which the people of the Pacific slope have at heart, with the minimum of friction and trouble, while the misguided men who advocate such action as this against which I protest are following a policy which combines the very minimum of efficiency with the maximum of insult, and which, while totally failing to achieve any real results for good, yet might accomplish an infinity of harm."

In this language President Roosevelt, in a long telegram to Speaker Stanton of the California assembly, set forth the government's view of the anti-Japanese school legislation now before that body.

The president said that the bill gives just and grave cause for irritation and that the government would be obliged immediately to take action in the federal courts to test such legislation, because it is held to be clearly a violation of the treaty obligation of the United States.

The telegram to Stanton was sent only after a conference with Senator Flint and Representative Kahn of California and F. K. Lane of the interstate commerce commission.

The president takes the view that the Japanese evil is something like a cancer in the human system, that the outbreaks in California and Nevada are like the eruptions due to a deep-seated disease in a human body. He is coming to the conclusion that those trouble-making outbreaks will continue so long as the chief evil is present.

The president has heard that Nebraska and Oregon are about to follow the example of California and Nevada in enacting hostile Japanese legislation. In all states the object is the same—to exclude. He fears the result of a widespread movement against the Japanese, and wants to stop action in other states as well as in California.

The Japanese government, with admirable patience, is keeping quiet in the meantime. It is stated that no representations on the subject of the California proceedings have beeen made by Ambassador Takahira. It is further stated that the president, Takahira and the Japanese home officials are all working with a thorough understanding and complete sympathy.

As a result of Monday's conference at the White House additional pressure is to be exerted from Washington on the members of the California legislature to hold off on the anti-Japanese school bill.

The most difficult task of the president is to impress upon the California legislature the inner facts of the Japanese situation as he understands them without the news becoming public and making trouble. He can hardly take the whole legislature into his confidence, although it is known that he has communicated the facts to Governor Gillett and Speaker Stanton.

LIFE BEGINS AT BIRTH

Decision of St. Louis Judge In Suit Against a Street Car Company

St. Louis, Feb. 9.—Circuit Court Judge Williams in a decision held that a child's life begins at birth and not before.

In sustaining a demurrer of a street car company to the suit of Cornelius H. Buel and wife for damages for the death of their 4-months-old son, who, it was claimed, died as a result of an accident which occurred before he was born, the judge based his ruling on a part of the scriptures. He quoted Genesis, ii:7.

Fisheries Treaty In Senate

Washington, Feb. 9.—The Newfoundland fisheries treaty between the United States and Great Britain was read in the senate and referred to the committee on foreign relations. It is likely that the treaty will be taken up at Wednesday's meeting of the committee.

Murderer Not Found

Ottumwa, Ia., Feb. 9.—In connection with the murder of Clara Rosen, who was beaten to death with a rock and whose body was hidden in an abandoned cellar, the police have set free all persons apprehended in connection with the case.

Fell Into Boiling Soap

Lebanon, N. H., Feb. 9.—Working in the Carter & Rogers woolen mills, Eli Fayette slipped and fell into a vat of boiling soap, and received burns from which he died. He was 36 years old.

Gets Double Life Sentence

Atlanta, Feb. 9.—Two life sentences is the predicament of Noah Adams, a negro of Columbus. He pleaded guilty to two serious charges and was sentenced on each.

LONG VACATION FOR CHILDREN

Schools In Cranston to Close For an Indefinite Time

MET UNFORESEEN EXPENSES

Town Meeting Failed to Appropriate Funds Necessary to Pay Salaries of Teachers and Janitors to End of Present School Year—Money May Not Be Available Until After the Third Monday In April

Cranston, R. I., Feb. 9.—The school committee voted last night to close all the schools in the town for an indefinite time. This action follows the failure of the special town meeting which was held last Saturday to make an appropriation necessary for the payment of teachers and janitors to the end of the present school year.

Just how long the schools will remain closed is uncertain. Unless another special town meeting is called they are not likely to be re-opened until after the regular annual town meeting on the third Monday in April.

Members of the school board say that they will not ask to have another special town meeting called, because their request for an appropriation at last Saturday's meeting was ignored. That meeting, the committeemen declare, was practically in the hands of a mob, the opposition declaring the call illegal and refusing to permit any motion to proceed to businsss to be entertained.

That the school appropriation has become exhausted before the end of the year is due, according to the committeemen, to unforeseen expenses which were, however, entirely unnecessary.

There are ninety-five teachers in the town, all of whom will be out of employment as the result of the committee's action. The number of pupils is 3225.

SUIT OVER A FLEA

Man Who Claimed He Was Injured by Insect's Bite Loses

London, Feb. 9.—In the Cardiff county court a workman seriously sued his employers for compensation for injuries sustained while putting in a shop front, the injuries being the result of a flea bite.

The claimant's solicitor asked for an arjournment, as he said his client was ill. The judge granted the adjournment, and was then informed that the claimant had been seen in the neighborhood of the court.

Thereupon the judge gave judgment for the defendants, on the ground that the man might have been carrying the flea for half an hour before he went to work.

FUND REACHES $50,000

Provisions For Mother and Baby Sufferers From Earthquake

Washington, Feb. 9.—When Queen Helena of Italy, three weeks ago, consented to take charge of the distribution of The Christian Herald fund for the relief of the mother and baby sufferers of the earthquake disaster, The Christian Herald agreed to supply $1000 a day toward this object.

During the three weeks it has sent $25,000 and yesterday it contributed another $25,000 toward the same object. The American National Red Cross has transmitted a check of that amount to Ambassador Mayor des Planches.

Land Bill and Other Matters to Be Discussed In Dublin Convention

Dublin, Feb. 9.—The national convention, representing the United Irish league, the Ancient Hibernians, the Foresters and other bodies met today in the Mansion House.

The principal purpose of the convention is the discussion of the policy to be pursued during the coming session of parliament by the Irish members. The land bill and other measures of importance to Ireland will come before the convention.

Sagamore Weavers on Strike

Fall River, Mass., Feb. 9.—All the weavers employed in the Sagamore mills, numbering 200, are on strike. It is understood that the discharge of James Hargraves, overseer of weaving in that mill, is the cause of the dissatisfaction.

Six New Dreadnaughts

London, Feb. 9.—It is understood that the cabinet ministers have come to an agreement on the question of naval policy and that the new shipbuilding program will include six dreadnaughts.

Menelik on Automobile Tour

Addis Abeba, Abyssinia, Feb. 9.—The reports in circulation of the serious illness of King Menelik are officially denied. The king is now absent from the capital on an automobile tour.

Fast Time on Roller Skates

Pittsburg, Feb. 9.—J. M. Mason of Newark, N. J., broke the world's record for one mile on roller skates at the national professional roller championship races, his time being 2:49 1-5.

President Tells of Country Needs

raise the standards of living and of intelligence in other callings.

Those engaged in all other industrial and commercial callings have found it necessary under modern economic conditions to organize themselves for mutual advantage and for the protection of their own particular interests in relation to other interests. The farmers of every progressive European country have realized this essential fact and have found in the cooperative system exactly the form of business combination they need.

Now, whatever the state may do toward improving the practice of agriculture, it is not within the sphere of any government to reorganize the farmers' business or reconstruct the social life of farming communities. It is, however, quite within its power to use its influence and the machinery of publicity which it can control for calling public attention to the needs and the facts. For example, it is the obvious duty of the government to call the attention of farmers to the growing monopolization of water power. The farmers, above all, should have that power, on reasonable terms, for cheap transportation, for lighting their homes and for innumerable uses in the daily tasks on the farm.

Farmers' Own Work Needed.

It would be idle to assert that life on the farm occupies as good a position in dignity, desirability and business results as the farmers might easily give it if they chose. One of the chief difficulties is the failure of country life as it exists at present to satisfy the higher social and intellectual aspirations of country people. Whether the constant draining away of so much of the best elements in the rural population into the towns is due chiefly to this cause or to the superior business opportunities of city life may be open to question. But no one at all familiar with farm life throughout the United States can fail to recognize the necessity for building up the life of the farm upon its social as well as upon its productive side.

It is true that country life has improved greatly in attractiveness, health and comfort and that the farmer's earnings are higher than they were. But city life is advancing even more rapidly because of the greater attention which is being given by the citizens of the towns to their own betterment. For just this reason the introduction of effective agricultural cooperation throughout the United States is of the first importance. Where farmers are organized co-operatively they not only avail themselves much more readily of business opportunities and improved methods, but it is found that the organizations which bring them together in the work of their lives are used also for social and intellectual advancement.

The co-operative plan is the best plan of organization wherever men have the right spirit to carry it out. Under this plan any business undertaking is managed by a committee. Every man has one vote and only one vote, and every one gets profits according to what he sells or buys or supplies. It develops individual responsibility and has a moral as well as a financial value over any other plan.

Farmers' Problems the Whole Country's

I desire only to take counsel with the farmers as fellow citizens. It is not the problem of the farmers alone that I am discussing with them, but a problem which affects every city as well as every farm in the country. It is a problem which the working farmers will have to solve for themselves, but it is a problem which also affects in only less degree all the rest of us, and therefore if we can render any help toward its solution it is not only our duty, but our interest to do so.

The foregoing will, I hope, make it clear why I appointed a commission to consider problems of farm life which have hitherto had far too little attention and the neglect of which has not only held back life in the country, but also lowered the efficiency of the whole nation. The welfare of the farmer is of vital consequence to the welfare of the whole community. The strengthening of country life, therefore, is the strengthening of the whole nation.

The commission has tried to help the farmers to see clearly their own problem and to see it as a whole, to distinguish clearly between what the government can do and what the farmers must do for themselves, and it wishes to bring not only the farmers, but the nation as a whole, to realize that the growing of crops, though an essential part, is only a part of country life. Crop growing is the essential foundation, but it is no less essential that the farmer shall get an adequate return for what he grows, and it is no less essential—indeed, it is literally vital—that he and his wife and his children shall lead the right kind of life.

For this reason it is of the first importance that the United States department of agriculture, through which as prime agent the ideas the commission stands for must reach the people, should become without delay in fact a department of country life, fitted to deal not only with crops, but also with all the larger aspects of life in the open country.

Three Needs of Country Life.

From all that has been done and learned three great general and immediate needs of country life stand out:

First.—Effective co-operation among farmers to put them on a level with the organized interests with which they do business.

Second.—A new kind of schools in the country, which shall teach the children as much outdoors as indoors, and perhaps more, so that they will prepare for country life and not, as at present, mainly for life in town.

Third.—Better means of communication, including good roads and a parcels post, which the country people are everywhere, and rightly, unanimous in demanding.

To these may well be added better sanitation, for easily preventable diseases hold several million country people in the slavery of continuous ill health.

Organization Is Necessary.

The commission points out—and I concur in the conclusion—that the most important help that the government, whether national or state, can give is to show the people how to go about these tasks of organization, education and communication with the best and quickest results. This can be done by the collection and spread of information. One community can thus be informed of what other communities have done and one country of what other countries have done. Such help by the people's government would lead to a comprehensive plan of organization, education and communication and make the farming country better to live in, for intellectual and social reasons as well as for purely agricultural reasons.

The government through the department of agriculture does not cultivate any man's farm for him, but it does put at his service useful knowledge that he would not otherwise get. In the same way the national and state governments might put into the people's hands the new and right knowledge of school work. The task of maintaining and developing the schools would remain, as now, with the people themselves.

Money For Expenses Asked.

The only recommendation I submit is that an appropriation of $25,000 be provided to enable the commission to digest the material it has collected and to collect and to digest much more that is within its reach and thus complete its work. This would enable the commission to gather in the harvest of suggestion which is resulting from the discussion it has stirred up. The commissioners have served without compensation, and I do not recommend any appropriation for their services, but only for the expenses that will be required to finish the task that they have begun.

To improve our system of agriculture seems to me the most urgent of the tasks which lie before us. But it cannot, in my judgment, be effected by measures which touch only the material and technical side of the subject. The whole business and life of the farmer must also be taken into account. Such considerations led me to appoint the commission on country life. Our object should be to help develop in the country community the great ideals of community life as well as of personal character. One of the most important adjuncts to this end must be the country church, and I invite your attention to what the commission says of the country church and of the need of an extension of such work as that of the Young Men's Christian association in country communities. Let me lay special emphasis upon what the commission says at the very end of its report on personal ideals and local leadership. Everything resolves itself in the end into the question of personality. Neither society nor government can do much for country life unless there is voluntary response in the personal ideals of the men and women who live in the country.

Plea For Farmers' Wives.

In the development of character the home should be more important than the school or than society at large. When once the basic material needs have been met, high ideals may be quite independent of income, but they cannot be realized without sufficient income to provide adequate foundation, and where the community at large is not financially prosperous it is impossible to develop a high average personal and community ideal. In short, the fundamental facts of human nature apply to men and women who live in the country just as they apply to men and women who live in the towns. Given a sufficient foundation of material well being, the influence of the farmers and farmers' wives on their children becomes the factor of first importance in determining the attitude of the next generation toward farm life. The farmer should realize that the person who most needs consideration on the farm is his wife. I do not in the least mean that she should purchase ease at the expense of duty. Neither man nor woman is really happy or really useful save on condition of doing his or her duty. If the woman shirks her duty as housewife, as home keeper, as the mother whose prime function it is to bear and rear a sufficient number of healthy children, then she is not entitled to our regard. But if she does her duty she is more entitled to our regard even than the man who does his duty, and the man should show special consideration for her needs.

I warn my countrymen that the great recent progress made in city life is not a full measure of our civilization, for our civilization rests at bottom on the wholesomeness, the attractiveness and the completeness as well as the prosperity of life in the country. The men and women on the farms stand for what is fundamentally best and most needed in our American life. Upon the development of country life rests ultimately our ability by methods of farming requiring the highest intelligence to continue to feed and clothe the hungry nations, to supply the city with fresh blood, clean bodies and clear brains that can endure the terrific strain of modern life. We need the development of men in the open country, who will be in the future, as in the past, the stay and strength of the nation in time of war and its guiding and controlling spirit in time of peace.

A Hurry-up Medicine.

Every housekeeper recognizes the need of effective remedies to be used in emergencies—when some thing must be done right away. Such a remedy is Perry Davis' Painkiller, for sprains and bruises, for strained muscles and for the aches and pains resulting from blows and falls. Burns and cuts are instantly relieved by it and helped to healing. Its mission of mercy began seventy years ago. It is used in all countries and millions of bottles are sold annually. There is but one Painkiller, Perry Davis'. Have you seen the new large 35c. size?

STATE FORESTRY OF VITAL INTEREST

Frank W. Rane M. S. C. Speaks To Wollaston Unitarian Club

At the meeting of the Wollaston Unitarian club, Tuesday evening, Frank W. Rane, M. S. C., the State forester, spoke on forestry.

President Frederick W. Plummer presided. Among those at the head table were, C. A. Holland, Senator Eugene C. Hultman, Thomas Lacey, Frank E. Parlin, Rev. Carl G. Horst and Walter J. Wellington.

Where a few years ago little interest could be aroused in forestry, Mr. Rane said, a vital interest is being taken in the subject today.

This change has been occasioned by many reasons but principally by the economic or dollar standpoint. While in the early days men used their best efforts to destroy the forests in order to use the land for other purposes, today we wake up and find the forest products fast running out.

Time was when people turned up their noses at anything but black walnut or other black woods. Now nearly everything is used. Boards that a few years ago could not be given away and old mother pines are now being cut down and people are delighted to get them.

Massachusetts is a natural forest country and, if the people were to move out, in a hundred years the whole state would again be a forest. Present day conditions are responsible for this dearth in forest products. The lumber history of this country has been simply one of harvesting the crop. Even then there is a kick at the cost of harvesting.

In the South the same indifferent and negligent conditions exist which formerly led to the destruction of the New England forests.

Forest fires are one of the most important causes of the destruction of the forests. The most natural thing for the public to do, when in the freedom of the woods, is to build a fire and when through with it leave it to spread.

Forest fires have been running rampant over the state. We are gradually coming face to face with the economic conditions which are existing, and beginning to realize the run-out-at-the-heel policy which is being pursued.

The country is teeming with natural resources but, in the gathering of them, a large amount is wasted.

In mining seven and one half billion tons of coal, nine billion were destroyed. People today are using large quantities of this product which, once gone, can never be replaced. Forests can be replaced. In Massachusetts there are over a million acres of unproductive land, once forest, which is the eyesore of the state. This is being added to year by year.

In former days the agriculturist went into the woods in the winter, and every farmer was a lumberman. Today what is the farmer doing? Now-a-days the farmer is forced to sell his horse and wagon as winter approaches, because during the cold weather they will not pay for their keep.

The portable mill has been the cause of large inroads into the forests. By this method the mill is taken to the logs instead of the logs to the mill. The lumberman buys stumpage from the owner and harvests the lumber, taking all there is and leaving nothing which would grow into another crop. The land is then turned back to the farmer, whose only course is to burn the land in order to clear. It is then turned into pasture land for a while and then deteriorates into a mass of weeds and brush through which no trees can force themselves and the land becomes a total loss to the owner.

In the high schools today pupils are studying violets and other wild flowers instead of forestry and kindred subjects. The possibilities of reforestation are good and there is a demand for all varieties of forest products. The thing needed in Massachusetts today is the planting up of waste lands that cannot be used for agricultural purposes. This would build up towns, even occupations, and bring financial returns little expected.

Mr. Rane spoke of the former lax system of handling forest fires and told of the new system now being put in force.

Many valuable lessons in forestry, he said might be had from the Germans who have reduced this subject to a practical science with great success. The whole German army, Mr. Rane said, is paid for by the forest products of Germany.

Mr. Rane pursued the latter part of his lecture with the stereoptican. Views of various parts of the state were cast on the screen showing the conditions existing. Many interesting slides from Germany were shown giving the systems in vogue there.

Portions of the state nurseries at Amherst were depicted in connection with which Mr. Rane gave a dissertation on local trees, starting with the seeds and following them, with aid of the pictures, to the full grown tree.

Mr. Rane was a most interesting speaker and interspersed his talk with many personal anecdotes of his varied experiences, giving the subject an added interest.

A New England boiled dinner was served instead of the customary one of roast beef.

☞The Quincy Choral society has issued a most attractive circular this week giving full details of the first annual concert which will be at Music hall on Tuesday March 9. A sale of subscription tickets is announced, these being for sale by members of the chorus, the executive board, and at C. F. Pettengill's store, Quincy centre. These subscription tickets are to be exchanged at C. C. Hearn's for reserved seat tickets before the direct sale of seats opens there on Feb. 24th. This plan gives all who are willing to purchase tickets now, the advantage of an early choice of seats.

ANNUAL REUNION ST. MARY'S PARISH

Old and Young Enjoy Good Time at St. Mary's Hall

St. Mary's hall was crowded Tuesday evening at the annual parish reunion of St. Mary's church, West Quincy. Old and young joined in this reunion and a general good time was enjoyed. There were various forms of amusement for all last night, dancing being the main feature.

From 8 to 9 there was a concert including songs by Miss Rena Fay, buck and wing dancing by James McDonnell and a minuet, known as the parasol dance, by twenty-six little girls, all dressed in red, white and blue dresses and carrying parasols to match. This was the feature of the concert and the way the little girls went through their dance reflects great credit on Miss Nellie Dolan who trained the children. The following children took part in the dance: Alice Kapples, Julia Reardon, Rosalie DuTemple, Florence Sullivan, Alice Ash, Mary Ash, Mary Martin, Mary Casey, Pauline O'Brien, Ruth Bertrand, Eva Martel, Jane Dalphe, Alice McDonnell, Levia Bizzozzero, Helen Connelly, Delia Ferriter, Gertrude Sherlin, Esther Knight, Leonora Corcoran, Mary Holland, Marion Simpson, Rose Leary, Grace Reinhalter, Rena Fay, Katherine Shea, and Mary Shyne. Miss Rena Bizzozzero was the pianist of the evening.

After the concert the floor was cleared for dancing, Joyce's singing orchestra furnishing music until 2 o'clock. Everybody joined in the dance, square and fancy dances being mixed in for the enjoyment of all.

During the evening Fr. Grady announced the winner of the "Trip to Washington," chance contest. The lucky one was Miss Nellie Riley of Cross street, West Quincy.

The floor was in charge of Louis A. Pendis, assisted by Arthur J. Murphy and a corps of aids. The ushers were John Dillon and W. J. Shea.

The men were ably assisted by the following ladies of the parish: Mrs. J. C. Ballou, Mrs. R. J. Teasdale, Mrs. John Moynihan, Mrs. Mary Hart, Mrs. Philip Garrity, Mrs. Michael Riley, Mrs. J. L. Fennessy, Miss Annie Burns, Mrs. Edward Finn, Miss Elizabeth McNeil, Miss Nellie Morrissette, Mrs. Michael Reardon, Mrs. John Howley, Mrs. Michael McDonnell, Mrs. Annie Watson, Mrs. Jeremiah Falvey, Mrs. Bridget Joyce, Mrs. Johanna Callahan, Mrs. John Mahoney, Miss Mary Little, Mrs. Edward Bryan and Mrs. William O'Brien.

The affair was a huge social success and from the large crowd present it would seem too, that it was a financial success. Both Fr. Grady and Fr. Duffy were very much pleased at the success of the reunion and promised that it would still continue to be an annual affair.

EVANGELISTIC SERVICES.

Continued Interest in Revival Meetings.

The second week of the Evangelistic meetings was opened with interest unabated. Both Monday night and last night the meetings were well attended and the service was full of interest and helpfulness.

Last night Dr. Weddell spoke from Exodus 12:4, and the theme was "Make your count for the Lamb." The thought was of an unbroken family in the christian life and the appeal was for friends, brothers, sisters, sons, daughters, husbands, and wives.

Rev. H. G. Megathlin, Rev. E. A. Chase and Rev. Mr. Walther assisted in the service.

Friday will be a "Day of Rejoicing" throughout greater Boston when food, clothing and money for purchase of same will be distributed among the deserving poor of the district.

Messrs. Harry Brooks, W. G. Shaw and E. W. Branch are the committee authorized to receive money and supplies and their representation will be at the church Thursday night when it is hoped large contributions will be made.

The need of such assistance even here in our community is undoubted.

Dr. Hardy cited several cases last night of real distress and others are doubtless among us. Let those who wish to further "The King's Business" give to this end.

The meeting tonight will be especially for young though every one is invited. The subject will be "A young man's difficulties." Sixteen common difficulties will be discussed by Dr. Weddell.

John G. McGregor of Hallowell, Me., has been calling on friends, in the city recently.

DEATH OF MRS. BURKE.

It is with sadness that we chronicle the passing out from this world on Tuesday evening of a bright young life, Mrs. Jane Reed Burke, beloved wife of Dr. Burke and only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Timothy Reed of Adams street. After a brave struggle, many days very ill, others more hopeful especially the last few days she passed quietly away, leaving a little babe to miss a mother's care and a husband who for a brief time enjoyed the companionship and home brightened by her presence. To the husband, the parents, especially to the invalid mother, much sympathy goes out from many friends.

"I cannot say, and I will not say,
That she is dead. She is just away,
With a cheery smile and a wave of the hand,
She has wandered into an unknown land.
And left us dreaming how very fair
It needs must be since she lingers there.
And you, oh you! who the wildest yearn
For the old-time step and the glad return.
Think of her faring on, as dear
In the life of there as the life of here.
Think of her still as the same, I say;
She is not dead—she is just away."

SEEKING A PARDON.

A hearing was held at the state house this morning before the Governor and pardon committee on the petition of Edward J. Sandberg for the pardon of John L. C. Soderquist who was sentenced Sept. 20, 1902, for a term of not more nor less than seven years in the states prison for assault.

The grounds for asking for the parson is that through a misapprehension of the character of the assault Soderquist waved a trial by jury and that there is reasonable doubt as to the guilt of the defendant.

LINCOLN DAY SERVICE.

On Friday, a specially prepared Lincoln Day service will be held by First church of Christ Scientist, of Braintree, in their hall in Post Office Block opposite the Braintree railroad station, at 10.15 A. M. to which all are welcome.

Rev. Alfred R. Atwood was in Cambridge Monday evening to deliver a lecture before "The Congregational Institute," which is a Theological school connected with Andover Seminary.

The Men's Club of Christ church, meet this evening in the Parish house. The subject of the debate will be:—Resolved, "That the Monroe Doctrine is obsolete."

Mr. and Mrs. John Cashman are on an extended southern trip which will take them to Panama before their return.

The Country Club met with Mrs. Geo. H. Bolster on Verchild street, Monday evening. A salad supper was served, the occasion also being the celebration of Mr. Bolster's birthday. Dainty souvenir score cards in the shape of a red heart with red and gold butterflies attached were presented the members.

MEETING QUINCY BOOK SUBSCRIBERS

"Quincy Book" Shows Advantages of Quincy Water Front

A meeting of the subscribers to what is known as the "Quincy Book" was held last evening at the office of Frank Fessenden Crane, 19 Temple street. This is a book which was compiled to supplement the Brockton and Boston Canal Book, at the National Rivers and Harbors Congress at Washington, in December, twenty-two hundred being given away at that time, going into every state in the union except Utah, which was not represented at the congress.

This book had as a frontispiece a cut representing the launching of the North Dakota, which was followed by a map of the Brockton canal, with the Edward Parrish canal and the outlet at Quincy, showing its 30 foot channels to Boston and the open sea. This was followed by a short history of Quincy by W. R. Thomas, a brief sketch of the Fore River Shipbuilding Company by Admiral Francis T. Bowles, a history of the granite industry by John L. Miller, president of the Granite Manufacturers' Association and other bits of Quincy's water front history from various sources.

The subscribers were as follows: The Fore River Ship Building Company, the National Mount Wollaston Bank, the National Granite Bank, the Granite Manufacturers' Association, Frank S. Patch, Benjamin Johnson, J. S. Swingle, T. L. Williams, William Deacon, Fred Barnicoat, J. C. Ballou, George Murray, J. C. Murray, John L. Walters, Messrs. Hughes and Johnson.

The city should be very grateful to these gentlemen as the advantages of Quincy's industries and Quincy's water front are now known in every state in the union.

The rivers and Harbors committee of Congress were each presented with a copy of the book; also Gen. Marshall, head of the U. S. Government Survey Department.

At the request of Congressman Greene, chairman of the committee on eMrchant Marine, a large number were left at his office for distribution to other congressmen. Many other books were given away at this Congress by states and cities all over the United States and Quincy's book compared favorably with any of them.

WEYMOUTH CHURCH TO RECEIVE LEGACY.

The will of William T. Shaw who died at Weymouth Jan. 22, which was admitted to probate at Quincy, provides that within thirteen months of the decease of his widow, the sum of $1000 shall be paid to three trustees to be appointed by the judge of the probate court, the income to be paid to the third Universalist church of Weymouth.

The will also provides that the residue of the estate after making certain bequests, at the death of his widow, shall be divided equally between William and Joseph H. Shaw. Should William die before the widow of the deceased, and without issue, his share $2000 is left to the Third Universalist church of Weymouth in trust as provided above.

It is rumored about the streets that a petition is soon to be circulated for signatures, requesting the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. company to run a twelve o'clock train from Boston to Quincy. This question has been agitated off and on for some time, but until now, nothing definite has been done towards getting this additional service. At the present time the last train for Quincy leaves Boston at 11.27, which according to many people is too early, especially since the elevated trains were removed from the Boylston street subway.

If Quincy ever intends to be an up-to-date city it should awaken from its long sleep and bestir itself that it may keep abreast with the up-to-date hustling cities and towns of the Commonwealth.

One of the first things that should be done is in regard to the street lights which should be kept burning all night instead of being shut off at 1 o'clock, which is done at the present time.

Well lighted streets are as much, if not more protection to citizens than brass buttoned police officers.

How many burglaries are there during the hours of the night when the streets are lighted? A glance at the police records will readily show that it is in the early hours of the morning after the street lights are out when burglars come out and roam about at will, feeling almost sure of having no difficulty in the dark in dodging the few policemen.

It is often said that all good citizens should be in bed by midnight and this perhaps is true, yet there are many whose business keeps them out later and it is no cinch poking ones way through unlighted streets, on a dark night, with the constant fear that some desperado may be lurking behind a tree ready to spring upon one unawares.

It is just as much,if not more essential, to have the streets well lighted as it is to have policemen for there are so few of the latter that it is not difficut for a burglar to know when an officer is due to pass a given point. After the officer has passed the burglar is pretty safe in reckoning that it will be an hour at least before the officer again comes round and what a lot a determined burglar can do in an hour.

There are few if any cities the size of Quincy where the street lights do not burn until daylight, and even many towns do the same things.

Here in Quincy citizens have been obliged to get along without some of these things most needed. It is only within a few years that the street lights burned longer than midnight. Then Mayor Bryant had his famous fight with the Electric Light Co. when the streets were in entire darkness for a number of night.

When the fight was ended and the lights turned on it was announced that 1 o'clock was the hour they could be shut off while in case of a fire after that hour the lights would be turned on in the district where the box was located.

In order to have the lights burning all night the expense must be provided for in the annual budget. This budget will be before the Council within a few days and an opportunity will be presented by some Councilman to benefit the citizens at large by having the street lights burn all night.

EDITORIAL COMMENTS.

It is a fascinating problem that Mr. Arbuckle's men have with the sunken Republic. If they succeed in raising that enormous mass from the deep sea with magnets and other appliances, they will have attained a triumph not so very much less than that of the wireless itself. Here is a ship as big as a small park, with a cargo of tremendous weight, and over the whole rolling waves and an immense weight of water; and yet there is being seriously discussed the drawing of that steel mass through nearly 200 feet of water to the surface, and then the plugging up of gigantic apertures in her hull so that she may remain on top of the water and be safely convoyed to port. It may all come out right; it may all be proven true; but even after the magnets have raised the ship the average citizen wouldn't care to go on board of her just now and work at the task of repairing her. The riddled wreck might forget herself at any moment and go plunging again like a plummet to the bottom of the sea.—Brockton Enterprise.

The fact that Senator Lodge "represents Massachusetts" doesn't necessarily fit him for a place in the Senate Committee on Finance. We can event conceive of circumstances under which such representation might actually unfit a man for the position. But that is not important.

What is of importance, however, is the expressed satisfaction by an influential Boston newspaper in its conviction that Senator Lodge may be relied upon to give careful exposition to Massachusetts' important interests in the readjustment of the Dingley tariff law schedules. Since when, pray, were State interests a prime consideration in the framing of Federal laws for the rising of Government revenues and the protection of American industries in general?

If Senator Lodge's chief usefulness on the Senate Finance Committee is to look out sharply for Massachusetts' interests in the framing of a tariff bill, a good many sensible people won't feel like congratulating the country on his selection to succeed "Tom" Platt.—New York Commercial.

The Malden News, whose editor is a member of the House, says that many of the members voted for the Lincoln day holiday, well knowing that it would be killed in the Senate. He says "there has always been too much of that kind of voting in the House, in shifting the responsibility on to the Senate," which is true and at the same time it is an arraignment of the courage and honesty of the members that does not speak very well for them. If a measure is right as a legislator sees it he ought to uphold it, and if he considers it wrong he should oppose it. If directed by his constituents to take a particular course he should follow it, without regard to his personal opinions or feelings, but in the absence of instructions he should use his best judgement, and not vote for effect, and rely on the senate to kill a bill that deserved to die, but which he had not the courage to attack. We realize that to have men in office whose moral fortitude is sufficient for such a test is an ideal condition, but we ought to try to reach it, or get as near it as possible, by electing a better class of Representatives than those referred to by our Malden contemporary.—Lynn Item.

The passage by the House last Saturday of the bill making certain important changes in the national bankruptcy act, is of special interest to the business public. If time permits, the Senate is expected to confirm this action. The attitude of the representatives of the people toward Federal control of banksuptcy proceedings was of an inorming character and on the question of repeal the present general policy was saved by a safe margin. This indicates that the Federal system is still preferred to the State system and that in spite of some drawbacks that have developed, the obvious advantage of uniformity still more than offsets all objections that have yet been advanced.

The history of Federal bankruptcy legislation is generally well known. For only comparatively brief periods have we been under its jurisdiction. The first bankruptcy law at the beginning of the last century lasted only three years, and a second venture was not made until nearly forty years later, that act having a still briefer tenure. The act that was established in 1867 was in force eleven years, about the same period that the present one has been in operation, though during the twenty years intervening there was pretty constant agitation for a return to the Federal plan.

The latest law did not prove entirely satisfactory to all concerned and six years ago it was amended so as to correct what were regarded as its defects. The bill that has now passed the lower branch is more comprehensive in its revision. It aims to clarify certain vexed questions of procedure, and gives an expressed legal status to recent court interpretations. It provides that the compensation of receivers shall be no more than that paid trustees for their services and that creditors shall have notice of such allowances. It permits compositions or agreements before adjudication as well as after, through the medium of the courts, thus insuring a fair deal for all creditors, and in various ways it facilitates and expedites the course of bankruptcy proceedings. There was very little opposition to these provisions, and as the volume and the complications of the country's business have grown, the propriety of Federal control is more generally acknowledged than ever. Such a situation as now confronts us was doubtless contemplated by the framers of the Constitution who left in that instrument authority "to establish uniform laws on the subject of bankruptcies throughout the United States."—Boston Transcript.

UNCLE SAM NOT RESPONSIBLE

Cannot Disavow the Remarks of Congressman Rainey

PANAMA ENTERED A PROTEST

Illinois Representative Criticised President Obaldia, but Attack Was Made Even More Upon Americans—Views of Individual Members of Congress Do Not Express Views of the Government

Washington, Feb. 10.—The United States government disavows all responsibility for remarks made by Representative Rainey of Illinois in the house about two weeks ago, criticizing President Obaldia of Panama, according to a letter sent by Secretary of State Bacon to C. C. Arosmena, minister from Panama, in reply to a protest by the latter made by direction of the minister's government.

Mr. Bacon's letter is as follows:

"The president directs me to say in answer to your communication that the remarks complained of were made in the house of representatives. Under our constitution we have, for what we regard as wise reasons, provided that for any speech or debate in either house they (the senators and representatives) shall not be questioned in any other place.

"This provision we regard as essential to secure full liberty of speech to the elected representatives of the people; and we feel that such liberty of speech should be preserved, even though it may occasionally be abused.

"It ought to be understood, however, that the utterances of individual members are not to be taken as expressing the views either of the government of the United States or of the house in which such remarks are made. As regards the statements in question, made by Representative Rainey, the president attached so little importance to them that he had not even read them until your protest came. He has now read them, and none of them concerning which he had knowledge have any foundation in fact.

"The president wishes me to recall to your attention that the attack was made even more upon Americans, including the president-elect, than on the officials at Panama. The president need hardly say that this government disavows all responsibility for the remarks of Representative Rainey to which you refer."

In his protest Arosmena mentioned no names, simply calling attention to two public addresses in the house which he says "constitute a direct attack upon the president of my country, as well as upon the fair name and administration of the republic of Panama."

He requested a disavowal of the offensive remarks concerning the president and republic of Panama, such as may be deemed just and commensurate "with the deep and unwarranted injury" inflicted on Obaldia. His government and people, the minister said, "justly and naturally resent the baseless and unwarranted attacks upon their president" contained in the speeches referred to, and he noted with surprise that measures solely concerning Panama and pending before its legislature were at the same time the subject of official discussion and opprobious criticism in a legislative body of this government, and this with the declared purpose of inducing action by the house to influence the action of the national assembly of Panama.

Considerable interest attached to the presentation of Mr. Arosmena's protest, and the secretary's reply to the incident, so far as the present officials of the state department recall, is without precedent.

California Anti-Japanese Law Is Backed by Ex-Senator Edmunds

Los Angeles, Feb. 10.—Ex-United States Senator Edmunds of Vermont, recognized world authority on interlational law, stated at his Pasadena home that he considered California well within her rights in enacting an anti-alien land law.

As to the segregation of the Japanese in separate schools Edmunds says that the state can only deny Japanese attendance at the white schools on the grounds of moral age or conduct disqualification.

JOYS OF CANADA'S WINTER SEASON

Will Be Enjoyed to Full Extent For Next Ten Days

Montreal, Feb. 10.—With the throwing open to the public of the splendid ice palace the carnival of winter sports began today. For ten days the people of Montreal and the surrounding country, with many visitors from the United States, will experience all the joys that the winter season in Canada can give.

The palace is the main attraction for tourists. It is a huge edifice constructed of ice blocks on the east flank of Mount Royal. It is brilliantly lighted at night, both inside and outside, and is illuminated frequently by displays of fireworks. One of the features of the carnival will be the storming of the palace in mimic warfare by a large body of men mounted on snowshoes.

The program of attractions includes exhibitions of snowshoeing, skeeing, skating, hockey, tobogganning and sleighing.

ELECTORAL VOTES COUNTED

Taft and Sherman Are Officially Declared to Be Elected

Washington, Feb. 10.—Although it is generally believed throughout the United States that William Howard Taft of Ohio and James Schoolcraft Sherman of New York were elected president and vice president respectively on Nov. 3 of last year, it was not until today that these two gentlemen were officially declared elected to their high positions.

Following the procedure ordained by amendment 12 of the constitution, the two houses met in joint session today. In the presence of the senators and representatives Vice President Fairbanks, as president of the senate, opened the sealed envelopes containing the certificates of election signed by the electors of the states and read the certificates. It having been duly ascertained that Mr. Taft had received 321 of the electoral votes and William Jennings Bryan of Nebraska had received 162 votes, and, the same figures applying to Mr. Sherman and Mr. Kern, candidates for vice president, Mr. Taft was declared elected president of the United States and Mr. Sherman vice president.

ARRESTS OF HUB DRUNKS

Police Statement Regarding Them Gives Revivalists a Big Surprise

Boston, Feb. 10.—The evangelists who are at the head of the big revival which is now going on in this city were surprised last night when there issued from police headquarters a typewritten statement which shows that during last week there were more arrests for drunkennesss in this city than on the corresponding week of last year. Why it was issued at all was puzzling to them.

The amazement of the evangelists was all the greater, because they had been led to believe that, as in all other cities they visited, arrests had diminished greatly.

The only explanation advanced by the police authorities for giving out the statement at this time relative to drunkenness was that it had been asked for by a clergyman interested in the revival.

ANOTHER VENIRE ORDERED

Jury to Try Alleged Slayers of Carmack Is Still Incomplete

Nashville, Feb. 10.—Another continuance of three days, with the jury still lacking one man, marked the close of the third week of the trial of D. B. Cooper, R. J. Cooper and J. D. Sharpe, for the slaying of E. W. Carmack.

The remainder of the fifth venire of 500 talesmen was quickly exhausted Tuesday without procuring a competent juror. Then the court ordered the sixth venire drawn. Should the twelfth juror not be found in this venire Judge Hart will prepare lists personally and let the attorneys examine the men until the box is filled.

Young Lovers In Suicide Pact Because They Could Not Wed

Bowling Green, O., Feb. 10.—Miss Margaret Brandon, aged 22 years, is dead, and Willard Davis, her fiance, aged 19, is not expected to live as the result of a suicide pact.

Miss Brandon drank carbolic acid at her home and Davis shot himself with a revolver after going out into the woods.

It is believed the pact was due to lack of funds that prevented their marriage.

TREMENDOUS MISTAKE MADE

Isthmian Canal Committee's Opinion of Lock System

MAKES A SENSATIONAL REPORT

Chairman Kittredge Says That From Present Estimates the Big Ditch Will Cost $400,000,000—Construed as Greatest Attack Yet Made on Program of President Roosevelt—Future Policy Seems Uncertain

Washington, Feb. 10.—With the charge that a tremendous mistake was made in adopting the lock instead of the sea-level type of canal for Panama, and that from present estimates it may be expected the lock canal will cost $40,000,000, Senator Kittredge of South Dakota, chairman of the isthmian canal committee, presented to the senate a sensational report on that project and the progress of the work on it.

The report indicates that the committee has changed front since the time, two years ago, when it acquiesced in the demand for the lock canal. It is also construed as the greatest attack yet made on the program and policies of President Roosevelt, who assumed the personal responsibility of the change to the lock type after the international board of consulting engineers had made a majority report for the sea-level plan. The majority of that board voted for sea-level; the minority, including however, most of the Americans on the board, for the lock ditch.

Senators Foraker and Teller also declared that they believed a grave mistake had been made in adopting the lock project. Kittredge took occasion to say that the canal committee disapproved of the proposed issue of bonds, and he read a statement of the expenditures on account of the canal showing that to date they have been $170,964,468.

The tone and temper of the senate's reception of the Kittredge report indicated clearly that a determined attack is to be made on the whole conduct of the canal business.

Senator Kittredge spoke with emphasis and something very like bitterness. He had been the leader of the fight in the senate for the sea-level type, and was only defeated on a close vote, after a fight in which President Roosevelt and the then Secretary of War Taft used their utmost influence and activity to line enough votes against him.

Yesterday's developments make it certain that the Roosevelt administration will go out and the Taft administration will come in with the whole canal question muddled and befogged, and with the question of future policy looming large and uncertain. The repeated expressions of misgivings and uncertainty about the whole scheme on which the government is now working are condensed into the Kittredge report.

A THREE CUSHION MATCH

Crack Billiardists to Contest For Championship of Difficult Game

New York, Feb. 10.—Alfred De Oro and Jess Lean will meet tonight in this city to decide the question of the championship of the country at three cushion billiards, generally considered the most difficult game with the cue now played.

De Oro, who is well known throughout the country as the former pool champion, is now the champion three cushion billiard player. He is the favorite in tonight's match.

The match will consist of 250 points, divided into five nights' play of 50 points each night. The Jordan trophy, a handsome diamond studded emblem worth $1000, and the championship will be at stake. A side bet of $500 has been made.

THE Young Men's Christian Association OF QUINCY, MASS.

(Legal Title Incorporated 1892.)

The Directors of the YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION of Quincy, with a firm faith in the great value of the work which is being done for the young men and boys of our city, make their appeal for donations and bequests toward paying the mortgage indebtedness on the new Association Building. When the building is free from debt it will serve as an Endowment, as there is a goodly income from the dormitories.

Should the Donor prefer, such sum as might be given could be used as an Endowment for an educational class or classes, the Boys Department, or as a special fund in other ways, and could be designated with the name of the Donor.

The Treasurer, WILLIAM F. CUMMINGS, 7 Clive Street, Quincy, or the General Secretary, ERNEST G. GAY, will be happy to answer inquiries

OUR HOSPITAL

INCORPORATED 1889

The Trustees of the City Hospital of Quincy earnestly appeal for donations and bequests for the Endowment fund. This now amounts to over $60,000, but a fund of at least $100,000 is urgently needed.

Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000) will endow a Free Bed to which such name may be given as the Donor may desire, but any sum for this noble institution which stands ready to serve us all in the hour of need, will be most gratefully received.

The Secretary, TIMOTHY REED, Adams St. Quincy, or the Treasurer, RICHARD D. CHASE Savings Bank Building, Quincy, will be very glad to confer with any one or to answer any inquiries.

SURRENDERED BY DEPUTY SHERIFFS

Murderer of Minister Is Disposed of by Lynchers

Houston, Miss., Feb. 10.—Roby Baskin, murderer of Rev. W. T. Hudson, was lynched here by a mob. Over 300 citizens constituted the mob that took the negro from the jail and hanged him to a nearby tree. Not a shot was fired and the whole proceeding was conducted quietly.

The negro was seized without resistance. He accepted his fate as a matter of course, sullen and without a word of entreaty or prayer. He was hanged to an elm tree within 200 yards of the county jail. The negro was surrendered by deputy sheriffs.

WARD LINES ELIMINATED

Newly Born City to Experiment With New System of Government

Concord, N. H., Feb. 10.—The state house of representatives passed a bill providing for a city charter for Claremont. Up to the last election Claremont was the largest town in the state, but at that time the citizens voted to adopt a city government and charter.

Under the provisions of the charter the usual ward lines are eliminated and officers are elected without regard to the section of the city in which they reside. Non-partisan politics will obtain in the selection of the mayor and nine councilmen, in whom the city government will be vested. The latter serve without pay.

The mayor is given the power of appointing to office several municipal officers who are usually elected by the people. Some of these officers, likewise, will have under their supervision the work of customarily distinct departments and have the appointive power over them.

CROSS VS. WALES

Knights of the Glove Get Together In a New York Ring Tonight

New York, Feb. 10.—Unless all signs fail, followers of the game of hit and get away will see a corking good bout tonight when Leach Cross of New York and Jem Driscoll of Wales face each other. The little Welshman has cleaned up about everything there is in his class on this side of the water and is determined to add Cross' scalp to his collection.

The New Yorker, however, is considerably heavier than Driscoll, and that fact is worrying the admirers of the latter. Cross has a good punch that hurts when it lands, and his followers think he will land it on the Welshman. The latter, however, is considered to be the superior of Cross in everything but weight. Both men are in fine shape, and it will be a fight worth going far to see. It is scheduled to go ten rounds.

TENNIS EXPERTS GATHER

Play For Indoor Championships Begins In New York City

New York, Feb. 10.—Play for the indoor tennis championships of America was begun here today with the women's events in singles and doubles. The singles title is held by Miss Marie Wagner. Among the entries are Miss Wagner, Miss Elizabeth H. Moore, a former holder and four times national outdoor champion; the Misses Fish, E. Marcus, Clara Kuttroff, Louise Hammond and Mrs. George H. Chapman. For the womens' doubles Miss Moore and Miss Marcus, the Misses Fish, Miss Wagner and Miss Hammond and Mrs. Chapman and Miss Edna Wildey comprise the leading pairs.

The men's events will begin Feb. 20 and continue through the following week.

Cleveland Bankers and Brokers Have but Little Money For Creditors

Cleveland, Feb. 10.—The firm of Lamprecht Bros. & Co., bankers and brokers, made an assignment to T. H. Bushnell who, in a later action in voluntary bankruptcy, also was appointed receiver.

Efforts to obtain an approximate idea of the assets and obligations of the firm resulted only in a statement by Bushnell that the liabilities would, in his opinion, run close to $1,000,000 and that there would be considerable loss to the creditors.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

ANNUAL MEETING KING'S DAUGHTERS

Unity Circle Active in Charity Work During the Past Year

The annual meeting, supper and reception of new members of Unity Circle, King's Daughters, was held Tuesday evening at the Bethany church.

The circle met at 5.30 at which time the annual meeting was held and these officers elected:

Leader—Mrs. W. E. Blanchard.
Vice Leader—Mrs. J. F. Welch.
Secretary—Mrs. George Badger.
Corresponding Secretary—Mrs. J. F. Hunt.
Treasurer—Mrs. J. F. Merrill.
Membership Ten—Mrs. A. R. Fitts.
Betrany Ten—Mrs. Charles Hayden.
Music Ten—Mrs. E. C. Page.
Devotional Ten—Mrs. William Sidelinger.
Opportunity Ten—Mrs. F. P. Horton.
Distributing Ten—Mrs. W. H. Doble.
Sewing Ten—Mrs. Isabel Sargent.
Entertainment Ten—Mrs. A. G. Coffin.
Visiting Ten—Mrs. E. E. Miller.
Flower Ten—Mrs. F. W. Crane.
Welcoming Ten—Mrs. Herbert Pratt.

The business session was followed at 6.15 by a roast beef supper which was pronounced one of the best suppers ever served at the church.

At the post prandial exercises that followed the supper there was brief remarks by Rev. Dr. Edwin N. Hardy, Rev. Dr. Weddell, the evangelist, Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Briggs, the evangelist singers and by Mrs. Farley of Waltham the new state secretary.

At 7.15 came the reading of the annual reports of the officers were made. All of these reports were most gratifying showing the circle to be in an excellent condition financially as well as in point of membership.

The reports also showed that the work of charity as carried on by the circle was wide spread and not confined to any particular sect of creed but was dispensed where it was most needed.

Some ten or more new members were received the reception to the new members being given by Miss Brokenshire of Milton.

William Nelson of Standish avenue is in Hartford, Conn., on business for the Fore River Ship building Company.

AMONG THE CLUBS.

Mrs. Mary L. Wade lectured Feb. 2d before the Whitman Woman's club on "Apportionment of Income." Beginning Feb. 22, she is to lecture three days a week for four weeks at the Brockton Hospital, besides having added an extra half day to her course in the Milton schools. All this looks like an awakened interest in home economics. Club women all over the country are showing considerable interest and hardly a club but has among its departments, one on Home Economics.

Feb. 19th by invitation of the Medford Woman's club the mid-winter meeting of the State Federation will be held in Medford, at the Mystic Congregational church, Salem street, opening at ten o'clock. Lunch tickets must be secured before the meeting and blue Federation tickets will be necessary for admission. Mrs. Chandler W. Smith and Mrs. Robert E. Park go as official delegates from the Quincy Women's club, but it is hoped other club members will try and attend as they will enjoy the meeting.

Junior Friday club has changed the day of meeting next week from Monday to Wednesday afternoon. Mrs. Jesse I. Litchfield of Arlington street, Wollaston, will be the hostess and Mrs. Arthur W. Hall, chairman of the afternoon with Italian Unity as the subject divided as follows: House of Savoy, Cavour and Victor Emmanuel.

The Art club met Monday night with Miss Alice Coe of Billings street. The study has so far covered almost a century of ancient history.

Saturday morning Prof. Edward Howard Griggs will give the third in his series of lectures at Tremont Temple, Boston, his subject being "The Race, the Epoch and the Individual in Art." Interest is growing in subjects presentd and large audiences are the rule.

The Shakespeare society of Atlantic brings the reading of "The Winter's Tale" to a close tomorrow afternoon, having given four meetings to the play which has proved very interesting as has also the incidental music contributed by members.

Sweet charity is the watch word today with the Wollaston Alliance and they are holding an all day session to sew for charity.

Miss Edith Randall is to give her interesting travel talk on "Florence" before the Swampscott Woman's club on Monday afternoon.

The Friday club meets on Lincoln's birthday at the home of Mrs. Zenas S. Arnold, Coddington street. Mrs. George G. Saville has arranged the afternoon's program; Famous Venetians being the subject.

The Charitable Tens Circle of King's Daughters meet on Monday afternoon at three o'clock with Miss Annie H. Newcomb of 35 Bigelow street.

QUINCY WOMEN'S CLUB.

Tuesday's meeting of the Quincy Women's club was open to the public men and women; ministers of the city and city officials interested in charitable work being especially invited by the Philanthropic committee whose afternoon it was.

During the business meeting presided over by the president Mrs. George W. Morton the usual reports were given by the secretary and treasurer. Mrs. Blanchard for the Arts and Crafts committee announced a class in stencil, beginning Monday.

Mrs. Whitcher for the Civic Committee again announced the card party to be held at the club house Tuesday afternoon Feb. 16 from two until five and hoped all members would show their interest by attending. Also that the Atlantic assembly would be held Feb. 19 to raise funds for improvements at Atlantic. In March the Shakespeare society of Atlantic has arranged a fine entertainment to which she invited the club to subscribe. It was to be a musical Shakespearean monologue in costume.

Mrs. Hayward for the Music committee announced a musical recital of Russian music by Arthur Glover Salmon at First Church chapel on Tuesday evening March 16, the proceeds to go to the Anti-tuberculosis society.

Mrs. Welch for the Visiting Nurse committee made an appeal for contributions to help the work along through the summer months when a new committee would be in charge of the work and need funds.

Mrs. Gurney for Miss Randall of the Program committee asked if the club desired an equal suffrage meeting with special speaker. When put to vote it was voted down by the small majority of two. The silent vote was larger than the, for or against, as it is at state and municipal election where men vote. The silent voter lacks courage whether man or woman. The club dramatics were announced for Tuesday afternoon Feb. 23 at First Church chapel and club members were asked to be considerate and not ask too many guests as the chapel seated less than 350. Although the by-laws read that two guests may be invited to a meeting it was hoped on this occasion but one or even less would be invited.

Mrs. Morton, president, called attention to the by-laws that non-members of the club could attend but one meeting in the year and that on invitation of a club member. The Hospitality committee is keeping a list this year of guests and some may be turned down if the by-law is not heeded.

On Thursday evening, Feb. 18, the club through the Education committee is to entertain the teachers of the public schools. It will be a musical evening with the Westland quartet of Boston and Weston's orchestra of Wollaston as the entertainers. The club officers will receive and club members are invited to attend and make the evening a pleasant one for the teachers.

At the close of the business meeting a short musical program was given by Miss Laura R. Herrig, violinist, and Mrs. John F. Hunt, pianist. Miss Herrig formerly attended the Quincy Mansion school, giving up to enter more fully upon a musical education, receiving instruction under Loefler and other well known violinists. She used a rare old violin of date of 1708 and handled it skilfully, playing a "Fantasie," "Calm as the Night" by Bohm and Raff's "Cavatina," receiving the hearty applause of her listeners. Miss Herrig plays easily, without mannerism and interprets in a way to give pleasure. Mrs. Hunt as usual was perfect in her accompaniment.

Mrs. Abele for the Philanthropic committee introduced the speaker of the afternoon, Rev. Edward Cummings of Dr. Hale's church, Boston, whose subject was "Progress." After speaking of evolution and Darw in the world's progress, Mr. Cummings very forcibly presented the duty of the present generation in the growth and progress of life today and to come. His talk was strong and helpful. It is the duty of the strong to help the weak or the weak will get weaker and the strong weak. Every one should give in proposition to their strength and means. Do something to show your right to be on earth and make heaven on earth instead of only looking forward to the heaven above. If you have money and do not know how to spend it let some one who does, spend it for you for the good of humanity. A nation to lead must be strong in every sense, so must people if the world is to progress. The speaker left much with his listeners to think over and if the thoughts are put into practice good should result to this and other communities, as good work and deeds spread and multiply. We wish it were possible to give a more extended report of the many good points and thoughts presented by Mr. Cummings and hope he will come again to Quincy at some future date.

QUINCY ALLIANCE.

There was a large attendance Monday afternoon in First Church chapel of members and friends of the Quincy Alliance. The president Mrs. George W. Morton, presided conducting the devotional and business sessions.

Mrs. N. S. Hunting sang a group of children's songs accompanied by Miss Charlotte Burgess at the piano. Mrs. Davis being unable to be present, Rev. Mr. Ames read two poems, "The Legend of the Dipper" was "Entering In," after which the speaker of the afternoon, Rev. Louis C. Cornish of the First Parish of Hingham, was introduced and gave an interesting paper on "The Religious Education of Children." He said in part:

"Religious intruction is the right of the child. We should teach the child religion and not try to perpetuate the denomination of the church. Children want the story, to which we must and the explanation, the moral being, the last thing of interest to the child. The time to instruct is just before the world puts its burden o care upon the soul. Teach love to God and man, teach seasonableness, and capacity for spiritual things. Some of us never will be what we might have been spiritually because we were left to fight it out for ourselves."

The meeting closed with the usual social hour, during which Mrs. Edward Russell and Mrs. John O. Holden poured chocolate assisted by Alliance members.

NEIGHBORING.

Rockland Woman's club held its third annual guest night last week Friday. Each member had the privilege of inviting one guest and members had to show their membership tickets to be admitted. No tickets were sold at the door.

The Watertown Woman's club observes children's day on Feb. 20, with a program of moving pictures, dancing and refreshments. Tickets for club members and their children ten cents each, other children and non-members twenty-five cents.

The annual convention of the Woman's relief corps is to open in Boston at the People's temple, Columbus avenue, Wednesday, Feb. 16, at ten o'clock and continue two days.

Melrose club women are interesting themselves in securing a park for their city, the club president requesting that the city take early action toward acquiring property bordering on Ell pond. Mayor Moore in his inaugural address recommended action be taken to secure the park.

W. E. McClintock, chairman Chelsea Board of Control is to speak on "Municipal Government" at the regular meeting of the New England Women's club on Monday afternoon at half past three in the club rooms, Chauncy Hall building, Boston. A social, club supper, and entertainment follow the lecture at half-past five. The club will have a Patriotic day on the 22d in charge of the Education Committee.

Guest night of the New England Woman's Press association is to be observed at hotel Vendome, Boston, on Wednesday evening, Feb. 17th. A reception at half-past six will be followed by dinner at seven o'clock. Special guests will be Mayor Hibbard of Boston, Marshall Darrach, Sam Walter Foss, Dr. James Kendall Hosmer and Frank B. Tracy. Music will be by the Quincy Y. M. C. A. Mandolin, Banjo and Guitar club.

AMONG THE SPORTS.

Bryan S. Permar, chairman of the Boston Yacht club regatta committee, has issued a challenge to the Quincy Yacht club for a race for the Quincy cup for the season of 1909. This challenge was received yesterday by the local club and is the first of the season.

Received yesterday also was a challenge from the Corinthian Yacht club for the same trophy. It is expected that the Eastern and Manchester clubs will send in their challenges before long.

Since 1906, the first year of the sonder races, the matches for the Quincy cup have been between boats of this class. Before that the extreme scow with a 21 foot waterline was the style of racer. The first year of the revival of races for the cups the Manchester club defended it against the Quincy, Boston and Corinthian boats. The challenger from the latter took the cup and held it for a year.

Last summer the skillful work of Skipper Charles F. Adams with his speedy boat, the Manchester brought the cup back to its old home and "here it is going to stay" say the Quincy yachtsmen.

The Bucko's defeated the Rousers two out of three strings last night at the Associates' alleys. The strings were very close. Norteman and Hammond of the Bucko's were the star men of the evening. Norteman got one string of 90 without a spare or strike. The result is as follows:

The local high school basket ball team struck a snag in Reading on Tuesday afternoon, coming out on the short end of a 28 to 21 score in a game with the Reading high five. The two teams met earlier in the season and Quincy won, so Tuesday's game was looked forward to as a hot one. It was hot from the start and the game was in doubt right up to the end.

Manning was again the star of the game shooting fine baskets from the floor. "Russ" Bates also played a good game. Nichols, Trenholm and Eames excelled for Reading.

Between the halves the second teams of both schools played and the Quincy team won. The summary:

READING HIGH		QUINCY HIGH
Nichols rf		lb S. Bates, Prout
Trenholm lf		rb Marsh
Eames c		c Howe
Smith rb		lf Manning
Michilini lb		rf R. Bates

Score—Reading High 28, Quincy High 21. Goals from floor, Nichols 4, Trenholm 3, Eames 4, Smith, Michilini, Howe 2, Manning 5, R. Bates 3. Goals from fouls, Eames 2, Manning. Referee, Redden. Umpire Lakin. Scorer Holbrook. Timer Stembridge. Time 15 and 20 minute periods.

MASONS HONOR RETIRING TREASURER

E. T. Spear Presented Set Of Embossed Resolutions

A pleasing incident, not down on the call, took place Wednesday evening at the regular convocation of St. Stephens Royal Arch chapter. The incident was the presentation to Excellent Companion Elihu T. Spear who recently retired fromf the office o treasurer of a handsome set of embossed resolutions.

Excellent Companion Spear has been a member of St. Stephen's chapter for upwards of thirty years and has filled all the offices in the chapter.

He has been one of the most faithful workers for the welfare of the chapter and has been a constant attendant at its convocations and for several years past has been its treasurer.

The presentation speech was made by Rev. C. Hill Crathern who paid a high tribute to Mr. Spear.

In accepting the gift Mr. Spear assured the companions of his interest in the chapter and although out of office his interest for its welfare was just as keen as ever.

A banquet was served after the work of the evening.

HEARING POSTPONED.

A hearing was held at the State House this morning on the bills filed by Mayor Shea. One to make the Mayor chairman of the School Committee and the other to allow the city to appropriate money for a contagious ward at City Hospital.

He stated that Mayor Shea was in the south and that the City Solicitor was engaged in court and asked for a postponement of the hearing until such a time as the Mayor should return.

Ex-Senator Sprague said that he opposed the school committee bill, but he did not desire to speak until those in favor of it had spoken.

The hearing was then adjourned.

Among those present were Fred B. Rice, Walter E. Piper, Ralph W. Hobbs, John O. Hall, H. Y. Follett and B. F. Thomas.

TAKES MALDEN GIRL FOR BRIDE

E. M. Morse and Miss B. L. Bartlett Married

Surrounded by relatives and a few intimate friends Miss Bertha Lois Bartlett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Augustus James Bartlett of 35 Gould avenue, Malden, on Wednesday evening became the bride of Mr. Edwin Murdock Morse, son of Mrs. Joseph Copeland Morse of Quincy. The house was profusely decorated with flowers, potted palms and ferns.

The marriage was solemnized at half past seven by Rev. H. H. French, pastor of the First Congregational church of Malden, the order of entrance of the bridal party being, the minister; groom and best man Mr. Earl A. Bartlett, brother of the bride; the ushers, Mr. Joseph C. Morse, only brother of the groom, Mr. Frank H. Walsh of Quincy, Dr. Harrie V. Dunsmoor of Boston and Mr. Howard K. Frost of Malden; the matron of honor, Mrs. Earl A. Bartlett of Malden, and the bride and her father, who gave her in marriage. Music was by Brown's orchestra of Boston. The ceremony was impressive the double ring service being used.

A large reception for which over 300 invitations were issued was held from eight until half past nine attended by guests from Quincy, Malden, Boston and New York. Mrs. Morse and Mr. and Mrs. Bartlett assisted in receiving. Mrs. Morse was gowned in black net over black lustreless satin and Mrs. Bartlett wore champagne colored messaline silk trimmed with iridescent embroidered bands.

The bride's gown was beautiful. It was of white ivory satin, trimmed with ivory panne velvet roses and duchess lace. She carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley and the bridal veil was caught by the same exquisite flowers. Her only ornament was a pearl and diamond pendant and chain, a gift of the groom. The matron of honor was in pink messaline silk lace trimmed and her bouquet was of pink roses.

As souvenirs of the happy occasion the bride presented her matron of honor with a pair of gold collar pins and the groom gave gold cigar cutters to his best man and the ushers.

During the reception a wedding supper was served by Dill of Melrose. Numerous and costly gifts attested to the popularity of the young people.

About ten o'clock Mr. and Mrs. Morse left amid merry congratulations and good wishes with a plentiful sprinkling of confetti, for a trip of several weeks to New York, Philadelphia and Washington. Their future home will be in Malden. Both bride and groom are exceedingly popular among the younger set in Malden and Quincy and have the good wishes of many friends.

PHILLIPS—McFARLAND.

A pretty wedding took place Wednesday evening in Protection hall, Johnson building, when John Phillips and Miss Maragaret McFarland were united in marriage. Rev. Alfred R. Atwood, pastor of the Washington Street Congregational church performed the ceremony, the one ring service being used. The bridesmaid was Miss Elizabeth Kerr, and the best man was Alexander Hamilton.

A reception followed the ceremony at which John Kinniburgh and James McLean acted as ushers.

The bride was prettily gowned in a white Swiss embroidered dress and wore a tulle veil caught up with orange blossoms. Numerous presents were received from relatives and friends of the couple, who were present from Quincy and the neighboring towns. After a short honeymoon Mr. and Mrs. Phillips will reside at 255 Water street, Quincy Adams.

Dancing and singing took up the time after the reception and a general good time was enjoyed. There were vocal solos by John Hamilton, Miss Bessie McHoul and James Lendees and violin solos by George McClearie. Miss Nancy McHoul furnished music on the piano for the dancing.

—The action of the New Hampshire House of Representatives in passing the bill providing for a city charter for Claremont, is believed to assure a system of government in that city unique among the municipal governments in New England. Under the provisions of the charter the usual ward lines are eliminated. Provision is made for the removal of the mayor by the city council in the case of any abuse of his responsibilities.

COMMITTEE WILL ATTEND HEARING

Citizens' Association to Oppose Amendment to Charter

The Citizens' Association at its meeting Wednesday evening put itself on record as being against the proposed amendment to the City Charter, which makes the Mayor chairman of the School Committee, when a vote was passed that the sense of the Association was that it did not approve the proposed amendment.

It was also voted that the President of the Association be authorized to appear at the hearing in opposition to the bill and appoint a committee to appear with him.

The other Quincy bills before the legislature were taken up and discussed. The association voted to approve of the bill for establishing ward for contagious diseases at the City Hospital.

It was also voted that it is the sense of the Association that the city should have the right to appropriate money and the taking of land for the purpose of public landing places.

Frank Fessenden Crane reported that Judge Loyed Chamberlain, president of the Massachusetts Board of Trade had accepted the invitation of the Association for March 10, and would speak on the subject "Atlantic Deeper Waterways."

Mr. Crane and the secretary were made a committee to obtain if possible from the Mayor the use of City Hall for Judge Chamberlain's lecture in order that the citizens might be invited to attend.

Mr. Crane also reported that in a short time the Metropolitan Improvement Commission would give a hearing in regard to Quincy's waterfront and its relative connection with the New York, Brockton, Quincy and Boston canal.

GRANITE CITY WHIST.

There was a good attendance Wednesday evening at the weekly whist torunament of the Granite City club and some good scores were made. J. H. Johnson and Warren H. Rideout were high men the former securing 73 per cent and the latter 70 per cent. Ice cream and cake was served after the play.

ON VAGRANCY CHARGE.

St. Bernard Dog Arrested by Local Officers.

The "arrest" of a St. Bernard dog in Quincy square this morning caused no little amusement. The dog is a stranger about town and has been running wild for the last few days. He was minus a muzzle and had been in the habit of late, of jumping and snapping at other dogs.

Hence Officer Murray decided to give the dog a ride and sent for the wagon. When the patrol arrived "Jim," who had the canine by a string, jumped into the wagon, and bade his charge follow. The dog refused to get into the wagon and several willing hands attempted to help him. All to no avail, however, for the dog absolutely refused to take a ride.

Added to his obstinacy was the age of the animal, who really seemed unable to jump into the wagon. Officer Murray then decided to try strategy, so he started down Hancock street with the dog in tow. The wagon followed and about a hundred yards down the officer tried again. This time he was successful and the dog is now at the station.

Nothing was found on the person of the animal to identify him. He was dead broke and seemed glad to be in a nice warm place. He had on a black collar and a fur coat and although rather old, seemed to be somewhat of a sport.

He will appear in court tomorrow morning and the charge of vagrancy will be preferred against him. It is an extreme case and he will probably be sentenced to be shot.

NORFOLK SUPERIOR COURT.

At the superior court at Dedham this morning in the case of John Doyle vs. the Quincy Quarries Company of Quincy an agreement was reached whereby the defendant is to pay the full amount under the Employes Liability Act, namely $,4000.

Doyle sued to recover $15,000 for damages for personal injuries received June 21, 1907, by a derrick falling upon him at the Hitchcock quarry. John W. McAnarney for plaintiff and Walter L. Badger for defendant.

At the jury waived session before before Judge Raymond at Dedham Wednesday Elizabeth V. Fogarty of New York was granted a decree nisi from William H. Fogarty of Quincy for neglect to provide suitable support. J. J. and J. W. McAnarney for libellant.

Emma A. Wallace was granted a decree nisi from James W. Wallace of Weymouth for gross and confirmed habits of intoxication.

Exercises In Schools.

Lincoln's birthday will be observed in all the schools tomorrow with special exercises. The High school and Woodward Institute will have their exercises at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning. The students will take part and the general public is invited to attend.

The day will be observed in the public schools in the afternoon, the exercises beginning at 2 o'clock. The parents and friends of the pupils and teachers are invited to be present.

—The lady behind the counter at one of the winter drapery sales in Oldham street, wrote out the bill for my purchases (writes "B.") on a little manifolding book which reproduced her writing by means of a carbon paper on the page below. Then she took the half sovereign I tendered in payment, and, placing it on the upper page, pressed it hard down with her thumb. I asked the reason. "We have instructions," she explained, "to take the impression of any coin received by means of the carbon paper in the book. See (turning to the duplicate of my bill) there is the impression of your half-sovereign. You couldn't very well think you'd given me a sovereign after seeing that, could you? You'd be surprised," she added, "how often we have to show our books to people to convince them we've not made a mistake."—Manchester Guardian.

STEPPED IN FRONT OF CAR

Germantown Man Injured While Walking Home

Fred W. Corcoran, aged about 27 years and employed on Hodgkinson's farm at Germantown, was run over by an electric car shortly after midnight Wednesday and had his right foot cut off above the ankle.

The accident happened near the corner of Sea and Palmer streets and as far as can be learned, no blame is attached to the motorman of the car.

The car, in charge of Conductor Dunnam and motorman Abbott, left City Square at midnight for Houghs Neck. On the return trip the car came to a stop at the corner of Palmer street. This is a dangerous crossing and the rules require all cars to stop at the crossing.

There is an arc light at this corner but it is reported that the light was not burning at the time.

Just as motorman Abbott started his car, Corcoran came out from some bushes near the track and stepped directly in front of the car.

The thing was done so quickly that the car could not be stopped and both wheels passed over Corcoran's right leg, cutting off the foot so that it hung by only a thread of flesh.

The police ambulance was telephoned for and the man was removed to the City hospital, where the foot was amputated.

Corcoran is quite a character in his way and is well known to the night owls in City Square. He frequently comes from Boston on a late train and invariably visits a restaurant for lunch.

It not unfrequently happens that by so doing he misses the last car and has to walk home. It is thought this is what he did Wednesday night.

The wireless telephone is coming. The voice has been clearly carried a distance of sixty miles in stormy weather. In France a wireless telephone service has been installed between Paris and Marseilles, a distance of six hundred miles.

The Civil Service law was enacted twenty-five years ago. It has withstood the attacks of every Congress. Its enemies do not hesitate to vote against it on a yea and nay vote, but the roll call makes them afraid. Their effort to grab patronage through the Census bureau is disgraceful.

The American cement companies, having formed a great trust, should at least be able to stick together, but are they not carrying it a little too far when the build concrete fences around baseball parks without any holes for the small boy to look through?

It is said that the Canadians are buying up timber on vast tracts of forest land in anticipation of lower tariff rates on lumber. What a calamity it will be to this country if we shall have cheap building material and cheap pulp! How hard and oppressive it will be on the carpenters that build and the people who live in the cheaper houses.

It is learned that the inhabitants of the Republic of Panama are of opinion that the Americans are stingy and they have taken great offense that they do not buy of them at their exorbitant prices. It is understood that one can live now at Panama by buying of American merchants, as cheaply as anywhere in the United States. It is a fact well known by travellers that Americans are looked upon the world over as the lawful prey of shopkeepers, hotels and cab drivers. If the Republic of Panama has been educated to a different impression, there is one nation, at least, that has made a good beginning.

There are but three remaining weeks of the sixtieth Congress and the work for the remaining days has been fully planned. Five appropriation bills remain for enactment by the House. The Agricultural and Indian bills and the bill providing money for the Diplomatic and Consular service it is expected will be completed this week. The River and Harbors bill it is thought will be passed in the next ten days. On the tenth of the month the House and the Senate met to count the electoral vote when a formal announcement of the election of Taft as President and Sherman as Vice Presiednt was made. The indications are that Arizona and New Mexico will be admitted to statehood this session but there are signs of opposition in the Senate which may prevent this consummation. The desire of Congress for extended debate on the Postal Savings Bank Bill favored by both parties in their national platforms will probably prevent its enactment in this Congress.

The Commission on Country Life, one of the many commissions appointed by the retiring President has been reported, through the editor of The Worlds Work, Mr. Shaw one of the Commissioners. No formal report has been made public. The Commission, it appears, held audiences in thirty states and received answers to its printed questionaires in no less than 125,000 letters. An analysis of this material would indicate what of course everybody knew that the tides of well being in rural life is higher than has ever before been known. The country population is increasing with a rapidity that will leave little for criticism by the denouncer of race suicide, but nevertheless, it appears that rural life like city life falls far short of ideal conditions. In the answers to the questionaire the main plaint was the lack of good roads, the next the lack of good, better and best schools. The demand is wide and insistent for an extention of rural free delivery service, also for the parcels post and postals saving banks. There is nothing particularly new in these demands of farmers and suburbanites but there is an evident awakening throughout the country to the necessities which are becoming the demands of the rural population. This population is not only stronger in money and intelligence than ever before and with this strength has come an accretion of political power and a courageous determination to have what they are entitled to.

POWER OF PARDON INFRINGED UPON

President Vetoes a Bill Which Favored Deserters

Washington, Feb. 11.—President Roosevelt vetoed the senate bill authorizing the secretary of the navy to mitigate or remit the penalties of loss of citizenship imposed upon deserters from the army or navy.

The objection is based upon the infringement of the executive's power of pardon and it is asserted by the president that the bill, in its present form, would probably tend to increase desertions, whereas the original draft submitted by the navy department was unobjectionable.

HEAT OF 6300 DEGREES

Newly Invented Torch Produces Flame of Most Remarkable Power

Cleveland, Feb. 11.—A torch operated by oxygen and acetylene, radiating a heat of 6300 degrees, said to be the most terrific known to science, has just been invented here.

By means of this torch it is possible, it is declared, to weld aluminum, heretofore regarded as an impossibility.

The torch makes a flame that will cut through two inches of solid steel in less than one minute, and pierce a twelve inch piece of the hardest steel in less than ten minutes. It would take a saw almost twenty-four hours to do this work.

PYRE ALL PREPARED

Negro Rescued From Awful Fate Just as Match Was Applied

Tampa, Fla., Feb. 11.—Charles Crumley, a negro, arrested for attempting criminal assault on Miss Irma Newell, was taken from the jail at Lakeland by a thousand men, bound to a stake on a pile of fagots and soaked with oil.

As a match was being applied to the pyre, Sheriff Logan rushed up and induced the mob to save the negro, saying he could prove an alibi.

Crumley was marched back to jail. Two companies of the national guard have been ordered to Lakeland to assist in protecting Crumley.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

PRESSURE HAS DESIRED EFFECT

Californians Reverse Previous Anti-Japanese Attitude

SEGREGATION BILL IS KILLED

Its Supporters Make Strong Effort to Resurrect It, but Are Defeated In a Close Vote—Legislature Now Clear of Any Measure Objected to by National Administration After Warm and Lengthy Argument

Sacramento, Feb. 11.—Yielding to the pressure brought to bear by President Roosevelt and Governor Gillett, the California assembly reversed its previous position by reconsidering the former vote on the segregation of Japanese students in the public schools and finally rejecting the measure by a vote of 41 to 37.

An effort by the supporters of the bill further to reconsider was lost by a vote of 38 to 38, and the assembly is now clear of any Japanese measure objected to by the national administration.

The fight for the suppression of the bill was won only after many hours of heated debate on the floor. The struggle started at 10:30 o'clock Wednesday morning on the presentation of a resolution by Assemblyman Transue of Los Angeles affirming the right of the state to govern its schools, but withdrawing the Japanese segregation measure because of the president's objection to it, and it lasted until 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when Grove L. Johnson's motion further to reconsider his defeated school segregation bill was defeated.

The anti-Japanese forces in the assembly were led by Johnson, author of the school segregation bill on which the fight hinged, and Louis W. Junillard, Democratic floor leader, while the opposition was directed by Transue and Richard Melrose. Transue's resolution opened the debate and the fight was really on this measure, the reconsideration motion not being put until there had been a lengthy argument.

Mr. Johnson repeated his defiance of the president and called upon the assembly to "stand by its guns." He was answered by Transue and Melrose, every phase of the question being reviewed.

Mr. Transue suddenly withdrew his resolution and the discussion centered on the reconsideration motion presented by Walter Leeds. This was finally forced to a vote and was carried by 43 to 34. The rollcall on the bill itself immediately followed and it was rejected by a vote of 41 to 37.

Mr. Johnson was at once on his feet with a motion again to reconsider. This motion was put to a vote and resulted 38 to 38 and the bill was dead.

Governor Gillett says that the next matter to be taken up by the assembly will be the proposed appropriation of $10,000 for compiling a census of Japanese in California. He says that if, from the data gathered, it is found necessary, congress will be urged to enact an Asiatic exclusion measure.

PLACE ON HONOR ROLL

Awaits First Wireless Operator to Pick Up News of Fleet

Newport, R. I., Feb. 11.—As the Atlantic fleet approaches Hampton Roads from Gibraltar on its final lap after its cruise around the world, every wireless station on the coast maintained by the navy department is anxiously awaiting to pick up the news of the ships and to be the first to definitely locate them.

The operator to pick up the first message will be placed on the honor roll, and every naval wireless operator is awaiting and listening in the hope of being able to receive and flash the first intelligence which will be sent to the secretary of the navy.

THINK EXPLORER COOK IS SAFE

Friends Organizing a Polar Relief Expedition

New York, Feb. 11.—A committee of ten has been organized to equip a relief expedition to look for Dr. Frederick Cook of Brooklyn, who is supposed now to be wintering somewhere in the polar regions after an attempt to reach the pole last summer.

The expedition will be under the auspices of the Arctic Club of America and the Explorers' club. It is the opinion of those familiar with Arctic exploration that Cook is safe somewhere in the Polar regions, but needs a ship to convey him home. Cook started for the pole in June, 1907.

JUDGE SCORES JURORS

Thinks They Are Not Competent to Serve In That Capacity

Plymouth, Mass., Feb. 11.—Declaring that the jurymen had given a verdict contrary to the evidence and that if, after having sworn to try the case fairly, they had no respect for their oaths they were not fit to be jurors, Judge White summarily discharged the twelve men who had found T. F. Holmes not guilty in a manslaughter case and excused them from further service during the term.

T. F. Holmes of Abington was charged with having caused the death of John Moore, his uncle by marriage, by striking him and knocking him down in a train, when both were returning from Boston to Abington on Dec. 19 last.

When the jury returned the foreman announced the jury had found a verdict of "not guilty." Judge White then expressed his opinion of the act of the jury and dismissed it, following with the discharge of Holmes.

GETS TWENTY-FIVE YEARS

Scores of Robberies Were Traced to a Convicted Housebreaker

Boston, Feb. 11.—The unusually long sentence of not less than twenty-five nor more than thirty years for housebreaking was meted out to Charles Davis of Jersey City by Chief Justice Aiken in the superior court.

Davis had been found guilty of entering the house of Frank O. Kimball of this city on Jan. 10 and the judge also took into consideration the fact that more than a score of robberies throughout the state, in which property valued at $6000 was involved, had been traced to the prisoner.

Davis is 34 years old. A pal, Harry J. Lee of this city, was sentenced to two years in the house of correction.

IRISHMEN ARE GRATEFUL

Dublin Convention Thanks Americans For Their Generous Support

Dublin, Feb. 11.—On the reassembling here of the national convention, one of the first acts was the adoption of a resolution expressing the appreciation of the delegates for the generous support given by America to the Irish cause.

In moving this resolution Mr. Dillon said the United States became bound to the Irish race during the days of darkness and misfortune by ties which the lapse of time never could sever. He pointed out the success that Irishmen have achieved in America and said that Ireland owed a deep debt of gratitude to the land of the Stars and Stripes.

The convention came to a conclusion with a speech by John E. Redmond, who declared that only discord among the Irish themselves could prevent the coming of home rule.

CRANK AT WHITE HOUSE

Does Nothing More Serious Than Reading a Poem Entitled "Peace"

Washington, Feb. 11.—Among the callers at the White House Wednesday was one who with a German accent who announced himself as "Prince Albert of England" and later he said he had relatives at Taunton, Mass.

His odd costume and long brown locks, which fell below his collar, attracted much attention. He did not see the president, but before leaving the White House grounds read a poem entitled "Peace," which he has dedicated to the president.

Actor Instantly Killed

New York, Feb. 11.—While rehearsing his part in the Novelty theatre, Brooklyn, Joseph Jewell, chief actor in the vaudeville act known as "Jewell's Manikins," fell through a trap, a distance of thirty feet, and landed on his head. He died instantly.

Weather Puts Damper on Carnival

Montreal, Feb. 11.—Montreal's winter carnival was ushered in by a big sleet storm which hampered street railway and other transportation and kept visitors and natives alike indoors. Last night the ice palace was illuminated for the first time.

Compulsory Wireless Equipment

Washington, Feb. 11.—Senator Frye introduced a bill which requires all ocean-going steamers carrying fifty passengers or more between ports 200 miles apart to be equipped with wireless apparatus.

WHY SO WEAK?

Kidney Troubles May be Sapping Your Life Away. Quincy People Have Learned This Fact.

When a healthy man or woman begins to run down without apparent cause, becomes weak, lanquid, depressed, suffers backache, headache, dizzy spells and urinary disorders, look to the kidneys for the cause of it all. Keep the kidneys well and they will keep you well. Doan's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys and keep them well. Here is Quincy testimony to prove it.

Mrs. J. Boyle, living at 8 Marsh street, Quincy, Mass., says: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills and can say they are unequalled for the purpose for which they are intended. They built up my general system and in six weeks' time, freed me from kidney complaint from which I had suffered for a great many years. This valuable remedy can be procured at the Cox Drug Store."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

BURTON HOLMES' TRAVELOGUES.

"Our Own Hawaii" is the subject chosen by Burton Holmes for the first Travelogue in his series. Those interested in the extension of our boundaries an dour political outspreading toward the setting sun, will find much of interest and information in this lecture. Having been there ten years ago, Mr. Holmes is competent to mark out the vast changes and progress since these islands have become a part of the U. S. A. By means of motion pictures and finely colored lantern slides, he will show the cities and country as it looks today; its mixed population in the schools and in the daily walks of life; various phases of commercial progress, cattle and sheep raising the sugar industry and others. While laying especial stress upon the human element in this Travelogue, Mr. Holmes does not for a moment neglect the marvels and beauties of this Pacific paradise. Among the motion pictures, one showing the volcano Kilauea in active eruption, is most awe inspiring, giving the actual glimpses of the flow of molten lava and the molten cauldron of the crater itself.—a photograph taken at two A. M. by the light of its own unearthly fires. "Our Own Hawaii" will be given at Tremont Temple, Boston, Friday evening, February 12th, at 8.15 ;and repeated on Saturday afternoon, February 13th, at 2.30.

AFTER THREE DAYS' SAILING

Ships Conveying Taft and Party Anchor In Gulf of Mexico

TO REACH NEW ORLEANS TODAY

Elaborate Program For Entertainment of President-Elect While In the Crescent City—Worked on Inaugural Address While on Way From Panama—Engineers Also Improved Their Time by Compiling Report

New Orleans, Feb. 11.—After being out from Colon barely three days, cruisers North Carolina and Montana, conveying President-Elect Taft and his party on the trip home, dropped anchor last night in the Gulf of Mexico off the Mississippi river passes.

The scout cruiser Birmingham and the lighthouse tender Magnolia were lying in the offing when the Montana and North Carolina hove in sight. At 8 o'clock this morning the Magnolia came alongside the two cruisers and transferred Taft and the members of his party to the Birmingham, on which the trip is being made up the Msisissippi to New Orleans.

The Birmingham will meet the New Orleans river reception committee eight miles below the city at 1 o'clock today. Taft will reach the foot of Canal street an hour later. A civic and military parade will follow the arrival of President-Elect and Mrs. Taft and tonight they will occupy the box of honor at the old French opera house. Friday morning a reception will be tendered the president-elect under the auspices of the negro Y. M. C. A., and Friday night a banquet will be given Taft by 1000 citizens of New Orleans.

The voyage from Panama was uneventful with the exception of the disabling of the machinery of the Montana last Monday, the second day out from Colon. As a result of this accident it became necessary for the Montana to fall behind until repairs could be made and when these were completed a 19-knot clip had to be maintained by the Montana for a day in order to overtake the North Carolina and again resume her place as convoy.

Mr. Taft occupied his time during the voyage at work on the inaugural address. The engineers took time to compile their official work, which will approve the Gatun dam as at present planned as well as the Colon harbor breakwater, besides giving expert opinions on several engineering questions regarding the canal.

This report will be transmitted to President Roosevelt by Taft and will be used by Colonel Goethals before congressional committees in explaining the estimates for appropriations for the coming year.

REDUCTION OF SALARY

May Make Knox Eligible to Become Secretary of State

Washington, Feb. 11.—Following closely upon the discovery that Senator Knox could not, without violating a provision of the constitution of the United States, accept the state portfolio in the Taft cabinet, the senate took prompt action to remove the constitutional objection.

Senator Hale introduced a resolution, which was referred to the committee on the judiciary, providing that the salary of the secretary of state be reduced from $12,000 to $8000, the figure at which it stood before it was increased, along with those of all other cabinet officers, two years ago.

MINISTER SHAW'S WILL

It Directs That All His Sermons and Writings Be Burned

Boston, Feb. 11.—The will of the late Rev. George S. Shaw, formerly pastor of the First Parish church of Ashby, filed in the Middlesex probate court, directs that all his sermons and private writings be burned by his executors, without being read by them. The widow alone is permitted to read the papers if she desires.

Shaw was for forty years pastor of the Ashby church and died on Feb. 1 at the age of 70 years.

Mrs. Cochran's Will

New York, Feb. 11.—The will of Mrs. E. S. Cochran, widow of William F. Cochran, was filed at Yonkers Wednesday. Mrs. Cochran died here last week. Her estate is estimated at about $8,000,000. Many relatives, the servants and a number of charities are specified in the will, but the bulk of the estate goes to the six children of the testatrix.

Noise Annoys Financiers

Boston, Feb. 11.—The financiers of State street, to secure relief from the noise of heavy teaming, have united and collected $15,000 to repave the street with wooden blocks. It is the first time in history that the cost of paving a Boston street has been entirely defrayed by the abuttors.

Driscoll Defeats Cross

New York, Feb. 11.—In a slashing ten-round fight here last night, Jim Driscoll, the English lightweight, had the best of his bout with Leach Cross of New York. Cross showed to good advantage only in the sixth and seventh rounds.

Danderine

GROWS HAIR and we can PROVE IT!

A lady from Minnesota writes: "As a result of using Danderine, my hair is close to five feet in length."

Beautiful Hair at Small Cost

HAIR troubles, like many other diseases, have been wrongly diagnosed and altogether misunderstood. The hair itself is not the thing to be treated, for the reason that it is simply a product of the scalp and wholly dependent upon its action. The scalp is the very soil in which the hair is produced, nurtured and grown, and it alone should receive the attention if results are to be expected. It would do no earthly good to treat the stem of a plant with a view of making it grow and become more beautiful—the soil in which the plant grows must be attended to. Therefore, the scalp in which the hair grows must receive the attention if you are to expect it to grow and become more beautiful.

Loss of hair is caused by the scalp drying up, or losing its supply of moisture or nutriment; when baldness occurs the scalp has simply lost all its nourishment, leaving nothing for the hair to feed upon (a plant or even a tree would die under similar conditions.)

The natural thing to do in either case, is to feed and replenish the soil or scalp as the case may be, and your crop will grow and multiply as nature intended it should.

Knowlton's Danderine has a most wonderful effect upon the hair glands and tissues of the scalp. It is the only remedy for the hair ever discovered that is similar to the natural hair foods or liquids of the scalp.

It penetrates the pores quickly and the hair soon shows the effects of its wonderfully exhilarating and life-producing qualities.

One 25-cent bottle is enough to convince you of its great worth as a hair growing and hair beautifying remedy—try it and see for yourself.

NOW at all druggists in three sizes, 25c, 50c and $1.00 per bottle.

Cut This Out

FREE To show how quickly Danderine acts, we will send a large sample free by return mail to anyone who sends this free coupon to the KNOWLTON DANDERINE CO., CHICAGO, ILL., with their name and address and 10c in silver or stamps to pay postage.

WEYMOUTH

An alarm was rung in from box 25 Tuesday night for a fire at the dwelling 618 Broad street, occupied by Cornelious Condrick. An overturned lamp caused the blaze which did a damaged of $25 to the furniture.

Exercises appropriate to the day, will be held in all the schools in town Friday afternoon. The 100th anniversary of the birth of Abraham Lincoln.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert P. Worthen are and wife from Bridgewater, N. H.

Charles Loring, Jr., of New York is in town on a visit to his parents Mr. and Mrs. Charles Loring.

Miss Louise Frary is out after being confined to the house with an attack of the grip.

Rev. F. B. Cressey of Cambridge, a former pastor of the First Baptist church and Mrs. Cressey have been in town calling on friends.

The members of Dephi Temple, No. 59 Pythias Sisterhood held a whist party at Pythian hall Tuesday afternoon followed by a supper in the evening. The winners of the whist prizes were, Miss Leona Pope, Miss Miss Gertrude Souther, Miss Susie Delorey and Miss Mabel Tirdale.

Court Monatiquot Foresters of America was represented at the meeting of the Old Colony Board of deputies and chief rangers of the Foresters of America. It was decided to recommend to the various courts to hold a class initiation in April.

At the whist party of Delphi lodge Knights of Pythias the prizes were won by Miss Catherine Cleary, Miss Elizabeth Lane, Miss Nellie Cleary, William J. Orr, John Silva and Walter Philbrook.

The Weymouth School Committee came in for a great roasting at the hands of the superintendent of schools A. A. Badger, Tuesday at a meeting of the teachers of the town, which was held at the high school.

It was given out in advance that Mr. Badger was to haul the school board over the coals and every teacher in town attended.

Ever since Mr. Badger was re-elected superintendent last summer, when he received just votes enough for his election, there has been trouble.

He tendered his resignation some time ago as the result of the schools in one ward in town being closed for an hour during the funeral of Rev. J. J. Murphy. Members say that he knew that he could not get a re-election and took that way of trying to get public sympathy. His resignation takes effect May 1st, but he will be called upon to resign at once. The school board calls the attack an outrage and very unbecoming a man at the head of a great school system.

The affair is the talk of the town and Tuesday, was the sole topic of conversation at every place in town where two or more citizens gathered.

This tirade is called an outrage and prominent citizens say that the school board show good judgment in not wanting such a man in their employ as superintendent Badger. It is probable that a special meeting of the school board will be called and that Mr. Badger will be asked to resign at once.

He said when he came to this town he expected the teachers would be loyal and he believed that they were as a body. He expected the teachers would criticise him but wished they had come to him instead of going to the committee to criticise. He had tendered his resignation to take effect May 1st and wanted to explain his attitude. He said there had been falsehoods told about him and that he resigned as a matter of principle. Certain members of the school committee had exceeded their authority and had violated the statutes, and the members of the school board had no power outside the committee rooms unless delegated to them.

He didn't want any sympathy for himself but was sorry for the town and hoped public spirited citizens would arouse themselves and drive politics from the schools. He hoped the time would come when the town would elect a school committee which would attend to the business part of it and leave the professional end to the superintendent.

He said he should be with them but a short time longer, and hoped his successor, whoever he might be, would find less of this political intriguing and scheming than had been his experience.

WOMEN ARE VICTIMS

INDOOR LIFE AND LACK OF EXERCISE CAUSES PILES.

More women than men have piles. It is because they take so little outdoor exercise and are so often constipated. There is a stagnation of blood in the lower bowel, and no amount of cutting or treatment with ointments and suppositories will remove this cause.

Dr. Leonhardt's Hem-Roid, an internal, tablet medicine, will permanently cure any case of piles, removing the cause. Price $1 at Clyde T. Cox's. Quincy, Mass. Fully guaranteed. Dr. Leonhardt Co., Station B, Buffalo, N. Y. Write for booklet.

LINCOLN DAY PROCLAMATION.

Governor Draper in his Lincoln Day proclamation says:

"This year is the one hundredth anniversary of Lincoln's birth, and not merely in Massachusetts but throughout the whole country proper observances commemorating his great life are to be held. In this Commonwealth I am sure much more notice will be taken of the day than at any previous time, and I believe it is well that it should be so. I trust, however, that the usual services in commemoration of the day will be held.

"Abraham Lincoln was one of the greatest men of our country and of the world. Being denied all the advantages o fan early education, he surmounted every obstacle and became learned in the law, eloquent in speech and a master of classic English; but what made him really great was his large heart and marvelous judgment. He realized that this country could not live half free and half slaves and was willing to make any sacrifice of blood and treasure that was necessary to preserve the nation. In doing this he was so great that, although the head of a large army carrying on a tremendous war, he never had an unkind feeling toward those on the other side.

"Had he not been blessed with a great sense of humor, it does not seem possible that he could have lived through the terrible trials of the great conflict.

"It is most fitting, therefore, that exercises in his memory should be carried out in all proper ways.

"It is especially important that exercises should be held in our public schools commemorating his life and career, so that the children who are being educated as the American citizens of the future may have an opportunity to learn of his character and greatness, that his life may be an example for them to follow."

LINCOLN'S DESCENT.

On his mother's side Abraham Lincoln was of Old Colony descent. Benjamin Hanks married in England and came to Plymouth in 1699, and Feb. 25, 1713, paid John Partridge nine pounds for 30 acres of land in what was then the western part of Pembroke, it being the southern half of lot No. 35 of Major's Purchase, and is now traversed by the track of the Brockton & Plymouth Street railway, while the South Grammar school of South Hanson is close to its boundary. In 1725 Benjamin Hanks sold the plot to Isaac Little for 120 pounds, and removed to Plymouth. He had a family of eleven children, and William born Feb. 11, 1704, settled in Virginia, where his son Joseph, married Nancy Shepley and settled in Amelia county, in the same state. They had eight children, and the youngest, Nancy, was born Feb. 5, 1784. The family moved to Kentucky about 1789, and June 12, 1806, Nancy married Thomas Lincoln. They went to Buffalo, Ky., some fourteen miles from Elizabethtown, and there Abraham Lincoln was born Feb. 12, 1809. The old deed of the purchase of the land in South Hanson is said to be yet in existence, and the story is an interesting contribution to the history of the life of the great war president.—Whitman Times.

OF INTEREST TO MOTORISTS.

It seems some distance yet to the time of the crankless car, but the inventers are busy and there is progress in devices to render needless the cranking of the engine. As the manufacturers get time to test out and apply such things, the crankless car probably will make its appearance gradually, one make after another, as such changes usually occur. Several different starting devices of new design will be among the features at the show of the Boston Automobile Dealers Association in Mechanics hall next month and they will interest all ushers. The Boston show, always recongnized as the big retail show of the year, brings to Boston, as it does to no other show in the country, the most noted, experienced and profound motor engineers of the country, as well as the manufacturers and the several sales managers; in fact it has been said that if one desires to locate the feet, body and head of the motor industry in the month of March you will find them located at the Boston Automobile Show. This is an established fact. Here the captains of the motor industry are always to be found, as this show gives them about the things that really effect the industry. Manager Chester I. Campbell feels much elated over the present prospects as do for that matter all of the local dealers.

—Complete sets of photographs, geological collections, Indian curios, specimens of fish, bones of prehistoric animals and big collecfions of interesting souvenirs will be displayed the Alaska building at the Seattle Exposition in 1909 called the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition.

NEGATIVE SIDE WINS DEBATE

Mens' Club Decide Monroe Doctrine Not Obsolete

Resolved—that the Monroe Doctrine is obsolete, was the subject for debate at the meeting of the Men's club of Christ church, Wednesday night. The affirmative side was taken by Archibald McLeod and H. G. Johnson while N. M. Spencer and William Walker spoke on the negative side. Mr. McLeod the first speaker contended that the Monroe Doctrine had outgrown its usefullness and that there was no valid reason for its existence. He said there was no danger of any foreign power seizing any of the South American Republics. In regard to the rumor that Germany looked longingly at Brazil and other countries for colonyization purposes, Mr. McLeod said that the German settlers were after the mines, and located in South America as individuals and not as a nation. The speakers for the negative side said that they did not agree with Mr. McLeod, they thought the Monroe Doctrine was as necessary now, as ever, that without this doctrine, South America with is wonderful natural resources would be seized by some of the great foreign powers for colonization purposes. Both sides touched upon the Japanese question, the debaters of the negative side claiming that the Monroe Doctrine was one of the main things that kept Japan from taking our Pacific possessions. The subject of international law was also touched upon by most of the speakers. The debate was decided in favor of the negative side. The judges were T. R. McPherson Norman Ross and Mr. Innes.

TO BEAUTIFY COMMON.

Speaking of the removal of the clumsy stone subway entrance housings from the Common as superfluous obstructions and excrescences upon that superb Court of Honor to the Back Bay, says the listener in the Boston Transcript, one of the fanciful and public-spirited Boston architects who are continually at work in their minds over rearrangements of the architectural monuments of the city, has a new suggestion. It is from the same mind as proposed a sort of tower of St. Jacques on the Boylston street side of the Common to match the Park street corner. He proposes that if the old Custom House is ever demolished (as it may be in the course of the backing and filling in Congress over providing us with a modern Custom House) the porticos should be preserved and reerected on the two main entrances to the Common, one at Park street corner and the other at that true centre and axis of the Common, the site of the removed West street gate, a finely proportioned wrought iron portal as the Listener Remembers it. The great porticos of columns are nearly seventy feet wide and are wholly detached as to the body of the building. They could easily be reerected and would look well even alone on the two sites named. More elegant ornamental entrances to the two main avenues of the Common could not be thought of! To be sure there might perhaps have to be some little changes made in the paths to adapt them to meeting all of the five spaces between the columns. If these grand old monoliths—the wonder of their day, half a century ago—are taken down what possible use could be more fitting for them? It would give them something of a public character of their own, a new lease of life of public importance, far more so than if used as portions of any other new building. The twice-told tale of their journey from Quincy drawn by forty-yoke of oxen in the midst of a public holiday lining the ways to their destination, would be revived for new generations to come. There is plenty of the same tint of granite where these came from to make plinths to put under the columns, for they should not stand directly on the ground, or they would give rise to the legend that some portion of the noble pile had sunk beneath the surface. There is still left plenty of Quincy granite to complete both sides of the collosal gateway so as to be alike.

Several of the business men are honoring Abraham Lincoln by placing pictures of the martyred president in the windows of their stores. These are given a very attractive appearance by having the stars and stripes draped about them.

With Mr. Albert Snow at the organ, assisted by Mr. Charles Greene, baritone, the program for the organ recital at Christ church on Monday evening next, promises to be one of the very best ever heard in this city. Mr. Greene was for several years organist and choir-master at All Saint's church, Ashmont, while Mr. Snow is the present organist and choirmaster at the church of the Advent, Boston, successor to the well known veteran organist of Boston, Mr. S. B. Whitney.

AMONG THE SPORTS.

The pool tournament of the Houghs Neck Associates is fast coming to an end twenty players particapated. The large majority of the players received a large handicap ranging from 100 to 400 points on the 1000 to be played. The scratch men are Norteman, Regan, Mains and LaBreque. The scratch men are pretty evenly divided and their scores do not vary 10 points. Norteman is the best man of all the players, playing a steady careful game, taking very few chances.

The Quincy High school basket ball five plays the Concord School five tomorrow afternoon at the local gymnasium. The boys from Concord have a fast team, having defeated many of the best teams in and about Boston, so a hot game is expected when they play the local lads.

TODAY'S COURT.

George Jones was fined $25 for creating a disturbance on a street car.

George Bassett was sent to the state farm for being a tramp at Randolph.

George W. Drake was arraigned for felonious assault at Quincy and was held in $2000 until next Monday.

NATION WILL HONOR LINCOLN

Celebrations In Many Cities to Be Held Tomorrow

WILL BE GENERAL HOLIDAY

Southern States Join With North In Paying Respect to Memory of Martyred President—Features of the Day In New York, Chicago, Washington and Elsewhere Include Mass Meetings and Assemblages of Children In the Schools

Washington, Feb. 11.—Reports reaching here from all parts of the United States indicate that the observance of Lincoln's centennial day will be general throughout the country. All of the northern states will celebrate the day, and many of the southern states will follow the lead of Arkansas, where Governor Donaghey issued a proclamation setting aside Feb. 12 as a semi-holiday and calling attention to the greatness of Lincoln as a man. The governor's proclamation declared that Lincoln should be more honored by the south.

The celebration in the national capital will take the form of meetings, at which addresses will be made by men of national and local prominence. President Roosevelt will be at the Lincoln farm in Kentucky, Vice President Fairbanks will be in Harrisburg, Pa., and many of the other leaders of public life here will be at their homes, but a sufficient number will remain in Washington to give the celebration a national character to some extent. The large negro population of the city has made elaborate preparations for honoring the one hundredth birthday of the great liberator. By act of congress tomorrow will be a legal holiday in the District of Columbia and the territories.

A feature of Lincoln day at the capital that will be of national interest will be the issue of the special Lincoln two cent stamp. It will be red and will bear a portrait of Lincoln taken from the statue by St. Gaudens in Chicago.

HOW GOTHAM CELEBRATES

Mayor McClellan Calls on Citizens to Decorate Their Homes

New York, Feb. 11.—As the greatest city of the nation which will honor the memory of Abraham Lincoln tomorrow, New York will have a notable part in the celebration of the one hundredth birthday of the emancipator. Lincoln's birthday has been a legal holiday in New York for several years, and the general cessation of work is an annual occurrence, but tomorrow even those business houses which have heretofore failed to observe the holiday will close their doors. Stores, offices, shops and dwelling houses will be adorned with flags, and a greater display of bunting than has ever before marked a holiday in the metropolis is expected.

Mayor McClellan has issued a proclamation calling on citizens to decorate their homes, and he has asked President Roosevelt to order the firing of the national salute from every United States warship, wherever it may be. Lincoln's Gettysburg address is to be read in every army post and on every war vessel. Governor Hughes has been requested to have a salute fired from all the state batteries.

For several months a committee of prominent citizens has been laboring to make Lincoln centennial day one of the greatest in the history of the city. Owing to the season, however, there will be no outdoor features of the celebration. Probably the part of the city's program that has attracted most attention among the people is the gathering of the city's school children in the public schools to hear the character of Lincoln extolled, to listen to the reading of the Gettysburg address and to sing patriotic songs. The school children, numbering more than 600,000, have been instructed for weeks in the life of Lincoln and the lessons to be learned therefrom, and they are displaying eager interest in tomorrow's celebration.

CHICAGO WELL DECORATED

Leading Citizens and City's Guests Will Meet In Great Auditorium

Chicago, Feb. 11.—Chicago's Lincoln day celebration tomorrow will take various forms. The principal feature will be the great mass meeting in the Auditorium, in which the city's leading citizens and the guests of the municipality will join. In addition, there will be meetings in schoolhouses, halls and in the field houses of all the public parks. The municipal playgrounds will be decorated with flags and bunting, and pictures of Lincoln will be displayed conspicuously.

All the nations of the world represented by consular officers in Chicago have been invited to join in the city's tribute to Lincoln. The city is disappointed by the inability of President-Elect Taft to accept its invitation to be present. It was announced at one time that he would come here, but his trip to the canal zone and the banquet in his honor in New Orleans intervened.

Centennial week in Chicago has been generally observed by the display of flags and bunting, most of the hotels, stores and public buildings having been decorated since Monday.

BANQUET A FEATURE

Noted Men to Speak at Celebration In Lincoln's Home City

Springfield, Ills., Feb. 11.—In this city, the home of Abraham Lincoln until his inauguration as president, the centennial of his birth will be generally observed tomorrow. There will be meetings in halls and in the public schools, and the city officials will be busily engaged in receiving the distinguished persons who will partake of the Lincoln banquet tomorrow night.

The banquet will be the most prominent feature of Springfield's celebration. Among the men who will make addresses will be Ambassador Bryce, Ambassador Jusserand, William J. Bryan, Senator Cullom of Illinois and Senator Dolliver of Iowa.

Fairbanks Speaks In Harrisburg

Harrisburg, Pa., Feb. 11.—Vice President Fairbanks will be the principal speaker at the big mass meeting with which this city will honor the memory of Lincoln tomorrow. Governor Stuart will preside at the mass meeting. There will be other features of the celebration, and business will be suspended during the day.

GASHED OWN THROAT

Bride Takes Her Own Life During Wedding Festivities

Pittsburg, Feb. 11.—True to the lover she left in Russia, Smila Majstorovit, 16 years old, belle of the Russo-Greek colony of Duquesne, a suburb, cut her throat rather than marry a suitor of her parents' selection.

Against her wishes her wedding to Mike Cucolz had been arranged and the wedding feast was celebrated. When, long after midnight, the beer ran out, Smila was sent to the cellar for more. She did not return and later she was found dead in a pool of blood, with her throat cut.

Prior to the suicide, it is stated, her father locked her in a room with Cucolz, hoping she might relent.

New Austrian Cabinet

Vienna, Feb. 11.—Premier Von Bienerth has reconstructed the Austrian cabinet with the idea of restoring tranquility to the empire. The new ministry is formed of representatives of the nationalities not directly engaged in racial or party struggles.

Vanderbilt Loses Chauffeur's License

Boston, Feb. 11.—The state highway commission decided to suspend the chauffeur's license of Harold Vanderbilt of New York, the Harvard student who was convicted in the Boston municipal court of reckless operation of an automobile.

NEW SCHOOLHOUSE AT HOUGHS NECK

Building Will Probably Be Built By Next September

The regular bi-monthly meeting of the Houghs Neck Associates was held Wednesday evening and proved to be the livliest meeting on record. Though in bad condition as the result of a severe attack of the grip President Archie F. Baird presided and was kept busy all the time the meeting was in session.

The following committees reported progress, express, gas, printing, garbage, public landing, school, sewer, fire larm, house, ways and means and membership. It was voted to pay the few bills then due. The report of the school committee was received with great joy. The committee did not arrive at the meeting until late as they were at City Hall talking with the Public buildings committee of the City Council about the proposed schoolhouse at Houghs Neck. Henry French made the report for that committee and said that he had talked with a member of the school committee who said that the school committee was in favor of an eight room school house. Mr. French reported that it was almost a certainty that the school will be built by the first of next September.

It was voted that a supper be tendered to the ladies on the night of Washington birthday. The following committee was appointed by the chair to arrange the details of the supper, E. C. Piper, chairman, Joseph M. Brickley, Daniel J. Maloney, Ernest C. Mains and Neil J. Regan.

On a motion of Henry French it was voted to suspend the by-laws so that the president would have the power of appointing Joseph M. Brickley financial secretary. The ladies auxiliary were offered the use of the clubhouse on the first and third Wednesdays of the month. It was voted to circulate a petition through the beach, addressed to the mayor for the location of the proposed public landing at the foot of Bay View avenue.

Considerable discussion was made about the by-laws relative to membership. Many of the members expressed their doubt as to what constituted a member in good standing. The ways and means committee reported that they were going to hold a minstrel show in March and that Henry W. French had been appointed director of the show. The meeting lasted until past midnight and some of the members would still be talking if one of the married members hadn't made a motion to adjourn.

PRESENTED GOLD BRACELET.

A large number of the friends of Miss Anna McDermott gathered at Electa hall Wednesday evening and surprised her by presenting her with a gold bracelet. Miss Sadie Flanagan made the presentation and the receptor responded with fitting grace. An entertainment followed consisting of songs by Ray Abildgaard, buck and wing dancing by George Wiley and violin solos by Mattie Wiley. Dancing was then enjoyed until 12 o'clock. Miss Helen Connors presiding at the piano.

KNOCKERS DINE ON BREAD AND?

Only Two Members Absent At Gastronomic Performance

Thursday, promptly on the hour of 2 o'clock the members of the Knockers' club with guests assembled about the festive board at Thompson's restaurant for their monthly gastronomic performance. There were two vacant chairs. That at the head of the table usually occupied by Mayor Shea, who was in the south sunning himself and that of Phil Sullivan who was trying to convince a jury at Dedham that his client was the most injured party

The dinner however would hardly have been complete without a Sullivan, so one who answered to the name of Pete was present and it was noticed, that although somewhat of a stranger, it in no way served to spoil his appetite. There was one other new member present. One who hails from Houghs Neck and who from long association with shore dinners seemed to be perfectly at home. He answered to the name of LaBrecque.

As the Mayor had carried off the ritual of the club the usual initiation ceremony was necessarily postponed, no one having become familiar enough with it to give the work from memory. There was nothing unusual about the remainder of the party except that it was noticed that the President had undergone a hair cut, that he might the better be able to do justice to the good things provided.

The opening number on the program was soup, of the tomato variety, by the full chorus. This was followed by fried scallops and tartar sauce, spaghetti, prepared specially to the liking of one Goodhue, steak and onions, French fried potatoes, celery, radishes, plum pudding, ice cream, cake, toasted crackers, cheese and black coffee.

It is needless to say that all did full justice to the dinner. When the steak and onions came on some of the tender hearted, passed them quietly by, giving as an excuse "an engagement with a lady friend this evening." The rules of the club however prevent his name being made public.

The dinner over and cigars brightly burning, there was a flow of hot air from the direction of the President's chair, who said one of the main reasons he liked these dinners so well, was because he could talk and he knew that rather than leave the good things prepared for them they would listen to his little say. His talk on this occasion was "My new card system" which he declared "would be completed some day if the county treasury held out."

But all good things come to an end and so did this dinner, one of the best of the many held during the past year.

IN HONOR OF DEAD HEROES.

U. S. W. A. To Hold Memorial Service at Faneuil Hall.

The eleventh anniversary memorial service by the Spanish War Veterans district council of greater Boston will be held in Feneuil hall, Boston on Sunday.

The order of exercises includes addresses by Hon. Joseph A. Walker, speaker of the Massachusetts House of Representatives, Mayor Hibbard, Commander-in-Chief Charles W. Newton, John L. Parker, Senior Vice-Dept. Commander, G. A. R. Edward J. Gilson, Dept. Commander, U. S. W. V. Comrade Richard Rowles and Hon. John E. Beck.

The opening prayer and benediction will be made by Rev. W. F. Dussecuilt, Chaplain, Dept. of Mass.

1809—ABRAHAM LINCOLN—1909

ABRAHAM LINCOLN,—Born in obscurity, cradled in poverty, schooled in adversity, tried by calumny; rich in his endowments, noble in his motives, grand in his achievements, supreme in his sacrifice; great enough to be simple, strong enough to be kind, brave enough to do right, wise enough to be just; constant, patient, reverent; noble son of the common people, best incarnation of democracy, emancipator of a race, savior of a nation, the greatest American.

Frank E. Parlin.

The Gettysburg Address

Remarks at the Dedication of the National Cemetery at Gettysburg, November 19, 1863.

FOURSCORE and seven years ago our fathers brought forth upon this continent a new nation, conceived in liberty and dedicated to the proposition that all men are created equal.

Now we are engaged in a great civil war, testing whether that nation, or any nation so conceived and so dedicated, can long endure. We are met on a great battlefield of that war. We have come to dedicate a portion of that field as a final resting place for those who here gave their lives that that nation might live. It is altogether fitting and proper that we should do this.

But in a larger sense we cannot dedicate, we cannot consecrate, we cannot hallow, this ground. The brave men, living and dead, who struggled here have consecrated it far above our power to add or detract. The world will little note nor long remember what we say here, but it can never forget what they did here. It is for us, the living, rather, to be dedicated here to the unfinished work which they who fought here have thus far so nobly advanced. It is rather for us to be here dedicated to the great task remaining before us—that from these honored dead we take increased devotion to that cause for which they gave the last full measure of devotion; that we here highly resolve that these dead shall not have died in vain; that this nation, under God, shall have a new birth of freedom, and that government of the people, by the people and for the people shall not perish from the earth.

DAY OF REJOICING.

Evangelist to Distribute Gifts to Poor.

The Thursday night's evangelistic service was another indication that the people want what they are getting and are hungry for spiritual help. A big house greeted Dr. Weddell as he came upon the platform followed by Revs. Hardy, Norton, Megathlin and Walther.

The song service led by Mr. Briggs had been in progress for twenty minutes and everybody was happy. Dr. Weddell announced his subject from Genesis, which refers to God's command to Noah to take his family and enter the ark. The burden of the discourse was an invitation to the unconverted to come into the Christian life.

The services closed promptly at nine o'clock, after which a social service for conference was held.

The meetings today are for children at Wollaston and a patriotic program this evening when special music is arranged.

Today is the "Day of Rejoicing" throughout Greater Boston. Quincy is participating with gifts to the poor.

Sunday will be a big day as the last Sunday of the local campaign. The meetings close here on Wednesday night.

WASHINGTON AND LINCOLN TABLEAUX

Followers of Sir Galahad Give Patriotic Entertainment.

The Followers of Sir Galahad of Christ Church gave a patriotic entertainment on Thursday evening at the Parish house and a large attendance was present. The entertainment was in honor of the hundreth anniversary of Lincoln's birth and was one of the very best that has ever been given by any of the Christ church organizations. Much credit is due Mrs. A. Isabelle Davis and Erastus Osgood who made up the characters in the various tableaux.

The evening's program opened with an address by President Thomas H. Veale of the club. Mr. Veale gave a brief outline of the club and the work it is doing. This was followed by an address on Washington by H. Hammond Pride, who gave a history of Washington from his childhood to his death.

A tableau "Washington's Return from Fort DuQuesne" was next and was the first of a series of excellent tableaux. Washington was represented by Philip Halvosa, who was seen on a raft coming down the river dressed in the garb of a hunter. The tableau was finely carried out, the arrangement of lights giving it a very realistic appearance.

An address on Lincoln was next on the program. This was by Forrest B. Royal, who told of the work Lincoln had done with the slaves, how he had saved the country by freeing the slaves from their masters. Mr. Royal and Mr. Pride are two of the best speakers in the church.

The second tableau was "Lincoln and the Slave." Frank Rideout made a perfect Lincoln, while Andrew McIntosh took the part of the slave.

Frank Wrigley Jr. and W. H. Cyril Wrigley then gave a piano duet. Cyril is only about nine years old and his playing is very promising.

"Slave Auction," the thing that made Lincoln say, "If I ever get a chance to hit that, I'll hit it hard," was the next tableau. Thomas H. Veale represented the master, William Warmington the auctioneer and Alfred C. Smith the slave.

Melvin T. Holbrook followed with an address on Washington and Lincoln. Mr. Holbrook compared these two characters giving an idea of what they had done for the country. He seemed to favor Lincoln, because Abraham got right down to the people, while Washington seemed to be above them.

The fourth tableau was "Washington's first view of the new flag at Cambridge in 1775. William Richards was Washington, while Harold Gillis and Edward Warmington represented continental soldiers, John Murray was the color sergeant. Master Verner Birnie, a Christ church soloist, then sang a solo which was heartily received.

The "Punishment of the Slave" was the next tableau, Thomas Veale being the overseer and Andrew McIntosh the slave tied to the post.

Lester P. Clee of the Y. M. C. A. then gave a cornet solo, which was followed by the final tableau entitled "Freedom of the Slaves." William Warmington represented the Goddess of Liberty, while Alfred C. Smith and Andrew McIntosh the parts of the slaves.

The entertainment closed with everyone singing "America" and the unfurling of the stars and stripes over the stage.

Much of the success and effect of the tableaux was due to the excellent work of the accompanist, Miss Nellie M. Drummond. She followed the tableaux with great skill.

LINCOLN CENTENARY OBSERVED IN SCHOOLS

Pupils Honor Great Emancipator With Appropriate Exercises.

The one hundredth anniversary of Abraham Lincoln's birth was fittingly celebrated in all the Quincy schools today. Special patriotic exercises, extolling the deeds and character of the great Lincoln were prepared and given by the students in the different schools all over the city.

The High school and Woodward institute held their exercises at 10 o'clock this morning in their school halls.

The High school program opened with the singing of "Dixie Land" by the students, assisted by the High school orchestra of twenty-three pieces, followed by the "Star Spangled Banner" and the "Ode to Washington."

The first of the speakers was Miss Grace DeWolfe, who spoke on "The Boyhood of Lincoln." The "Battle Hymn of the Republic," by the school was the next thing on the program. This was followed by an address on "The Young Manhood of Lincoln" by Forrest B. Royal.

The school chorus then sang the "Land of Greatness," which was followed with an address by Hammond Pride on "Lincoln, as Lawyer and President."

The great song, "To Thee, O Country" was then sung and the strains of this beautiful composition rang out through the entire building. L. C. Cleveland, principal of the school, then read the "Gettsburg Address." The reading of selections from "The Perfect Tribute" by Mary G. Brown closed the literary part of the program. The exercises were closed with the singing of America by the whole school.

L. C. Cleveland presided and on the stage were Supt. Frank E. Parlin, John L. Miller of the school board, and Ernst Hermann, the physical director of the Quincy schools. The music was under the direction of E. Landis Snyder.

The program at Woodward opened with the reading of the governor's proclamation followed by introductory remarks by F. W. Plummer, principal of the institute. The singing of the "Star Spangled Banner" was the first musical number. The literary exercises consisted of "Lincoln's Early Life" by Gertrude A. Shaw, 1910; "Lincoln's Political Life," by Elizabeth G. Pattee 1909; "First Inaugural Address by Gertrude F. Baker, 1910; "Letter to Greeley" by Synthia E. Curtis, 1910; "Emancipation Proclamation" by Annie W. Ward, 1909; and the reading of the "Gettsburg Address" by Ruth A. Keating, 1910.

The musical numbers consisted of "My Old Kentucky Home," "Old Black Joe" and "Dixie," closing with the singing of "America" by the whole school. The music was under the direction of F. W. Plummer.

This afternoon at 2 o'clock exercises were held in the public schools.

Parents and friends of the pupils were invited to attend the exercises and many availed themselves of the opportunity.

Large pictures of President Lincoln adorned the walls of the school rooms and about these pictures American flags were draped.

The Coddington building is the only one to have an assembly hall and here the pupils were assembled. The exercises here included the reading of Gov. Draper's proclamation, the singing of patriotic airs by the school, recitations by the different classes and patriotic declamations.

Mr. Bentley, the master, read Supt. Parlin's appreciation of Lincoln and gave the pupils a talk on the life and character of Lincoln.

Master Francis Brown presented the school with a bust of Lincoln which will be placed in the hall. The exercises closed with the salute to the flag and singing of America.

One of the pleasing features of the exercises at this school was the army bugle calls which were given on the cornet by Lester Clee of the Y. M. C. A.

Similar exercises were held in all of the other school buildings of the city. Owing to the lack of an assembly hall it was impossible to gather the pupils all together, but exercises were held in the different rooms.

In each case the master read the Governor's proclamation and Supt. Parlin's appreciation of Lincoln.

There was singing and declamations of a patriotic nature by the children and the teachers talked to the children on the life and character of Lincoln. The exercises also included the salute to the flag.

AS OTHERS SEE IT.

The country will be interested both in the fate of the proposed Boston charter and in its subsequent career if it is passed and goes into operation. The abolition of party designations on the municipal ballot does not mean the speedy death of political parties in municipal affairs. Liberal advertising may carry through a Democrat or Republican. But it will, of course, vastly increase independent voting. To elect one mayor and three aldermen chosen at large—here, indeed, is about the shortest ticket offered the busy citizen this side of a benevolent despotism.

This may be the Boston way, but it would hardly pass muster in Chicago, where the doctrine of home rule and of popular control is bone and sinew of municipal government. Illinois has had some pretty good governors, but no typical Chicagoan wants the governor appointing our municipal boards. The Finance Commission's charter, of course, draws its inspiration pretty largely from Harvard University and the Back Bay—the two sections of public opinion in the Hub where the conviction is strongest that you can't do anything with the people and must depend for good government upon a small governing class. Chicago is working out her destiny on radically different lines.—Chicago Post.

Congress in joint session has declared William H. Taft and James S. Sherman to have been elected to the Presidency and Vice-Presidency of the United States. Now get ready for inauguration.

The bill requiring all ocean going steamers carrying fifty or more passengers, between ports two hundred miles apart, to be equipped with a wireless telegraphy apparatus introduced in the Senate Wednesday, should be amended so as to include the coastwise, as well as ocean going steamers.

The California Assembly has reversed its previous position on the school exclusion act, thanks to the pressure brought to bear by the President and Governor Gillett. Now that the last anti-Japanese measure has been killed, let us hope that in the future, the members of the California Asembly will think twice before they introduce any more such measures.

The following resolution adopted by the citizens of Brockton at a mass meeting which filled the City theatre Tuesday night, shows what a strong feeling the residents have for their city and how much they desire to see her grow commercially:

"Resolved, That we, citizens of Brockton, in mass meeting assembled, pledge ourselves to promote at all times the peace and prosperity of the city of Brockton, and

"Resolved, That we pledge ourselves to the principle of collective bargaining and to fair wages and fair conditions of labor as essential factors to further promotion of the interests of Brockton, to the end that it shall be the largest and most prosperous shoe city in the world. We further pledge ourselves to the work of making Brockton still greater in the years to come."

The spirit that prompted this resolution is what has made Brockton what she is at the present time, one of the hustling cities of the commonwealth.

At the hearing on the bills filed by Mayor Shea, ex-Senator Sprague appeared in opposition to the bill amending the city charter so as to make the Mayor chairman of the school committee.

This bill, which the Mayor was requested to file by vote of the council, will undoubtedly meet with much opposition when the hearing is continued.

When the order requesting the Mayor to file this bill was first passed, the question of amending the charter was being agitated and the order passed with but little opposition. When, however, it was placed before the Legislature and the citizens realized the fact, that if the bill was passed, the school committee would become more of a political body, with the ever present possibilities of graft, a strong feeling of opposition was aroused. It is sincerely to be hoped that this feeling will continue, and will manifest itself so strongly that the bill will die a natural death. Then a bill can be presented next year, making the Mayor a member of the school committee but not its chairman.

Today we celebrate the centennial anniversary of the greatest American in our history—Abraham Lincoln.

Born in a rude, log cagin in the back woods of Kentucky, Abraham Lincoln stands forth today as an example of what right living and right thinking can accomplish.

Gentle and kindly in his attitude towards his fellowmen, standing for what he considered the right, even though he stood alone, faithful to the great trust imposed in him, the name of Abraham Lincoln will live for ever, increasing in greatness as the years roll by.

He was great not by birth or fortune, but because of his wonderful personality, his courage and his honesty.

He did not require any artificial means to impress one with his greatness, for greatness was written all over him. When he spoke he said what he meant, in a direct and simple manner.

Called to the office of President when the country was threatened with disruption, he met every issue with a fearlessness never before equalled.

Held in contempt by the South, and distrusted by the East, he tried to govern the country justly and honestly, and succeeded. To him more than to any one else we owe the peace and prosperity we enjoy as citizens of a united, peaceful and prosperous country.

EDITORIAL COMMENTS.

Diplomacy of the right kind works more quickly and more effectively than war, also more justly and with more lasting results. The agreement between France and Germany on the Moroccan question smooths down a situation that not long ago was full of belligerent possibilities. It is particularly creditable to Germany, which had previously, in a moment of temper—rejected terms similar to the ones now adopted. As the German ambassador to France remarks, the agreement is a "proof that with good will all conflicts can be resolved which may be provoked in our time by the complexity of political and economical interests."—Boston Journal.

There is a possibility that Senator Beveridge may have hit up with an idea which will result in the introduction of a parcels post system in this country as a natural thing and without a big fight in congress. Mr. Beveridge proposes that an extremely cheap parcels post system for use on rural delivery routes, as proposed by Postmaster General Meyer, should be given a fair trial on two or three rural routes in different parts of the country. It could soon be determined there whether it was feasible, and it could then be extended to other routes and finally to cities as well. The rural free delivery began this way and demonstrated its value under most adverse circumstances.—Haverhill Gazette.

It has been discovered by Commissioner O'Meara of the Boston police force that temperance towns contribute a very large share of the people who are arrested in Boston for drunkenness. Naturally. A large number of people who use little liquor at home use a great deal of it when they get to the big town and amid its temptations. Also, the reckless ones among them, away from familiar scenes, take long chances, and before they realize what is happening a bluecoat steps up and calls the patrol wagon. The "home guard" have friends to take care of them and have places into which they may dodge, or perhaps officers know them and let them pass when they are a little heavily weighted. All these facts go to bring about a condition of affairs that causes a lot of arrests of out-of-town people in Boston, New York and any other large city. It is an argument that might be used by the temperance interests, too, as showing that a great many people evidently have to go to a town of open saloons in order to get their liquor, or at all events to get most of it.—Brockton Enterprise.

In Booker Washington's paper on Lincoln and the South, he uses a figure that seems to express the character of Lincoln in a very striking manner. A really great man, he says is like a lofty tower in the midst of a city. "As long as you are near it," Dr. Washington writes, "there are a multitude of smaller and more animated scenes and objects that distract your attention, and you get only the most distorted idea of fighting airs is absolutely ridiculous. You move farther and farther away, other objects sink into insignificance, and it looms large and serene above them. For the first time you see the mighty edifice in its true proportions. As it is with the tower in the city, so it has been with Abraham Lincoln. Year by year he looms larger above the horizon of our national life—a great serene, beneficient figure." Dr. Washington, born a slave, made a freedman by the emancipation proclamation, says: "The more I learn of Lincoln's life the more I am disposed to look at him much as my mother and those early freedmen did, not merely as a great man, not merely as a statesman, but as one to whom I can certainly turn for help and inspiration—as a great moral leader, in whose patience, tolerance, and broad human sympathy there is salvation for any race and for all those who are down, but struggling to rise." Higher tributes can hardly be paid than this of the slave boy who is now a noble man, helped to become such by the act and by the life of the great-hearted Lincoln.—Lynn Item.

The announcement that Senator Frye has abandoned his effort to secure a vote of his colleagues on the renomination of Collector Crum, at Charleston, S. C., merely confirms the prediction already made in these columns. It has been plain for weeks that there would be no reasonable and feasible method of compelling the democratic senators, especially those from the Southern states, to come to a vote on the colored collector. The Southern democrats felt that they had the power to prevent the confirmation of Crum's appointment, and they felt also that President Taft was not the kind of man to insist upon the appointment of any federal official whose retention in office would be distasteful to the great majority of citizens of that state. But it is their own assumption that Crum, as collector at Charleston, is distasteful to the great majority of citizens in that state. Possibly the white people of Charleston and perhaps many of the white citizens of South Carolina do object to the appointment of a colored man federal office. But what about the colored men of that state?

There has never been any charge, so far as the general public knows, that Mr. Crum has misbehaved himself in office, or that his conduct has been anything but exemplary, as a federal official. He has served his country in a city where the colored race are very largely in evidence and where they have made their mark in business enterprise. The contention of the Southern democrats is not that Mr. Crum has done anything or said anything that disqualifies him as a federal official. They insist that no negro shall be appointed to federal office in a section of the United States where negroes constitute a large proportion of the entire population of each state. Is that reasonable or logical?—Boston Advertiser.

TEN THOUSAND WILL BENEFIT

"Day of Rejoicing" In Boston Evangelistic Campaign

TONS OF FOOD DISTRIBUTED

One of the Features of Revival Now In Progress Has Hearty Support of Ministers and Charitable Institutions —Clothing, Coal and Money Included In Contributions to Aid People of All Denominations

Boston, Feb. 12.—Thousands of pounds of substantial food poured into the depots set apart for the receipt of goods for the Day of Rejoicing held by all the churches interested in the simultaneous evangelistic movement.

Warm clothing, fuel and nutritious edibles will gladden the hearts of many a man and woman throughout Boston today, wagon after wagon, loaded to the top with contributions being sent out today from the churches.

The philanthropic movement in connection with the revival was one of the intentions of the leaders when they arrived in this city. Careful preparation has been made, in which the ministers and charitable institutions have worked hand in hand, and have so tabulated the people who are to be visited that absolute certainty as to the condition of the families to be reached has been ascertained.

Orders for coal, bags of flour, thousands of loaves of bread, canned goods, preserves, biscuits, cakes, fruit and almost every imaginable thing have arrived at the depots to aid poor people of all denominations and amid Christian influences these will be sent to those who are most in need.

Not a few contributions of money were made at the meetings last night, which is to be used as the committee deems best in procuring the things which are most needed to bring comfort to unfortunate men and women.

Large business concerns have sent goods to the various centres in great quantities and those men and women who have been attending the meetings have opened their hearts and purses, tendering their donations in the same spirit with which the food will be given away.

It is expected by the committee in charge of the Day of Rejoicing that at least 10,000 people will be supplied with that which they have been lacking for many days.

Families that have heretofore been compelled to live a meagre existence will have good food, food that will build their weak bodies and enable them to make a fight that will better their conditions. Fathers and mothers who have been sick will receive the proper attention and care and their children will be protected from the inevitable which awaits them, if their present surroundings continue.

HAS DEAD MAN'S KNEEPAN

Former Football Star Also Has Divorce Suit on His Hands

Denver, Feb. 12.—George A. Kelley, formerly a football star, recently came in wide public notice owing to an operation performed on him at Washington, whereby the kneepan from a dead man was substituted for his own to prevent loss of his leg.

But the notoriety also brought his whereabouts to his wife's notice and Mrs. Mona J. Kelley has filed suit for divorce against him here. She alleges they were married in St. Louis Jan. 27, 1906, and that Kelley deserted her just four months later. Desertion is charged.

Kelley's leg was injured while playing football several years ago.

RECORD DASH UP MISSISSIPPI

Taft Makes a Picturesque Entry Into New Orleans

RECEIVES GENEROUS WELCOME

Expresses Hearty Approval of Present Lock Type of Canal Across Isthmus of Panama—Features of Forthcoming Report of Engineers—Will Hold Conference In Regard to Appointment of Knox

New Orleans, Feb. 12.—President-Elect Taft entered New Orleans yesterday at the record-breaking speed of thirty miles an hour. Never has such a fast trip from the mouth of the Mississippi been recorded.

On the scout cruiser Birmingham, Taft and party made the distance of 100 miles from the South Passes in a little over three hours.

President-Elect Taft was enthusiastically received by the entire city, whose guest he is to be until Saturday morning.

All the shipping in the river had on gala dress and as far as a dozen miles below the city the stream was alive with tugs and stern-wheelers, having aboard crowds of shouting citizens. The steam whistles, brass bands and cheering enthuslasts added to the welcome.

A big stern-wheeler carried the local reception committee to eight miles below the city, and with a dozen tugs and other passenger steamers it hovered near the cruiser as she slowed down and struck a seven knot pace to keep it company.

From the flying bridge Taft was kept busy answering salutations, while Mrs. Taft, on the quarter deck, had her share of the ovation. A big barge was brought alongside in midstream at the foot of Canal street, and over this the Taft party boarded the reception committee's steamer, from which a landing was made.

The parade had been waiting an hour and the guest was at once placed at its head in a carriage drawn by four horses and the line of march, which covered nearly five miles, was taken up.

Mr. Taft made a brief speech, in which he heartily expressed approval of the present lock type of canal across the Isthmus of Panama. He reviewed a parade of citizens, miles in length, and last night attended one of the carnival season balls, that of the "Elves of Oberon."

Mr. Taft received the first news of the constitutional question which has been raised against the appointment of Senator Knox to a cabinet position by wireless Wednesday, when he was appraised of the matter not only by press messages, but by a dispatch giving the views of Knox. That he was somewhat disturbed over the situation Wednesday night was admitted, but Thursday he received the news of the disposition of congress to obviate the constitutional disability, and he was inclined to accept the means adopted as a happy solution of the difficulty.

Until after a conference on the matter, to take place between Taft and Knox in Washington next Wednesday, the president-elect regards it as impolitic to discuss the question for publication.

The inability of the special board of civil engineers to complete their report regarding the Panama canal made the Washington visit planned by Taft necessary. The engineers will go at once to Washington to complete their work.

It may be stated that their report will be a complete approval of present plans and methods on the isthmus. They will not only recommend the construction of the Gatun dam, but give it as their judgment that the dam will be perfectly safe if built to a height of 115 instead of 135 feet, thus saving expense in construction.

Other features of their report will deal with the thickness of cement required for the walls and floors of the locks; devices for handling ships in the locks and the approval of the $10,000,000 breakwater at Colon, the construction of which will create a harbor out of the present open roadstead.

The delay of the engineers in finishing their report is said to be due to their desire for careful consideration regarding the manner of stating their conclusions rather than any disagreement regarding what these conclusions are.

—Only thirty-nine vessels were built in the Unteid States during the month of January, with a total tonnage of 1824 tons, says the Boston Transcript. One-half this total is to be credited to one vessel, otherwise the January additions to our merchant marine were small craft, the mosquito fleet of commerce. It is many years since the edpression in our shipbuilidng industry was so great. Competent observers will not be surprised if the output of merchant tonnage during the fiscal year ending July 1 next, does no exceed 150,000 tons. But for Government work it would be difficult to keep some of the leading shipyards open, and no revival of building can precede a revival of ocean-borne business. The United States is simply sharing the experience of the maritime worl, dsince every carrier nation today has a considerable proportion of tis tonnage laid up in idleness.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

RURAL GUARDS DISSATISFIED

Object to Being Transferred to Cuba's Permanent Army

ENGAGED IN MUTINY IN HAVANA

Rush to President's Palace and Attempt to Reach His Apartments—Being Unarmed They Are Repulsed by Police Guards, but Continue Demonstration In Courtyard—They Are Finally Persuaded to Submit

Havana, Feb. 12.—Mutiny broke out among a company of the Rural Guard just as the men were about to embark in launches to be transported across the harbor to Cabanas fortress.

When the men learned they were to be transferred from the rural guard to the permanent army, in accordance with a decrees issued by Governor Magoon authorizing the transfer of one battalion, they refused to embark, and, led by a subaltern officer, rushed to the palace.

They entered the courtyard and demanded an immediate audience of President Gomez. Some attempted to ascend the stairway to the apartments, but the way was barred by the police guards, armed with revolvers.

The mutineers, being unarmed, thereupon retreated, but they remained in the courtyard, shouting that they refused to submit to the transfer and demanded to be returned to their homes in Matanzas and Santa Clara, whence they had come to participate in the inaugural ceremonies.

For a time there was great excitement around the palace precincts and General Guerra, the commander of the permanent army, and General Monteagudo, the commander of the Rural Guard, were summoned.

They succeeded eventually in restoring order and in persuading the men to submit. The men were then sent under an armed escort to Cabanas.

BLAMES HARD CIDER

Man Who Imbibed Too Freely Tried to Wreck a Train

Ipswich, Mass., Feb. 12.—The mystery of an attempted train wreck on the Boston and Maine railroad last Thursday was cleared last night when James A. Day, aged 22, was placed under arrest and confessed that he placed a pile of sleepers on the track while under the influence of liquor.

Day accompanied an officer to the place where the sleepers were found, a short distance from his father's farm. He said that he had been drinking old cider last Thursday and that he was not responsible for his actions. In the district court the man was held on a charge of attempted train wrecking.

BREAKING OF CAR AXLE

Results In Killing of One Passenger and Injuries to Many Others

Pittsfield, Mass., Feb. 12.—By the derailment of an electric car between Pontoosuc lake and West Pittsfield Dr. Morgan L. Woodruff of this city was fatally hurt and ten other persons received minor injuries. Woodruff suffered a fracture of his skull. His death occurred after his removal to a hospital.

The cause of the derailment is declared by the railway officials to have been due to the breaking of a front axle. The car was heavily laden with passengers and was descending a grade on a curve at a speed estimated by some of the passengers at forty miles an hour.

GIRL BURNED TO DEATH

Jury Declares That Her Husband Is Guilty of Murder

Newark, N. J., Feb. 12.—The jury in the case of Michael Leo, charged with burning his 16-year-old bride to death, returned a verdict of second degree murder. The maximum penalty for Leo's crime is thirty years.

Mrs. Leo was fatally burned as she lay on a couch in her kitchen. Leo was the only person in the house with her. Soon after her death, which Leo declared was due to an accident, he was arrested, and it developed that a short time before Leo had obtained a $2500 insurance on the child-wife's life.

Death Due to Exposure

They cure sick kidneys.
Here is Quincy proof that this is so:
Mrs. Fred Curtis, living at 18 Quarry street, Quincy, Mass., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills have been used with such satisfactory results in my family that I feel it my duty to publicly recommend them. My husband was in pretty bad shape as the result of backache. He tried plasters and used several remedies, in an effort to get relief, but did not succeed until he began using Doan's Kidney Pills, which he procured at the Cox Drug Store. This remedy cured him in a short time and he is now feeling better than for years. I have also used Doan's Kidney Pills and found them to be an excellent remedy for regulating the action of the kidney secretions and toning up the general system."

The Birthplace of Lincoln

No Other American Farm Save Mount Vernon Has Produced Such a Wonderful Crop of Patriotism

By HORATIO BLISS

Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association

LINCOLN IN 1862.

TWO miles from Hodgenville, Ky., is a one hundred and ten acre farm that raises little except patriotism. The crops on it are for the most part stunted and have a discouraged appearance. Perhaps this dejection comes from dodging about to miss the rocks or from trying to find fertility in the soil, a hopeless task. Whatever the cause, the fact remains that the latest tenant was unable to make enough from the place to meet the taxes, just as the earliest one of record, a certain farmer-carpenter of the name of Thomas Lincoln, failed to get enough out of the barren acres to pay for them.

Yet this stony, unproductive spot of earth is now one of the world's shrines. On Feb. 12 presidents, governors, judges, cardinals and cabinet ministers foregather there to orate and dedicate these rocks and sterile soil patches to the people for all the days to come. On one of the hills a white memorial hall patterned after a Greek temple will likewise be consecrated and left as a Mecca for future generations. The temple incloses an old one room log cabin, with a stick chimney, one door, one window and no floor at all. In this cabin was born a man child whom the world has taken to its heart—Abraham Lincoln, war president and liberator, man of meekness and mercy, strange compound of sorrow and of laughter. He, the babe that came here of parents poor and almost illiterate, is the reason for the temple, for the crowds and for the oratory. He is likewise the reason for the nation existing at all in its present form. So these humble acres are not all unproductive, even though they cannot grow crops, for they brought forth a great soul to lead a people from bondage and to place before men's eyes a type of charity and forbearance that will make us all tenderer and better for having seen.

The Lincoln farm, after passing out of the ownership of Thomas Lincoln, belonged for many years to a family of the name of Creal, after which it was bought by a New York capitalist, a Mr. Dennett, who made some improvements on it with the idea of changing it into a national park. This was abandoned, however, because of business reverses. The farm became tied up in the litigation of the Dennett estate and for years was neglected. At last it was sold at public auction by the authorities of Larue county, Ky., when it was purchased by Richard Lloyd Jones as a representative of Robert J. Collier. A Lincoln farm association was formed, with Governor Folk of Missouri at its head and various distinguished men on its directorate. To this body Mr. Collier turned over the farm, popular subscriptions were raised, a memorial building was erected, and other improvements were made. As a result the Lincoln birthplace farm on Feb. 12 will be opened to the public as a national park. From a scenic aspect it is a beautiful spot. Near to the plaza fronting the memorial building is the famous rock spring, and not far distant is a picturesque creek, on the banks of which the boy Lincoln played.

In addition to the dedication of the farm, a statue of Lincoln will be unveiled in Hodgenville. More important still, it is now practically certain that some form of memorial will be erected at Washington, a step that should have been taken long ago.

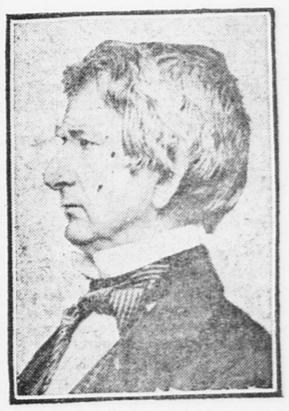

Everything connected with Abraham Lincoln is held precious by the American people. His birthplace and his tomb, his acts and his words, the people with whom he associated, all are objects of a popular interest such as has been aroused by few men in the history of nations. Compared with Lincoln's simple greatness most of the characters grouped around him suffer by contrast. This is true even of his family. For one I feel that justice has never been done Mrs. Lincoln. She was not without a prophetic quality in divining her husband's future eminence, she had spiritual insight, she suffered many sorrows, and despite her difference from Mr. Lincoln in temperament and inherited manners and beliefs she was loyal to him throughout.

One other character has been minimized much in the same way—William H. Seward, Lincoln's chief competitor for the presidential nomination and afterward his secretary of state. One thing that can be said for Seward is that he was man enough to acknowledge Lincoln's greatness when he saw it. He refused to plot against his chief, as did some of his fellow members of the cabinet. He was a wise counselor and unselfish statesman. He had enough foresight to buy Alaska when the public scoffed at him for the act. The truth about Seward is that he was of a very high type, but notwithstanding his height was overshadowed.

Mr. Lincoln's life falls into two great divisions—that preceding the repeal of the Missouri compromise and the formation of the Republican party and that following these twin events. His one term in congress was the last important public service in the first period. Following this were five or six years of law with little or no politics. In congress Lincoln had gained a reputation as a story teller and wit, had made one or two campaign speeches, had introduced a measure to abolish slavery in the District of Columbia and had refused to say that the Mexican war was righteous. Following his term he had applied for the office of land commissioner, to which he had not been appointed, and had been offered the governorship of Oregon, which he declined. In 1850 he refused another nomination to congress and in 1852 delivered a eulogy on Henry Clay. It was in 1854 that he really re-entered politics, being stirred thereto by the repeal of the Missouri compromise. That year he was elected to the legislature, but refused to serve. He was also a candidate for United States senator, coming within a few votes of winning. With rare unselfishness he threw all his strength to Lyman Trumbull and elected him. For Lincoln to go to Trumbull, who had but a handful of supporters, was like the tail wagging the dog, but it prevented the election of a proslavery man.

In 1856 Mr. Lincoln participated in the formation of the Republican party, making his great "lost speech" at Bloomington. He also received 110 votes for vice president in the Republican national convention and ran for elector on the Fremont ticket. Two years later came his great debates with Douglas, which were held at Ottawa, Freeport, Jonesboro, Charleston, Galesburg, Quincy and Alton. As a result he had a popular majority, but was beaten by holdover senators and a gerrymander.

Following the struggle with Douglas Mr. Lincoln made speeches in Ohio, Kansas, New England and the famous address in Cooper Union, New York. Early in 1860 the Illinois state convention instructed for him for president, and in the national convention that met at Chicago, May 16-19, he was nominated on the third ballot. In the following campaign Mr. Lincoln remained at home and declined to make speeches. The Democratic party split on slavery, which made his election possible. Following the announcement of the result many of the southern states seceded, but the president elect refused to be drawn into any public utterance as to his policy. On Feb. 11, 1861, he started to Washington, making a few short addresses on the way and secretly passing through Baltimore because of rumors of possible assassination. After his inauguration his history became that of the country in her most gigantic struggle. The supreme events of his administration as they affect his fame were the issuance of the emancipation proclamation on Sept. 22, 1862, and its official promulgation on the 1st of January following; Vicksburg and Gettysburg on July 1-4, 1863; the Gettysburg address on Nov. 19, 1863; the second election to the presidency and second inaugural, and the assassination on April 14, 1865, five days after Appomattox.

ABRAHAM LINCOLN.

February 12, 1809.

We place above his name a fadeless wreath—
A wreath of Honor, Loyalty and Love,
Which shall not wither while our God above
Shall give Mankind its benison of breath:
'Twill blossom e'er, nor shall it suffer Death;
No change nor chance it's perfect grace shall move,
But like a talisman its power will prove
When Freemen draw the sword from out its sheath!

QUINCY LOCALS BRIEFLY TOLD

The Lincoln anniversary exercises at City Hall tonight should fill the hall to overflowing.

A gold ring was picked up on Spear street on Wednesday which owner can have by calling at Ledger office.

The ladies of the Quincy Catholic club hold a colonial whist party this evening at Electa hall from 8.30 to 10.30.

George W. Jones, the City square shoe merchant is displaying a fine picture of Lincoln in one of his show windows.

Classes in gymnastics for both boys and girls are being formed at the high school this week by physical director Ernst Hermann.

Children have been saving their pennies to invest in Valentines at the Valentine dance at Music hall on Saturday afternoon.

Rev. Mr. Morgan who occupied the pulpit at the Water Street Presbyterian church last Sunday will preach at both services Sunday.

Flags are being displayed on all public buildings of the city today and on many private residences in honor of the anniversary of President Lincoln.

Advices from Mayor Shea who is in the south are that he is headed home and will arrive in time to attend the meeting of the City Council, Monday evening.

The Girls' Friendly society of St. Chrysostom's church meets this evening in the parish room. The Sunday school teachers meet at the rectory on Saturday evening.

At the annual meeting and dinner of the Home Furnishers association at Young's hotel, Boston, Thursday, Henry L. Kincaide of this city was elected President of the association.

A feature of the Valentine party to be given by the Day Nursery on Saturday will be a fancy dance by Miss Barbara Johnson of Belmont street, with Miss Florence Luhma at the piano.

Wollaston has gained this week an additional letter carrier. He has been badly needed for the past three years and consequently is appreciated, as deliveries in all parts of the district are much improved.

Tomorrow night will be college night at the Y. M. C. A. J. E. Ingersol of the Dartmouth football team will tell of his foot-ball experiences and there will be music by the boys' orchestra.

What is probably one of the oldest flags in the city is that displayed at the residence of E. E. Morgan on Hancock street. The flag which is in a good state of preservation has been in the family for many years and has but thirteen stars.

The Lincoln Centenary

Many Rare Geniuses Were Born In 1809, and Abraham Lincoln Was Greatest of Them All

By EUGENE FERRIS

Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association

J. WILKES BOOTH.

THE list of the world's great men born in 1809 and whose centenaries will therefore be celebrated during the present year is surprisingly large. The number reaches into the scores. Chief among the poets were Tennyson, Poe, Holmes, Fitzgerald and Lord Houghton. Of musicians there were Chopin and Mendelssohn; of scientists, Darwin and many lesser lights; of fighters, Admiral Dahlgren, Kit Carson, Marshal Canrobert; of statesmen, Gladstone, Hannibal Hamlin and Abraham Lincoln.

Lincoln and Darwin, perhaps the most celebrated of the list, were born on the same day. One abolished chattel slavery, preserved the world's greatest republic and set democratic government a long step forward; the other revolutionized science and wrote the word "evolution" into the language and thoughts of men.

Lincoln's fame has grown with every hour since his death and is yet growing. His hold on the hearts of men comes not alone from his acts. These but brought him into the public eye. It was the sweetness of his character, his mercy and simplicity, his loyalty to truth, his homely common sense, his literary quality and his perfect democracy that have given him second, if not first, place among the great men of his own land and won him the affection of all lands.

The centenary of his birth, on Feb. 12, will be celebrated as has been that of no other American. On the birthplace farm in Kentucky a memorial building will be dedicated, speeches being delivered by President Roosevelt, Secretary of War Luke E. Wright, Supreme Court Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes, Cardinal Gibbons and Governors Folk of Missouri and Willson of Kentucky. The address of President Roosevelt, while short, will be, it is believed, one of his most ambitious efforts. It will constitute practically his last important utterance as president, and he designs to place it as nearly in the class with Lincoln's Gettysburg address as he is able. The memorial building itself is small and of simple but classic design. Surrounded by Greek pillars and approached by broad flights of steps, it makes a striking appearance on the humble Kentucky farm. It completely surrounds and incloses the little log cabin in which Lincoln was born, which after its wanderings has been re-erected on its original site. At the foot of the steps are a broad sward and driveway, with a flagstaff in the center. Near by is the rock spring which was famous even in Lincoln's day. All of this, with the remainder of the farm, which will be left much as it was before, is to be thrown open to the public as a national park on Feb. 12.

The Lincoln centenary will also be elaborately celebrated at the tomb of the martyr president and his former home in Springfield, at most of the large cities and in the churches and elsewhere all over the United States and in some form throughout the world.

Two men whose lines of fate crossed those of Abraham Lincoln in a strange and one of them in a sinister way were Stephen A. Douglas and John Wilkes Booth. Lincoln and Douglas were lifelong political foes, rivals for the hand of the same girl, rivals for the senatorship, rivals in debate and rivals for the presidency. Lincoln won in every case, except in the empty honor of the formal election to the senatorship. Even there he had the popular majority and the moral effect of victory. Yet, oddly enough, it was Douglas who, fifty years ago, first gave Lincoln his opportunity to achieve national fame. The debates between the two giants were the most celebrated in American political history. They made Mr. Lincoln the presidential candidate in 1860 and indirectly contributed to the splitting of the Democratic party and the deciding of the election. Oddly also, the two men were personal friends, and in the test of war Judge Douglas came valiantly to President Lincoln's support.

As for Booth, his motive in slaying Lincoln has always been something of a mystery. That there was a conspiracy and that he entered into it there seems little doubt, but his reason for the step has never been made clear. Whether he had a private grievance, acted through sentimental sympathy with the south or simply was crazed by the great events of the period is yet a matter of controversy and doubtless will always remain so. Considering his talents and brilliant family connections, the last supposition is the probable and certainly the charitable one.

Lincoln said that his early life might be described in a line from Gray, "The short and simple annals of the poor." He came of English Quakers. His parents, while of good family, belonged to the frontier, had little or no education and no money. The son was never burdened with these things himself. His schooling altogether did not amount to a year. Yet he taught himself, reading omnivorously such books as he could procure. Fortunately these were the best—the Bible, Shakespeare, Aesop, "Pilgrim's Progress," Thomas Paine, Robert Burns and the lives of Washington and Clay.

In 1816 the Lincolns left Kentucky for Indiana, and two years later the mother died. It was a time of intense misery and saddened the boy's life.

LINCOLN IN 1861.

"All that I am, all that I hope to be, I owe to my angel mother!" he afterward exclaimed. In a year Thomas Lincoln married a second time, and the stepmother came as near supplying the vacant place in young Abraham's heart and life as any other being could have done. For the boy the stay in Indiana consisted chiefly of hard farm work, with one flatboat trip down the Mississippi near its end.

Following his pioneer instincts, Tom Lincoln in 1830 moved to Illinois. That winter Abraham, now "his own man," split rails and started out in the world for himself. The next year he took a second flatboat trip to New Orleans and returned to clerk in a grocery at New Salem. In 1832 he served as a captain in the Black Hawk war and ran for the legislature, but was defeated. In 1833 he started in the grocery business for himself, but his partner ran off, poor Lincoln failed, and it took him years to pay the debt.

Lincoln tried for the legislature a second time in 1834 and was elected, remaining in the house eight years, a part of which time he was minority leader. His chief acts as a legislator were his advocacy of internal improvements, his protest against slavery and his leadership of the fight to remove the state capital from Vandalia to Springfield.

Other events occurring contemporaneously with this legislative experience were briefly as follows: In 1834 and 1835 he acted as deputy surveyor and studied law. In August, 1835, Ann Rutledge died, throwing Lincoln into indescribable gloom. In 1836 he was admitted to the bar, forming a partnership with John T. Stuart. In 1840 he was an elector on the Harrison ticket. In 1841 he formed a partnership with Judge Stephen T. Logan, and on Nov. 4, 1842, he was married to Miss Mary Todd of Kentucky.

At the end of his legislative career Mr. Lincoln in 1843 formed his final law partnership, that with William H. Herndon, which lasted to the end of his life. In 1844 he was an elector on the Clay ticket and in 1846 was elected to congress, which was, properly speaking, the beginning of his national career, although his real advent as a national figure did not come until a decade after his one term in congress was finished.

Lincoln's Modesty.

In 1859, when his name was being mentioned as a prospective candidate for president, Abraham Lincoln wrote to an editor who had suggested the advisability of announcing his name, "I must in all candor say that I do not think myself fit for the presidency."

IMPERSONATE VALENTINES.

Pretty Girls Present Series of Tableaux at Universalist Church.

A very pretty Valentine party was held Thursday evening by the Murray club of the Universalist church. The party was held in the church vestry and was largely attended.

A very pleasing program was presented. This included a series of tableaux representing valentines from all parts of the country.

These were given in costume. Those who impersonated valentines were Miss Harriet Lombard, Miss Marion Wright, Miss Irene Howes, Miss Bessie Grant, Miss Elizabeth Wheeler, Miss Katherine and Miss Elizabeth Reed, Irving Fletcher, Herbert Morton, Bartlett Spooner, and Elmer L. Sprague.

In addition to this there was a piano duet by Miss Bessie Grant and Mrs. G. R. White, piano solo by Miss Katherine Reed, mandolin solo by Miss Marion Wright and vocal solos by Miss Martha Holton and Miss Annie Wright.

LUCKY BOY.

What would modern educational experts have made of Lincoln if, as a baby, he had been put in their care? They would probably have started him on sterilized milk, clothed him in disinfected garments, sent him to kindergarten where he would have learned to weave straw mats and sing about the "Blue Bird on the Branch." Then the dentist would have straightened his teeth, the oculist would have fitted him with glasses, and in the primary grade he would have been taught by pictures and diagrams the difference between a cow and a pig, and, through nature study he would have learned that the catbird did not lay kittens. By the time he was eight he would have become a "young gentleman;" at ten he would know more than the old folks at home; at twelve or fourteen he would take up manual training and within two years make a rolling pin and tie it with a blue ribbon. In the high school at sixteen, where in four years he would learn that Mars was the reputed son of Juno, and to recite a stanza from "The Lady of the Lake." Then to college, where he would have joined the glee club and a Greek letter fraternity, smoked cigarettes and graduated, and then become a clerk in a banker's office; and never, never do anyone any harm! Well—perhaps—we don't know and can't tell what might have been, but we can't help feeling thankful that Lincoln's training and education were left to Nancy Hanks—and God.—Universalist Leader.

AMONG THE SPORTS.

At a meeting of the executive committee of the Quincy yacht club Thursday it was voted to accept the challenges of the Boston and Corinthian yacht clubs. The challenges were received Tuesday. The secretary was instructed to send formal notice of the acceptance.

Quincy High against the Concord school five this afternoon.

Local fans may see a good game tomorrow if they care to go to East Boston. The Noddle Island five are scheduled to meet the Crescent Five of New Jersey, who claim the championship of the country. The East Boston boys are going some just now and no better game will be seen this winter.

There is talk of Quincy having a team in the Old Colony baseball league the coming season. At a recent meeting of the directors, two Quincy men applied for a franchise and the talk of the meeting was very favorable towards Quincy. We ought to have one good representative team here, for Quincy is a good baseball town. Here's hoping the Quincy men get the franchise.

There will be no game in St. Mary's hall tomorrow night, the local five taking a rest from the strenuous game. One week from tomorrow night, however, a hot game is booked, the Randolph A. A. being scheduled to appear against the West Quincy five. The two teams are old rivals in all branches of sport, so some fast ball may be expected.

BOWLING.

The bowling teams of the Fore River hull draughtmen and the Fore River goverment hull draughtmen met at the GRANITE STREET ALLEYS Thursday evening. The Fore River men whitewashed the goverment men taking three straight strings and winning the match by 42 pins. Carruthers was high man on the threestring total having 252, while Browning and Campwell with strings of 91, were tied for first place for singles.

The summary:

MILTON.

A smoke talk was held at the rooms of the Thursday evening club this week.

The dancing school assembly Wednesday evening was largely attended.

Flags were displayed on many private residences as well as on public buildings Friday in honor of Lincoln's anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Sheldon left Wednesday for a six weeks' trip to California.

Mrs. Fanny A., widow of Henry Brierly a long resident of East Milton died at her home, Thursday after a long illness, in her 76 year. She leaves a son and two daughters. The funeral will be held from the residence of her son at 39 Church street, Saturday.

There were but two contests at the Citizens' caucus at the Town Hall Thursday evening. These two contests were on the candidates for selectmen and for school committee.

The first three were nominated receiving 211, 219 and 160 votes respectively. Carpenter received 64 votes.

J. Frank Pope and George Anderson were nominated for school committee defeating Frank Fanning 2 to 1.

Other candidates renominated were:
Moderator——Robert F. Herrick.
Assessor—William W. Churchill.
Auditors—Austin W. Green and H. H. Barnes.
Tax Collector—Josiah Babcock.
Town Clerk—Henry B. Martin.
Town Treasurer—J. Porter Holmes.

—The old white bridge over the Jordan river near Salt Lake is being dismantled. Built in 1851, four years after the first white settlement of Utah, for 25 years it was the only dry crossing of the Jordan. The pony express used it in going to and fro between St. Joe and California, the emigrant trains used it as they entered on the last stage of their westward journey, and the Mormon pioneers used it constantly in going to and from the lake. The builders of the bridge had neither nails, rivets nor iron bolts, but used wooden pegs for fastening to such good advantage that the structure has been in constant service for more than 50 years. —New York World.

It was admitted of the couple that their marriage in Kenosha would come as a great surprise to relatives in Milwaukee, but the bridegroom declared there were absolutely no well-founded objections to the marriage. It was his second marriage.

—Consul Louis Goldschmidt of Nantes, France, makes the report that a use for the telephone in fishing has just been invented in Norway. A microphone, the role of which consists in amplifying submarine sounds, is shut up in a thin, watertight steel box and kept in constant communication by metalic wires with a telephonic receiver installed on the fishing boat. It is stated that with this apparatus the fisherman is always informed of the approach of fish. Moreover, it is said that each kind of fish gives in the instrument a particular sound. Thus the arrival of herring is signalized by a sort of whistling; the codfish announces its arrival in the neighborhood by a sort of grunting.

—Although there is much said and written of the return to nature and the call of the country and of the wild, the people after all are collecting more numerously than ever into the cities.—Chicago Tribune.

The Social Realm

Every day hath its night;
Every night its morn;
Through dark and bright
Winged hours are borne:
Ah welaway!
Seasons flower and fade;
Golden calm and storm
Mingle day by day,
There is no bright form
Doth not cast a shade—
Ah! welaway!

CITIZENS PAY HOMAGE TO MARTYRED PRESIDENT

Impressive Exercises Held In City Hall Under Auspices of Local G. A. R.

The Grand Army veterans held patriotic exercises last night in the Council chamber of City Hall in honor of the birth of Lincoln. The attendance was large and the program was excellent. The hall was decorated with the Stars and Stripes, while a large picture of Abraham Lincoln, decorated with flags, stood in a prominent position in the front of the hall.

On either side of the stage sat the Grand Army veterans and the Woman's Relief Corps. Seated on the stage was Commander Phillips, who presided, Rev. Julian E. Johnstone, Rev. Dr. E. N. Hardy, George E. Adams and Cornelius Duggan.

The program opened with music by the Finn band. Commander George L. Phillips then gave a brief introductory address, followed by prayer by Dr. E. N. Hardy.

The musical numbers consisted of songs by Miss Abbie B. Penley, Miss Elvira Ewell, Miss Marion Burns, and Master Bert Reed.

The literary part of the program consisted in readings by Mrs. Kate A. Blaisdell, who gave Lincoln's famous Gettysburg Address; Mrs. Anna J. Gould, who gave "Barbara Frietchie," and an original poem by Quincy's well-known poet, Cornelius Duggan.

The addresses of the evening were by Dr. E. N. Hardy, Rev. Julian E. Johnstone, and George E. Adams, the latter representing the Sons of Veterans. All three spoke interestingly and enthusiastically of the characteristics of Lincoln, the Liberator.

Dr. Hardy spoke on "The Ideal American." He portrayed the wonderful character of Lincoln and the great effect it has had on the country and still has on the youth of today.

He told of the wonderful characteristics of Lincoln, his perservance, in study and in all things of life, his fair play, honesty, self-mastery and religion. He told of the time when Lincoln first received the news of his nomination, how the first one he thought of was his wife at home.

Dr. Hardy ended by quoting the well-known saying, "It was great to be a Greek, but it was greater to be a Greek in the time of Pericles." He said, "It was great to be an American, but it was greater to be an American in the time of Lincoln" Dr. Hardy was at his best last night and received loud applause at the close of his address.

Rev. Julian E. Johnstone was next introduced. He spoke on "Abraham Lincoln," told of Lincoln as a General, as a statesman, as a writer and lastly as a man. His address was a classic of English and will long be remembered by those who heard it. Fr. Johnstone said in part:

"We commemorate tonight the centenary of the birth of a man, who from the condition of a peasant became more powerful than a prince, who born in a log-cabin rose to preside and shed lustre over the Presidential mansion, a man who schooled in the affairs of the world proved more than a match for the sagacious and academic scholar, who from the lowly occupation of a rail-splitter became the great helmet-plitter and battle-breaker, whose hammer-bolt of war, crushed a rebellion that was the greatest in history and saved a nation that is the most powerful that has ever made history. Lincoln was well called Abraham.

He was the father of a mighty people, the bravest and the best of which there is any written record, and his children loved to call him "Father Abraham," and he was pleased with the affectionate appellative. Lincoln's whole life was a most signal proof of the shaping destiny and guiding hand of Providence. He was hewn by the hand of God out of the thunder-riven mountain-block, sculptured into the great colossus that was ordained to hold the New World together, as with cables of iron; dowered with the starfire of genius to dispel the clouds of battle-thunder, and blessed with the gift of leadership that made him the glorious champion of liberty against slavery; of union against disintegration, of God and the right against Satan, and the banded regiments of wrong.

Lincoln and Liberty, they are synonymous terms nowadays. Lincoln the Liberator was a gigantic figure truly, the man who with one stroke of the sword struck off the fetters of millions of his fellow-creatures, asserted with all the iron eloquence of the cannon the equality of the black man with the white, brought God down into the lowly cabin of the negro, and gave him back the manhood, the courage and the freedom that the bull-whip and the branding-iron of the slave-driver had beaten out of him.

But Lincoln depreciated war. He felt that a battery of ideas was far more powerful than a battery of bullets, and that only when brains are impervious to ideas is it permissible to penetrate the thick integument with iron arguments. Lincoln was a born leader. Oftentimes it happens that the weakest heads wear the golden crown, and the weakest hands the golden sceptre.

But in his case it was the best head, the noblest heart and the strongest hands in the country that won and wore the highest honors, the proudest glory in the collective gift of the people. He had all the qualities of a great leader, the magnetic personality, commanding mental power, indomintable courage ,the lofty look of authority, the eye that over-powered one with the piercing intensity of its steel bright gaze, the strong, masculine, vigorous eloquence of a sincere, simple man, as close to nature as a savage, but as near to Heaven, and the heart of man as Shakespeare.

His great creative will, moulded and fashioned all men to the model forms he designed for them. He inspired men with a touch of his own genius, a flash of his own heroic temper, a dash of his own unconquerable spirit, as one thunder cloud electifies another, till it kindles and quivers with the lurid tempest-light."

George E. Adams was the last speaker and spoke of the effect Lincoln had on those who came after him. The effect produced on the "boys of '61" by the spirit of Lincoln, he said was produced on the "boys of '98" an dstill pervades the youth of the twentieth century.

The exercises closed with the singing of America by the audience. All joined heartily in the grand chorus and the chamber resounded with the strains of the great national song. As the audience left the hall, the "Star Spangled Banner" was played by the band.

FOR ASSAULT ON EMPLOYER.

Italian Fined And Placed Under Bond.

Guiseppe Romeri was arrested at West Quincy Friday afternoon for assault on Wesley Fuller. Romeri who has been employed at Mr. Fuller's granite plant visited him Friday and demanded money due him for labor.

Mr. Fuller was unable to meet the obligation at that time and after some words ordered Romeri to leave the office. This he refused to do. He then made a grab for Mr. Fuller and held him pinned in the corner saying that he proposed to hold him there until he got his money.

Some one entering the office a little later caused him to release his hold and flee. He was arretsed later and fined in court this morning.

NEW ORLEANS HOSPITALITY

President-Elect Taft Passes an Enjoyable Day and Night

CREOLE BANQUET A FEATURE

Governor, Mayor and Prominent Citizens at Board Which Cost a Thousand Persons $25 Each to Sit—Says Negro Problem Must Be Solved by Efforts of Individuals Rather Than by Any General Principle

New Orleans, Feb. 13.—President-Elect Taft enjoyed the distinctive spirit of New Orleans' hospitality yesterday and last night. His morning was devoted to the negro race, his afternoon to leisure and recreation, with the tension of entertainment as light as possible, and with the shades of evening there gathered about him a genial host of eminence and rank.

The feature last night was a Creole banquet, where the savoriness of the cuisine, with its backing of years of reputation, blended with compliments, oratory, music and floral tribute, made a scene of animation and vivacity, tempered with respect and dignity.

Mr. Taft was toasted by the governor, the mayor, by citizens of prominence and by speakers of note. A feeling invocation was pronounced by Cardinal Gibbons, who is in the city visiting his brother.

Mr. Taft responded in the spirit of the occasion. He talked of his desire as the chief executive to represent the whole nation, of his intention to make the representatives of the administration in the south represent the best element of the communities in which they live; of his recent visit to the Isthmus of Panama, with a repetition of his hope that the completion of the canal will occur in his administration.

The dinner was given in the newly decorated banquet hall of the Grunewald Hotel, where Mr. Taft is quartered. A thousand citizens paid $25 each for places at the board and considerably over half of these were present, and from the early beginning until the late ending the scene was one of animation.

In his speech to the negroes who greeted him by thousands at the ball park, Taft reiterated his principles regarding the development of the negro race and the settlement of the race question. He gave wholesome advice to the effect that this big question was to be solved by the efforts of individuals rather than by any general principle. He wanted, he said, to be considered the president of the whole country, the president of every race in the country and expressed his sympathy with the struggle of the black man for progress.

The telegraphic correspondence between Taft and Senator Knox is regaded as making it clear that the disposition of congress to remove any constitutional obstacles in the way of the appointment to a cabinet position of the Pennsylvania senator is most desirable.

Mr. and Mrs. Taft left here for Cincinnati this morning. Monday afternoon the president-elect will start for Washington.

STEAMER A TOTAL LOSS

Sixty-Seven Members of Her Crew Are Probably Lost

Wellington, N. Z., Feb. 13.—The Union Steamship company steamer Penguin was wrecked last night off Cape Terawhiti.

Some of the passengers and a number of the crew were saved, but the remainder of the ship's company, numbering sixty-seven, are missing and are supposed to have perished.

The Penguin is a total loss. She was an iron vessel of 824 tons and was built at Glasgow in 1864.

The Scrap Book

Sure of One.

There is a certain congressman from New England, a self made man, who is noted in Washington for two things, his quick wit and pride in his Celtic origin.

He was walking down Pennsylvania avenue one fine evening with a fellow member from Kansas when the westerner, looking at the sky, remarked, "How bright Orion is tonight!"

"A-r-rh!" replied the New Englander. "So that is O'Ryan, is it? Well, thank the Lord there's one Irishman in heaven anyhow!"—Lippincott's.

OPPORTUNITY.

Master of human destinies am I!
Fame, love and fortune on my footsteps wait.
Cities and fields I walk. I penetrate
Deserts and fields remote, and, passing by
Hovel and mart and palace soon or late,
I knock unbidden once at every gate.
If sleeping, wake; if feasting, rise before
I turn away. It is the hour of fate,
And they who follow me reach every state
Mortals desire and conquer every foe
Save death, but those who doubt or hesitate,
Condemned to failure, penury and woe,
Seek me in vain, uselessly implore—
I answer not, and I return no more.
—John J. Ingalls.

The Guessing Game.

A pompous English peer, an important figure in the upper chamber by reason of a very long and very bushy beard, had dismissed his valet for the night. Shortly afterward, however, he was much annoyed to hear peals of laughter from below and called back the man to explain. The valet answered that it was just a little joke, but his lordship would have none of it and demanded details angrily.

"Well," admitted the man, with reluctance, "it was really a little game we were having, my lord."

"What game?"

"Well, my lord, a kind of guessing game."

"Don't be a fool, Walters. I rang for you in order to get an explanation. What guessing game are you playing? Guessing what?"

"We blindfolded the cook, to tell you the truth, my lord, and then one of us kissed her, and she had to guess who it was. The footman held the mop up, and she kissed it and then cried out, 'Oh, your lordship, how dare you?'"

A Doubtful Accomplishment.

A man who stuttered badly went to a specialist and after ten difficult lessons learned to say quite distinctly, "Peter Piper picked a peck of pickled peppers." His friends congratulated him upon this splendid achievement.

"Yes," said the man doubtfully, "but it's s-s-such a d-d-deucedly d-d-d-difficult rem-mark to w-w-work into an ordin-n-nary c-c-convers-s-sa-tion, y' know."

Must Have Had Experience.

When Dr. Thompson, a distinguished Scotch clergyman, was minister of Markinch he happened to preach from the text, "Look not upon the wine when it is red in the cup," from which he made a most eloquent and impressive discourse against drunkenness, stating its evil effects on the heart, head and purse. Several of his observations were leveled at two cronies with whom he was well acquainted who frequently poured out libations to the rosy god. At the dismissal of the congregation the two friends met, the doctor being close behind them.

"Did you hear, Johnnie?" quoth the one.

"Did I hear't? Wha' didna hear't? I ne'er winked an e'e the haill sermon."

"Aweel, an' what thought ye o't?"

"Adeed, Davie, I think he has been a lad in his day or he couldna discoorse sea weel about it. Ah, he's been a slee hand, the meenister."

Doing His Best.

A fat man entered a restaurant that served dinner at the fixed price of 75 cents. He knotted a napkin about his neck and fell to heavily—so heavily, in fact, that the waiter, after a whispered conversation with the proprietor, approached him and said:

"Beg, pardon, sir, but I'll have to charge you a quarter extra, you eat so much."

The fat man, red and short of breath from his excessive gorging, said earnestly:

"For goodness' sake, don't do that! I'm nearly dead now from eating 75 cents' worth. If you make me eat another quarter I'll bust."

Resurrections.

The world is full of resurrections. Every night that folds us up in darkness is a death, and those of you that have been out early and have seen the first of the dawn will know it. The day rises out of the night like a being that has burst its tomb and escaped into life.—George Macdonald.

Got the Signal.

Railway men—conductors, engineers and brakemen—are so accustomed to communicate with each other by means of gestures that the habit of looking for such dumb signals becomes a kind of second nature. In this connection a western railway official tells of an amusing incident in that part of his state where it is so common for cattle to be run over that the manager of one "jerkwater" line required his engineers to report all such accidents, with full particulars as to place, time and circumstance.

One day a complaint was received at headquarters that a valuable cow had been killed on a certain day and by a certain engine. The case was referred to the proper department, but reference to the files showed that the engineer had failed to report such an accident. Accordingly he was sent for and asked why he had omitted to report the matter.

"I didn't know I hurt the cow," he said.

"Then you remember hitting her?"

"Yes, and I slowed up as she rolled over on her back. But she waved her feet for me to go ahead, and so I concluded she was all right."—Harper's Weekly.

His Military Title.

A traveler in Texas says that he was riding along a cattle trail near the New Mexico line when he met a rather pompous looking native of the region, who introduced himself as Colonel Higgins of Devil's River. "Were you a colonel in the Confederate army?" the traveler asked. "No, sah." "On the Union side, then?" "No, sah; never was in no wah." "Belong to the Texas rangers?" "No, sah; I do not." "Ah, I see; you command one of the state militia regiments." "No, sah; I don't—don't know nothing about soldiering." "Where, then, did you get the rank of colonel?" "It's a kunnel by marriage, sah?" "By marriage? How's that?" "I married the widow of a kunnel sah—Kunnel Thompson of Waco."

Both of One Mind.

A henpecked gentleman determined to have a night with his friends against the will of his wife. He was resolved that he would go, and she was equally certain that he should not. He did not appear, however, and his friends, missing him, for fun invaded his residence. There they found both him and his wife sitting in their chairs fast asleep. He had given her an opiate that he might slip away, and she had given him one that he might not.

Roosevelt and Dennis.

"Theodore Roosevelt has a fine sense of humor," said an old time New Yorker. "When he was police commissioner he used to go around and keep tabs on the police himself. He came upon one standing at a bar one night before a large, full grown glass of whisky which he was about to consume. Roosevelt touched him on the shoulder.

"'What is your name?' he asked.

"'What business is that of yours?' the cop demanded. 'What's your name?'

"'My name is Roosevelt,' answered that gentleman.

"The cop drank the liquor, set down the glass, wiped his lips with the back of his hand and then turned on the commissioner.

"'If your name is Roosevelt,' said he, 'my name is Dennis.'

"Roosevelt let him off with a reprimand."

Each Bud Blossoms But Once.

Each bud blossoms but once, and each flower has but its minute of perfect beauty. So in the garden of the soul each feeling has, as it were, its flowering moment, its one and only second of expansive grace and royal radiance. Each star passes but once in the night through the meridian over our heads and glitters there but for an instant. So in the heaven of the mind each thought touches its zenith but once, and in that moment all its brilliancy and all its sovereign greatness culminate.—Henri Frederic Amiel.

Two Jokes on Frederick Warde.

During a performance in the west by Frederick Warde a curious error was made by the compositor who "set up" the bill for "The Tempest." The part enacted by Warde was that of Prospero, rightful duke of Milan, and this the compositor billed in this wise:

Prospero, Frightful Duke of Milan.....
.....Frederick Warde

Now, the player, who has a keen sense of humor, was sufficiently struck by the fun of the thing to forward a marked copy of the playbill to his daughter, then in the east. Miss Warde, too, was appreciative of the compositor's effort, for she sent her father the following note:

Dear Dad—Inasmuch as I have seen the performance, I fail to see wherein the program was wrong.

—Lippincott's.

Would Have the Author.

During a performance of Sophocles' tragedy of "Antigone" at the Theater Royal, Dublin, the gallery gods, a very important portion of the audience in that city, were greatly pleased and, according to their custom, called for the author.

"Bring out Sopherclaze!" some one shouted.

After awhile the manager appeared, and there was a general shout until he explained that Sophocles had been dead 2,000 years and more and could not well come.

"Then chuck us out his mummy!" came back in answer from the gallery.

Indian Repartee.

An old time Indian agent who was a militia colonel desired to impress the Indians with the magnitude of his dignity. He dressed himself in full uniform, with his sword by his side, and, rising in the council, told them that one reason why the great father had had so much trouble with his red children was that he had sent civilians to them.

"You are warriors," he said, "and when the great father saw me he said, 'I will send this man, who is a great warrior, to my red children, who are warriors, and they will hear his words.'"

An old chief arose and, surveying the speaker from head to foot, said calmly: "Since I was a small boy I have heard that white men have great warriors. I have always wanted to see one. I have looked upon one, and now I am ready to die."

CLOSEST OF BONDS WITH UNITED STATES

Takahira Says That Is What Japan Is Seeking

Peoria, Ills., Feb. 13.—Baron Takahira, Japanese ambassador to the United States, was one of the guests of honor last night at the Creve Couer club banquet in honor of the centennial of the birth of Abraham Lincoln. He said in his speech that Japan never had any idea of displeasing the people of the United States, much less of waging war against them.

The keynote of his speech was one of friendliness and conciliation. Takahira affirmed that his country was working, not only to restrict Japanese coolies' immigration, but to remove every possible cause of misunderstanding and to cement the closest bond of friendship between Japan and the United States.

THE HADLEY ESTATE

Purported Wills of Recluse to Be Straightened Out by Court

Boston, Feb. 13.—Believing that two alleged wills of the late Benjamin Hadley of Somerville, in which Mrs. Elizabeth M. Buckley of Trowbridge, Eng., was beneficiary, were not the proper ones, the English firm of lawyers connected with the case have withdrawn.

The Hadley will, however, will come up for a contest next week in the Cambride court, when a will which leaves money to Somerville relatives and a will which was mailed to this city from England will be argued upon.

Hadley was a Somerville recluse who had extensive real estate holdings and since his death a few months ago several alleged wills have been discovered, including one said to have been found upon a doorstep in London, in which President Roosevelt was remembered. President Roosevelt has stated that he would decline to receive the legacy.

A RAP AT CONGRESSMEN

Carnegie Declares That They Are Unable to Deal With the Tariff

New York, Feb. 13.—Andrew Carnegie declared that congress is incapable of fixing a just tariff schedule, and that a permanent bi-partisan commission of experts is the only solution of the ever-troublesome tariff problem.

Mr. Carnegie urged that all manufacturers of the country attend the national tariff commission convention, which assembles at Indianapolis on Feb. 16. He also asserted that the average congressman, as a rule, is unequipped by training and knowledge to fairly and understandingly deal with such an abstruse proposition as tariff.

Mr. Carnegie's views were made known to a representative of the American Industries, the official publication of the National Association of Manufacturers.

TO WORK FOR SUFFRAGE

President Catt of International Alliance Leave America For England

New York, Feb. 13.—Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, president of the International Woman Suffrage alliance, sailed today for England on the Atlantic transport steamer Minnetonka.

Mrs. Catt is going abroad to assist in the preparations for the annual meeting of the alliance, which is to take place in London during the last week in April. After spending a week in London she will make a lecture tour in Bohemia, Hungary, Germany and Austria, returning to London a month before the meeting of the alliance.

AUTO KILLED BOY

Jury Acquits Chauffeur of Charge of Involuntary Manslaughter

Bangor, Me., Feb. 13.—The jury brought in a verdict of not guilty in the case of Harold Colby, who was charged with involuntary manslaughter because, while running an automobile, he ran down and killed Fred O'Connor, aged 10 years.

The accident occurred on June 4, 1908, in this city, while Colby was acting as chauffeur for Thomas R. Savage. The jury brought in the verdict after eight hours' deliberation.

To Walk Across Continent

Seattle, Feb. 13.—Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Hildebrand of Seattle and Mrs. Hildebrant's brother, Frederick Lange of Olympia, started on Friday on their 3800 mile walk to New York city by way of the southwest. It will take at least a year to reach New York.

Mutineers to Be Punished

Havana, Feb. 13.—The government says it recognizes the right of Rural Guards to refuse to join the permanent army, but that the men who revolted and went to the palace to protest against being sent to the Cabanas fortress must be punished for insubordination.

Asks $100,000 to Fight Trusts

Washington Feb. 13.—In a letter submitted to congress through the secretary of the treasury, Attorney General Bonaparte asks that an appropriation of $100,000 be made for the fiscal year 1910 for the enforcement of the anti-trust laws.

HARTLEY'S CALLER.

By COLIN S. COLLINS.

Copyrighted, 1909, by Associated Literary Press.

"Lady to see you," announced Jimmie, one of the office boys, with a deference that he showed only to Hartley, the dramatic critic, and Murphy, the sporting editor. The sporting editor could call all the baseball players by their first names, but Hartley had only to write on a slip of paper and it would take Jimmie into the much desired "show." Such small fry as editors and star reporters were not at all in the same class with a man who carried passes in his pocket every day.

"I've told you a hundred times to get the name, Jimmie," was the testy response. Hartley was ill at ease with the whole world that morning.

"I know," admitted Jimmie, with unembarrassed truthfulness, "but, say, Mr. Hartley, she's a peacherino for fair!"

"I'm not interested in fruit," was the cold response as Hartley turned to his desk. He hated all women at the moment, for he had had to do a thing which would probably cost him the love of the one woman he really did care for.

He had had to tell the cruel truth about Norma Keating as an actress, and he felt that the high spirited girl never would forgive him.

Jimmie, the persistent, hung over the desk.

"She don't look like an actress," he declared, using the argument he knew to be most potent. "An' she's a pippin for fair!"

"I can't see any one who does not send in a card," declared Hartley as he turned to his work again, and Jimmie dashed out presently to return with a bit of pasteboard.

With a start Hartley read Norma's name and gave orders that she be ushered in. It was better perhaps that since there was to be a quarrel they should meet on his own ground.

Somehow, with the familiar surroundings, he felt more safe than he ever could in the parlor of the little actress' suit at the hotel. With a sternness that indifferently masked the misery that he felt he prepared to receive his caller.

He had expected that she would come storming in to denounce him for his criticism and to declare him biased and unfair.

He was braced for the shock and ill prepared for the sight of the dejected little woman who came timidly into his dingy office, her rich furs forming a strange contrast to the bare walls and cheap furniture.

Jimmie slipped away after one last admiring glance, and then the girl raised her eyes to Hartley's and met the pity in his bravely.

"I did not come to reproach you for your notice," she said, with a quick appreciation of his attitude. "It was your right to say what you pleased. I paid a big price for the special performance in order to get the metropolitan notices, and in doing so I exposed myself to every form of critical attack.

"I suppose that you are expected to be severe on beginners, to ridicule them and beat them down and force them into their proper places.

"You demand that we start at the bottom. I can see now that it was absurd to think that I could win favorable comment from the great men who have made their reputation more through the savageness of their attacks than through their ability as critics."

"And yet you said you had not come to reproach?" he asked gently. Even in her bitterness he noticed a new note in the rich voice. It hurt him to think that he was in part responsible for that little catch of pain which would sound, try as she would to be hard and cynical.

It was as if her whole quivering soul was laid bare in spite of the dress of words with which she sought to clothe it.

"I did not mean to say that," she cried. "I only meant to come and ask you if you would let me have my photographs back. You and the rest of your confreres have beaten me. I am in retreat. I am going as far from New York as I can. I want to take with me everything that is mine."

"You should have sent your agent and spared yourself,' he reminded her gently. "I will see that the pictures are found for you. Will you sit down?"

He indicated a chair as he rang for a boy, and presently Jimmie went away with instructions that Miss Keating's photographs were to be returned by the art department at once.

Neither spoke until the boy had laid the package down and had departed for the outer office. Then Hartley rose and placed them on the chair beside her.

"There is another one," she said uncertainly, "the one that I gave you. May I have it back, please?"

"If you wish," he promised as he turned again to his desk to draw from one of the recesses a photograph with a flowing autograph across its face. "Does your anger go so deep that you are unwilling to leave me even this souvenir of a friendship that I shall always treasure in my memory?" he asked. "May I not keep it?"

"To add to your sacrificial heap," she retorted bitterly. "I suppose you must have a goodly collection of those you have flayed."

"I have few photographs—and few friends among the women of the profession," he said simply as he opened a drawer for an envelope. "I had hoped to number your first among those few."

He held the envelope toward her, and for a moment she hesitated. She seemed about to leave the room, but she turned and faced him again.

"You told me once that you never would marry an actress," she said tensely. "Was it because—because you did not want me on the stage that you—that you wrote as you did?"

"I have made no secret of my admiration for you," said Hartley simply, "and I may have made the remark you attribute to me, but it was with no desire to drive you from the stage that I framed my criticism as I did."

"Can't you see," he continued passionately, "the awful position in which I was placed. If I praised your acting, I should have made my paper the laughingstock of the town. If I spoke the truth I knew that I should lose you. Every line of the story in this morning's paper was studied that I might speak as warmly as I dared without stultifying the paper."

"It was a little better than the rest," admitted Norma, "but I thought you had been a little kind so that I would not suspect how you had induced the other critics to be so merciless."

"On the contrary, I saw none of the boys," he declared. "I was far too sick at heart to mix with them and hear their ugly comments."

"Was I really as bad as that?" asked the girl wonderingly. "I thought it was because I was an amateur and had the money to hire the theater and the company. They always jump upon the rich amateurs, I had heard. I thought that was it. Was I really as bad as all that?"

"Don't ask me," pleaded Hartley, but the pirl persisted.

"You have a good voice and a good presence," he said slowly. "You have some crude ability, but that is all. You lack the spark of genius. Even money cannot buy that."

"Then you think I will never be an actress?" she asked with quivering lip. Hartley shook his head, and she turned away to the window, pressing her brow to the cool pane, against which the sleet rattled angrily.

For several minutes she stood thus looking out into the whirling snow and hail with unseeing eyes, while Hartley silently watched her.

He would have given the world to take her in his arms and comfort her, but instinctively he realized that she must fight her battle alone. She was the one woman in all the world to him, and yet he dared not speak.

At last she turned, and now her eyes were smiling, though her lips still were drawn and white.

"Why struggle against unanimous condemnation? You must be right," she conceded. "I never shall make an actress, and you said that you never would marry an actress."

"I'd marry you if you were Bernhardt and Duse in one," he cried, "but I rather would marry just you, dear. Will you have me? In spite of the blow that I have struck your pride can you love me?"

"I hate to marry a wife beater," she said, with a wan little smile, "but, Frank, I think I'd rather have your love than to be a great actress, and I don't mind the notice—now."

Jimmie, coming in with a card, turned and fled precipitately.

"I used to think that Mr. Murphy had the best of it, goin' to prize fights an' ball games," he said reflectively, "but I guess it's Mr. Hartley that has the cinch. I'd rather kiss that pippin than know the hull ball team."

English Hunting Dress.

When out hunting everybody should be dressed as a gentleman, and the most detrimental thing to fox hunting is the modern innovation (really gross laziness and an insult to the hunt and the master) of young gentlemen coming out dressed in rat catching clothes, shooting caps and fancy costumes of their own, and much harm is done.

There is nothing the farmers dislike so much as this habit, for they never know whether such persons are rough riders or gentlemen or people from the towns or who they are galloping over their land and over their fences.

There is but one proper and legitimate fox hunting dress for gentlemen, and that is red and black coat, white breeches, top boots and a high hat, and certainly thirty years ago nobody would have dared to come out dressed otherwise. Where the hounds belong to the country, landowners are entitled to wear the hunt button, but I do not think that this entitles the subscribers to wear it unless they are invited to do so by the master or by the committee, as the case may be.—"The Highest Authority" in Baily's Magazine.

Wild Animals Asleep.

It is always a pretty sight to come upon wild animals asleep, so graceful are their attitudes. The fox curls himself up with all the charming, luxurious air of a cat. He rests his head in the lap of the two front pads, then twines his brush neatly round over his long pointed nose. He is a light sleeper, but hares and rabbits are still more easily roused.

We believe they sleep with their eyes wide open. The uncapped lenses of the eyes remain active through sleep, so that any vision of danger impressed on the retina conveys an automatic alarm to the slumberer's brain. People are sometimes puzzled when in open fields they notice a dozen or more hare forms within a few yards of each other. They may conclude hares swarm in those fields. Probably the reason for the many forms is that a hare likes to face the wind when sleeping and so scratches out many forms to suit the wind's changing directions.—St. James' Gazette.

Since the fire which destroyed the George D. Webb Company's granite plant in Worcester, Mr. Webb has been looking for a new location for his business. Now here is another chance for the citizens of Quincy to get busy and see if they cannot induce Mr. Webb to locate here. Quincy is in the heart of the granite industry and would be an excellent location for the Webb plant.

There is much of wisdom in Andrew Carnegie's declaration that congress is incapable of fixing a just tariff schedule, and that a permanent bipartisan commission of experts is the only logical solution of this vexatious problem. As Mr. Carnegie says, the average congressman is not a business man in the true sense of the word and therefore is not equipped either by training or knowledge to fairly and understandingly deal with such an abstruce proposition as the tariff.

In commenting on business conditions present and future Henry Clews says: "The prospect of an early adjustment of the tariff problem is now more remote than at any time since the movement for revision began. Already there is a sharp conflict with powerful interests that spells nothing but delay. As has been aptly said "the tariff is simply a question of profit;" and this being true it follows that each interest will fight to the utmost for every advantage. Such differences cannot from their very nature be settled by any commission. Advice from all disinterested bodies will be spurned, and it is only through the test of battle on the floor of Congress that a solution will be found. Neither the politicians nor the people will surrender their say about the tariff, and there is no good reason why they should. Talk of a commission comes chiefly from those who wish to strengthen their influence in tariff making for themselves, and is politically impracticable. The Ways and Means Committee has taken a mass of testimony that may enable it to frame some measure for Congress; but Congress will as likely as not disregard its recommendations, and the present outlook is for a hot and long debate in both the House and Senate, lasting possibly into the early summer months. The settlement of the tariff, moreover, is greatly complicated by the Government's need of revenue, by the necessities of our dependencies, the Philippines, Cuba and Porto Rico, and by our reciprocity arrangements with foreign countries, the importance of which has been temporarily overshadowed. It would be extremely unfortunate if a war of tariffs should break out as a result of the burdens we place upon foreign trade. Talk of retaliation grows, and much harm might follow; for trade prospers best under freedom and not under friction."

TAKEN TO HOSPITAL.

Rosa D'Eramo Believed to Have Attempted Suicide.

The police ambulance was called to Canal street Friday afternoon to take Rosa D'Eramo to the City Hospital. According to the report given to the police Rosa had tried to end her earthly troubles with poison. Dr. Sargent, however, who was called on the case, said there was nothing criminal about it.

Rosa was quite sick when the ambulance arrived and she was taken to the City hospital.

The girl figured in a fire case in court some months ago. Later she married but her marriage was of short duration for she was divorced recently.

ELKS' BALL EVENT OF SEASON

Many Novel Features Planned By Committee in Charge.

The many friends of Quincy lodge of Elks are looking forward to Wednesday evening when the lodge will hold its third annual ball.

The ball as in other years, will be held at Music hall and will be the crowning social event of a busy season.

The committee having the ball in charge have spared no expense to make this year's affair eclipse anything ever held in Quincy. Everything has been planned on the most elaborate scale even to the minutest details.

It has been decided this year not to issue gallery tickets so that a regular ball ticket admitting a gentleman and two ladies, will be necessary.

Cuff's augmented orchestra will furnish the musical accompaniment, which is of its self a sufficient guarantee of the quality of the dance music.

Burleigh and Martin will serve a buffet lunch from 10 to 1.30 in the annex.

Daniel J. Deasey heads the general committee of arrangements and he is ably assisted by a large corps of efficient workers.

Hon. William T. Shea is the chairman of the reception committee and he will be assisted by a large committee who will look after the comfort and pleasure of the guests.

The hospitality of Quincy lodge is too well known to need any mention, and it is sufficient to say that they will endeavor to sustain their reputation at this, their third annual event.

Humor and Philosophy

By DUNCAN M. SMITH

PERT PARAGRAPHS.

It is the people who work in the dark that you need to look out for. Those in the limelight work only to themselves.

It makes us mad if our friends pity us and madder still if we hear them say that they don't.

Don't criticise. There are always plenty of other people to do it, and you can just O. K. somebody else's criticism and so escape detection.

Don't be surprised to find your place filled by somebody else if you don't keep it permeated by your own corporosity.

People who are going to the devil seldom have any use for a return ticket.

The difference between being a schemer and a dreamer is practically all in favor of the former.

Probably if we all did live to be a hundred years old nine-tenths of us would try our best to deny it.

The Real Ruler.

I wish I were the weather man
To say when it would snow
And whether weather would be fair
And when the winds would blow,
To touch the button and produce
A regular full blown storm,
To have it chilly if I chose
Or change around to warm.

I'd be the finest weather man
That ever raised a breeze
Or caused the peaches in the sun
To ripen on the trees.
If friends were going to the woods
To pass the time away,
I'd take a note of it and have
A made to order day.

If there should be a pretty girl
Who once had turned me down,
Who passed me with a haughty air
Or chilled me with a frown,
I think I'd order up a shower
Some sweet revenge to get
When she walked out where I might see
Her brand new hat get wet.

In winter time I think I would Select my dearest foe
Whose sidewalk ran around a block
And make him shovel snow.
If one who claimed to be a friend
Could just make good his case,
I'd have the sunshine all the year
On four sides of his place.

—Mrs. Ann Anthony, housekeeper at the Putman hose house in South Norwalk, Conn., lately adjusted the snap harness, drove the spirited fire horses to her home and put out a fire before the department arrived. Her little son ran into the fire house and told her that their home was on fire. Just then the fire bell rang. The horses came out and took their places, but there was no one to harness and drive them, the drivers having stepped out. Mrs. Anthony had seen the men do it many times, and she was equal to the emergency.

A Treasure Lost and Gained

[Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.]

"Telegram for you, sir."

The butler handed me a telegram, which I opened and read:

Alice is very ill. Come at once.

At the bottom, instead of a name, were the words "No Signature."

I was too distressed to assign reasons as to why the telegram had been sent unsigned. Alice was a girl I loved, but from whom I had received no encouragement. Indeed, so indifferent, so far as love was concerned, had she appeared to me that I had never enlightened her as to my real feelings. The first shock over, I began to think. Why was I sent for? The subject of the message was not known to any one to be more to me than an acquaintance. Who had taken it upon himself or herself to send for me? Had the sender wished to conceal his or her identity by not signing the message? There might be a different reason. One near to a person in a critical condition is naturally much wrought upon, and in this case the omission might have resulted from agitation.

What should I do? If I remained away after having been summoned the consequences might be distressing. Might not Alice herself have given me her heart, I not suspecting it, and directed that the message be sent, but without a signature? This supposition I dismissed at once, but it had its effect. If I should go and my summons had not been authorized, it would be very embarrassing.

I took a train at once and while on the cars examined the telegram and the envelope carefully. I saw nothing new on either except that my street and number had not been given. It must have been sent by some one who did not know my address, and this must have been learned at the telegraph office from a directory—a common method in such cases.

It occurred to me that I had better on arrival say nothing about the telegram, leaving its sending to come out from the family.

After an all night ride I reached my destination. Thinking it would be better for me not to go to the house too early, I waited till 11 o'clock. Meanwhile I had purchased some flowers. My summons at the door was answered by a trained nurse. I asked breathlessly the condition of the patient. The reply was "Better." Handing her the flowers, I asked her to give them to Miss Bond with my card and say that I had come immediately upon learning of her illness and should await anxiously further news of her condition. I took a seat in the drawing room while the nurse went upstairs. When she returned she said:

"Miss Bond sends her heartfelt thanks for the flowers and is deeply impressed by your kindly interest in coming. She is simply indisposed. Her mother is quite ill, and I am here attending upon Mrs. Bond. Miss Bond will be down soon."

I replied that I was much gratified to learn that Miss Bond was not seriously ill, as I had been informed.

In half an hour Alice came in looking somewhat pale, but by no means ill. I saw at once a pleased expression on her face, which she seemed to be trying to control. If there was not a love light in her eye and a similar token in her smile, then I was a poor interpreter. Like a flash it occurred to me that there had been some error in the telegram, but equally quick I discerned that it had been a blessing in disguise.

"How good of you to come!" she said, giving my hand a soft pressure. "I never dreamed that you took so much interest in me."

"But you know now."

"How in the world did you learn that I was not well?"

"There was a mistake. I was informed that you were quite ill."

"Who informed you?"

"Never mind that now. It is enough that I am here and find you in no danger."

"But—but why did you come, anyway?"

"I have no doubt that to you it seems strange. When I received the—tele—intelligence I thought you might be dying."

"How sweet of you! But would you have gone so far had you supposed the same of another of your girl friends?"

"I would not."

There was a pause, and I feared that she would get back to that telegram. It had served a purpose I did not wish it to undo, so I said:

"This day began the most miserable of my life. It is now the happiest."

"Why?" The word was spoken so softly that I could hardly hear it.

A direct reply would have been, "Because of a telegram I received that was either sent by some unauthorized person or was intended for another." Instead of this I said:

"Because I love you."

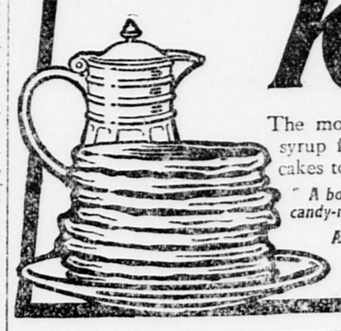

I would not tell her about the message, not even during our engagement. Indeed, I have not told her since our marriage. When I returned on the train I read of a supreme court decision against a giant industrial concern issued at the very hour and minute of my telegram. A long while afterward by sheer luck I met a lawyer who was in the courtroom when the decision was read and who sent that telegram as a cipher order to one of my name to sell 5,000 shares of the stock of the concern. My getting the message cost the sender $30,000. It gave me an infinite treasure.

BASKET BALL.

High School Team Loses to Concord School by Score of 23 to 17.

The Quincy High five fell before the quintet from the Concord school yesterday afternoon at the local gym, the score being 23 to 17. Concord has a fast team having lost only two games this season. They showed some good team work at times, but if the locals had played their usual game, the score might have been reversed.

The game was close and fast throughout and was in doubt up to the last few minutes of play, when the visitors managed to get away and score two goals in succession which put them in lead.

Quincy took the lead at the start, "Billy," Manning caging the ball after some clever team work down the floor. Matthews tied the score at once on a beautiful running one hand shot. Each side got four more baskets during this period and score stood 10 to 10 at the end of the half.

The second half was equally close and every inch of ground was fought for by both teams. Matthews and Armstrong excelled for Concord school and Manning and Howe carreid off the honors for Quincy. The summary:

CONCORD SCHOOL	QUINCY H. S.
Spencer, rf	lb, Marsh
Baker, lf	rb, Bates
Armstrong, c	c, Prout
Banks, rb	lf, Manning
Matthews, lb	rf, Howe

Score, Concord School 23, Quincy H. S. 17. Goals from floor, Spencer, Armstrong 3, Banks, Matthews 5, Prout, Manning 4, Howe 2. Goals from fouls, Manning 3. Armstrong 3. Referee, Tupper. Scorer, Gore. Umpire, French. Timer, Ricker. Time 15m periods. Attendance 250.

—The desire for industrial education in this country is growing. It is rapidly coming to be the belief of many people that in training young people for only collegiate courses, the schools are losing sight of the fact that a majority of these young people do not go to college, and those who do not are poorly equipped for a life work by the narrow collegiate course that now seems to be the rule. Our educational system should be broad enough to fit all classes of young people for their life work.—Gloucester Times.

—Bananas are, as a rule, planted out systematically in rows, the "suckers" being placed at an average of 10 feet apart. The banana plant bears only one bunch at a time, but it is a quick grower, yielding its fruit in 12 to 14 months. When the plant is about six months old a second "sucker" or shoot, is allowed to spring from the root, a third after the ninth month, and so on, so that after the first year there is a continuous crop being reaped.

NORFOLK, ss. PROBATE COURT.

TO the heirs-at-law, next-of-kin, and all other persons interested in the estate of late of Quincy, in said County, deceased:

Whereas, a certain instrument purporting to be the last will and testament of said deceased has been presented to said Court for Probate, by Ann L. Marsh of Quincy, who prays that letters testamentary may be issued to her, the executrix therein named, without giving a surety on her official bond.

You are hereby cited to appear at a Probate Court to be held at Dedham, in said County of Norfolk, on the third day of March, A. D. 1909, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why the same should not be granted.

And said petitioner is hereby directed to give public notice thereof by publishing this citation, once in each week, for three successive weeks, in the Quincy Daily Ledger, a newspaper published in said Quincy, the last publication to be one day at least before said Court, and by mailing, post-paid, or delivering a copy of this citation to all known persons interested in the estate seven days at least before said Court.

Witness, JAMES H. FLINT, Esquire, Judge of said Court, this tenth day of February, in the year one thousand nine hundred and nine.

The Observations In the Daily Walk

Stanley C. Sherman of Amherst college is convalescent and returns from the hospital to his home in Quincy today for a period of rest and recuperation.

A special meeting of the National Sportsmans club of West Quincy was held Thursday evening. The meeting was called by the executive committee to act on important business matters.

The Managers of Public Burial Places met Friday evening and organized with Albert W. Fay as chairman and W. W. Mitchell as clerk. James Nicol was elected superintendent of Mt. Wollaston cemetery.

Tuesday evening W. R. C. 103 entertained 100 guest at supper. After which Mrs. Agnes Fletcher, corps president, presented Commander Philips of Post 88 with a cake and $11.00. The frosting on the cake represented the flag and was very handsome. It was made and given by Mrs. Alice Smith. Whist was played in charge of Mrs. Car men and souvenirs won by Mrs. Holt, Mrs. Hayden, Mrs. Fletcher, Frank Smith, W. A. Hayden and S. Macleod.

It would be hard to find a more attractive circular than that issued this week by the Quincy Choral society. The frontis piece is an artistic half-tone of Mr. Willard Flint the well known bass-baritone who will sing the part of Elijah, the reading matter is interesting and well compiled and the clear type a fine specimen of modern press work.

WEYMOUTH

The members of the newly organized Union Social club composed of business men of the town sat down to one of Captain Andrew F. Burrell's famous oyster suppers at the club rooms Thursday evening. Speech-making followed the banquet.

Dr. Oliver G. Tinkham attended the annual banquet of the Boston City hospital alumni at the Hotel Somerset, Boston, Thursday evening.

William M. Jordan is confined to the house by illness.

Mr. and Mrs. Hadley Worthen of Bristol, N. H., have been spending their honeymoon with Mr. and Mrs. Albert P. Worthen.

The annual reception of Miss Merritt's juvenile class in dancing was held at Odd Fellows hall last Friday evening.

He was well well known among the wool merchants ,and at the time of his death was associated with a Boston firm as inspector of wool. He leaves a son Fred Mann, a daughter Mrs. M. A. Miles of Wilkesbarre, Pa., and is also survived by his mother who is in her 90th year. He was a member of South Shore commandery Knights Templars of Weymouth. The funeral will be held Monday afternoon and the interment will be in the family lot at Waipole.

Exercises appropriate to the 100th anniversary of the birth of Abraham Lincoln were held in all the schools in town Friday and at the Town hall a public meeting was held under the auspices of the board of Selectmen and Reynolds Post 58, G. A. R. The exercises included an address by Hon. Robert Luce of Somerville. —What the automobile industry means to this country is shown by the statement that one firm alone has orders for cars worth $22,000,000. All this money means that economies will be put into effect in other articles of luxury. Many dealers whose trade is principally with the richer class, and of articles which are luxuries instead of necessities are complaining that the craze for automobiles is seriously affecting their trade, for to the man with a good sized income the auto is the one thing most desired, and for its purchase other things will be dispensed with.

—The bill in congress to compel the extension of wireless telegraphy on sea is a good example of striking while the iron is hot. Steamships carrying over 50 passengers and traveling a route 500 miles or more long must carry the outfit, and all foreign ships will be denied admission to American ports unless similarly equipped. One effect of this legislation will be to unify the systems in use, so that they will be of greater value in case of emergency.—Old Colony Memorial.

BETHANY CHURCH CROWDED TO DOORS

Special Evangelistic Services Planned for Sunday.

Between five and six hundred people met at Bethany church Friday for the final meeting of the week. While the patriotic side of the subject was spoken of the main purpose was again to lead the audience to decide for Christ. Dr. Weddell's subject was "I believe God" and proved one of the best discourses he has given.

Several young men made the decision at the social conference meeting held immediately at the close of the main service. Dr. Weddell spoke to boys at the Y. M. C. A. this morning at nine o'clock.

The Sunday services will be strong and attractive. At 3.30 o'clock there will be a mass meeting for men in Music hall addressed by Dr. Weddell. Mr. Briggs will sing and will direct a male chorus assisted by the Y. M. C. A. orchestra. This meeting will be an innovation and will be well worth attending.

The evening service will be in Bethany church at 7.30, the indications are that those who want seats will have to go early, the overflow meeting of last Sunday night will probably have to be repeated.

STORIES FROM "EX-CONVICTS"

Basis of Panama "Libel," According to Lovering

MAKES A DRAMATIC SPEECH

Says That Rainey Has Been Made a Victim of Blackmailers or Is Too Willing to Asperse Fair Names—Promises Arrests and Sensations Soon to Come and Says Evidence Is Complete and Sufficient to Convict

Washington, Feb. 13.—That Representative Rainey (Ills.) got from the New York World his information regarding Panama canal affairs, which formed the subject of his recent speech, and that ex-convicts invented the stories of fraud and corruption pertaining to the acquirement of title by the United States to the property, was the charge made in the house of representatives by Mr. Lovering (Mass.).

"Maybe," he said, "The World did not originate all the scandalous stories it published, but columns were published and we do not know that The World did give credence and circulation to them".

Mr. Lovering declared that "the perpetrators of these false statements are known and the story of their doings reveals a chapter in the history of blackmailing that is rare in the annals of crime. These gentlemen," he said, "are known. Their names are known; their aliases are known; their haunts are known and their plans are known."

"Does the gentleman object to stating who they are?" inquired Mr. Burleson (Tex.).

Mr. Lovering was pressed by Mr. Shackleford (Mo.) for information as to who the ex-convicts were, but he would go no further than to say that that before long they would be produced in court. Their names, he said, had been brought before the grand jury, both at Washington and at New York, and at the proper time they would be known to the general public.

"How did you happen to be familiar with the secrets of the grand jury?" Shackleford asked, but before he could answer Mr. Gaines (Tenn.) inquired if he was not a warm personal friend of William N. Cromwell. Lovering admitted that he was. Responding to questions, Lovering said that personally he was not a client of Cromwell, but he was a member of a corporation that had retained his services.

Referring to Rainey, Lovering said: "This gentleman has been made a victim or he is too willing to asperse such fair names as those of Charles P. Taft, Douglas Robinson, William N. Cromwell, Roger Farnham and several others." It was a "shameless prostitution" of the privilege of free speech which members enjoyed on the floor of the house, he said.

Mr. Lovering declared that the evidence was complete and sufficient "to convict the blackmailers who have tried to work their game not only on the gentlemen I have named, but on both politcal parties."

Last fall, he said, an effort was made to sell the stories to the Democratic campaign committee and certain leaders of that party took them then under consideration, but that they were not used because they could not be substantiated. He charged that for nearly two years prior to that time "these same men had been pursuing Cromwell with the expectation that he would pay them a large sum of money, varying from $5000 to $25,000. They thought he would pay to have these stories suppressed."

Mr. Lovering declared that those persons were always met by Cromwell with an indignant refusal "and the reply that they might do what they pleased with their stories, for they were nothing but lies." These same persons, he said, finding that Cromwell was deeply interested in Mr. Taft's campaign, thought he would submit to pay something rather than have any publicity at that moment. They told him, Lovering asserted, even though there be no truth in this story, buy and bury it."

It was at this time, he said, when they had failed in all their demands upon Cromwell, that they took their nefarious wares to Chairman Mack of the Democratic national committee and offered them for sale for campaign purposes.

While they were not accepted, he said, members of the Democratic party entered into an agreement with Rainey "to exploit the subject on the floor of the hause."

Mr. Lovering could not say whether The World paid for the stories and he said that whether the gentleman from Illinois "got his information from the New York World or directly from these blackmailers does not matter."

Mrs. Longworth Assisted

Grand Rapids, Mich., Feb. 13.—With the rites of the Masonic ceremony, the cornerstone of the new federal building here was laid. Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth, daughter of the president, handed the silver trowel to Grand Master Montague, who conducted the ritualistic service, assisted by the other members of the grand lodge of Michigan.

The Message on His Watch.

In "Memories of Eight Parliaments" Mr. Lucy, the author, tells a story about Mr. Pyne, member for West Waterford, who, when under the crimes act a warrant was issued for his arrest in 1887, shut himself up in his Irish home, Lisfarney castle, had the trenches filled with water, the drawbridge up, took in supplies by a window in the battlements and thus lived for months, while he poked fun at the policemen who were wandering about below with the warrant in their pockets.

"The originality of Mr. Pyne's mind," continues Mr. Lucy, "was further indicated upon his watch. On its dial he had roughly engraved 'Pay no rent.' Whenever in troubled times any of his neighbors came to him for advice as to what they should do in the presence of a demand for rent, Mr. Pyne solemnly shook his head. 'I cannot,' he said, 'express my views on the subject, for Mr. Balfour says they are illegal. But I'll tell you what I'll do. I'll show you what time of day it is,' and, holding out his watch, the perturbed tenant read upon it the admonitory legend, 'Pay no rent.'"

Laws Against Beggars.

Begging was a capital offense in England in the days of Henry VIII., when the laws were very severe against beggars, and under a statute passed in that reign any one caught begging for the first time, being neither aged nor infirm, was whipped at the cart's tail. If caught a second time his ear was slit or bored through with a hot iron. If caught a third time he suffered death as a felon unless some honest person having £10 in goods or 40 shillings in land or some householder approved by the justices would take the offender into his service for two years, entering into a bond of £10. So the law of England remained for sixty years. First enacted by Henry VIII., it continued unrepealed through the reigns of Edward and Mary. Reconsidered under Elizabeth, the same law was again formally passed, the two legislative houses thereby expressing their conviction that it was better for a man not to live at all than to live the life of a beggar.

Tainted Diamonds.

The lapidary was about to cut the tail off a tadpole shaped yellow diamond.

"The chances are," he said, "that this fellow will turn white from terror when I split him. If he does his value will go up 200 per cent."

The lapidary set his steel knife in position. He prepared to strike on the knife's back the momentous blow.

"Wish me luck," he said.

And the hammer fell, the amputated tail dropped into the box underneath, and, lo, the yellow diamond that had been split was now quite white.

"The yellow taint," the cutter explained, "was only in the tail. Yet the taint was reflected all through the stone, and this made it seem of a uniform yellow throughout. Now the taint is gone, and our yellow diamond is a pure white one.

"The miracle happens fairly often."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Epigrams of an Indian.

Chief Joseph of the Nez Perces was a truly remarkable Indian. He rarely spoke, but when he did his lips dropped wisdom. Here are a few of the sayings attributed to him:

"Look twice at a two faced man."

"Cursed be the hand that scalps the reputation of the dead."

"The eye tells what the tongue would hide."

"Fire water courage ends in trembling fear."

"Big name often stands on small legs."

"Finest fur may cover toughest meat."

"When you get the last word with an echo you may do so with a squaw."

Fish, Chicken and Veal.

Raw pullet, raw veal and raw fish make the graveyard fat. This is hundreds of years old. A New York caterer (perhaps the most efficient in the city) said to me: "There are three important articles of food that must under no circumstances be served underdone. They are fish, chicken and veal. By chicken I mean all poultry of a domestic nature. All game birds should be rare. You want to be a little careful about lamb too. Give it plenty of cooking."—New York Press.

Buttermilk.

"Which is the cow that gives the buttermilk?" innocently asked the young lady from the city, who was inspecting the herd with a critical eye.

"Don't make yourself ridiculous," said the young lady who had been in the country before and knew a thing or two. "Goats give buttermilk."—Springfield Journal.

Few and Far Between.

"If men really would 'vote as they pray,'" remarked Goodley, "this would truly be a happy world."

"Yes," replied Wise, "but in that case you wouldn't get some men to the polls once in ten years."—Washington Star.

Must Be Stylish.

"Why do you wear that ridiculous hat?" he growled.

"Do you really think it ridiculous?" she replied graciously. "How lovely of you! I was afraid it wasn't quite the style!"—Philadelphia Ledger.

Permanent Receiver.

Patience—I hear Will is going to marry that girl he's been spending so much money on. Patrice—Yes. He's going to make her a permanent receiver.—Yonkers Statesman.

Revenge a wrong by forgiving it.—French Proverb.

STATE HOUSE LETTER.

Boston, Feb. 10, 1909.

Berkshire county's unanimous protest against preventing the consolidation of the New Haven railroad company with the Berkshire street railway company has had its effect upon the antimerger element in the great struggle. This is seen in the action by the state board of trade yesterday at its regular monthly meeting. There has been on the committee one of the most pronounced opponents of merger of any sort, one who saw in the Berkshire proposition an entering wedge which might split the antimerger side into two factions, if the dangerous precedent were permitted. There has been before the board for months a motion "that the president shall designate or appoint a committee which shall be authorized and requested to oppose legislation or attempts to secure legsilation permitting a railroad company to acquire or secure control of a street railway company organized under the laws of the commonwealth." This has been postponed repeatedly because the opposnig sides were not ready to act upon it. Yesterday the board took up the matter and went on record as opposed to the consolidation of steam and street roads as a general principle, but they added this proviso: "But particular instances may arise when such close relations may be legislative act properly be permitted." That concedes the exceptional character of the Berkshire proposition and thus opens the door for the passage of the bills which are pending for consolidation west of the Connecticut river.

Though the Senate killed the House bill for the celebration of Lincoln's day by making it a legal holiday, yet it was not because of any lack of appreciation of the services and character of Lincoln, but rather due to a desire to have the day fitly celebrated where it would do the most good. Remonstrances aganist making the day a legal holiday were received from public school teachers all over the state. They had prepared school celebration programs for the day, and these would have to be abandoned if the day were made a legal holiday, for then no sessions of the schools would be held. This, considering the effect to be produced upon the children by the celebrations, was a material consideration. Added to this was the feeling that none of our holidays, with the exception of July 4, are celebrated in the spirit of the day. This is particularly true of Memorial day, which has degenerated into a day of sports, in the main, and Patriots' day, which is given up to base ball and house hunting. If there is any sincere purpose to celebrate Lincoln's centenary by orations, such orations can be delivered in the evening, as well as in the day time, and still the public schools be in session. There has never been any doubt that Massachusetts would honor Lincoln finely, and even Gov. Draper's proclamation was not necessary for that purpose.

One of the members of the House, speaking of the constant bombardment of the members by circulars from the woman suffrage petitioners, says that probably not a man is favorably affected by this nagging policy, but that some who would otherwise have been disposed to favor the proposition are turned against it. It is still reported that the women are preparing to make an unprecedented demonstration on February 23, the day of the hearing on the petition of Mrs. Julia Ward Howe and others for an amendment to the constitution to strike out the word "male" when it occurs as a qualification for the suffrage. Of course the presence of 1,000 women in procession, with or without banners, jamming into the committee room, would make a deep impression of some sort upon the beholders, but it does not yet appear that the British suffragette methods are likely to be popular in Massachusetts or make any votes for the cause in the Massachusetts legislature.

Today the committee on agriculture has paid particular attention to forest fires and State Forester Rane has been telling how he has tried with the railroad authorities to agree upon some method whereby the railroads shall pay the cost of the destruction they cause, and it is demonstrated, by the investigations of the forester, that sparks from engines cause many of the forest fires. He said that, after much negotiation, he got a statement that they were willing to pay for the damage they caused. He further said that the smoking practice on the three rear seats of trolley cars, as they pass through country districts, is the cause of forest fires. Something must be done to prevent this. Evidently smokers, whether engines or men, must be put under farther restriction for the protection of the property of the country people.

Somebody, who thinks he knows, says that Gov. Draper is taking hold with a strong hand of the New Haven railroad situation and is making it very clear to President Mellen that the state laws must be obeyed. But at the same time that such a forceful statement is made, the further information is given that some way out of the present complication has been arranged whereby the New Haven will be able to avoid any loss and, it would seem, still control the situation. Evidently the public must wait for the facts before it can get any fair idea of what the state authorities are doing. It has been evident from the start that Attorney General Malone has been vigorous in pushing the New Haven road as far as the law gave warrant for so doing ,and that the road must conform to the law as far as the state has power to enforce it.

This afternoon there appeared further evidence, in the eyes of one of the best observers of the state house, of the combination which has been made by dissatisfied members to cause friction for the Walker administrtion. Some of the members who were given important committee positions by Speaker Cole last year and year before have been given other positions by Speaker Walker, not as prominent. Naturally these displaced members are sore and would like to make it hard for the speaker who displaced them and for the men who succeeded them. There has been a defeat of commtitees and this afternoon there was a disposition to attack, but it is evident that such hostility can accomplish little or nothing, and that the impartial members of the House will sit down hard upon the sore-heads whenever they propose an unfair measure or try unfair tactics. Speaker Walker commands the respect of all the members, and he was a most loyal supporter of Speaker Cole's administration all three years, though he himself came very near being elected Speaker when Cole finally secured the office.

Tomorrow there will be a meeting in the office of the state board of agriculture for the purpose of forming a state poultry association. This shows the new activity in the field, which is of special interest in Worcester county, for it was from Senator Birch of Milford that the bill came for an annual appropriation of $1,000 in August to the state board of agriculture, to be paid by the board during September as premium bounties to poultry breeding associations. Worcester breeders appeared at the hearing and said that they had lost money at each of their last three annual exhibitions and that they would not be able to go on unless they got money from the state treasury. Secretary Ellsworth of the state board said that the board was ready to support the proposition. But he has had an adverse report presented upon his petition for a state inspector of bees for the purpose of preventing destructive diseases. Quite a plausible showing was made for the bee industry, and Clark college professors were a material part of it, but they could not convince the committee that this was the best use of the money of the taxpayers. THE POMMERN'S LONG JOURNEY

Sails Through Air From North Adams to Standish, Me.

RECORD FOR NEW ENGLAND

Gas Bag Has Capacity of 85,000 Feet and Is Largest Ever Sent Up In This Part of the Country—Carried Six Passengers and Covered Approximately 175 Miles In an Air Line, Landing Because of Darkness

Portland, Me., Feb. 13.—The longest journey ever made by a balloon from a New England point was completed last night when the big Pommern, carrying six passengers, came to earth in the town of Standish, after a flight of approximately 175 miles in an air line from North Adams, Mass.

The Pommern is the balloon which won the international race from St. Louis in 1907 when it carried Oscar Erbsloeh of Germany and H. H. Clayton of Boston close to the Atlantic coast at New Jersey. It has a capacity of 85,000 cubic feet and in addition to being the largest balloon ever sent up in New England, has also the distinction of making the first ascension in New England this year.

In the car were Dr. Julian P. Thomas of New York, the owner of the balloon; Dr. Thomas' son, Odin; Wilbur R. Kimball, Dr. William Greene, Henry Meixner and A. L. Stevens, the latter acting as pilot. They left North Adams at 12:05 yesterday afternoon and did not descend until darkness made it necessary. At 6:30, when they were about 3000 feet in the air, traveling slowly before the light southwest wind which prevailed all the afternoon, they could see the lights of this city distinctly and but for the darkness would have made an effort to reach here.

Dr. Thomas and Stevens thought it better to descend at once, and they made the landing easily and safely in a field one mile from the village of Standish Centre, which borders Sebago lake.

The progress of the balloon from North Adams across the states of Vermont and New Hampshire was reported from many points during the day, the clear air making it easily visible. It took a northeasterly direction at the start, passing over Brattleboro, Vt., and Keene, Hillsboro and Concord, N. H., after which a change in the air current sent it in a more easterly direction to Rochester, N. H. The balloon passed over Rochester so near the earth that the name on the gas bag could be read plainly. From there another shift of the wind carried it again northeasterly across York county, Me., until the landing was made.

The distance covered exceeds by forty miles the longest journey ever previously made by a balloon in New England. The former record was a distance of 135 miles.

RELIEF FOR REFUGEES

Distributed by Americans Under Difficulties In Earthquake District

Gerace, Italy, Feb. 13.—Nelson Gay of Boston and Earl Dodge, secretary to Ambassador Griscom, who are engaged in distributing American relief to the earthquake sufferers, have arrived here.

They met with terrible weather conditions, and found the roads almost impassable from snow heaps and ice left by landslides. However, they were enabled to distribute succor to seven villages.

They slept here last night in a freight car and proceeded today.

BEATS WHITEHEAD MACHINE

Powerful Torpedo Invented by a Frenchman Successfully Launched

Chalons, France, Feb. 13.—A wireless torpedo, invented by an engineer named Gabet, was successfully launched on the river outside of the Cruesot works.

The torpedo is said to be ten times more powerful than the Whitehead machine. It measures 30 feet in length, weighs 8000 pounds and carries a charge of explosive weighing 1800 pounds.

No Bail For C. W. Morse

New York, Feb. 13.—Charles W. Morse, the financier, will not be admitted to bail pending a hearing on his appeal from his conviction of violating the national bank laws, under a decision given by the United States court of appeals. The court denied his application to be released on bail.

Founded Piano Company

Boston, Feb. 13.—James N. Thompson, a leading real estate dealer, died at his home in Brighton. He was the founder of the Ivers & Pond Piano company, and one of the early developers of Pennsylvania oil fields. He was born in Ellsworth, Me., 70 years ago.

The way some men run for office it almost seems as if the office were running, too, and keeping a good bit ahead of them all the time.

IN SHADOW OF PYRAMIDS

Representatives of Many Countries to Run Marathon Race Today

Cairo, Egypt, Feb. 13.—Marathon racing, the latest sporting craze of the modern world, has reached this ancient land, and the first Marathon race ever run here is to be contested in the shadow of the pyramids today.

Among the runners who will take part in the race are representatives of the United States, England, Germany, France, Austria, Italy, Greece and Russia, as well as representatives of the British army of occupation and of the native army. Winter tourists are exhibiting great interest in the race, and crowds composed of persons of many nationalities will see the contest.

BUT TEN MEN FINISHED

James Clark Comes In First In Marathon Run at Xavier Club

New York, Feb. 13.—Out of a field of 154 starters, James Clark, of the Xavier Athletic club of this city, won a Marathon race, which began in the armory of the Thirteenth regiment, Brooklyn, and finished there after the runners had gone to Sea Gate, Coney Island, where the turning point was staked. The winner's time was 2:46:52 3-5.

About 7000 persons saw the start and finish of the contest in the armory and a holiday crowd of thousands of spectators lined the entire course. Ten men out of the 154 starters negotiated the full course.

EXPLORER RADFORD'S JOURNEY BEGUN

Plans Long Trip Through Northern Canada and Alaska

New York, Feb. 13.—Harry V. Radford, the young explorer, started last night on his long journey to the Arctic regions of the Pacific by leaving for Montreal. On his trip he will touch at the East Cape of Asia, but for the most part he contemplates exploring northern Canada and Alaska.

From Edmonton, Alberta, Canada, he will travel to Nome, Alaska, a distance of about 6000 miles, on snowshoes, dogsleds being used to carry his stores. His sole companions on this journey will be Indians and Eskimo guides.

QUICKLY PUT TO SLEEP

One Round Enough For Burke to Put a Quietus on McSherry

New York, Feb. 13.—James McSherry, former boxing instructor at Yale university, made his professional debut in the prize ring last night in what was scheduled to have been a ten-round bout with Sailor Burke, a light-heavy-weight.

McSherry was knocked out in the first round and his condition caused alarm. Both men exchanged body blows when the bell rang and Burke quickly crossed his right, dropping McSherry to the floor.

McSherry rose at the count of seven and was then knocked out with a left hook to the jaw. He was unconscious for some time.

DE ORO STILL CHAMPION

Defeats Lean at Three Cushion Billiards and Is Challenged

New York, Feb. 13.—In the final game of a three nights' match at three cushion carom billiards Alfred DeOro, the world's champion, successfully defended his title against Horace B. Lean. The total score of the contest was, DeOro 150, Lean 103.

Lean was not satisfied at the result and immediately challenged DeOro for another match for $500 a side under the same conditions. The games will be played in Boston on March 1, 2 and 3.

Naval Station Quarantined

Newport, R. I., Feb. 13.—George E. Neuse, an apprentice seaman at the naval training station, died last night of scarlet fever. Neuse was one of six apprentices whose illness with the fever led to the institution of a quarantine of 2100 apprentices and enlisted men at the training station.

Tired of Fighting Politicians

Chicago, Feb. 13.—E. G. Cooley has resigned as superintendent of the Chicago public schools. An intimation of his intention to withdraw from the Chicago schools was made by Cooley several days ago, when he declared that he was tired of fightnig politicians.

Sang on the Gallows

Marion, Ark., Feb. 13.—P. G. Nichols, convicted of the murder of Edward Smith, 15 years old, while shooting at the boy's father, was hanged here. Nichols sang a song and offered prayer for his enemies on the gallows.

The House of Lords Veto

Plymouth, Eng., Feb. 13.—Mr. Pease, the chief Liberal whip in the house of commons, in a speech here, announced that the government would soon appeal to the country for a mandate to abolish the veto of the house of lords.

Cubans Want a Lottery

Havana, Feb. 13.—A bill has been introduced in the senate to annul the order of the American military authorities abolishing the lottery.

What DO YOU DO for Quincy?

A New Aid Fable.

This is not a George Ade fable, though it may sling some slang. It is a Home Aid fable.

Once there was a Geezer, who sat around and cut Kindling too small for Cook Stove purposes. He Whittled against Time and Flabbergasted against his Town. The town was No Good, he said—strictly on the Blink. Yes, it was N. G. Why, hadn't he lived Here since '84 and found that the Place was Punky? Sure, Mike!

Look at that town over in the next County. Grown like Jonah's Gourd. Must be a Jonah here. We've grown some, but I don't see that we're knocking any particularly Big Persimmons. That's the way this Gazaboo knocked his town.

One day a Sarcastic Stranger floated into the Town that was Knocked from the burg that had Blossomed like Jonah's Gourd. He Heard some of the Flabbergasting and Dropped to the situation.

"Look here, you," he remarked to the citizen who was Handing Out the Knocks. "What do you do for this town? Are you doing your part to put this Burg on the Upgrade? What's that hefty Bunch of literature sticking out of your Clothes?"

"That's a Mail Order Catalogue from Chicago—a town that is a town," replied the Geezer.

"So I thought," said the Impertinent Arrival. "Now let me hand you out a nice little Wad of common sense. For the past ten years you have been sending your money to the Chicago Mail Order houses instead of spending it among your home merchants. What would have happened to Chicago fifty years ago if all the First Settlers had shipped their Loose Coin to New York on catalogue inducements? Why, you'd have to use a sand dredger now to find the Original Site of Chicago. Now, in the Burg from which I have just Blown in we got over all this Bum Business years ago. We passed Resolutions that we would trade at Home and help our own town to Spread out so that you could Sight it on the map without using Opera Glasses. But you and a Bunch of other folks in this town have wasted your Substance in Riotous Expenditures in Chicago by mail and let the sheriff hang out the 'Nothing Doing' sign in front of some of your own town's mercantile Emporiums. Look at our Town and then look at yours. What makes the Difference?"

Whereupon the Whittling Gazaboo threw a few well chosen Thoughts into his mental makeup and went down to the village store to Annex a linen collar in place of the Paper Circles which he had bought from Chicago at Two Bits a Box.

MORAL: If you want your town to grow, patronize home enterprises.

Now that YOU KNOW the Difference

Woman's World

IDOL OF THE NATION.

The Queen of Italy's Devoted Service Appreciated by Her Subjects.

The frightful woe wrought in Italy by the earthquake that destroyed Messina and Reggio has had one slight ray of consolation for the queen of the devastated realm. Her heroic conduct in the midst of the horrors of the first few days, the bravery with which she nursed the suffering, keeping so close to the danger zone that she was actually injured in a belated shock that came a week after the main upheaval, have made the beautiful queen the idol of Italy.

This is a place in the affections of the people that had never before been granted in full measure.

Queen Helene had to suffer to some slight extent for the enormous popularity of her mother-in-law, Queen Margherita.

Margherita is Italian, and Helene is not an Italian. She is a daughter of the Prince of Montenegro. She had no Italian sympathies at the time the crown prince went a-wooing. In fact, all her inclinations were in favor of Russia, the czarina of which nation she just missed becoming.

At first the substitution of the throne of Italy for that which she had lost did not afford full consolation. For one thing, the king of Italy is frail in health, and it was feared that the union might never be blessed by an heir who could succeed to the throne.

The coming of the heir was the first point that inclined the people toward regard for their new sovereign.

Her beauty had some influence on the impressionable Tuscans, for no one could discount that. It is said by many that she is the handsomest woman of royal birth in Europe. Her face is beautiful and her figure superb.

Italians liked to know that at every gathering of royalty there stood none to dispute in point of beauty with their own haughty and handsome queen.

But it began to be discovered that there was more to the queen than her physical charms. Gradually she began to evince a mentality that ought not to have been a matter for surprise, considering that she springs from the heroic stock of Montenegro, that little principality that has not hesitated to boldly defy with force of arms on more than one occasion the power of the Turk.

The queen gradually developed an understanding of the Italian nature. She became proud of the art traditions of the country and of the heroic deeds of Garibaldi, Cavour and the other giants who had brought about the independence of Italy.

She appealed to the ladies of her court to be patriotic even to the extent of declining to take their fashions from Paris, but of adapting Italian ideas to their costumes in order not only to obtain more beautiful effects, but to promote nationalism.

Moreover, in her home life she has demonstrated a simplicity that appealed very strongly to the people. She who at court has a bearing unapproached by any sovereign of Europe declined to live in the stately palace at the Quirinal, but persuaded her royal spouse to take his residence in the small palace at the bottom of the garden, built by Pope Corsini and set apart during the live of Victor Emmanuel II. and Humbert for princes visiting Rome.

It is of modest dimensions, but it is pleasant and comfortable, and is fitted out with refined simplicity quite in the English style.

The queen enjoys the admiring devotion of her husband, and by preference they nearly always dine alone, their merry laughter heard by those in the next room showing the happiness they get out of their quiet life.

Ways of Womankind.

At a club meeting a few days ago there was much discussion of the efficacy of "classical education." And when the subject had been argued pro and con for some time, its value considered from all possible viewpoints, a professor from the University of Pennsylvania contributed to the debate a somewhat startling statement. He said that a classical education was worth

BETTER THAN SPANKING.

Spanking does not cure children of bed-wetting. There is a constitutional cause for this trouble. Mrs. M. Summers, Box W, Notre Dame, Ind., will send free to any mother her successful home treatment, with full instructions. Send no money, but write her today if your children trouble you in this way. Don't blame the child, the chances are it can't help it. This treatment also cures adults and aged people troubled with urine difficulties by day or night.

THE
Young Men's Christian Association OF QUINCY, MASS.
(Legal Title Incorporated 1892.)

The Directors of the YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION of Quincy, with a firm faith in the great value of the work which is being done for the young men and boys of our city, make this appeal for donations and bequests toward paying the mortgage indebtedness on the new Association Building. When the building is free from debt it will serve as an Endowment, as there is a goodly income from the dormitories.

Should the Donor prefer, such sum as might be given could be used as an Endowment for an educational class or classes, the Boys Department, or as a special fund in other ways, and could be designated with the name of the Donor.

The Treasurer, WILLIAM F. CUMMINGS, 7 Clive Street, Quincy, or the General Secretary, ERNEST G. GAY, will be happy to answer inquiries

OUR HOSPITAL

(Legal Title: City Hospital of Quincy)
INCORPORATED 1889

The Trustees of the City Hospital of Quincy earnestly appeal for donations and bequests for the Endowment fund. This now amounts to over $60,000 but a fund of at least $100,000 is urgently needed

Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000) will endow a Free Bed to which such name may be given as the Donor may desire, but any sum for this noble institution which stands ready to serve us all in the hour of need, will be most gratefully received.

The Secretary, TIMOTHY REED, Adams St Quincy, or the Treasurer, RICHARD D CHASE Savings Bank Building, Quincy, will be very glad to confer with any one or to answer any inquiries.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

DAY NURSERY TO BENEFIT

Valentine Dance Social and Financial Success.

Beautifully gowned ladies and entrancing music served to make the valentine party at Music hall, Friday evening one of the prettiest of the many dancing parties of the season.

It was a party that called out the younger set, who predominated, Wollaston and Atlantic being largely represented.

Many faces usually familiar at these parties were missed, their absence being due to the recent death of one of the most popular young matrons of the city proper. For this reason the attendance was much smaller than it would otherwise have been.

Pool's orchestra played and their music on this occasion was particularly good.

The matrons were Mrs. Arthur Sibley, Mrs. Russell A. Sears and Mrs. Charles M. Bryant. They received in a cosy corner at the right of the platform.

Messrs. Dexter E. Wadsworth, Morton W. Swallow, Charles R. Hendrie, John H. Johnson, Edward E. Jameson, George E. Pfaffmann, Franklin K. Patch, Morton F. Smith, Robert Sibley, Fred B. Kolb, Dr. W. G. Kendall, H. E. Frick and Lorenzo H. Gilson acted as ushers.

The details of the dance which was under the auspices of the Quincy Day Nursery association, were under the direction of Mrs. Edward E. Jameson of Wollaston and the Patronesses were: Mrs. Arthur Sibley, Mrs. J. H. Johnson, Mrs. Theophilus King, Mrs. Dexter E. Wadsworth, Mrs. Frank S. Davis, Mrs. Frank A. Page, Mrs. George Bennett, Mrs. H. Barker, Mrs. G. R. Safford, Mrs. W. W. Whitcher, Mrs. C. M. Bryant, Mrs. T. A. Addison, Mrs. J. A. Dasha, Mrs. Thomas Fenno, Mrs. E. W. Sheppard, Mrs. P. R. Blackmur, Miss Catherine Shea, Mrs. R. A. Sears, Mrs. C. T. Hardwick, Mrs. R. C. Drinker, Mrs. R. W. Burnett, Mrs. F. J. Peirce, Mrs. H. M. Faxon, Mrs. McLennan, Mrs. J. M. Sheahan, Mrs. N. S. Hunting, Mrs. George L. Badger and Miss McFarland.

As Usual.

"Here is an account of a couple who are going to make their honeymoon trip in a balloon."

"That will be perfectly natural."

"How so?"

"It is customary for honeymooners to come down in a few days with a bump."

Needed Making Over.

A girl in her teens
Met a man in blue jeans,
And he said to her: "Ah, there, my treasure!
May I ask you to wed?"
But the little girl said,
"Get some garments first cut to your measure."

Installment Offender.

"You are charged here with assault and battery, and I will have to fine you," said the judge severely.

"Charged, is it?" asked the prisoner cheerfully.

"Yes, charged."

"Well, charge the fine."

Cheaper Variety.

From Africa we'll get some news
And rumors quite absurd
That won't be worth to any one
A dollar bill a word.

A Word to the Wise.

The wise woman is one who when her husband comes in all out of sorts with the world lies herself to the kitchen and at once makes a noise like a good dinner cooking.

Explained.

"Why do people have so much to say against strong minded women?"

"Part of wisdom."

"Where does it come in?"

"Always best to get the start if you can."

Succumbed.

"She didn't like him at first."

"No; his face was against him."

"But she changed her mind."

"Yes; when his face was against hers."

TODAY'S COURT.

Guiseppe Romeri was fined $10 for assault on Wesley Fuller at Quincy and put under $200 bonds to keep the peace.

Antonio Carlo was arraigned for violation of the liquor law at Quincy. Case continued until Monday.

BOSTON AMUSEMENTS.

Keith's Theatre.

Eva Tanguay, who has been the sensation of the week in Boston will hold over and head another big bill at Keith's theatre. Miss Tanguay's new songs have struck the town with even greater force than those with which she has attained popularity and she is now unquestionably the strongest drawing card in vaudeville. Another headline feature on this bill will be Mary Sanders, the popular stock favorite of Boston, who has probably the largest following of any local individual player, and an excellent company made up entirely of Boston favorites. It will include Walter Walker for two years with the Boston Theatre Stock Company. Rose Morrison of the same company, and Herbert Yost, another stock favorite. They will appear in a condensed version of that famous play, "Nance Oldfield," and it is said that this strong company of players have a rich treat in store for their friends. Still another favorite is on the bill in that clever little English boy, Laddie Cliff, whose eccentric dancing carried the town by storm last summer. Other strong features make up what will be one of the very best bills of the season at this popular playhouse.

Boston Theatre.

The Boston theatre, under new management, will regain its old time greatness and start a new and more illustrious career in the amusement world on Monday night, Feb. 15th, when it will swing into line with the Auditorium in Chicago and the New Amsterdam in New York as the third of a trio of huge producing theatres in which only the most ambitious theatrical entertainments will be staged. The opening attraction under the new regime will be Cohan & Harris' Minstrels with George Evans and one hundred honey boys. Geo. M. Cohan wrote and produced this new minstrel show which has overturned all the traditions of negro minstrelsy and given the art of black face entertainment a new lease of life. It is a merry lark this reincarnation of minstrelsy and the coon-song, the rag-time melody, the breakdown, the clog dance, end men and all drive away the common foe of humanity—dull care. Mr. Cohan has written a one-act musical farce for the minstrels called "The Belle of the Barber's Ball" which riots through thirty minutes with the best song, dance and dialogue that he has yet created. It is an all-star minstrel show, with 800 seats for ($) one dolair on the ground floor.

Castle Square Theatre.

At last the end is in sight. After eight weeks and a half of success hitherto unknown either at the Castle Square or in Boston, "The Circus Girl" will next week receive its final performances. Nothing will be left undone by Mr. Craig to make these a series of gala farewells, and on Friday he will celebrate the one hundredth performance. Already the rush for seats is tremendous, and in order to avoid disappointment, those who have not seen "The Circus Girl," or who wish to see it again, should obtain their tickets as far in advance as possible. The cast will, as usual, be headed by Mr. Craig as Dick Capel, by Miss Young as Lucille, by Miss Binley as La Favorita, and by Kenneth Hill, George Hassell, Theodore Friebus, William Evarts, Donald Meek, Kate Ryan, Minnette Cleveland and Catherine Tallman in the other leading roles. At the close of the run of "The Circus Girl" on Monday, February 22d, the John Craig Stock Company will appear in a production of "The Evangelist," Henry Arthur Jones's drama of modern life which has never before been played in Boston.

Orpheum Theatre.

Things are certainly coming thick and fast at the Orpheum theatre for next week will see still another enormous bill which will rival those of the past two or three weeks in excellence. To begin with there is the inventive comedian, Ezra Kendall who is probably the most original artist on the stage. His witty sayings are familiar to everybody and those who know him realize that he never has to say the same thing twice. The long awaited Apache Dance will push Mr. Kendall very closely for head-line honors. This Apache dance should not be confused with burlesques that have appeared at different times. In cognito? a young society woman of Chicago, who through stress of circumstances, was forced to seek her livelihood on the stage, but whose pride prevented her from making known her indentity, will appear for the first time in Boston. She is a beautiful singer and shows such a charming set of teeth that there is a universal desire to have her drop the mask from the upper part of her face.

Gaiety Theatre.

The acme of perfection has about been reached in the burlesque field with the world's renowned Reilly and Woods Big Show which Messrs. Jacobs and Jermon present at the new and handsome Gaiety theatre next week. It is safe to say that in no field of theatricals have such strides been made as has been in burlesque during the past few seasons. These shows have grown bigger every year until at the present writing it is not unusual for a manager to expend $25,000 or $30,000 on a production before the curtain rises on the first night of the season. In consolidating two big shows neither time nor expense has been spared in the search for novelties and success has been attained by the management in the form of crowded houses everywhere this aggregation of talent has appeared. The entire company numbers 50, and a carload of new scenery is carried by the management. There are daily matinees at the Gaiety, with popular prices always. Ladies on shopping tours in the afternoons find this pretty theatre a delightful place to visit.

Mr. Charles Follen Adams, whose "Evening With Yawcob Strauss" has been received with so much favor on the Lecture platform at churches, colleges, clubs and various social functions has republished four of his most popular poems in individual booklets, each booklet being copiously illustrated in color and containing a half-tone portrait of the author. The publisher's price for the original edition was one dollar per set of four booklets, but as the author now controls copyright and sale, he has made the price fifty cents per set of four booklets, identical in style and binding with original one dollar edition. Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes wrote to the author regarding these poems: "I hope your genial and always welcome humor will long continue to delight the world, to which you have already contributed so much enjoyment." These sets will be sent by the author, post paid, upon receipt of price. For the convenience of single subscribers, remittance may be made in two-cent postage stamps if desired. Address all orders: Charles Follen Adams, 59 Waverly street, Roxbury, Boston, Mass.

A Tonic or a Stimulant?

Ayer's Sarsaparilla is a tonic. It does not stimulate. It does not make you feel better one day, then as bad as ever the next. There is not a drop of alcohol in it. You have the steady, even gain that comes from a strong tonic. Ask your doctor all about this. Trust him fully, and always do as he says.

J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

Social Realm

A card party is the attraction on Tuesday afternoon at the club house of the Quincy Women's club, under the auspices of the Civic committee. Many subscribers indicate an interest in the object for which the party is held—the club house grounds improvements.

* * *

On Thursday of next week the Quincy Women's club, under the auspices of the Education committee, has a social evening meeting, when the teachers of Quincy will be entertained. During the reception the club officers will receive, after which there will be a musical program by the Westland quartet and Weston's orchestra. The affair is for club members and teachers. The Civic committee is considerating an evening for men later in the season.

* * *

Mrs. Frederick J. Peirce of Hancock street is expected home today from a visit to Newburyport.

* * *

Mrs. Edwin E. Davis of Chestnut street entertained at her home on Wednesday afternoon and a delightful time was enjoyed by those attending.

* * *

Miss Rose Morrissey entertained the Willard Whist club at her home on Willard street, last evening. Whist was enjoyed until ten, souvenirs being won by Miss Elizabeth Maglott and Miss Anna Berry. While the refreshments were being served, Mr. Frank Goodhue, Jr., at the piano, rendered some very pleasing selections. Dancing completed a very pleasant evening, and a new dance given by Miss Morrissey for the first time, was very heartily applauded by the rest of the club. It was voted one of the most successful parties of the season.

AUXILIARY TO Y. M. C. A.

Mrs. George A. Brown of Everett addressed the members of the Ladies' auxiliary to the Y. M. C. A., yesterday in the association hall. It was the regular monthly meeting of the auxiliary and was largely attended.

Mrs. Brown is a very interesting speaker and when she concluded she was greeted with a round of applause. Before she spoke there was a short business meeting in which the regular routine of business was carried out.

—The Scientific American has an interesting article in its Feb. 6th issue by Edward C. Sherman, on the Improvements of the Charles River at Boston. Pictures are given of the proposed improvements, that of the Charles river dam and basin being particularly attractive.

Teddy hated the dark, and his mother was trying to cure him of his fear.

"Now, Teddy," she said as she tucked him in for the night, "you know who is always with you even in the dark."

"Well, I don't want a man, I want a woman," was his astonishing reply.—Lippincott's.

CHILDREN HAVE MERRY TIME

Valentine Dance At Music hall Draws Large Attendance

The annual children's valentine party in aid of Quincy Day Nursery was held Saturday afternoon at Music hall. It drew a large number of young people who had their fill of dancing between the hours of 2 and 5.30 o'clock. There were also many ladies present who enjoyed the pretty scene from seats arranged along the sides of the hall.

The affair was matronized by Mrs. Paul R. Blackmur, Mrs. Luther W. Glover, Mrs. R. A. Sears and Mrs. D. E. Wadsworth.

The ushers were Clarence Armstrong, Starett White, Gordon Jameson, Paul Blackmur, Kenneth Edwards, Erick Patch, Jack Pfaffmann, Kenneth Safford, Winslow Sears, Stanley Churchill, Donald Crane, Bruce Saville, Arvin Page, Kenneth Smith.

Music was furnished by Merrill's orchestra. Mrs. Clarence Burgin was in charge of the German Dancing and between the numbers there was an exhibition of fancy dancing by little Miss Barbara Johnson.

The party was arranged by Mrs. Charles M. Bryant and the patronesses were:—Mrs. Arthur Sibley, Mrs. Edward E. Jameson, Mrs. John Johnson, Mrs. Frank A. Page, Mrs. Henry M. Faxon, Mrs. George E. Pfaffmann, Mrs Clarence Burgin, Mrs. Russell A. Sears, Mrs. Eben W. Sheppard, Mrs. Theodore Hardwick, Mrs. R. C. Drinker, Mrs. F. J. Peirce, Mrs. R. W. Burnett, Mrs. T. A. RAN BLOCKADE OF BRITISH WARSHIPS

Capt. H. J. Howes Dies at Sailors' Snug Harbor.

Capt. Henry J. Howes, one of the best-known, biggest-hearted and most fearless skippers that ever comamnded a Yankee ship in the merchant marine service, died Sunday morning at the Sailors' Snug Harbor, Germantown, where he had been commander for the past three years.

On one of the last trips he made Capt. Howes performed the remarkable feat of taking the ship Sea Witch through a blockade of British warships several miles long off Delagoa bay in the Boer war. His ship was loaded with flour for the Boers, and he went through the lines at night, although every British ship was equipped with searchlights.

It was regarded as somewhat of a mystery at the time how a sailing vessel could successfully run such a blockade, and when, a few years later, a British naval officer good-naturedly asked Capt. Howes how he did it, the latter laughingly replied that he sank his ship outside the British lines and sailed under water to the wharf in Delagoa bay, where he again came to the surface. At any rate the appearance of the Sea Witch at anchor in the harbor in the morning caused consternation among the British naval officers who had charge of the blockade, and the Yankee skipper became an object of ill-feeling on the part of the officers of the British service.

Capt. Howes had been seriously sick only since last Monday, when he had to take to his bed with a severe attack of diabetes. Since Wednesday he had been unconscious most of the time and gradually awakened until the end came Sunday morning.

The news of Capt. Howes' death was learned with the deepest regret by the old sailors at the home. Every man of them idolized the captain, and though he had been with them only a short time he had endeared himself to all by his many acts of kindness, his personal interest in all, especially the aged and infirm sailors, and his strict adherence to the rules of the square deal.

Capt. Howes was born in Chatham, Mass., Jan. 23, 1836. Like most boys of the town, he was away at sea when only a youngster and learned the details of navigation so thoroughly that he was commander of a deep-sea ship at the age of 21. His first ship was the bark Vethyr and he subsequently commanded the barks Laurent, Lemuel, Harrisburg, Mary Ebson, Chattanooga and the ships Mary S. Wheitridge, Annie N. Small and the Sea Witch, which bewitched the British steel ships off Delagoa bay.

Capt. Howes retired from the sea eight years ago, after having sailed all the oceans of the world as a master mariner for 45 years, and six or seven years before the mast. Three years ago he was appointed commander of the Sailors' Snug Harbor, a home for merchant marine sailors, on the death of Capt. Jayne, and he had been a resident of this city ever sifice. Capt. Howes was a most entertaining host. Those outside of the Snug Harbor who had the good fortune to know him have spent many pleasant hours in his company. He was a man of refinement and culture, genial and whole-souled and had an inexhaustible fund of interesting stories of his trips around the world. He is survived by his wife and tow daughters, Amy, the wife of Frank Holbrook of Philadelphia, and Effie, the wife of Charles H. Gage of Boston.

Funeral services will be held at the Snug Harbor Wednesday afternoon at 1 o'clock.

BERNARD L. HART.

Bernard L. Hart, a long and well known resident of West Quincy, died suddenly Saturday night at his home, 55, Willard street. Mr. aHrt had been in Boston during the day, returning home about 5.30. Feeling tired, he lay down on the bed. Three hours later his wife found him dead.

Medical Examiner Jones who was called said his death was due to heart disease.

Mr. Hart was 66 years of age. For many years he ran an express between West Quincy and Boston, but retired some years ago.

He leaves a widow, and one daughter. One of the sons is Rev. Francis J. Hart of Canton.

ADVERTISED LETTERS.

Letters reamin in the post office Feb. 13, for Leonardo Borile, Jean Burnett, John McKenzin, Miss Annie Smith, Allin Sterling.

MASS MEETING WELL ATTENDED

Over Four Hundred Men Hear Sermon by Dr. Weddell.

Another big day in the Chapman campaign in Quincy. 450 men gathered in Music hall at 3.30 for a meeting addressed by Dr. Weddell. It was the largest gathering of men ever gotten together for a religious meeting in Quincy. The plans were made and advertising done by the local Y. M. C. A. The Association orchestra of 10 pieces added greatly to the effect of the music.

In the Wollaston Congregational church, a women's meeting was held at 4 o'clock, addressed by Rev. E. A. Chase. A splendid musical program was given.

At the evening service, Bethany church was again crowded to the outer doors and an overflow meeting was held in the chapel addressed by Rev. E. A. Chase.

The subject of Dr. Weddell's address was "Redeeming the Time"; it was a most impressive discourse, full of pointed illustrations and anecdotes. At the after-meeting a splendid spirit was evidenced and several people signed cards.

The meetings here close with Wednesday evening. Instead of being tired, the enthusiam is increasing and it is expected that a large crowd will attend the four mammoth mass meetings in Mechanics Building, Boston, which close the campaign on Sunday night.

FIRST AID CLASSES.

Over three hundred young men were drowned in this country last year. Many of them were rescued after a few minutes in the water and could have been revived by the prompt application of the proper treatment. Many lives were thus lost because no one near knew what to do and a physician could not be found in time.

It is a splendid thing to be prepared for accidents and emergencies, but such preparation cannot come without study. Two classes, one for young men, one for boys under expert teachers are being instructed in "First Aid to the Injured" at the Y. M. C. C. A. The young men's class meets every Tuesday evening 7 to 8 P. M. Boys' class Thursday 4 to 5 P. M. These classes are open to those who are not members of the Association.

CROWLEY GETS CONTRACT.

Dennis F. Crowley has been awarded the contract for building a three-story fire proof vault for the Fore River Shipbuilding Co. The building will be 20 by 20 feet and will be constructed of brick, cement and steel. It will be connected with the main office building by a steel bridge.

The Cause of a Cold

OR cough cannot always be traced. It is sufficient, however, to know that you have one and ought to get rid of it. "Great oaks from little acorns grow," and too frequently the slight cough of today is the pneumonia of tomorrow.

Rexall Cherry Juice Cough Syrup

Is the best cough insurance in the world. As a remedy for coughs, hoarseness, difficult breathing, etc., it is without a peer. It soothes and heals the inflamed throat and passages and restores the voice to its natural tone, all in a very short time. Cures the most stubborn coughs. Very pleasant to take, perfectly harmless and good for children as well as adults. Try a bottle!

TAKE A TRIP TO "GRETNA GREEN"

F. K. Patch and Miss E. M. Williams Married in R. I.

According to the City Registrar of Providence, R. I., a marriage license was issued this morning to Franklin King Patch, 23, of Quincy and Miss Ethel Marian Williams, 20, of Braintree.

They were then directed to Rev. John C. McCall, of the Broadway Congregational church.

The groom is the son of Frank S. Patch of Hancock street, the well-known coal dealer, and his bride is the daughter of George E. Williams of Middle street, Braintree. Both are popular in the younger social sets of Quincy and Braintree.

The elder Patch in an interview with a Ledger representative stated that he knew nothing of the affair and that he thought that his son could be found with Brown Bros., State street bankers, where he is employed.

Mr. Patch, Sr., said that if his son really was married, he would welcome him home with his bride and forgive and forget all.

HAD EXCITING EXPERIENCE.

Quincy Couple Shipwrecked on Salamedina Bank.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman F. McIntire returned Sunday from a two months' visit to the West Indies and South America. They left New York on a Royal Mail liner the first stop being at Port Antonio. From here they went to the Isthmus and inspected the big ditch.

Leaving Colon, they proceeded along the coast of the Spanish main and had the misfortune to be wrecked on Salamedina Bank, where their steamship probably is now a total wreck.

After remaining aboard the ship, all passengers were sent ashore and a trip of sixteen miles brought them to Cartagena, where they were obliged to wait two weeks for another ship.

After leaving Cartagena, stops were made at Puerto Columbia, Savanilla, Trinidad and Barbadoes.

Yellow fever was so prevalent at Barbadoes that the steamship lines were refusing passengers to any port and a contemplated stay of a month was cut down to two days for fear that there might be no chance to leave the island for an indefinite period.

Notwithstanding the many inconveniences, they report a very pleasant and instructive trip.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR.

Editors Daily Ledger:

Sirs:—In behalf of the Department of Massachusetts, U. S. W. V., appreciation of thanks are extended to all citizens and our City Government in their very kind remembrance of the eleventh anniversary of the blowing up of the ill-fated battleship "Maine" and our departed comrades now lying under the waters of Havana harbor, by the displaying of national colors at half-mast. This departemnt recommends that the wreck of the battleship be raised and brought to its home country and the remains of our dear comrades still encased in her wreck, be peacefully interred in their last resting places with full naval honors under the stars and stripes and not be tossed, year after year, in the waters of a foreign land.

FIELD SCHOOL ALUMNI REUNION

Classes of 1905 and 1906 Renew Old Associations

Many old associations were renewed at the reunion of the classes of nineteen-four and nineteen-five of the Massachusetts Fields school held in Wollaston hall on Saturday evening.

Nearly the full number of the classes were present, some coming from quite a distance in order to attend.

Among those present besides the alumni were: Charles H. Taylor, former principal of the school and Miss Lena Pfaffman and Miss Lunt formerly teachers.

Regrets were also sent by other teachers including a very bright and entertaining letter from Miss Waterhouse.

The hall was charmingly decorated with orange, the school co'or. Long streamers of this brilliant hue, were hung across the hall and the musician's stand was wound with it. In large letters, M. F. S. was suspended from the ceiling.

The evening opened with speeches and selections by the orchestra, Ralph Greene acting as toastmaster.

Following an address by Mr. Taylor, Miss Pfaffman responded to the toast: "Our former teachers." Miss Lunt also spoke.

The dancing opened with a grand march led by Clarence Tobin and Miss Lillian Southerberg with thirty couples in line. Dancing was enjoyed until a late hour.

Music was furnished by Estes orchestra and refreshments were served.

The committee in charge of the reunion consisted of. Messrs. Fred Sass, Ralph Greene, Guy V. Sass, Fred P. Davis, Louis E. Coombs, Ernest Pletsch, Charles W. Staples and Misses Hazel Jones and Eva Weymouth.

Ceriel Bourke driver of Baker's express had a fur coat valued at $75 stolen in Boston a few days ago. He tarew his coat over the seat and went to the rear of the wagon for a minute and when he returned the coat was gone. He at once notified the police but they have thus far been unsuccessful in locating it.

The remains of Mrs. Arabella A. Bowditch widow of George A. Bowditch who died in Chicago a few days ago were brought here Saturday and services were held at the chapel in Village Cemetery. Rev. Robert H. Cochrane pastor of the Union Congregational church conducted the services. Interment was in the family lot.

Mrs. John A. Neal and Miss Ellen Lasson are spending the week in New York.

A union service of the six congregational churches of Weymouth was held at Union church, South Weymouth last evening. E. H. Chandler of the 20th century club, Boston, gave an address on "Larger Ideas of Citizenship."

The funeral of Miss Rosanna Ahern took place from the church of the Sacred Heart Saturday morning and was largely attended. Mass was celebrated by Rev. J. B. Holland. The bearers were John Kelley, Maurice Kearns, Joseph Kelley and James Queeney. Interment was at St. Francis Xavier cemetery.

The remains of Mrs. Caroline Goodwin, widow of Samuel Goodwin, were brought here Sunday and intered in the family lot at Village cemetery. Mrs. Goodwin was for years a resident of this place.

The two-mile scratch race at Burrell's ring between Hennessey of Braintree and Teddy Boyle of Boston, Saturday evening was won by Boyle.

Miss Florence Estelle Smith, one of the town's most popular school teachers, died Saturday evening after an illness of but a few days. She was the daughter of Horace L. and Mary E. Smith and was born in this town, January 22, 1884. She was a graduate of the Weymouth High school class '03 and Miss Wheelock's Kindergarten, Boston class '05. She was appointed a teacher in the Weymouth school the same year and up to the time of her illness was a teacher of the third grade at the Jefferson school, East Weymouth. Besides her parents a sister Miss Mildred Smith a teacher in the Weymouth high school servives her.

She was an earnest worker in the First Baptist church where she was a Sunday school teacher.

She had a host of friends who will mourn her sudden death. Her death came as a great shock as it was not generally known that she was seriously ill.

The funeral will take place from her late residence Tuesday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock.

The Ladies Aid Alliance of the Wollaston Unitarian church hold at whist party this evening at 128 Winthrop avenue. The affair is in charge of Mrs. Adams, Mrs. Armstrong, Mrs. Brigham, Mrs. Rowe and Mrs. York.

Eleven years ago tonight the United States battleship Maine was destroyed by an explosion in the harbor of Havana.

The National Civic Federation according to a statement recently given to the press "has become impressed with the necessity for a systematic national effort toward securing within reasonable limits more uniform legislation in the states of the union." With this end in view the federation has appointed James Hays Hammond chairman of a committee which is to organize a council of 100 representative men in each state. "The continued existence for 18 years of the annual conference of commissioners on uniform state laws created by the different states at the instance of the American bar association, shows that state executives and legislatures are fully alive to the importance of this subject," says the statement of the federation, which continues:

"The last-named organization has been instrumental in securing the passage in 35 states of a uniform negotiable instruments law, and is promoting other commercial measures, including a uniform food law to conform to the national law.

"This neccessity for uniform legislation is further illustrated by the proceedings at the annual meetings of the national association of the state attorneys general of the state labor commissioners, insurance commissioners, etc. etc."

Rev. Oliver D. Sewell of the Harvard street church, Brookline in a sermon in "real democracy," Sunday, pointed out certain pertinent errors in our industrial world.

"One of the charter statements of our own country is 'all men are created equal,' and while this statement is not strictly true, he says, it is so true that to deny it is to utter a greater error and a greater falsehood. While all men are not equal in intelect, it is our glory that here in America, rich or poor, ignorant or learned, native or foreigner, all will be treated as men. For this truth we purpose that America, as long as she endures, shall stand.

"The glory is that men fought not merely for advantage for themselves, but for the great principle of the common rights; the rights of common men.

"We believe in democracy but do we believe in it to the extent of espousing it and professing and advocating it where it sorely and iniquitously lags behind? This is the real test which this movement brings to Christian men today.

"It is no democratic. it is monarchial and despotic. It is out of date, it is out of spirit of the modern spirit of democracy, and it is through their sins that this is beginning to be discovered. It is unreasonable to expect that the people will accept democracy in the governmental world, and believe in the divine right of monarchy in the industrial.

"Either the political world or the religious world will revert to the system of monarchy, or else the industrial world will revolutionize its government. That the first should occur, is absolutely inconceivable to any Christian man.

"The world of industry must make progress by that path that has been blazed for us at such a cost by our patriots.

"Let our lives be filled with the democratic spirit, and let us say: 'Give me no wealth, or favor, or ability, or power, which, in raising me, does not also raise mankind.' "

EDITORIAL COMMENTS.

The excuse, offered for the dangerous and indefensible bills that were recently considered by the California legislature and only defeated after the most earnest appeals from the President, is at least worth hearing. The Sacramento Union, which is supposed to voice the sentiment of the legislators, declares that "this state wants residents and is seeking them among the Caucasian races all over the globe. But it does not want residents who are foreign in race and color." California wishes its lands to be peopled with men and women "who can be assimilated into the body politic without resulting in a community of conflicting ideas and mixed blood." Says this apologist: "We do not want families that, owing to their race, will always be apart, and who are hopelessly antagonistic to our ideas of thought and morality." The Japanese once thought that way about the Americans, and Japan was forced at the muzzles of the guns of the American navy to apologize for so narrow and indefensible a view—Boston Advertiser.

The New York World has started a bill in the New York legislature calculated to cut down the volume of murder. It provides that every person selling a gun, pistol or other firearm shall keep a register, showing the time of sale, the name, age, occupation and residence of the purchaser, together with the number of the mark identifying the weapon. There is a further provision that the purchaser shall show a license to carry a firearm if a license is required by any other statutes.

Of course a law of this kind could be beaten oftentimes. A crook in a large city might give a wrong name and escape with the deception. A stranger could who had no intent of harm, but who desired to arm himself. But there would be a large number of people who would be registered under their own names, and any man who knew his name was on the list would be inclined to move carefully and conduct himself with caution, to say the least. The scheme has been suggested for this State, and eventually it may go through. It harms no legitimate dealer and no legitimate buyer and it tends to check, in greater or less degree, the indiscriminate sale of murderous weapons to any who may apply.—Brockton Enterprise.

That there were brave men before Agamemnon is generally admitted even by those who do not know nor care who Agamemnon was. It is also true that there were strong men before Hercules and strenuous Americans before Roosevelt.

Franklin could lift as much as two of his fellow workmen in the London printing office, where he was known as the "American Water Drinker." As a swimmer he astonished Thames bathers, and a nobler lord hired him to teach his son the natatory art.

Washington would have made a fine outfielder for a league team, for his throwing was superb, and as a horseman he had few superiors.

Lincoln was never very fond of hard work of the physical kind, but he could hold out an ax at arm's length by the handle, and as a wrestler he never was defeated. At fisticuffs he was not less formidable.

There are others. Henry Wilson, the Natick cobbler who became Vice President often worked all night and two days in succession without sleep. Once he tried to make 50 pairs of shoes without taking even a nap. The usual time for such a task was a week. When he had finished his 47th pair he fell asleep. A more strenuous American than that it would be hard to find.—Boston Globe.

—Hull Beacon in the issue of Feb. 12th in editorials on Weymouth comments as follows: "I hope that the influential men of the town will now make some effort to induce manufacturers to establish plants here. And they should not confine their efforts to shoe concerns, alone. Get a variety of industries to locate here. Now that Quincy has the immense plant of the Fore River Ship Building plant just across Fore River, and the government is about to install a naval magazine on both the Weymouth and Hingham sides of Back river, and with the advent of the George E. Keith factory at East Weymouth, it ought to be possible to bring other industries to the town. It seems to me that North Weymouth possesses superior advantages for a navy yard. The land at Charlestown is needed for commercial and business purposes, and is too valuable to be devoted to the purpose to which it is now put. The logical place for it is at North Weymouth, where it would be in close proximity to the magazine and also the shipyard in Quincy. I hope the board of trade will get busy and try to induce the government to locate it there. What say you, gentlement of the board?"

—Mrs. Margaret Deland will hold her annual jonquil sale at her house, 35 Newbury street, Boston, on the afternoon of Tuesday, February 16th. This is the fifteenth annual flower sale which Mrs. Deland has held for the benefit of a certain charity in which she is interested, and it will include this year nearly 300 pots of jonquils, hyacinths, tulips and little purple grape hyacinths.

ENGINEERS' REPORT IS READY

Panama Canal to Be Discussed at the White House

TAFT LEAVES FOR WASHINGTON

Knox and Hitchcock the Only Ones Thus Far Who Have Accepted Cabinet Positions—Other Advisors, With Exception of Secretary of the Treasury, Believed to Have Been Already Selected

Cincinnati, Feb. 15.—Mr. and Mrs. Taft arrived in the home city of the president-elect from Panama and New Orleans in a driving rain storm Sunday. They were met at the station by C. P. Taft and driven to his residence where they were guests until noon today, when they left for Washington. Mrs. Taft contemplates a visit to New York, while the president-elect will spend one day at the capital, return here and remain until Saturday.

The trip to Washington has importance, inasmuch as it relates primarily to the report of the engineers who accompanied Taft to Panama. This report is to be placed in his hands upon his arrival there Tuesday morning. With the engineers he will take the document to the White House, where it will be the subject of a general conference with President Roosevelt.

The contents of the report have been forecasted, the features being a strong endorsement of the present canal plans, commendation of the organzation under Colonel Goethals and recommendations tending to show that whatever error has been made has been on the side of the unnecessary precautions for safety.

While in Washington Taft expects to confer with Senator Knox and with others whose advice he values, relative to cabinet appointments.

The cabinet gossip which is regarded as the most reliable, and given with the understanding that Taft has declared he would reserve the right to deny all cabinet suggestions, is that no one has been determined upon for the treasury portfolio.

Senator Knox and Frank H. Hitchcock have been asked to and have accepted the positions respectively of secretary of state and postmaster general. As to the other places, unconfirmed rumor, with a fair percentage of likelihood of accuracy, makes the cabinet:

Attorney General, Wikersham of New York; secretary of war, Wright of Tennessee; secretary of the navy, Meyer of Massachusetts; secretary of the interior, Ballinger of Washington state; secretary of agriculture, Wilson of Iowa; secretary of commerce and labor, Nagel of Missouri.

It is the general understanding that Taft wishes to fill the treasury portfolio either from Illinois or Ohio. Should the appointment go to the president-elect's own state, it is the belief that the honor will fall to Myron T. Herrick. The seeming tumult among candidates from Illinois is regarded as militating against rather than helping that state's chances.

Mr. Taft's announced position is that he will keep all appointments open until the very last minute, with the view of meeting any situations that may arise with the least embarrasssment to all concerned. It is known that his attention just now is being centered on the treasury portfolio.

WILL BE NO PARTY ISSUE

Bill Permitting Knox to Enter the Cabinet Will Be Passed

Washington, Feb. 15.—The bill removing the disability constitutionally of Senator Knox to enter the Taft cabinet as secretary of state will probably be called up in the House today and it is expected that it will be passed under suspension of the rules, although not until some of the members who regard the measure as objectionable and who filed a minority report have voiced their views.

The bill will not be made a party issue, and despite the minority report no serious obstruction will be placed in the way of its passage. Senator Knox continues to decline to talk about any phase of the matter.

For Uniform Legislation

CASE OF COLONEL TUCKER

It Comes Up For Consideration Before Army Retiring Board

Chicago, Feb. 15.—The meeting of the army retiring board which began in this city today will in all likelihood determine the fate of Colonel William F. Tucker, whose troubles with his wife have engaged the attention of army gossips for a long time. Colonel Tucker occupies a responsible post in the army, that of paymaster general of the department of the lakes. He is at odds with his wife, the daughter of the late General John A. Logan, who was the Republican candidate for vice president in 1884. Friends of Colonel Tucker declare that Mrs. Logan is the chief cause of his troubles and that the case is one of "too much mother-in-law."

Secretary of War Wright has given permission for Mrs. Tucker to appear with her attorney before the army retiring board. This unusual action is expected to create a sensation.

Colonel Tucker, who has been an invalid for years, is seeking retirement with the rank of colonel and the retired pay of that rank. Mrs. Logan and the colonel's wife declare his conduct has been such that he is not entitled to honorable retirement, and they are seeking his summary dismissal from the army. Charges of misconduct in the Philippines made against Colonel Tucker two years ago by his female relatives were not sustained by the army authorities, and Colonel Tucker retaliated with a suit for divorce. In October of last year Mrs. Tucker had her husband arrested in Chicago on a charge of abandonment, but the proceedings were dropped.

TO REACH PEOPLE CHURCHES HAVE LOST

New Religious Movement In the Nature of a Club

Chicago, Feb. 15.—Dr. Frank A. Crane, who recently resigned the pastorate of the Union Congregational church of Worcester, Mass., is to come to Chicago next fall to head a unique religious movement. The plan to be followed by Crane is outlined in a letter made public.

"Let the work be in the nature of a Sunday afternoon club, fathered and promoted by Woodlawn business men," says the letter. "I will camp right there and give to the best of my abilities an interesting talk each Sunday afternoon on how to live. Not a church, no new kind of religious fad, interference with no church affiliations, but rather co-operation with all—just a broad, helpful lecture Sunday afternoon to reach that great class of people whom the churches have lost. Just a gospel of common sense, open to anybody that believes in God and good women and honest men."

YOUNG TURKS TRIUMPH

But Kiamil Pasha's Downfall May Not Be Best For Turkey

Constantinople, Feb. 14.—The new constitutional regime has passed through a severe crisis, which has resulted in the downfall of the aged grand vizer, Kiamil Pasha, and the complete triumph of the Young Turkey party of the committee of union and progress, which has virtually imposed upon the sultan a ministry of its own nominees, headed by Hilmi Pasha.

The committee has publicly repudiated any intention of overthrowing the sultan or installing a military dictatorship, but the crisis and its outcome are regarded as not boding well for the stability of the throne or the success of the parliamentary government.

The committee of union and progress suspected Kiamil Pasha of being too considerate of palace influences and complained of his slowness in conducting negotiations with Austria-Hungary and Bulgaria.

BEST IN MOTOR BOATING

It Will Be Seen In Exhibition Which Opens In New York Tonight

New York, Feb. 15.—The best and latest in everything connected with motor boating will be seen at the motor boat show which opens its doors tonight in this city. Over 150 exhibitors have secured space, and these include practically all of the well known marine motor builders in the country in addition to boat builders.

The big international races to be held during the present year have given a marked stimulus to motor boat enthusiasm, and the show is expected to draw large crowds.

Two Little Ones Drowned

Worcester, Mass., Feb. 15.—Toddling out onto the ice of Geese pond, Mildred Johnson, aged 4, and Oscar Johnson, aged 3, stumbled into a hole and were drowned. No one was near the children when they fell into the water, and when their screams were heard it was too late to rescue them.

Five Firemen Killed

Milwaukee, Feb. 15.—Five firemen were killed and about a dozen injured, two fatally, by the toppling over of a brick wall while they were fighting a fire in the big plant of the H. W. John Manville Manufacturing company. The pecuniary loss is estimated at $250,000.

REMEMBER MAINE IN WASHINGTON

Capital Pays Honors to Battleship's Dead Today

ANNIVERSARY OF DISASTER

Eleven Years Ago Today the Vessel Was Blown Up In Havana Harbor —Sigsbee Principal Speaker at Memorial Services—Pilgrimage Made by Patriotic Societies to Graves of Crew In Arlington Cemetery

Washington, Feb. 15.—The national capital "remembered the Maine" on two occasions today and will pay further tribute this evening to the memory of the men of the battleship which sank in Havana harbor eleven years ago today. Three separate celebrations of "Maine day" were planned by the Maine Memorial association. Many persons will participate in all three ceremonies.

The day was opened by mass at St. Patrick's cathedral in memory of the Roman Catholics who lost their lives in the disaster. Among the priests who officiated at the services was the Rev. Eugene Hannan, who is a personal friend of Father Chadwick, chaplain of the Maine, and represented him at the services.

REAR ADMIRAL SIGSBEE.

This afternoon the members of the association, with members of the Spanish War Veterans, the Army and Navy union and other patriotic organizations, made a pilgrimage to the "Maine section" of Arlington cemetery, where the recovered remains of the men of the Maine are buried. Many well known navy and army officers made the pilgrimage. Rear Admiral Charles D. Sigsbee, retired, who commanded the Maine when she sank, represented the navy, and General Andrew S. Burt, retired, represented the army.

The ceremony of placing floral tributes on the giant anchor of the Maine, which stands among the graves, was performed by ladies of the Maine association. The pieces included two wreaths from President Roosevelt, one from the National Woman's Relief corps, another from the Phil Sheridan Woman's Relief corps and others. There was a firing party of troopers of the Thirteenth United States cavalry, and a bugler closed the exercises with "taps."

The speakers for the meeting this evening in the First Presbyterian church will include Rear Admiral Sigsbee, Captain Richmond Pearson Hobson, General Andrew S. Burt, Colonel John McElroy, Rev. Father Eugene A. Hannan, Rev. Donald MacLeod, pastor of the church, and others. Dr. Thomas Calver will read an original poem on "The Men of the Maine."

CHESS MASTERS MEET

Twenty Experts Participating In Tournament at St. Petersburg

St. Petersburg, Feb. 15.—One of the greatest events in the history of the ancient game of chess is the masters' tournament, which began here today. Twenty of the leading players of the game are entered in the tournament, which will consist of a single round, each of the players meeting every other competitor once.

One of the competitors is Emanuel Lasker, champion chess player of the world. Other leading masters who have agreed to play are Barn, Marco, Mieses, Teichmann, Tarrasch, Maroczy, Vidmar, Schlechter and Janowski.

OUR DEPENDENT CHILDREN

Special Message From President on a Most Important Subject

Washington, Feb. 15.—President Roosevelt transmitted today to the two houses of congress a special message recommending legislation requested by the conference on the care of dependent children held in Washington Jan. 25 and 26.

The aim of the friends of the dependent children is the enactment of legislation providing for their care. This aim is heartily indorsed by the president. He is thoroughly in favor of bills pending in the senate and house of representatives providing such care for the dependent children in the District of Columbia and the territories, the only sections of the country for which congress may enact such laws. These bills will serve as examples for the rest of the country, it is hoped.

Before the conference at its meeting in the White House on Jan. 25 and subsequently the president expressed the greatest interest in its work. The conference, which was composed of well known philanthropists and sociologists from all parts of the United States, assembled in Washington at his invitation, and its sessions were formally opened by him in a long address.

The president gave his opinion that there could be no more important subject, from the standpoint of the nation, than the care of "the interests of those children whom cruel misfortune has handicapped at the very outset of their lives." He referred to the orphan, the crippled child, the child worker and the child temporarily parted from its parents by circumstances.

SKATING RECORDS ARE LOWERED

Nilssen Carries Off Honors In His Match With Baptie

St. Paul, Feb. 15.—In a series of ice skating races between Norval Baptie and John Nilssen, three professional indoor world's skating records were broken.

In the half mile event Baptie lowered his own world's record of 1:18 1-5 to 1:17 1-5. Nilssen established a new world's record for the mile, making the distance in 2:39 2-5, and also lowered the two-mile record, covering the distance in 5:45 2-5. The previous indoor record for this distance was 5:59.

The men were matched for the three events, but after the two-mile race, Baptie collapsed on the track and did not regain consciousness until after physicians had worked over him for more than an hour.

QUEER MARITAL RELATIONS

Missouri Man the Husband of Young Woman and Her Mother

St. Joseph, Mo., Feb. 15.—In the probably fatal shooting of William Smith, a carpenter, over a comic valentine, there came to light a strange domestic entanglement.

"Mrs. Cora Smith," who fired the shot at Smith, told the police that she was married to Smith, knowing that her mother was already his wife. The three have lived together for years, the man posing as the husband of both mother and daughter. The daughter, who is 22 years old, sent Smith a comic valentine. Smith became angry when he received it, packed up his clothes and started to leave the house. Thinking he was going to desert her, the daughter-wife shot him.

The mother-wife says she was married to Smith secretly in 1902 and took her 15-year-old daughter by a former marriage to live with her and Smith. A year after the marriage, she says, her daughter and Smith fell in love with each other and the mother made the husband marry her daughter without getting a divorce, thinking that no one knew of the former marriage. Both daughter and husband bear out this story.

RIVAL FACTIONS TO FUSE

Harmony Expected to Soon Prevail Among the Cuban Liberals

Havana, Feb. 15.—At the close of a long conference last night between President Gomez and Vice President Zayas for the purpose of deciding upon terms for the fusion of their rival factions of the Liberal party, Gomez announced that a definite agreement had been reached and that a committee had been appointed to arrange the details.

This agreement is considered of the utmost importance, in view of recent reports that irreconcilable differences had arisen between the Miguelitsta and Zayista sections of the party.

Scarlet Fever on Receiving Ship

New York, Feb. 15.—Nearly 300 men on board the receiving ship Hancock at the navy yard, Brooklyn, are quarantined owing to an outbreak of scarlet fever on the vessel.

Honestly, would you be any happier if the earth were peopled with individuals just like yourself?

Be sure to lead the simple life. It is more expensive than the other—whatever that is—and much more artistic.

AMERICA OWES DUTY TO LIBERIA

Should Extend Its Sympathy and Active Good Will

BLACK REPUBLIC NEEDS HELP

Its Present Condition Is Serious, but Not Hopeless, According to Booker Washington—Has Maintained Independence With Practically No Help From Outside Sources—Practical Assistance Needed From America

New York, Feb. 15.—Endorsing the view of former Secretary of State Root that Liberia is an American colony, Booker T. Washington declared that the situation in the African republic was serious and that the United States was in duty bound to render it practical assistance.

"There are about 40,000 civilized negroes in Liberia who have emigrated from the United States or are descendants of people who emigrated years ago," said Washington. "Back of these in the Hinterland are about 1,500,000 of uncivilized people.

"The present condition of Liberia, however, need not surprise any one. In fact, the surprise is that Liberia has maintained itself as an independent nation for so long a period with almost no help from outside sources except that which has been furnished by philanthropic individuals.

"Every European country which has planted a colony in Africa has spent millions of dollars in maintaining, assisting and encouraging their colonies. Not only have they spent money, but these European governments have sent their best officials to supervise and guide the people until they have gotten started. This is especially true in the case of England, France and Germany.

"In the case of Liberia, a small body of people just out of slavery in this country, with no experience in government or the conduct of educational institutions, or without responsibility for their own conduct, were sent to a foreign country and the responsibility was placed upon them within a few years of building and maintaining a government.

"I do not believe the condition of Liberia is hopeless, but I do believe that this government owes, as Secretary Root says, a duty to that country. We have spent large sums of money and given some of our best officials to reorganize and build governments in the Philippines, Hawaii, Cuba, Porto Rico and San Domingo, and we certainly owe an equal duty to Liberia. None of these countries to which I have referred have a greater claim upon the sympathy and active good will of the United States than Liberia.

"I believe and hope that the government of the United States will carry out the recommendation made to congress by former Secretary Root and by President Roosevelt in the direction of leading practical assistance through the sending of three commissioners to Liberia as early as possible. It is not desirable or necessary for the United States to attempt to take any permanent interest in the affairs of Liberia, but to only lend a helping hand as they have done to San Domingo and other countries in its present emergency."

TUBERCULOSIS EXHIBIT

Quakers Learning Dangers of Consumption and How to Combat It

Philadelphia, Feb. 15.—After attracting 567,065 visitors in New York city the tuberculosis show has moved to this city and was opened to the public today. The exhibit is designed to call forcibly to the notice of the public the dangers of consumption and the modern means of combating the disease.

In New York the exhibit was housed in the building of the American Museum of Natural History. Its Philadelphia resting place is the Robert Morris building. It is expected that at least 500,000 persons will visit the exhibit, which formed part of the recent international tuberculosis congress in Washington. It will be placed on exhibition in various parts of the country.

MOTH PESTS FROM OHIO

Fruit Growers In New York to Be Put on Guard by the Governor

Rochester, Feb. 15.—Fruit growers in western New York, and, it may be, throughout the state, have, it is learned, been summoned to Albany by Governor Hughes, to take measures against the introduction into the state of the gypsy, or brown-tail moth.

Information received here is to the effect that fruits affected with the pests are being brought into the state from Ohio.

Thousands of Elk Starving

Cheyenne, Wyo., Feb. 15.—Protection for elk in a winter refuge is the proposal contained in a memorial to congress from the Wyoming legislature asking that a tract of land south of Yellowstone park be set aside. The suggestion is the outcome of reports that 20,000 elk are starving in the mountains of western Wyoming.

PERT PARAGRAPHS.

Being sly is the specialty of certain natures. They don't mean any harm by it, and if harm results, why, who shall say that it wouldn't had they been open as the day?

Hope on; hope ever. It doesn't cost anything, is good for the complexion and is about the best bluff one can put up.

Some one may have a better right to kick than the chronic kicker, but if so he doesn't know it and wouldn't care if he did.

It is hard for a woman to understand business and from her point of view quite undesirable.

One thing that pleases us about old winter is that he is sure to have some brand of spring up his sleeve and can't resist springing it sooner or later.

Sometimes troubles come so thick and fast that the professional optimist finds that his smile that won't come off gets twisted, but he still continues to optime.

Don't expect your friends to spend all their time forgiving you. They might want a chance to get absolution themselves.

Don't give advice to any one;-people will by and by notice it and come around asking for your words of wisdom, and you will thus be able to collect from them.

It is a good thing to have wise friends, but don't let them get wise to the fact that you are wise to them.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

TURFMAN'S BIG LUCK

How "Lucky" Baldwin Lived Up to His Name.

QUICK MOVE FOR A FORTUNE.

Famous Plunger Won $200,000 on the Turn of a Card In a Faro Game. How He Got the Last Hairs From Baldy Monson's Scalp.

One of the members of Washington's Oldest Inhabitants' association, whose only prolonged absence from the capital during sixty years occurred when he joined the forty-niners in California, told some years ago the following about E. J. ("Lucky") Baldwin, the noted horseman and plunger:

"I once witnessed 'Lucky' Baldwin win $200,000 in considerably less than a minute. That happened one night in September, 1856. Baldwin owned several acres of fine land on the crest of what is now known as Nob Hill, in San Francisco. This property, even at that time, on account of its obvious future value for high grade residence purposes, was worth easily $200,000.

"Tom Vanbrugh, the proprietor of the El Dorado, a big San Francisco gambling club, owned faro banks all the length of the slope as far as it was then settled, in addition to possessing a big gambling club in the City of Mexico, and he was a millionaire several times over. Vanbrugh wanted 'Lucky' Baldwin's parcel of Nob Hill ground, but Baldwin wouldn't even talk about selling it. Vanbrugh owned a whole block on lower Market street, on which Baldwin wanted to build. It was worth about the same amount as Baldwin's Nob Hill ground. Vanbrugh had offered to trade the Market street block for the piece of Nob Hill land, but Baldwin wouldn't listen to him.

"That's the way it stood between Baldwin and Vanbrugh on this night in September, 1856, when Baldwin strolled along toward midnight into the El Dorado, after having dined pretty cozily somewhere or other. Vanbrugh was sitting at a desk in his private room, just off the main faro bank, writing, when Baldwin stepped in.

"'Hello, Tom,' said Baldwin to Vanbrugh. 'How are you feeling?'

"'Still Nob Hilly,' replied Vanbrugh. 'When are you going to transfer the deed of that piece of ground to me anyway?'

"'Tom,' replied Baldwin, 'I'm getting tired of hearing you talk about that ground. Come out here and get behind the box,' and Lucky led the way into the main faro room. Vanbrugh, seeing that there was going to be something doing characteristically Baldwinesque, followed him with alacrity.

"The dealer at one of the no limit tables was just shuffling the cards for another box full.

"'Sit down there, Tom, and get busy,' said Baldwin to Vanbrugh, pointing to the dealer's chair.

"Vanbrugh motioned to the dealer, who slid out of the chair. Vanbrugh slid into it.

"'If the ace loses, Tom,' Baldwin said, without a trace of excitement, to Vanbrugh, 'the Nob Hill ground is yours. If the ace wins, the Market street block is mine. How about that?'

"Vanbrugh nodded. He shuffled the cards, did the unusual courtesy in faro bank of passing them over to Baldwin to cut—Lucky could cut twenty-six cards as well as any veteran faro bank dealer—and slid the cards into the box.

"'With your permission, gentlemen,' said Vanbrugh to the other players around the table whose play had been interrupted, and they leaned back in their chairs to watch the outcome.

"Baldwin removed the round topped panama from his head, and the cabbage leaf which he always wore inside of his hat in hot weather fell to the floor just as Vanbrugh started to slide the cards out of the box. Baldwin stooped to pick up the piece of cabbage leaf and replace it in his hat. Before he stood up erect again he was the owner of Vanbrugh's Market street block. The ace had come out on the right side for Baldwin while he was still stooping over.

"'If your name isn't a fit, Lucky, I'll be ——,' was all that Vanbrugh said, and on the following morning he transferred the Market street property to Baldwin."

"When the whimsical gambling was going on out on the Pacific coast 'Lucky' Baldwin was easily the most daring chance taker of all the notable argonauts," said an old time Californian. "One night in the late fifties 'Lucky,' as he was even then called, walked into the famous old Alcatraz club on Kearney street in San Francisco after having been religiously shunning his bed for about three days and nights running, and in that shape 'Lucky' was in those days ready for anything.

"A famous dealer in the Alcatraz club—the biggest gambling establishment on the coast at the time—was Baldy Monson, so called because his poll was bare of hair as a pat of butter, except for a tiny patch that remained right on the crown of his head. It had been a cowlick, and with consistent stubbornness it had refused to go when the rest of Baldy's hair had departed. Baldwin strolled over to where Baldy Monson was acting as lookout for the faro game, preparatory to taking hold of the box himself, and, drawing Monson's head down, 'Lucky' began to count the hairs that the dealer had left on the top of his head.

"'How many have you got left?' Baldwin asked of Monson.

"'Eighteen of 'em an inch or more long the last time they were counted,' soberly replied Baldy. 'There may be some trifling short ones besides in the tuft, but they don't figure.'

"'Eighteen, eh?' said 'Lucky.' 'Well, it's just foolishness to be packing around only eighteen hairs. Turn me the king, open, for $18,000, and if I win your eighteen hairs go with the pot. How's that?'

"'Baldy' glanced inquiringly at the proprietor of the club, who was standing by, and his employer gave him the nod. Monson took the dealer's chair and began the deal. The king won down near the middle of the box, and the proprietor of the club scrawled a check for $18,000 on the Bank of California and handed it over to Baldwin.

"'Lucky' snipped the eighteen hairs off of 'Baldy' Monson's head with the razor edged blade of his pocketknife, had the housekeeper at his hotel tie them up in tiny pink ribbon, with a double bow to set them off, and exhibited the tuft in the window of the Bella Union, labeled 'Baldy Monson's Scalp.'"

"QUIT YOUR KISSING."

Why Rev. Dr. John L. Scudder Would End the Osculation Habit.

"I am thinking of starting an anti-kissing society," said the Rev. Dr. John L. Scudder, pastor of the First Congregational church, Jersey City, the other day. "I may import Dowie junior, whom his father described as 'the great unkissed,' as a distinguished figurehead for my new cult."

Then, with great seriousness, the progressive clergyman amplified his views on the pernicious habit of kissing.

"Kissing is a pretty custom, but there is such a thing as kissing a person to death," said he. "If the kisser has tuberculosis or diphtheria there is great danger that the disease will be communicated to the kissee.

"In this way diphtheria has carried off its thousands and tuberculosis its tens of thousands. Many a little one has been sent to the grave by the loving kiss of a consumptive mother. Many people have caught tuberculosis by kissing consumptive dogs and cats, canary birds, parrots and other household pets. It is time to start anti-kissing leagues throughout America, and if I could be the agency for this new departure I should consider myself a public benefactor. The whole land should ring with the cry, 'Quit your kissing.'

"Any mother must be demented who permits a stranger to kiss her child, for, mark you, a man may have consumption in an early stage and not know it. Yet it is communicable Even kissing the Bible in the courts should be abolished, for court Bibles are nests and breeding places of bacilli."

WOMAN'S SUFFRAGE POEM.

Principal of a Chicago High School Won Prize Offered For One.

After considering more than 1,000 poems, sent in from all parts of the United States, a committee of judges selected to award the $100 prize offered by Mrs. L. B. Bishop of Chicago for the best verses supporting woman suffrage recently awarded the prize to Louis J. Block, principal of a Chicago high school. The verses are entitled "The Marching Song" and are to be sung to the tune of "John Brown's Body." The first reference to woman is in the third stanza, which follows:

Mother, prophetess and holy, through the ages of the clan,
Uttering words of potent wisdom in the ear of struggling man,
Woman rose and strode beside him mid the dangers of the van,
Kindling hope that led him on.

The last stanza follows:

Forth they step and march together, forth the man and woman go,
To the plains of vase achievement, where unfettered rivers flow,
And their work shall stand exalted, and their eyes shall shine and glow
With the hope that led them on.

CHORUS.

Glory, glory, hallelula! Glory, glory, hallelula!
Glory, glory, hallelula! For the hope still leads them on.

TOWN HOMES FOR FARMERS.

Isolation on Big Tracts of Land Is Soon to End.

A new social order for farmers is pictured by George E. Barstow of Barstow, Tex., president of the international irrigation congress, who went to Chicago recently on business connected with the big gathering to be held in Seattle next summer.

Great tracts of land where the farmers will not live on the land, but in towns from which they will hasten by the aid of fast horses or in automobiles or interurban cars to cultivate the soil, was the "new things" which the irrigation expert declares would soon become a fact.

Hunting Thieves In Menelik's Kingdom.

A curious diplomatic incident arose a short while ago in Abyssinia. In Menelik's dominions when property is stolen the persons robbed consult a sect known as "liebachai," or searchers for robbers. These drug a child, which while unconscious is called on to indicate the house of the thieves. On a recent occasion one of these children in a state of trance invaded the house of a foreign diplomatist, followed by a crowd of several hundred persons. The diplomatist has protested.

Conference Against Leprosy.

The second international scientific conference against leprosy will take place at Bergen, Norway, on Aug. 16-19. Invitations will be issued to all foreign governments to participate in the same.

PLEASANT HOMES.

How to Keep Husbands Amused In the Evening.

If there were any universal rule for keeping a man home in the evenings the person who invented it would reap a large fortune. There is, however, the great underlying principle that if a man is given what pleases him he is likely to stay at home. So it remains for a woman who would accomplish this end to discover what is the best inducement.

There is no doubt that complaining keeps many men from home, and it is equally true that a good many wives complain more than they realize. As an explanation of why men dislike complaints just remember that the average man works hard through the day and has just as many troubles as he wishes without a volume waiting when he arrives at home. One reason that some men find other places attractive is because they hear pleasant conversation, and they get some of the tucks and creases of the day's worries smoothed out in relaxation. Many of these same men would really prefer to have their good times at home did they but sit down and analyze the situation, but how can they when nothing but troubles is poured into their ears?

No person is so unreasonable as to think a woman would tell her husband only the nice things that have happened. She would be more than human could she accomplish this and probably a most uncomfortable person, as most extremists are, in one way and another. But if she will only have the wisdom to choose the time for telling woes there is none, either big or little, that she may not tell and be sure of a sympathetic and champion listener. The wife's mistakes lie in telling her distresses while her husband is filled with his own, augmented by consciousness of the struggle he is making through the day to keep up this same home that at the moment is not all fancy may paint. Let him feel that home is worth the struggle he has been making for it and that his wife is the best ever, and she may then proceed even to tell him servant troubles, and he will still radiate satisfaction.

She is a wise woman who remembers that her husband is tired when he comes home late in the afternoon. She may say, with reason, that she, too, is tired, but it may stimulate good resolutions if she remembers the old saw that "man's work ends with the sun, a woman's work is never done." Just about the most important piece of work she can have in the whole scheme of living is to make her husband think that home is the best place in the world. He really would be glad to think this. Once upon a time he did. If he does so no longer it may be because of faults on both sides, and in this case a woman has not only her own shortcomings to repair, but his, just so far as she can. She can't turn a brute into a gentleman, but she can condone and make allowances and exercise tact, and if life is to be worth anything the more she does it the better.

SUBSTITUTE FOR BRIDGE.

A New Argument In Favor of Card Playing.

"Now that I have mastered bridge whist sufficiently well to be a good average player I am going to learn some solitaire games of cards," recently announced a vivacious young matron, to the astonishment of her listeners. "Why do I bother when I am not keen on cards? Well, I am making provision for old age or in case anything should happen to land me in an invalid chair as a shut-in. I'd try chess, too, if I had the brains and sufficient power of concentration. You know my grandfather was for many years confined to the house on account of rheumatism and later paralysis, and if he had not been a good card and chess player life would have been unbearable for him. Of course he read a good deal, but his eyes would not stand a strain, so cards and chess became his refuge. When he could get any of the faimly to play with him he was delighted, and of course he was given that pleasure as often as possible. But in the meantime he consoled himself with solitaire games and got so much comfort and satisfaction out of the pastime that I am determined to have a similar resource to fall back upon in case I should ever need it."

"That's a new argument to me for card playing," said one of the listeners, "and I am inclined to think it a good one."

HELPFUL HINTS

When polishing the finger nails rub across, not up and down. Dust the hands with orris powder for excessive perspiration.

In order to keep the head clean for a month a tonic should be used, after which the hair should be thoroughly gone over with a clean brush. It is surprising how much dirt is removed by this process.

A simple but effective way to make hair wave in big ripples, which continue to be fashionable, is to dampen it and tie it down with bands of baby ribbon, pulling the hair out in loose waves between the bands.

To prevent noise round pads of leather cut from old boots and nailed to the legs of kitchen chairs prevent the grating noise upon a brick or tiled floor which is so distressing to the nerves of sensitive people.

For dear old ladies with rheumatism in their knees: In damp cold weather at night draw a pair of old cotton stocking legs well over the knees. In winter use woolen legs for the same purpose. Having tried them once, the sufferers will value them above gold.

QUINCY TO HAVE AN INDUSTRIAL COMMITTEE

Order Introduced and Adopted at Regular Meeting of City Council

Every member was present Monday night at the regular meeting of the City Council and there was a large attendance of citizens. Considerable business of importance was transacted.

ANNUAL BUDGET.

The annual budget of the Mayor and Treasurer was received and referred to the Finance Committee. It will be found in full on another page.

The City Auditor forwarded his annual report which was referred to the Finance Committee.

The Commissioner forwarded a list of streets having the same name. Placed on file.

SQUANTUM STREET.

The Commissioner forwarded a plan for the construction of a part of Squantum street, the estimated cost of which was $18,343.19. To Committee on Streets.

STREET LIGHTS.

The Commissioner forwarded a list of lights on private ways. Referred to Committee on Streets.

PETITIONS.

Petitions were received from the Telephone Co., for attachments on Presidents avenue and Pearl street. Referred to Committee on Streets.

A petition was received from the Electric Light Co., for a location for poles on Phipps street and Faxon Park road. Referred to the Committee on Streets.

Several applications for licenses were received and referred.

REPORT OF COMMITTEES.

The Committee on Public Buildings reported an order for a public hearing March 1, on the matter of a school lot at Houghs Neck.

The Committee on Public Buildings reported ought not to pass on the order appropriating $50,000 for two industrial buildings. Accepted.

The Committee on Streets reported an order for a public hearing March 15, on the petition of the Citizens' Gas Light Co., to lay mains.

The Committee on Streets reported an order for a public hearing March 1, on petitions of the Telephone company for attachments.

The Committee on Ordinances reported an order increasing the number of permament police from twenty to twenty-two. Referred to Committee on Finance.

NEW STEAMER.

The Committee on Fire Department reported an order appropriating $7,850 for repairing the present steamer and for the purchase of a second size Metropolitan steam fire engine. Referred to Finance Committee.

The Committee on Streets reported an order granting the telephone company attachments on Squantum and Clark streets, Upland road, Newport avenue and Highland avenue.

Councilman Bryant moved to lay on the table.

In reply to a question Councilman Bryant said he desired to ask some questions before anything more was granted the company.

Councilman Whiton said if the Councilman had any reason why the order should not be granted he should state it.

Councilman Gardner said he hoped the order would lay on the table. The agent who was present at the hearing could have answered the questions if he desired.

Councilman Whiton asked of the Commissioner if he had any trouble with the Telephone company.

The Commissioner replied, he knew of one case where wires were fastened of trees. He did not know of any power to make the company remove it.

Councilman Bryant said, there is a way to make these people do work right. When the agent states he will rectify things he was ready to give all locations desired. He then asked the Commissioner if it was not a fact that the company had agreed to trim trees and the Commissioner replied yes.

Continuing Councilman Bryant said. Do not give them anything until you get it in black and white what they will do.

President Hobbs stated that John F. Hyland district plant chief was in the audiance and was willing to appear before the council.

Upon motion of Councilman Whiton the Council resolved itself into a committee of the whole, with Councilman Freeman as chairman and George T. Magee as clerk.

Councilman Moir moved and it was voted that Mr. Hyland appear before the committee.

In reply to questions Mr. Hyland stated that his company had expended nearly $400 in trimming trees and he had then received orders to stop. He also said in reply to questions that if wires on trees were called to his attention he would have them removed.

Several Councilmen asked questions which were readily answered.

It was then voted the committee rise and report progress.

The motion to lay on the table was lost. The order was then ordered to a second reading.

The Committee on Streets reported an order granting the Telephone company a location for poles on Hancock street.

Councilman Bryant moved to lay on the table.

In support of his motion he stated that the city should turn down pole locations until the company does what is right.

In reply to a question the Commissioner said that the Telephone, Electric Light and Street railway company had agreed to trim the trees. The Electric Light and Street railway company stood ready to continue the work if the Telephone Company would.

Councilman Bryant believed in forcing the Telephone Company to do as agreed.

Councilman Richards agreed that the Telephone company should carry out its agreement.

The motion to lay on the table was voted. Councilman Moir doubted the vote. On a rising vote the motion to lay on the table was voted 17 voting yes and 3 no.

The Committee on Streets reported an order granting the Electric Light Co. a location for poles on Hunt street.

Councilman Moir moved to lay on the table.

In reply to a question by Councilman Moir the Commissioner stated that the Electric Light company was doing work satisfactory to him, and had told him they were ready to go on with the tree trimming.

The motion to lay on the table was lost.

The order was ordered to a second reading.

LEGAL OPINION WANTED.

Councilman McDevitt offered a resolution for the City Solicitor to submit to the Council his opinion in the matter of fixing compensation and if the city had a right to fix compensation of laborers by ordinance. Adopted.

Councilman Whiton offered an order for an incandescent light on Merrymount road.

He moved reference to Executive.

Councilman Abele believed these orders should go to the committee.

Councilman Flynn opposed referring to a committee. The executive was the proper channel.

Councilman McDevitt favored referring to Executive.

Councilman Bean thought order should go to a committee.

Councilman Moir asked if there were poles for the wires.

Councilman Whiton replied yes.

Councilman Bryant favored reference to the Executive.

Order referred to Executive.

Councilman McDevitt offered an order for a light on Forest avenue. Referred to Executive.

Councilman Hadlock offered an order for a light on the corner of Brooks street and Hollis avenue. Referred to Executive.

ASSEMBLY HALL.

Councilman Hadlock offered an order appropriating $5,000 for finishing the assembly hall in the Atlantic school building. Referred to Committee on Public Buildings.

INFORMATION WANTED.

Councilman Whiton moved that the Commissioner report to the Council at the next meeting what agreement he entered into with the Telephone company in regard to trimming trees.

The motion was amended by Councilman Bryant so as to read "Public service corporation." Motion adopted.

Councilman McDevitt offered an or-

VALENTINE PARTY.

Mrs. Herbert R. Holmes gave a valentine party for her sister Miss Martha Holton, at her home on Coddington street Monday evening.

The house was decorated with hearts and cupids. At 9 o'clock about 35 of Miss Holton's friends, after matching hearts for partners, formed in line for the march to supper. Mrs. Cain played the march. In the dining room a hollow square was formed and Mr. Holmes announced the engagement of Miss Martha E. Holton to Mr. John Ruggles of Weymouth. After congratulations, Miss Holton cut the engagement cake, which afforded much fun, Miss Florence Holton getting the ring, Miss Bertha Newcomb the thimble, Miss Harriet Ruggles the money and Harry Holton the mitten. Songs, music and games concluded the evening's entertainment. The friends left, wishing Miss Holton a long, prosperous and happy life.

TO UNVEIL PORTRAIT OF JOHN ERICKSON

Elaborate Exercises Planned for Saturday Night.

Court John Erickson F. of A. have arranged a fine program for next Saturday night at Faxon hall at which time a portrait of Capt. John Erickson, for whom the court was named, will be unveiled.

The program includes brief remarks by Otto Gelotte, chairman of the committee, and an address by Mayor Shea.

The unveiling address will be delivered by Prof. A. Lundquist of Harvard university. There will also be an address by Hon. Edward P. Barry, councillor of the third district.

In addition to the addresses there will be solos by Miss Bertha Carlson, duet by Miss Carlson and Miss Ruth Collins, violin solos by Wesley Carlander and music by Kronstrom's orchestra.

MANY PRIESTS ATTEND.

Funeral of Bernard L. Hart Held From Late Home.

The funeral of Bernard L. Hart, aged 66, a long and well known resident of West Quincy, was held this morning from his late home, 55 Willard street at 9.30 o'clock. A solemn high mass of requiem was sung at 10 o'clock in St. Mary's church, which the deceased for many years attended.

The mass was celebrated by Rev. Henry T. Grady, pastor of St. Mary's church. Rev. Francis J. Walsh of Charlestown was deacon, Rev. John P. Cuffe of the Sacred eHart church, Atlantic, was sub-deacon, and Rev. William J. Duffy of St. Mary's was master of ceremonies.

The regular choir, with Miss Rena Bizzozzero at the organ, sang the Gregorian mass. The church was crowded with relatives and friends of the family and delegations from the G. A. R., Clan McGregor, and Catholic Order of Foresters.

Mr. Hart has a son, Rev. Francis J. Hart of Canton and hence a large number of priests attended the funeral. Among these were, Rev. Walter R. Fegan of Woburn; Rev. Edward J. Fegan of Rockland; Rev. Dennis McGuire of Canton; Rev. John Buckley of Cambridge; Rev. Michael Cuddahy of St. Margaret's, Dorchester, Rev. John Deagan of Dorchester Lower Mills; Rev. William T. Deasy of Randolph; Rev. Fr. O'Donnell of Avon; Rev. William Keating of Brockton; Rev. John J. Coan and Rev. Julian E. Johnstone of St. John's, Quincy; Rev. Fr. Cronin of Charlestown; Rev. John F. Cronin of Dorchester; and Rev. Fr. O'Meara of Pawtucket, R. I.

The flowers were abundant showing the esteem in which Mr. Hart was held by his many friends. The burial was in the family lot in St. Mary's cemetery, West Quincy.

A RAISE OF SALARY.

There was reported unanimously to the House of representatives Monday afternoon a bill to raise the salary of the assistant clerk of the district court of East Norfolk, though it has the form of a general act. There was a petition signed by John P. Churchill, clerk of the district court of East Norfolk, John W. McAnarney, city solicitor of Quincy, W. G. A. Pattee of Quincy, and the following, all of whom had their residence set down as in Quincy, Messrs. James L. Edwards, George H. Brown, Charles H. Harwick, Lawrence W. Lyons and George E. Adams. Their petition says that they "would respectfully request that an act be passed providing that the salary of the assistant clerk of such court be established." This quotation follows the introduction which notes that when the court of class E, according to the classification established in 1907 by the law which revised the court salaries all over the state, passes into class D by reason of increase of population, there is no provision for increasing the salary of the assistant clerk. The bill which the committee reported takes this language from the petition and then says that, in such a case, the salary of the assistant shall be two-thirds of that of the clerk of the same court.

There was a petition signed by John P. Churchill, clerk of the district court of East Norfolk, John W. McAnarney, city solicitor of Quincy, W. G. A. Pattee of Quincy, and the following, all of whom had their residence set down as in Quincy, Messrs. James L. Edwards, George H. Brown, Charles H. Harwick, Lawrence W. Lyons and George E. Adams. Their petition says that they "would respectfully request that an act be passed providing that the salary of the assistant clerk of such court be established." This quotation follows the introduction which notes that when the court of class E, according to the classification established in 1907 by the law which revised the court salaries all over the state, passes into class D by reason of increase of population, there is no provision for increasing the salary of the assistant clerk. The bill which the committee reported takes this language from the petition and then says that, in such a case, the salary of the assistant shall be two-thirds of that of the clerk of the same court.

An automobile race for women only, is the latest thing in the way of sporting features.

For the third time since the white man first set foot in this country Niagara is frozen over.

The youthful wireless operators have so exasperated the navy department, by interfering with official messages, that there is talk of appealing to Congress to prevent all future annoyance of this kind. Congress may legislate and legislate but it is doubtful if the boys can be prevented from sending and taking messages if they so desire.

Eleven years ago last night the battleship Maine went down in Havana harbor, and there she still remains, a disgrace to the United States and a menace to navigation. So far no effort has been made to raise her, and remove the remains of the two-hundred and fifty men who perished with her. It is sincerely to be hoped that before another year passes, Congress will appropriate enough money to raise the wreck and give the bodies of the brave jackies a fitting burial.

The order introduced and adopted by the Council last night, calling for the appointment of an industrial committee to foster the local industries and also to endeavor to get new industries to locate here, is one step at least in the right direction.

According to the terms of the order the Council is to be represented on the committee by three members. The Citizen's Association and the Board of Trade are to be asked to appoint three members each, thus making in all a committee of nine. If the right men are appointed, and the committee pull together, much will undoubtedly be accomplished towards making Quincy what she was intended to be, a commercial city. If outside business men see that their interests are to be looked out for, and that the city is willing to offer few reasonable inducements, it will not be long before we shall see new enterprises locating here.

According to a report in the Brockton Times, Edward B. Mellen of the Brockton Board of trade has within a few days held correspondence with Congressman William C. Lovering regarding inland waterways. The correspondence which the Times prints in full, is in regard to certain bills now pending in Congress and which if passed will probably mean the assistance of the Government in digging the Brockton ship canal. In his letter to Congressman Lovering, Mr. Mellen after pointing out the benefits the country would derive from the development of inland waterways, closes by saying "May I ask that you kindly advise me as to your general attitude with reference to the improvement of waterways by the national government."

Congressman Lovering in his reply says he has always been in favor of the improvement of the they waterways and highways by the national government. Therefore it is self evident that he will vote in favor of the bills when they come up.

EDITORIAL COMMENTS.

M. Philippe Bunau-Varilla, who arrived on the steamship Provence at New York on Saturday and is to speak before the Commercial Club in this city on the Panama situation, declares that the Gatun dam "will result in the greatest disaster of any public work in modern times—probably that the world has ever seen."

On the other hand, Mr. Taft returns from his visit of inspection confident of the wisdom of the present plan and enthusiastic over the prospect of successful completion of the undertaking along the lines upon which it is projected. The engineer of the old French company is further antagonized by the opinion of Colonel Goethals, chief engineer and chairmar of the Isthmian Canal Commission, who declares the conditions to be "entirely satisfactory."

Laymen may prudently hold their opinions in abeyance in the conflict of such high authorities in such direct and emphatic form. The practical point to be considered as the affair stands is that the President is in administrative charge of the construction of the canal, and that when he declares his confidence in a lock canal as perferable to a tide level canal, it means that the lock system will be maintained.—Boston Post.

Six men faced New York city courts in one day charged with homicide in various degrees. Twelve small boys arrested in a Rhode Island community as the result of a discovery that the urchins of the place were carrying loaded revolvers. Murders more frequent in this country than in any other civilized land on earth. Suicides and "suicide pacts" growing more frequent every day. These are some of the things which make thoughtful men wonder if the present laws do not need to be overhauled and the free and easy sale of weapons stopped. Today there is absolutely no check upon the purchase of revolvers or long bladed knives.

The laws against carrying concealed weapons are ridiculous from the very fact that the weapons are "concealed." They are about as effective as a law would be prohibiting thinking. Whenever a suggestion is made that the sale be more restricted a cry goes up that the state is interfering too much with a man's personal liberty. If a man has a good reason for wanting to own or carry a weapon he should not object to registering that fact with some competent city official and receiving a certificate entitling him to make the purchase. This would stop hundreds of shootings which rise from hot blood over trivial matters. The promiscuous carrying of weapons provides a constant temptation to use them. Human life in this country is too cheap already. Anything to make it safer should be encouraged.—Brockton Times.

The American battleship fleet is now within wireless communication of the home shores it will reach the Capes of Virginia in another week, and it will find awaiting it such a reception as it has not known anywhere on all its wonderful tour; for it will be a welcome home.

Whatever may have been said or thought of the fleet's globe-girdling tour when it sailed from these shores fourteen months ago, there seems but one opinion now; that is, that the trip was a splendid thing for the material, the personnel, the discipline, the men and the traditions of the navy. Beyond that, it was an announcement to the rest of the world that the United States was prepared to assume and maintain first rank among naval powers. It was declaration of our purpose to be a factor in affairs of the Pacific, as is not only right but our duty to vast interests there.

The world has been surprised and pleased at the evidence of the power of the new western nation. It has accepted the United States as one of the inner circle of great powers. There will be no further questioning, for instance, of the United States' right of primacy in the new world; no more uncertainties about whether this nation means to adhere to the Monroe doctrine, or is able to back it.

The United States has done much to make the other countries of the Americas understand her attitude and intentions. It has done more still to make the world know both her power and her pacific intentions. President Roosevelt has been the friend to more rulers than any American President ever was before; and he has performed the greatest act of international ceremony and comity that ever was undertaken by any nation. The fleet has presented our cards at the front doors of the world; they have been received with enthusiasm and good will.

Beyond all this, the tour has demonstrated the excellence of everything in the navy. There has been no accident worthy the name. Men and ships have alike behaved admirably. Everywhere the fleet went it would be more welcome if it should return. And as it comes home after the record-making trip, it deserves what it will receive, a royal welcome home.—Boston Journal.

MEET TODAY TO TALK ON TARIFF

National Convention Opened in Indianapolis

DELEGATES FROM ALL PARTIES

Gathering Is Non-Partisan, Its Purpose Being Not the Discussion of Rates, but the Appointment of a Commission to Study the Tariff Question—Prominent Men Among Speakers—Roosevelt Interested

Indianapolis, Feb. 16.—The selection and appointment of a tariff commission, not to fix rates, but to ascertain facts as a basis for the fixing of rates by congress, is the purpose of the national tariff convention which began in this city today. The convention will be in session three days, during which all phases of the tariff question will receive thorough discussion.

CHARLES N. FOWLER.

There are more than 2000 delegates to the convention, which was called by the National Association of Manufacturers and other large commercial bodies. According to James W. Van Cleave, the president of the association, it is "the first national gathering ever held for the express purpose of promoting the movement for comprehensive, scientific tariff revision."

The convention is non-partisan, and among the delegates are men of all shades of political belief. The committee in charge has declared that its purpose is not the discussion of protection, free trade or tariff revision. Its object is declared to be "the urging of reform in the methods pursued in determining schedules, and the discussion of schedules themselves is foreign to its purpose. The committee stands for the tariff commission plan and believes it is one of the greatest reforms in which the country can at this time interest itself."

Among the speakers who will address the convention are Representative Charles N. Fowler of New Jersey, Senator Norris Brown of Nebraska, Senator Owen of Oklahoma, Senator Beveridge of Indiana, Director John Barrett of the bureau of American republics, Charles P. Neill, federal labor commissioner; Aaron Jones, master of the national grange; former Governor Guild of Massachusetts, and Representative Ransdell of Louisiana. Mr. Fowler will take a leading part in the discussions of the convention. His principal address will be on "Tariff Changes by Evolution Instead of Revolution."

In declining an invitation to attend the convention President Roosevelt declared that he did not intend to interfere in a question which would be settled by his successor. The president added that he had expressed himself in favor of the proposed commission several times.

SUNK BY EARTHQUAKE

Beggs Rocks, Once Fifty Feet High, Now Barely Covered With Water

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 16.—Beggs rocks, situated in the oustide channel between Santa Barbara and San Nicholas Islands, have sunk into the ocean, probably as the result of an earthquake, and now constitute a serious menace to navigation.

The rocks, which are charted as showing fifty feet above high tide, are but four feet above the water at almost low tide. The hydrographic office in San Francisco has been advised.

THE INCOME QUESTION.

Mrs. Mary L. Wade of Atlantic, who spoke on "The Apportionment of Income," before the Whitman Woman's club last week, made many valuable suggestions, and said, in part:

"Not until recent years have men made a study of how to spend money after it has been produced, and as women are the chief spenders, (for through their hands go most of the money that is spent for the home and family expenses,) they should be educated for their work in life. Women should look upon homemainkg as a profession and the woman who takes up this profession, needs the most complete education and training to enable her to use, and to impart to others her knowledge.

"It is a misfortune when the experience and knowledge has all got to be obtained after marriage and it is not fair to any man. No more than it would be fair to a woman for a man to marry with nothing to support a family on and expect to get his training afterward. So often when young people are to be married, the question is asked, 'Can your support a family?' Yet one rarely hears the question. 'Can she spend his wages properly and make a home for the family?'

"A suggestive division of the income was given for an ideal family of two adults and two or three children, allowing 20 per cent for rent, 15 per cent for operating expenses, 25 per cent for food, 15 per cent for clothing, 25 per cent for higher life.

"The factors to be taken into account, governing the expense of housing a family are the sanitary condition, accessibility to business, neighborhood, etc.

"A home must mean more than four walls. It must be an outer garment as it were showing the taste and cultivation of those enjoying it.

"After a comfortable home has been established, it must be warmed, lighted, kept clean and in repair.

"Mrs. Richards says: 'It requires the same far-sighted business sense to govern the expenses, if the family is to find profit in the life lived there, as to run a railroad for the benefit of the public. Ignorance and parsimony should not peril the health or comfort, mentally or bodily, of the family. No future of the income can bring so much comfort and none so difficult to spend wisely.' The amount of service required to keep anything in running order must always be taken into account when summing up the actual cost.

"Good health depends upon the food supply and nothing can take its place in the human economy, therefore a poor man is justified if he spends two-thirds of his income in food.

"As the income increases, the smaller the per cent which is necessary to spend for food, for a person with a large income needs no more food than a person with a small one, and very often his tastes are much simpler. In no other department of household expenditure is there so great an opportunity for the exercise of knowledge and skill with so good results for pocket and health.

"Not until women realize how much the food one eats has to do with one's efficiency and one's earning power, will it receive the attention it merits.

"Let the housewives once be thoroughly aroused to this question and there will not be teachers enough to teach all the classes that will be formed. Not to teach some new dish but the proper preparation of those already known, and how to buy and serve that nothing will be wasted. Some think that women could set themselves to finer tasks, but what finer task is there for a woman, than to make fit bodies for the indwelling of the soul. It were better to leave the parlor untenanted, the library unvisited, than to neglect the kitchen, for verily out of it are the issues of life.

"When we speak of the subject of clothes, we touch a very tender spot in women. The cost of the clothing like the cost of the home is very apt to be regulated by the impression we wish to make on others, rather than whether it is fitted to our needs. One should have clothing which should be a protection from the heat and cold, firstly, and we should also endeavor to make our outer garments a means of contributing to the pleasure of others. When a garment does not protect us from the changes of temperature or meet the aesthetical needs of the mind, it has no excuse for being.

"Under the expenses for the higher life are church expenses, charities, entertainments, insurance, savings, doctors, dentists, etc. These are as much actual needs as the others. One should form the habit of choosing those things that endure, not the things which give but a moment's gratification.

"One of the best provisions made for a family of children is a liberal education, and surrounding them at the impressionable age with objects which will lead them to choose the best things life has to offer.

"There is far more money earned in the majority of families than there is wisely spent."—Whitman Times.

OPEN WAR ON MURPHY

Herrmann and Pulliam on the Trail of Chicago Baseball Magnate

Chicago, Feb. 16.—The meeting of the national baseball commission which began in this city today is expected to prove one of the most sensational episodes in the history of the game. The announced purpose of the meeting is the giving out of the playing schedules and the consideration of other matters of interest to the fans, but the scrap between Garry Herrmann and Harry Pulliam on the one hand and Charlie Murphy on the other will claim almost all the public attention.

The dislike of Herrmann and Pulliam for Murphy is a matter of history, and they have now declared open war on the Chicago magnate. As Herrmann is chairman of the national commission that runs professional baseball and Pulliam is president of the National league and, as such, boss of Murphy, they can make things interesting for the Chicago man. They declare that his offer of a bonus of $10,000 to his team for winning the world's pennant was a bluff and also accuse him of being mixed up in the ticket scalping scandal here last fall. Pulliam says he has inside information about the row between Murphy and his manager, Frank Chance, and will divulge it. Murphy has declared his intention of fighting back, and there is every prospect of a lovely row.

RIOT NARROWLY AVERTED

Raiders Descend on "Blind Tigers" Which Have National Reputation

Williamsburg, Ky., Feb. 16.—The "blind tiger" kepeers who have been evading arrest by legal technicalities on the Kentucky-Tennessee border line in Whitley county were raided by Sheriff Crawley and deputies, County Attorney Steely and private detectives. Seventeen men and three women were captured.

Pistols were drawn and a bloody riot was narrowly averted. The "blind tigers" have a national reputation, the buildings being half in Tennessee and half in Kentucky, with counters running parallel with the state line.

The keepers, many of whom have grown immensely wealthy, sell Tennessee people whisky from the Kentucky side, while the Kentucky keepers sell from the Tennessee side, thereby evading processes of each state.

DRUGGISTS ENTER STRONG PROTEST

Declare Statements of Licensing Board Are Unwarranted

Worcester, Mass., Feb. 16.—Criticisms of Boston druggists by the licensing board of that city on the ground that their business is closely related to the liquor traffic are warmly resented by the Massachusetts State Pharmaceutical association, which has sent a formal protest to Governor Draper.

The association replies in detail to statements made by the board, regarding the board's charge that "as compared with the methods of many druggists the conduct of the majority of the so-called saloon keepers is highly commendable." The association says:

"There is not a fraction of a fact in the whole report of the board that warrants such a statement. It is simply a gratuitous insult to the druggists of Boston and a bid for the good will of the saloon keepers."

Species of Black Plague Sweeps Over Canadian Village

Montreal, Feb. 16.—A species of black plague which defies the medical authorities has the village of La Prairie in its grip.

The village has 1100 inhabitants and fully 10 per cent are down with the disease. Two deaths have occurred.

The symptoms are a swelling and turning black of the tongue, accompanied by a splitting headache. While resembling diphtheria, it is much more virulent.

Berlin Ripper Still Busy

Berlin, Feb. 16.—Five more attacks were made upon women last evening in the eastern suburbs, which brought the day's total up to seven and the aggregate to twenty, since the beginning of these vicious assaults a few days ago. One of the women was seriously wounded, but the injuries of the others were slight.

CHEMISTS FIND ARSENIC

Examined Stomachs of Four of the Kelliher Children

MOTHER IS UNDER ARREST

Investigation of Seven Deaths of Insured Members of Her Family Conducted While She Was In Jail on Charge of Setting Fire to Dwelling House—Results of Analysis Will Be Submitted to the Grand Jury

Cambridge, Mass., Feb. 16.—It has been learned definitely that arsenic was found in the stomachs of four of the children of Mrs. Mary Kelliher of Somerville, in whose family seven deaths of insured persons occurred within a few years. Mrs. Kelliher has been in jail for several months, charged with setting fire to a dwelling house where she was employed as a domestic.

The Harvard medical school chemists, who some time ago reported that they found traces of arsenic in the stomach of Catherine Kelliher, the 12-year-old daughter of the prisoner, have submitted partial reports to the Middlesex county authorities, stating that the analysis disclosed the same poison in the stomachs of William, Mary and Annie Kelliher, whose bodies were exhumed last month.

A consultation of state and county officials who have been investigating the case since last fall was held at the office of District Attorney Higgins Monday. The results of the analysis of the physicians who attended the children during their illness will be submitted to the grand jury, which will convene at Lowell on March 1.

Mrs. Kelliher maintains that she has no knowledge of the cause of the deaths, beyond the returns made by the physicians at the time that they died of natural causes.

LYMAN ON "JOURNALISM"

Editor Points Out That the Newspaper Has Become Indispensable

New Haven, Feb. 16.—That the newspaper is here to stay because it is indespensable, and that anyone thinking of entering upon such work should not engage in such work unadvisedly nor lightly, but reverently, discreetly, advisedly, soberly and in the fear of God, were statements made by Hart Lyman, editor of the New York Tribune, in the first of the Bromley lectures on "Journalism" at Yale. Mr. Lyman reviewed briefly the beginning of journalism in England and spoke of conditions in France to support the statement that, contrary to a shallow assumption, literature and journalism go hand in hand. He said that the newspaper is here not only to stay but to multiply.

GIRLS TRIED TOKISS HIM

Youth Struggled to Get Away and Met With Fatal Accident

New York, Feb. 16.—While endeavoring to elude a bevy of girl stenographers who sought to kiss him in honor of his 15th birthday, George S. Millett was the victim of an odd accident in the offices of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company.

The lad, struggling to escape the embraces of the girls, accidentally fell to the floor and an ink eraser in his pocket pierced his side above the heart. He died from internal hemorrhage. The girls became panic-stricken when they saw that the boy was hurt.

The police detained Miss Gertrude Robbins, a stenographer, to obtain information concerning Millett's death.

REDUCTION IN POSTAGE

Rate Between Newfoundland and United States to Be One Penny

St. John's, Feb. 16.—Penny postage between the United States and Newfoundland will become a reality on March 1, the Washington cabinet having agreed to the reduction. The postage has hitherto been 5 cents.

The reform is said to be due largely to Dr. Wilfred Grenfell, the Labrador missionary, who, when in Washington recently, made representations in the subject to President Roosevelt and Postmaster General Meyer.

Suicide With Laudanum

North Adams, Mass., Feb. 16.—Frozen stiff and deeply imbedded in ice, the body of Herbert L. Maynard was found, with a bottle of laudanum by its side, behind a billboard. No reason is known here for Maynard's suicide. He has been engaged in clerical work.

No One Hurt In Collision

Boston, Feb. 16.—A derailed engine and slippery rails were responsible for the collision of two passenger trains near Mt. Bowdoin station in this city. An engine pilot and a rear platform of a passenger coach were damaged, but no one was injured.

Pensions For Old Professors

New Haven, Feb. 16.—At the February meeting of the Yale corporation the resignations of Professors Sumner, Richards, Perrin and Wright were accepted. Three have reached the age limit of 65 years and they will all retire on pensions.

$10,000 AIRSHIP PRIZE.

Wide interest in both Europe and America has been attracted by the New York World's $10,000 airship prize for the person who duplicates in the air in a mechanically propelled airship the trip of Robert Fulton's first steamboat from New York to Albany a century ago.

This is the first prize of importance offered in America. There have been a dozen or more entries already. A Clement-Bayard air yacht is to be brought over from Paris to compete. Capt. Thomas S. Baldwin, the veteran aeronaut, is building a new dirigible especially for the contest. The Wright brothers have cabled from Paris asking for the conditions of entry.

There is every prospect that the contest will be a great success. The spectacle of eight or ten huge dirigibles rising from New York Harbor and heading for Albany will be a sight never to be forgotten.

—The steam trawler Spray, once regarded along the waterfront as a newfangled idea from the British isles that didn't cut much of a figure so far as dividends went, has "found herself," as the saying goes; and Capt. Michael Green, her skipper, is looked up to as one of the biggest men in the T wharf fleet. "Mike," as the big fellow is known along the coast, has succeeded in coaxing the rusty, homely steamer into a condition of such docility that she makes about two trips a week to Georges and brings home anywhere from 50,000 to 70,000 pounds of market fish. Fast trips at this season are unusual owing to severe weather, but the skipper and crew of the Spray appear to be out for a record.

WHAT THE KIDNEYS DO.

Their Unceasing Work Keeps Us Strong and Healthy.

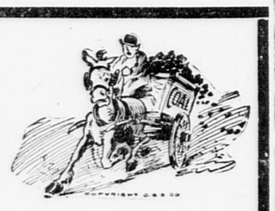

All the blood in the body passes through the kidneys once every three minutes. The kidneys filter the blood They work night and day. When healthy they remove about 500 grains of impure matter daily. When unhealthy some part of this impure matter is left in the blood. This brings on many diseases and symptoms—pain in the back, headache, nervousness, hot dry skin, rheumatism, gout, gravel, disorders of the eyesight and hearing, dizziness, irregular heart, debility, drowsiness, dropsy, deposits in the urine, etc. But if you keep the filters right you will have no trouble with your kidneys.

Mrs. Deborah Prouty, living at 85 North St., Quincy, Mass., says: "I am in a position to speak in the highest terms of Doan's Kidney Pills. My back ached nearly all the time and caused me considerable trouble. Any sudden movement, or if I attempted to stoop, sent sharp pains, through my loins. My health was much run down and I had but little strength or energy. I was very much alarmed about my condition when Doan's Kidney Pills were recommended to me. I had known so many people who had used them with beneficial results that I procured a supply at the Cox Drug Store. Three boxes convinced me that Doan's Kidney Pills were the best kidney remedy to be had and I am now in perfect health."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

SEVERE RUSSIAN RULE

Said to Almost Exclude Authority of the Chinese In Manchuria

Washington, Feb. 16.—While watching with deep interest the situation at Harbin, Manchuria, where complaints of the severity of the Russian administration, almost to the exclusion of Chinese authority, are made, the state department has not felt called upon to take any recent action.

State department officials say that the task the Russians have is a big one, comparative in some respects with that existing in the earlier days of the United States on the western frontier, which makes necessary, at times, police measures of great severity.

The American government will continue to exert its good offices to the end that China's treaty rights shall be observed and the integrity of her territory maintained.

TO RAID COMMONS

Suffragettes Respond to Call For Volunteers For "Danger Duty"

London, Feb. 16.—If the suffragettes have planned any novel demonstration for the re-opening of parliament today, as has been rumored, they are keeping their plans a close secret. The leaders promise only that they will do nothing to annoy the king or disturb the royal procession.

A hint of something afoot came from Glasgow last night, where, at an enthusiastic meeting of suffragettes, a ready response was made to a call for volunteers for "danger duty" to help raid the house of commons.

A large number of women announced ther readiness to undergo a six months' term in prison for the cause. They were immediately escorted by hundreds of sympathizers to the midnight train for London.

LIFE IMPRISONMENT FOR NEGRESS

Court Accepts Her Plea of Second Degree Murder

Taunton, Mass., Feb. 16.—A sentence of life imprisonment at the Sherborn reformatory for women was imposed in the superior court on Hattie Simmons, a negress, who shot and killed Henry P. Simmons at New Bedford last fall.

The woman was under indictment for murder in the first degree, but the court accepted her plea of guilty of second degree murder.

The woman is 40 years old. She says she had always lived with Simmons, thinking him unmarried, but she learned that he had a wife, and although Simmons promised to get a divorce and marry her, he did not do so. Jealous of his attentions to other women and because of his brutal treatment of her, she went to a barge on which he was employed in New Bedford harbor, and, enticing him into a launch with her, fired a revolver bullet into his head. Simmons was killed instantly. The woman jumped overboard, but was rescued.

RECEPTION TO ROOSEVELT

Members of Grace Reformed Church Bid the President Farewell

Washington, Feb. 16.—In the Grace Reformed church, which he has attended ever since he has been in Washington, President Roosevelt was given a farewell reception by the members of the congregation.

He spoke briefly of the pleasure he had found in attending the services there and referred to the fact that he had not been absent from a single communion service when he was in the city. He then shook hands with all present. The little church was filled.

The service closed with the singing of the president's favorite hymn, "How Firm a Foundation."

PROHIBITION KNOCKED OUT

Local Option Forces Have Their Way In South Carolina

Columbia, S. C., Feb. 16.—After a sensational filibuster, lasting several days, it appears that prohibition has been killed in this state. The senate has a majority of four for local option and the house is equally as close. The local option forces in the house are well organized to demand rollcalls on hundreds of amendments.

The general assembly will adjourn Saturday, which means that the prohibition movement will fail.

Young Coaster Fatally Hurt

Springfield, Mass., Feb. 16.—Losing control of his sled while coasting, John J. Keating, Jr., of Indian Orchard, aged 5 years, slid over an embankment and struck the engine of a passing train, receiving fatal injuries. His skull was crushed.

Statehood Bill Passed

Washington, Feb. 16.—The long struggle of Arizona and New Mexico was rewarded, so far as the house of representatives is concerned, when that body unanimously passed the bill granting separate statehood to the two territories.

Berlin's Army of Unemployed

Berlin, Feb. 16.—A house-to-house census shows a total of unemployed persons in Berlin of 67,367, in addition to 33,933 unemployed in the suburbs.

WEYMOUTH

The funeral of John E. Mann took place from his home on Fairmount avenue yesterday afternoon and was attended by many of the friends and late business associates of the deceased. South Shore Commandery Knights Templars attended in a body and a delegation was present from the Masonic lodge in Walpole of which the deceased was a member. There were many beautiful floral tributes. The service was conducted by Rev. Emery L. Bradford pastor of the Congregational church. The ritual of South Shore commandery was performed by eminent commander Fay, assisted by prelate Gardner Barker. The remains were taken to Walpole today for interment in the family lot and a guard of honor from South Shore Commandery consisting of T. John Evans, George Farrar, George Cushing and Fred Bates accompanied the remains.

At the whist party of Delphi lodge Knights of Pythias the prizes were won by Mrs. A. J. Durker, Mrs. Mary Flint, Mrs. Alice Pratt, Charles Orr, Jacob Dexheimer, Jr., and R. B. Cochrane.

BY DRAFTING A NEW RULE

House Committee on Rules Saves the Knox Bill

DEFEAT TURNED INTO VICTORY

Constitutional Hindrance to Acceptance by Knox of State Portfolio Removed by Passage of a Bill Under Special Rule After It Had Been Defeated Because of Failure of Two-Thirds Vote

Washington, Feb. 16.—By a vote of 173 to 117, the house passed the bill removing Senator Knox's disability for the office of secretory of state. This was the second vote of the day on this measure, and the two were separated only by about two hours' time. Te bill reduces the salary of the secretary of state.

The first vote was taken on the bill under general order for the suspension of the rules, and under that order, according to the rules of the house, a bill must receive a two-thirds majority to insure its passage. The first vote stood 179 to 123, the majority thus falling considerably below the two-thirds requirement.

Immediately after this result was announced the house committee on rules held a meeting, which resulted in Mr. Dalzell's bringing in a rule making it in order for the house again to take up the bill and act upon it under conditions requiring only a majority vote to pass it.

The opponents of the measure did not cease their antagonism which, on the previous consideration, was productive of a number of sharp criticisms, but immediately demanded a rollcall on the previous question on the adoption of the rule. This call consumed twenty-five minutes and after the rule had been adopted the debate was resumed.

Mr. Olmsted (Pa.) contended that the bill did not accomplish an evasion of the constitution. Among several other precedents Olmsted cited the case of Senator Morrill, who was appointed secretary of the treasury.

In the opinion of Mr. Williams (Miss.), who opposed the bill, that was the only reputable authority alluded to. Morrill, he said, was confirmed by senatorial courtesy which, he said, "overrides all bars, constitutional and otherwise." The bill, he declared, was "a clear, plain, palpable, obvious and manifest case of a direct and expressed constitutional inhibition."

Mr. Clark (Mo.), for the second time during the day, took the floor in opposition to the bill and said that congress was making itself "the laughing stock of every intelligent man on the face of God's green earth." He referred to a famous expression by the late Tim Campbell of New York, who had said "What's the constitution between friends," and said that if the bill under discussion was passed Campbell would stand justified as a constitutional lawyer.

In speaking against the bill, Mr. Caulfield (Mo.) declared that it was a constitutional jugglery of legislative favoritism.

The debate was brought to close by Mr. De Armond (Mo.), who argued for the passage of the bill. On a yea and nay vote, the bill was passed, 173 to 117. There was no demonstration of any kind when the announcement was made.

VIGNAUD TO LEAVE OFFICE

Americans Raise Fund of 2$0,000 to Help the Old Diplomat

Paris, Feb. 16.—Henry Vignaud, secretary of the American embassy at Paris, has resigned. In a letter which he has forwarded to President Roosevelt Vignaud assigns as the reason for his decision his advanced age.

Vignaud, who is 79 years of age and the oldest member of the American diplomatic corps abroad, leaves the service highly esteemed by all who know him. As he is without private fortune, a group of prominent Americans have come forward and raised a fund of $20,000 to provide for his remaining years.

VAST CROWD INTERESTED

New York Motor Boat Show Opens Under Auspicious Circumstances

New York, Feb. 16.—Fully 10,000 amateurs of motor boating and water sports attended the national motor boat show, which opened here last night and will continue until Feb. 23.

Nearly 200 exhibitors have space and every type of motor boat, from motor yachts 100 feet in length to eight or ten feet dingeys equipped with "kicker" engines of three or four horse power, are on show.

A Loan of $70,000,000

Vienna, Feb. 16.—Austria-Hungary will shortly issue a $70,000,000 loan at 4 per cent in order to prepare for any contingency with regard to Servia. This fund will be applied to the replenishing of the war treasury.

Hitchcock a Bankrupt

New York, Feb. 16.—Raymond Hitchcock, the act[illegible], filed a petition in bankruptcy in the United States district court. He gives his liabilities as $28,294, unsecured, and his assets as $16.

QUINCY LOCALS BRIEFLY TOLD

Junior Friday club meets tomorrow afternoon with Mrs. Jesse I. Litchfield of Wollaston.

Fragment society of First church hold an all day sewing bee Wednesday in the church parlor.

Gordon H. Gannett of New York is rapidly convalescing from scarlet fever and is expected in Wollaston the 22d.

It was almost necessary to wear spikes on shoes this morning to keep from sitting down unceremoniously in a puddle of water.

The Order of Eastern Star held its regular meeting Monday evening in Electa hall. After the business meeting dancing was enjoyed and refreshments served.

Mrs. Rachel Winship and Miss Ella F. Winship of Newton street have returned from Tewksbury where they spent the week end with Mrs. P. Warren Cameron.

The Conversational club meets on Wednesday afternoon at three o'clock with Miss Ethel Babcock of Presidents hill. Mrs. Babcock will speak on the three Geramn poets; Goethe, Heine and Schiller.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cook of Somerville, (nee Ethel Hill of Walker street,) received a most welcome valentine last Sunday in the shape of an infant son. Congratulations are in order.

Card tables will be provided next Friday evening at the Civic Betterment ball for those who do not care to dance. The sale of tickets has rivalled that of last year and everything is being done to make the party as pretty a one as possible.

The "last social before Lent" of the Bachelor girls was held on Monday evening in Protection hall, Johnson building. There was an entertainment during the evening, intermingled with dancing. Refreshments were served by the club members during the evening.

The lighthouse tender, Verbena, which has been undergoing repairs at Quincy, left here Monday afternoon. She went to Green's yard in Chelsea, where she will be hauled out and receive new sea valves, repairs to her rudder and be caulked and coppered. She will go to her station in New Bedford.

Mr. Harry W. Read will be in charge of the dancing at the Atlantic Assembly on Friday evening, assisted by Clifford Bean and Frederic Kolb. The ushers will be Charles E. Cherrington, Frank E. Emery, Walter P. Hill, Ralph W. Hobbs, William A. Johnson, Cecil H. Marble, George F. Sawyer, Jr., Henry Von Finden and Williams Ward Whitcher.

The Westland quartette, which is well known and has been pleasurably listened to in both Quincy and Atlantic, will celebrate their first birthday at the second annual reunion of the Isles of Shoals Unitarian Summer meetings to be held on February 22d. Just a year ago, the quartette made their initial public appearance at this reunion in Boston.

Meeting of the City Conncil

der for a committee of three and that the clerk request the Board of Trade and Citizen's Association to appoint a like committee who should form an industrial committee to consider plans for fostering present industries and to encourage new industries to locate here. Adopted.

Upon motion of Councilman Bryant the resolve for a committee of three to consider the advisability of revising the charter was taken from the table and adopted.

Adjourned at 9.43 until March 1.

The Observations In the Daily Walk

The no school signal was rung at 11.30 for one session of the schools.

The degree staff of Mt. Wollaston lodge will work the second degree on three candidates tonight.

The dance order for the Elks' ball Wednesday evening will be one of the handsomest ever used in Quincy.

The Granite City club has voted to hold its annual banquet. The date for the affair has not been fixed as yet.

It is fortunate there was not six inches of snow on the ground with this rain, or there would be six inches of slush for pedestrians to wade through.

The Afternoon Bridge club met Monday afternoon with Mrs. Arthur Jordan of Atlantic street. Prizes will be awarded at the final meeting in June to those having highest scores. Refreshments were served. The next meeting will be with Miss Marion Vogler of Botolph street on March 1st.

The second degree staff of Mt. Wollaston lodge, I. O. O. F., visited the Wildley lodge of South Weymouth on Monday night and worked the second degree. The staff was accompanied by forty local Odd Fellows who went and returned by special car. After the degree work was over, a collation was served, followed by speeches by several officers.

TODAY'S COURT.

Timothy Shaughnessey was fined $10. W. H. Burns and John McFadden $5 each for drunkenness at Quincy.

Henry Langenen was fined $15 for neglecting to send his children to school at Randolph.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Tom Murphy's Fare.

[Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.]

Tom Murphy, a cabman, sat dozing on his box before the St. Charles hotel in New Orleans. It was near midnight, and there were few people passing. As a town clock struck 12 the cabman felt a touch on his shoulder. About that touch there was something singular—very singular. It was as if the finger that tapped his shoulder was an icicle and at every tap was driven deep into the flesh, distributing over the body a deathly chill. Starting up, the cabman saw a young man beside him with a narrow box about a yard long under his arm. He was dressed peculiarly. He wore a beaver hat very high in the crown, a stiff high shirt collar, a coat with brass buttons, small in the waist and flowing in the skirt; pantaloons skin tight and strapped down over his boots. Without a word the fare stepped into the cab, saying as he did so:

"The oaks."

The oaks were a grove situated on the outskirts of the city where in antebellum days, when New Orleans was a hotbed for duels, the bloods of the town were accustomed to settle their disputes. The cabman knew very well where it was and, threading his way till he came to the shell road, traversed it till he drew up under the branches of one of its great trees. The gentleman stepped out and, with the injunction to the cabman to wait where he was, still carrying the box under his arm, plunged into the heart of the grove.

"Well, Oi'll be jinged!" remarked the cabman as he watched the retreating figure. "Oi've seen a pictur' o' that fella somewheres, and I can't tell where." It was on a fashion plate in a tailor's window giving styles for 1830. "Look at the fuzzy yellow hat on him!"

While he was meditating another cab came along, passed in a hurry and turned into the grove farther on. Cabby listened to the sound of the wheels deadened by grass and fallen leaves and in a few minutes heard it no more.

His curiosity was excited. If another cabman could drive in among the oaks he could. Touching his horse with his whip, he turned in between the trees, proceeding cautiously. But it was dark in there, and he soon came to a sudden stop by his front axle striking a tree. He backed out, tried it again and was coming upon an open space when he drew rein.

The full moon, which had been hidden under a thick cloud, suddenly appeared and shone upon the space referred to. Two dim figures stood in its center, while two others stood apart. At first they were all comparatively distinct, and Murphy could see the central figures, each putting himself in an attitude of defense, as if about to fight, while the others were looking on. Then another cloud rolled over the moon, and all was dark again. But he could hear the clash of steel. Presently there was a woman's shriek, and all was still.

Murphy felt all the horror he experienced when his fare touched him on the shoulder. Jumping down from his box, he ran a short distance, then, pulling himself together, went back, and, taking his horse by the bridle, got him out to the tree under which he had stood. Remounting his box, he sat waiting, crossing himself and mumbling Paternosters and Ave Marias. He was there perhaps ten minutes when he heard the sound of approaching wheels, and when they came near, the moon again appearing from behind a cloud, he saw a carriage pass in which were two people, one a lady, young and beautiful. By her side, her arms about him and his head resting on her shoulder, was a young man on whose face the moon shining showed it to be white as death and under his open vest blood on his shirt front. Her costume was peculiar, especially in her headgear, which was a bonnet, an article Murphy had never seen. They passed like a flash, and he was recalled to himself by his fare opening the cab door and uttering the single word:

"Back!"

The cabman drove to the city and up to the steps of the St. Charles hotel. He supposed that the gentleman who had not thus far troubled him to open the cab door for him would alight of himself. After waiting a moment, hearing no movement within his cab, he got down from the box and opened the door. Still hearing no sound, he peered into the darkness, but could see nothing. He had been shivering all the way home and now did not dare to put his head inside his cab. The idea that there was no one there was appalling. But, being at last convinced there was not, he poked with his whip handle. It met no resistance except from the cushions.

There is one ruling passion in us all—self interest. Allied to this is a dislike at being beaten out of our honest dues. The moment Murphy began to recover from his horror he exclaimed:

"The spalpeen! Ghost or flesh and blood, he's a beat."

The next day Murphy told his adventure to his fellow cabmen and was laughed at. But one day he told it to an old gentleman who often employed him. The gentleman took him into his home and showed him a portrait. It was the young man he had driven to the oaks.

"He was my son," said the old gentleman. "Years ago he fought with a rival. The lady in question appeared on the ground and interrupted the duel, but not before my son was killed and his rival wounded."

AMONG THE SPORTS.

Tufts college will send a track team to compete with Holy Cross and Trinity in the inter-collegiate events at the naval brigade meet at Hartford, Conn., next Friday. For the last two years Tufts has carried off the honors at this meet, securing the most points in the events open to the colleges.

The signed contract of catcher Ed Spencer was received yesterday at the Boston American league headquarters. Spencer is spending the winter at his home in Elmhurst, a short distance from Scranton, Penn., from where he writes to say that he will meet the team one week from next Thursday as the men pass through Philadelphia.

Melrose high and Milton academy hockey teams battled for 40 minutes at the Cunningham rink, Milton, yesterday afternoon and neither scored a point. Besides the two regular periods, an overtime one of five minutes was played.

The ice was not in good condition.

Devereux, Felton and Pratt played well for Milton, and Jones, Nickerson and N. McDonald for the visitors.

The Dartmouth-Harvard hockey game, which was postponed from Saturday, could not be played yesterday on account of lack of ice. The Dartmouth team has returned to Hanover and the game will be played in the St. Nicholas rink in New York next Monday evening. That being Washington's birthday the two teams will be allowed to make the trip without interference with the athletic associations.

Tris Speaker, the fleet-footed coverer of the Boston Red Sox middle garden writes that he is taking things down among his friends in the Lone Star state, where he first learned to play ball. He says he is in fair condition and will be all ready when the bell rings.

The Harvard battery candidates started work yesterday in the baseball cage on Soldier's field. Christy Mathewson of the New York Giants took charge of the hopeful twirlers and backstops and gave them a few pointers about the game.

The Harvard crew has lost her captain and one of her best oarsmen by the resignation of "Bill" Severance. Ill health is the cause of the resignation. E. C. Cutler has been elected to succeed Severance as captain and the choice seems favorable to everyone.

Dorando Pietri, the little Italian Marathoner, last night defeated a relay team of three men in a 15-mile race, in Louisville, Ky. Dorando's time for the distance was one hour 27 minutes, 42 seconds over a 12 lap track.

The Rock Ridge school basket ball five is to take a trip to New York this week and next, playing some of the fast schoolboy fives of that section. The first game will be Friday with the Brunswick school of Greenwich, Conn.

VALENTINE SUPPER AND DANCE

St. Margarets Guild Holds Last Social Before Lent

The annual valentine supper given by the St. Margarets Guild of Christ church was held Tuesday evening in the parish house. Over 100 were present and a very pleasant evening was spent. The supper was served at 6.30 by Henry Furnald, the club caterer; and was pronounced one of the best ever served.

After the supper the tables were cleared and a social hour spent, intermingled with an entertainment, which consisted of piano solos by that sterling player Professor Frank Wrigley; soprano solos by Miss Margaret Bates of Providence, R. I., and readings by Miss Hazel Jennings of the Emerson school of oratory.

At the conclusion of the entertainment dancing was in order until 11 o'clock, Mrs. Ellie Rhines furnishing the music.

The committee in charge of the affair was, Mrs. Byron C. Miller, chairman, Mrs. I. E. Dimmick, Miss Louise G. Mandigo, Miss Ruth P. Gardner, Miss Olive A. Smith, Miss Robina D. Hall, Miss Nellie M. Drummond, Miss Annie M. Smith, Miss Marion G. Mitchell and Miss Ethel T. Osborne.

VIOLET PARTY.

Mrs. George H. Brown of Farnum street entertained a few friends at a violet party Tuesday afternoon. When the guests were ushered into the dining room they found the room prettily decorated with violets and in the centre of the dining table was a handsome punch bowl the gift of her friends.

Mrs. Eugene R. Stone, Mrs. George E. Sprague, Mrs. H. A. Ellis, Mrs. P. F. Carlin, Mrs. W. E. Howes, Mrs. John Hendry, Mrs. P. M. Chase and Mrs. F. P. Mariner were present.

H. G. L. GIRLS DANCE.

The first annual dancing party of the H. G. L. girls was held Tuesday evening in Hibernian hall. Although the weather was far from being ideal, a good crowd was present to enjoy the dancing. Music was furnished by McInnes orchestra and dancing was in order from eight until one. Refreshments were served during the evening by A. J. LaCroix.

UNABLE TO FIND SCHOOLHOUSE SITE

Notning But Small Lots Available at Houghs Neck.

It is generally agreed that Houghs Neck needs a school building. The matter has been urged by the school committee and the Houghs Neck Associates have been active toward that end.

The matter has been before the City Council for some time and plans for the proposed building were obtained by the Mayor last year.

At Monday night's meeting of the City Council an order was adopted for a public hearing in relation to a suitable lot for the building. It would appear from this that the committee are having some difficulty in securing a site for the proposed building.

Houghs Neck has grown so rapidly during the past few years that there is now but little available land, excepting in small lots, large enough for the proposed school building, which will at least require 50,000 feet of land. The Cavanagh lot has been frequently mentioned as a desirable location.

This land is located on Sea street near the fire station and is used as farming property. This lot was looked at last year by the Associates but no action was taken on it.

If the Council is willing to provide a school building it seems to be up to the Houghs Neck Associates to find a suitable location that can be purchased at some figure that would not be considered prohibitive.

The public hearing on the subject will be held at the next meeting of the City Council. As this meeting is nearly two weeks away it would seem possible for the Houghs Neck Associates to dig up something tangible to offer at that time.

A SHAMEFUL RECORD.

In 1907, the property destroyed by fire in the United States amounted to the enormous total of $215,000,000 a per capita loss of $2.51, says Cement Age. Of this loss, $146,000,000 was in frame buildings, and but $68,000,000 in brick and stone. This terrible waste is not equalled by any other nation. Our per capita loss is nearly eight times that of Europe, which is reported by the National Board of Underwriters as but thirty-three cents for six leading companies. Under similar conditions, the fire loss in this country for 1907 would have been but $27,000,000 and $187,000,000 would have thus been saved. Nor is this all. The United States has the finest and most efficient fire-fighting apparatus and private fire protection in the world. Eliminating the loss to property destroyed in fires, the cost of fire protection for 1907 amounted to $241,401,442. There was paid to insurance companies in excess of what they returned as losses, $145,000,000; the fire department fully $50,000,000 and private protection systems $18,000,000. Altogether the total cost of fires in the United States during 1907 amounted to $456,486,151 of $5.34 per capita, or nearly one-half of the cost of new building construction for the same year, estimated at $1,000,000,000.

WORST STORM OF WINTER.

The storm of Tuesday night was the worst of the winter and those who were obliged to be out found it unusually disagreeable. The temperature was below the freezing point turning the fine rain into sleet which as it fell cut ones face like a knife. Fortunately the walking was not so bad although somewhat slippery.

The sleet froze to the trolley wires and as the cars passed along the constant arcing at the end of the trolley pole threw out vivid flashes. The cars were kept moving all night so that all lines were open this morning.

CELEBRATES BIRTHDAY.

Miss Ella M. Whitehead of Kemper street celebrated her fourteenth birthday Monday afternoon by entertaining a few members of her class Woodward '12. Music and games were enjoyed. Prizes were won by Miss Dasha and Miss E. Cain. Ice cream, cake, and candy were served.

Those at the party were Esther H. Dasha, Esther E. Beckford, Alice Lakin, Bertha E. Schultz, Ella L. Cain and Frances G. Cain.

BOTH TEAMS MEET DEFEAT

High School Fives Waterlooed by North Shore Boys.

The Quincy High five went to Winthrop Tuesday afternoon and were badly beaten by the North Shore boys, the score being 53 to 9. The local team was minus the services of three regulars, Howe, R. Bates and Manning being among the missing. S. Bates and Capt. Marsh were the only regulars.

Hence the teamwork was demoralized and Winthrop scored at will. LeCour and Anderson were the stars for Winthrop scoring 34 points for their team. Prout and "Stan" Bates carried off the honors for Quincy. The summary:

WINTHROP H. S.	QUINCY H. S.
LeCour, rf	lb, Marsh
Snow, lf	rb, Prout, Carlson
Taylor, c	c, Brooks
Phillips, Baker, rb	lf, S. Bates
Anderson, lb.	rf, Hogan

Score, Winthrop H. S. 53, Quincy H. S. 9. Goals from floor, LeCour 9, Anderson 8, Snow 3, Taylor 2, Phillips 2, Brooks 2, Baker, Hogan. Goals from fouls, Taylor, Marsh 2, S. Bates. Referee, Reed. Umpire, Howe. Scorer, Lakin. Timer, Hearn. Time 20m periods. Attendance 200.

Between the halves the second teams of both schools played and again the Quincy boys were defeated, this time 29 to 21. Trask and Baker excelled for Quincy, while Belcher and Margeson played best for Winthrop. The summary:

WINTHROP H. S. 21	QUINCY H. S. H. 21
Rowland rf	lb Jobin
Belcher lf	rb Marceau
Margeson c	c Baker
Somerville rb	lf Trask
Remby lb	rf Miller

Score—Winthrop 29, Quincy 21. Goals from floor Belcher 7, Margeson 3, Trask 4, Baker 2, Jobin 2, Somerville 2, Rowland 2, Marceau. Goals, from fouls Trask 3, Margeson. Referee Reed. Umpire Howe. Scorer Lakin. Timer Hearn. Time 20 m periods. Attendance 200.

—The managers and others are saying that women cause the stage to be corrupt when it is so. To be sure the Salomes, with the exception of Mr. Julian Eltinge, are women, and the other half-clads are mostly women; but it is not women who are the play producers as a rule. It would seem as though a little blame at all events attaches to managers, especially as they get and use the profits.

HOSPITAL TRUSTEES WITHOLD APPROVAL

Action on Contagious Ward Postponed Until Later.

A meeting of the trustees of the City Hospital was held Tuesday afternoon to consider the bill now before the legislature relative to a ward for contagious diseases on the City Hospital grounds.

The bill if passed would permit the city to appropriate $15,000 for the erection of a building for contagious diseases. It is understood that the maintenance of the ward thereafter would be by the hospital. This did not seem to meet the unanimous approval of the trustees.

The plan in vogue at Newton was brought up and discussed. After some further discussion the matter was referred to the sub committee on contagious ward to investigate the system in vogue and to report at another meeting of the trustees to be held in a few days.

At that meeting it will be decided whether or not the proposed bill will be favored by the trustees.

WILL REBUILD PLANT.

George D. Webb Decides to Remain in Worcester.

John R. Richards, president of the Quincy Board of Trade has been busy corresponding with the Webb Granite & Construction Co. of Worcester, trying to induce them to locate in Quincy. This firm is one of the biggest granite firms in New England and would have been a welcome addition to the granite industry in this city.

Mr. Richards wrote the firm after their plant in Worcester was burned and when it was rumored that they were looking for a new location.

This week Mr. Richards received a letter from the Webb Company stating that they had looked into the matter and considered it, but had decided to remain and build up the burned plant.

AMONG THE SPORTS.

Cy Young, the famous pitcher of the Red Sox, has been sold to the Cleveland club of the American league. This announcement was officially made last night by President Taylor and Treasurer McBreen of the Boston American team.

The National league base ball season opens at Boston Wednesday, April 14, with the Philadelphia club.

Clubs will appear at the South End grounds in the following order: Philadelphia, Brooklyn, New York, Cincinnati, St. Louis, Pittsburg, Chicago.

The Doves' first game away from home will be at Philadelphia, April 21.

Boston will open its first western trip of 16 games at Pittsburg, June 2.

Clark Griffiths Cincinnati Reds will be the first western club to show at the South End, coming May 11.

The Doves have fared well in New York this season, having games at the Polo grounds in April, June and September.

The South End grounds will be closed for the year on Sept. 15, the Doves playing the last three weeks of the season on the road.

The Chicago world beaters will meet the New York Giants for the first time this year at the Polo grounds on May 11, when the fur will fly.

There will be no conflicting dates at New York or Philadelphia and only three at Boston, St. Louis will have four and Chicago eight.

The Boston Motor club will meet tonight at the Oxford. One of the most important matters to be considered will be the report of the conference committee which had a meeting with the Bay State A. A. officials, Monday night.

An agreement has been reached to prevent friction between the two clubs, and the members of the Boston club will be given the report to act upon it. The conference Monday night lasted for hours, and it brought out many points of interest which the members of the new club desired to learn about.

The question of permanent quarters will be settled tonight, and officers will be elected.

Charles C. McCarthy, formerly captain of the Georgetown track team, been chosen coach of the Noble and Greenough track team and will start on his new duties this afternoon.

PILES CURED IN 6 TO 14 DAYS.
PAZO OINTMENT is guaranteed to cure any case of Itching, Blind, Bleeding or Protruding Piles in 6 to 14 days or money refunded. 50c.

QUINCY WOMEN'S CLUB.

The present is a busy week for the Quincy Women's Club. On Tuesday afternoon a card party was held, at the club-house under the auspices of the Civic committee. There was a good attendance not withstanding the bad weather, fifteen tables being used.

The afternoon was delightfully social and informal. At the close of the game refreshments were served, Mrs. N. S. Hunting in charge, assisted by Mrs. A. G. Olney, Mrs. Herbert Lawton, Mrs. Theodore Hardwick, Mrs. Joseph M. Sheahan, Mrs. Henry L. Kincaide, Miss Georgiana Lane and Miss Steele.

The pourers were Mrs. Dexter E. Wadsworth, Mrs. James Edwards.

The club-house was brightened by bouquets of jonquils.

On Thursday evening the club gives a reception and musical for the teachers of Quincy. All the officers of the club will receive and the program will be furnished by the Westland Quartet and Weston's orchestra.

The evening is arranged by the Educational committee, Mrs. Charles R. Safford, chairman.

The first meeting of the class in stencil work, under the auspices of the Arts and Crafts committee will be held on Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

On Friday evening an Assembly is to be held at Atlantic Music hall under the auspices of the Atlantic members of the Civic committee, the proceeds to go for village improvement in that section of the city.

There will be a few tables for cards

WEYMOUTH

The funeral of Miss Florence E. Smith a teacher in the public schools of this, town took place from her home on Washington street and was one of the largest attended, held in town for years. Many of the school teachers and members of the school board attended. The floral tributes were many and very beautiful.

The service was conducted by Rev. F. B. Cressey of Cambridge a former pastor of the Baptist church here, assisted by Rev. C. H. Carey pastor of the church and Rev. Wekley L. Smith of Bridgewater a former pastor.

Charles Price sang two solos.

The remains were interred at Village cemetery.

The annual fair in aid of Fogg public library will open tonight at Fogg's Opera house and continue through Friday evening.

Edwin Clapp has purchased a 40 horse power Pierce-Arrow with electric light and heat.

The Universalist dramatic club will go to North Weymouth tomorrow evening and present the drama "Our Folks" at the Universalist fair in that village.

An alarm was rung in yesterday forenoon from box 25 for a fire at the stable of Charles Humphey. The fire did about $100 damages, loss covered by insurance. The cause of the fire is unknown.

Mr. and Mrs. James Donlan and Miss Blanch Condrick are visiting in Framingham.

Mrs. James F. Wilde is visiting her daughter in Woonsocket, R. I.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Ralph Bacon have been visiting friends at Cranston, R. I.

Thomas the two-year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Killman of Washington street died Tuesday. The funeral will take place Thursday afternoon.

Percy Cook has taken a position in the office at the new Keith factory in East Weymouth.

—In the Langley medal, says the Boston Journal, the Wright brothers will have something more than a testimonial to their leadership in aerodromics. The medal will also serve as a memento of their most distinguished American predecessor in the aerial field. Meantime, bills providing for the presentation of national medals to the Wrights are pending in Congress.

—Last year no less than 657 trespassers were killed on the tracks of the Pennsylvania railroad alone; 791 were injured; 2989 were arrested. Evidently the increase in unemployment produced an increase in tramping, with its consequent misadventures and fatalities.

By establishing classes in "first aid to the injured," the local Y. M. C. A. is doing a service, that will without doubt be greatly appreciated when the swimming and boating season arrives.

Was President Tuttle of the Boston and Maine uttering a subtle hint, or was he merely giving voice to a random thought when he said that too much regulation will cause the railroads "to come up and be lords of all instead of servants of all?"

It looks now very much as if the President had the whip hand in the census bill conflict.

According to reports from Washington the necessary two-thirds of the members of the house willing to pass the bill over the President's veto are to be found, but another obstacle has been discovered, namely; if it became apparent that the bill would be passed by the house, the President has it in his power to anticipate such an action by putting the whole census force in the classified service.

Therefore the future of the "grab" bill is extremely problematical.

Considerable prospective legislation having to do with public playgrounds, physical education and allied subjects for the physical welfare of the people is now having attention at the Massachusetts State House. There are seven such bills in the hands of committees. Public hearings on three of these bills are to be held within the next eight days.

The number of these bills, all of which are on the question of public recreation and physical education, show proof that the subject is one of recognized importance in Massachusetts. Information from other parts of the country indicate that this state is taking an advanced position. The law passed by the last legislature providing for public playgrounds is attracting much attention throughout the country and legislators in other states are watching its operation with interest.

The recent attempt of the California Assembly to pass certain anti-Japanese legislation brings up the question of whether a state has, or should have the power, through indiscriminate legislation of involving the whole country in a dispute with some foreign power. According to President Roosevelt, the state of California was exceeding its powers, while on the other hand some of the best students of American government claim she was acting within her rights.

Which ever the case may be, a law should be passed restraining a state from enacting legislation (without consulting her sister states) which would be likely of causing a rupture with a foreign power. This could be done without usurping or infringing on "states rights."

By compelling states to be cautious when enacting laws effecting the rights of nations of a foreign power, we should guard all future affairs as the recent one in California.

EDITORIAL COMMENTS.

California refuses to accept the figures of the federal government relative to Japanese immigration. Secretary Straus says in support of these figures: "If Japanese can walk across the Pacific ocean, it is possible for them to come in without our knowing it, but not otherwise. It is not the inaccuracy of the figures to which the Californian agitators object, but to their accuracy. The figures show a condition that is not pleasing to these trouble-makers, and that is why they call them inaccurate. I challenge the Californians, singly or collectively, to show any error in the figures of the department of commerce and labor. If any of them will come to Washington, I will gladly show them proof that will absolutely convince even the most skeptical of them." If the Golden state cares anything for the good will of the rest of the country it must be on its good behavior. In spite of the denial of the Washington figures by the Californians the probabilities are in favor of their accuracy.—Haverhill Gazette.

Andrew Carnegie is now accused of favoring socialism. In a recent statement from him, in discussion of the tariff question, the public was informed that Americans are rapidly losing competition in articles of general consumption upon which nations have hitherto depended to insure reasonable prices for the consumer. "Some of our most important industries today," said Mr. Carnegie, "are only nominally competitive, and in reality are monopolies so far that an understanding exists as to prices that will prevail."

We cannot, it seems the opinion, withstand this movement. It has to be received and tested, which means that these virtual monopolies must be controlled some way or another. The only force appears to be that of the national government. A supreme industrial court will have to be created and eventually it will have to pass upon prices—disguise this as we may.

This is called "socialism," by shocked critics. Then is Massachusetts socialistic? In this state in the matter of public service the prevailing policy has been to discourage competition, to encourage monopoly, and to fix the rate charged to the public. Can it be that Massachusetts has been given over to socialism for a decade unwittingly?—Boston Advertiser.

A smokeless American city seems one of those things that are impossible, but it is the belief of the government scientists that the city of the future will be smokeless. They declare that the problem has been solved, and it is only a matter of time before the way will be learned by manufacturers generally. Absence of smoke indicates better combustion, and better combustion results in the saving of coal. Electricity applied to locomotives relieves the territory through which they run from the smoke nuisance that troubles. But they must rely on power plants to supply them with the power they use, and how to get this desirable result is the question. In several of the large cities of the country there are immense turbine power plants operating without smoke and producing a horse-power for the same price as the engine. In one of the biggest cities of the country one company with 100,000 horse-power is furnishing power to a large company cheaper than they can produce it themselves. The time is coming when power will be furnished from a central point, and smoke will be consumed or otherwise eliminated. Perhaps in time even Pittsburg may come to a condition when it can be seen by daylight.—Lynn Item.

The finest product of New England has been, and still is, its men and women. The poet tells us that here is the sepulcher of mighty dead and the truest hearts that ever bled. But not all the good ones and great ones are gone. There are some tall ones left. There always will be, too.

The climate fosters vigorous minds and bodies. It discourages mollycoddles. Nowhere can you find more hale and hearty old people than in this part of our wonderful country. The Globe from time to time has published accounts of some of our patriarchal men and women and is proud of the clime in which flourish such vigorous human oaks.

A singular corroboration of the vitality of our New England inhabitants was afforded by the obituary column of the Bangor News not long ago when the entire column was devoted to aged persons, the eldest of whom was 95 and the youngest 65.

Contrary to the general impression the area in which consumption is potent is not so large in New England as in some other parts of the world. The tuberculous zone of New England is, in fact, very small, and no one has done more to limit it still further than the scientific men of this part of the United States. Already the scourge is abating. The time is not far distant when all New England will be what most of it is today, the clime of the vigorous.—Boston Globe.

THE
Young Men's Christian Association
OF QUINCY, MASS.
(Legal Title—Incorporated 1892.)

The Directors of the YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION of Quincy, with a firm faith in the great value of the work which is being done for the young men and boys of our city, make their appeal for donations and bequests toward paying the mortgage indebtedness on the new Association Building. When the building is free from debt it will serve as an Endowment, as there is a goodly income from the dormitories.

Should the Donor prefer, such sum as might be given could be used as an Endowment for an educational class or classes, the Boys Department, or as a special fund in other ways, and could be designated with the name of the Donor.

The Treasurer, WILLIAM F. CUMMINGS, 7 Clive Street, Quincy, or the General Secretary, ERNEST G. GAY, will be happy to answer inquiries

OUR HOSPITAL

(Legal Title: City Hospital of Quincy)
INCORPORATED 1889

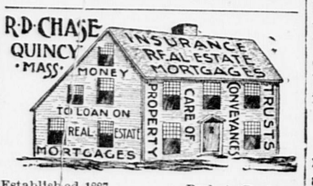

The Trustees of the City Hospital of Quincy earnestly appeal for donations and bequests for the Endowment fund. This now amounts to over $60,000, but a fund of at least $100,000 is urgently needed.

Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000) will endow a Free Bed to which such name may be given as the Donor may desire, but any sum for this noble institution which stands ready to serve us all in the hour of need, will be most gratefully received.

The Secretary, TIMOTHY REED, Adams St. Quincy, or the Treasurer, RICHARD D. CHASE Savings Bank Building, Quincy, will be very glad to confer with any one of to answer any inquiries.

KNOX'S COMING APPOINTMENT

No Legal Obstacle Stands In the Way of Acceptance

OPINION OF PRESIDENT-ELECT

He Again States That Senator Will Be Premier In the Taft Cabinet—Canal Report Discussed at White House Conference—Conclusions of Engineers Have the Hearty Endorsement of President Roosevelt

Washington, Feb. 17.—In the opinion of President-Elect Taft, Philander C. Knox is now legally eligible to receive the appointment of secretary of state. That he will be the premier in the Taft cabinet was again positively stated by Taft last night at the White House, the statement being made after two conferences between the president-elect and Knox.

Mr. Taft went further and gave it as his opinion that no court could entertain an action based on the constitutionality of Knox's coming appointment, for the reason that the first question that would arise in such a proceeding would be whether Knox was a "de facto" official of the government. This question, he maintained, would have to be answered in the affirmative, and there the proceedings would end.

It was 7 o'clock last night when Mr. Taft emerged from the president's office, having ended a two hours' conference with Mr. Roosevelt, participated in by the board of engineers. In the outer office he was discussing the canal report, which he was pleased to say was unanimous, and had stated his position regarding Knox's appointment to a gathering of newspaper correspondents when President Roosevelt came out.

The president stood for a moment unobserved, but with an expression of pleasurable enjoyment on his face as the questions were being hurled at the president-elect.

"I would just like to see you take a few kinks out of him," he remarked to the correspondents, as he advanced and took hold of the lapel of the Taft coat. "This does me good." Then addressing Taft the president inquired: "Am I going to see you tomorrow?"

There were a few "questions" Taft admitted he would like to talk over at the White House in the morning, and an engagement was made. Then the president slipped his arm through that of the big Ohioan and led him down the steps of the executive offices and the two conversed for some minutes, after which Taft stepped into his automobile and the president started for his walk.

Before leaving the White House Taft explained that the report of the board of engineers was intended to give a general and comprehensive view of the canal situation. The members of the board are to make a supplementary report later to Colonel Goethals, which will deal with a number of purely technical engineering questions, such as the amount of cement to be used in various lock constructions, the lock machinery, and such matters. It was stated upon authority that President Roosevelt heartily approves the report.

OPPONENTS OF CANAL

Only Ones Who Attack Lock Type, Says President Roosevelt

Washington, Feb. 17.—Any attack made hereafter on the lock type of the Panama canal, according to the opinion expressed by President Roosevelt in a message transmitting to congress today the report made by the engineers who recently visited the canal zone with President-Elect Taft, "is in reality an attack upon the policy of building any canal at all."

The report, in Mr. Roosevelt's opinion, "shows in clearest fashion that the congress was wise in the position it took, and that it would be an inexcusable folly to change from the proposed lock canal to a sea-level canal.

"I commend to you," he says to congress, "the most careful consideration of the report. They show that the only criticism that can be made of the work on the isthmus is that there has sometimes been almost an excess of caution in providing against possible trouble."

HUB COPS SUFFER

Are Forbidden to Wag Their Jaws While They Are on Duty

Boston, Feb. 17.—Sixteen captains of sixteen different stations received a shock yesterday afternoon when they were notified that Superintendent Pierce would hold them personally responsible for the enforcement of his general order issued Nov. 3, 1908.

The general order was in refcrence to the use of tobacco, gum, matches and toothpicks by men on duty, which was ordered to be stopped.

No more will the patrolman be allowed to relieve the monotony of the beat with a chew of tobacco or gum. No more will he be able to saunter with match or toothpick between his teeth. Should he do so and be caught his captain will receive punishment for his action.

"We are now so bound by orders and rules," said one officer, "that we can hardly move, ether at home or on duty, unless we consult the police manual to find whether we are breaking any rules or not."

LYNN FOLKS ALARMED

Do Not Appreciate Visits of Ghost of Bard Hutchinson

Lynn, Mass., Feb. 17.—Not any of the famous spooks of fiction ever caused more of a sensation than the apparition of John Hutchinson, "the Bard of High Rock," that several people claim they have seen of late.

Hutchinson died of asphyxiation last October. His ghost, accompanied by his great Dane dog, is said to appear nearly every night.

Frank Lee, who lives in Daisy Cottage, near the residence of the late "bard," tells of the strange occurrences.

The little daughter of Mrs. Emma Smith, who lives nearby, claims that she has also seen the "ghost."

Frank Lee claims that he has seen the apparition of man and dog in his room for minutes at a time.

ACTUAL TRIAL GETS UNDER WAY

Testimony Against Cooper and Sharp Is Presented

Nashville, Feb. 17.—The first day of the actual trial of the Cooper-Sharp case closed last night. Whether Duncan B. Cooper, Robin J. Cooper and John Sharp killed former Senator Carmack in self-defense or as a result of a conspiracy is the issue.

Mrs. E. W. Carmack, the slain senator's widow, was the first witness. She was gowned in deepest mourning. Her son, Ned, Jr., aged 10, stood by his mother. She was almost carried to the witness stand by Frank Lander, who succeeded her husband as editor of The Tennessean. A few questions were asked her, but she became hysterical and was excused. Mrs. Carmack was followed on the witness stand by Mrs. Eastman, who seized the revolver said to have been found near the dead editor's body and re-enacted the tragedy. Her cross-examination was severe, but only strengthened her testimony.

BRIG SUNK IN 1866

Heirs of Owners Have Just Recovered Damages From the Government

Portland, Me., Feb. 17.—Although forty-three years have elapsed since the Maine brig, Olive Francis, was run down and sunk by the United States gunboat Winooski, a final settlement in a suit brought by heirs of the brig's owners against the government to recover her value has but just been effected.

The principal beneficiary is Sarah M. Pennell of Machias, Me., administratrix of the estate of William E. Pennell. The estate will receive $18,750.

The collision occurred off the Nova Scotia coast in 1866. The brig foundered, but the crew was saved.

OUR PRESENT TARIFF SYSTEM

Decades Behind Scientific Methods of European Countries

A NON-PARTISAN COMMISSION

Speakers at Indianapolis Convention Declare That to Be the Only Remedy For Present Unsatisfactory Conditions—Declaration That Tariff Must Cease to Be Football of Political Parties Causes Demonstration

Indianapolis, Feb. 17.—Men of opposing political parties and whose views on the construction of a tariff differed as widely as the tenets of their parties, sat side by side as delegates and joined in tumultuous applause as speaker after speaker in the first national tariff commission convention vigorously denounced the present tariff and the method of its consturction.

That the present tariff system has been outgrown and that the United States lingers decades behind the scientific methods of European countries was repeated almost as often as a new speaker addressed the delegates. That the prompt establishment of a non-partisan tariff commission was the only remedy for present conditions was repeated as often.

On the nature of the commission—whether it should be a permanent bureau and an adjunct to the department of commerce and labor, an appointive commission, one composed of experts, the speakers differed, as apparently did the delegates, but of the urgent need for it there seemed no dispute.

J. W. Van Cleve of St. Louis, president of the National Association of Manufacturers, who was made the permanent chairman of the gathering, aroused the first enthusiasm by asserting that the tariff must be taken out of partisan politics, and Congressman Fowler of New Jersey, who is sponsor for the Beveridge commission bill now before congress, caused a demonstration when he asserted that the tariff must cease to be the football of political parties.

The attendance was not so large as had been hoped for by the officials, but it more than made amends for the lack of numbers by the enthusiasm displayed. Many more delegates are expected to arrive today.

More than 100 members of the National Association of Manufacturers cheered Van Cleve as he took the gavel. His emphatic declaration that the convention was not interested in the raising or lowering of any particular schedules and that President-Elect Taft was in line with the purposes of the gathering preceded a vigorous dealing with the question of the necessity for a tariff commission.

Former Governor Guild of Massachusetts, Senator Brown of Nebraska and Congressman Ransdell of Louisiana gave the varying view points of their sections. That there was little conflict save on minor points was indicated by their speeches.

Mr. Guild spoke his thoughts plainly concerning the combination of Chicago packers, the duty on hides and the alleged victimizing of the American farmer.

Senator Brown did not except himself when speaking of the mystification of the average congressman on the subject of the tariff, and Henry R. Towne questioned the ability of the members of the ways and means committee to deal intelligently with the same subject. H. E. Miles, as a manufacturer, concurred with Towne.

UNITED STATES MARINES

Must Do Duty on Warships or Go Out of Existence

Washington, Feb. 17.—The senate again slapped President Roosevelt by adopting amendments which mean that the marine corps will either do duty on ships of the navy or go out of existence.

The amendment provides that the appropriation for marines shall only be available in event of their being quartered on ships, as was the former custom.

Senator Lodge rushed to the defense of the president's course in removing the marines and sought unsuccessfully to defeat the amendment.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR.

Editor Daily Ledger.

The letter of Inspector Matthews in Monday's Ledger was interesting, as all his letters are, but I fear he allows sentiment to lead him too far when he advocates making an attempt to raise the Maine from Havana harbor and tow her to the United States. One of the world's greatest engineers has stated that such a thing cannot be done. The only way in which the wreck could be removed would be by using dynamite, and that is out of the question on account of the bodies of soldiers and sailors being encased in the wreck. The American people will stand for no desecration in the matter.

Let the Maine remain where she lies, as an everlasting protest against Spanish treachery and a reminder to the visiting American in years to come, that the white man's burden costs something to carry at times. Incidentally it will serve to remind the Cuban that he owes a debt of gratitude to the Yankee.

Yours truly,

A. B. H.

SPENT OVER $107,000

Stephenson's Campaign Agents Not Modest About Calling For Money

Madison, Wis., Feb. 17.—United States Senator Stephenson submitted to a searching examination by the Wisconsin legislative committee, which started a probe of the United States senatorial primary of last fall.

SENATOR ISAAC STEPHENSON.

Stephenson told the story of his expenditure of more than $107,000 during the campaign. The money, he said, was spent through his agents, who called upon him whenever they needed money.

Checks for sums totalling over $50,000 were issued to J. A. Van Cleve, one of his managers, and $50,000 was placed in a Milwaukee bank for the use of his managers. Payment by checks for various other small amounts were acknowledged by the senator "for work done."

Many of the expenditures were belittled by the senator. He did not keep a memoranda of everything he spent, saying: "I keep them in my head."

BASEBALL MEETINGS DEVOID OF FRICTION

The Anticipated Wordy Wars Failed to Develop

Chicago, Feb. 17.—The opening of the sessions of the annual meetings of the National and American baseball leagues developed no excitement, notwithstanding the rumors that have been circulated about possible wordy wars.

At the session of the National league the schedule was adopted without change. The alleged attempt at bribery of Umpires Klem and Johnstone during the closing game in New York between the Chicago and New York teams was not discussed.

Although trades and purchases were freely discussed during the day, little was accomplished in this direction.

SHOE FIRM BANKRUPT

Was Considered Among the Largest Money-Makers In Lynn

Lynn, Mass., Feb. 17.—Luddy & Currier, one of the leading shoe firms of this city, made an assignment late yesterday afternoon.

No schedule was filed and it is impossible to tell as yet what the liabilities and assets will be, but it is thought that the firm has an investment of at least $350,000 in its three factories at Dover, N. H., and its chain of retail stores.

Nearly every shoe manufacturer in this city was completely taken by surprise, as it was generally rumored that the firm was among the largest money-makers in Lynn last year.

"Don" Keegan who put on the Quincy Point social club show, had charge of the performance.

The Fore River company and Quincy are well represented in the monster fleet of American battleships that is now nearing the end of an "around the world trip." In the fleet are the battleships, Vermont, Rhode Island and New Jersey, which have made the entire trip. In the review at Hampton Roads Monday besides these three there will be the scout cruisers Salem and Birmingham. All five are Quincy built boats and form one-fifth of the fleet.

—A good way to roast a tough fowl to render it tender and juicy as young spring chicken, is by the French method: After twisting the wings of the fowl over on the back and forcing the legs up against the body snugly securing them with skewer and twine, and fastening the skin of the neck neatly on the back with a toothpick, wrap it entirely in soft paper which should be large enough to cover it twice; tie with twine. Put the fowl thus wrapped into a hot oven, and let it remain there half an hour, after which remove the paper, taking care to let all the grease that may be in the paper, run into the pan. Flour the fowl a little set it back in the oven, and roast. It will be found exceedingly tender

Miscellaneous orders for material, excepting work on ships, either new or repairs, and excepting work on forgings, will be handled through Mr. Kemp's office, both as to securing orders for work, placing the orders and following up the work in the yard. Frank H. Brown, formerly of the electrical department has been assigned to Mr. Kemp's office in connection with this work.

In addition to the regular business of shipbuilding, the company has built up a large and increasing business in manufacturing for outside commercial concerns, everything from a "Moxie" nerve food metal barrel to a railroad terminal.

Twenty coal hoppers for the Quincy Point power-house are in process of construction for the Old Colony Street Railway Co.

A large number of forgings for the General Electric Co., and the Amospeag Manufacturing Co., are being forged and rough machined.

Charles H. Lincoln, chief marine-engineer of the Fore River Shipbuilding Co., in a letter to the Boston Post, which appeared in the issue of Feb. 16th, has the following to say relative to the division of interests of the Mass. Nautical Training School and the Mass. Naval Brigade:

To the Editor of the Post:

Sir—As a hearing is about to be given on a bill to combine the Massachusetts Nautical Training School with the Naval Brigade as a training school for both, I thought a few words concerning it might be of benefit to our citizens as well as to the future generations of boys who may care to train for a seafaring life. The original intention of the school was to train young men for the merchant service, and I think that for the time it has been in existence, about 14 years since the first graduation, you will find a large number of licensed men of our merchant ships received their first training on the old Enterprise.

Now that the government is about to give the State a much better ship the Governor suggests that it be used also as a ship for the naval brigade as well as the training school. While the Governor's idea may look all right to him from a financial point of view, any one can readily see that it would spoil the original purpose of the school. The officers of the schoolship are picked out with regard to their knowledge for training boys for the merchant marine, whereas the naval brigade is a military organization and of an entirely different character. I sincerely hope that the committee on this bill will see the impracticability of such a combination and recommend the continuation of the school under its old basis by a commission.

I think in the future the old Bay State will be proud of her training school.

I hope this will reach a number of the old boys and bring them to the hearing next Wednesday at the State House.

NO AMERICANS IN DISASTER

At Least Two Hundred Dead In Acapulco Theatre Fire

THE MEN FOUGHT LIKE DEMONS

Struck Down Women and Children In Efforts to Escape—Carelessness and Inexperience of Moving Picture Operator Responsible For Holocaust—Firemen and Crowds Outside Compelled to Stand Helpless

Mexico City, Feb. 17.—Late dispatches from Acapulco, where the Flores Theatre was burned while the structure was crowded at a gala performance given in honor of Governor Flores of the state of Guersero, bring varying estimates of the loss of life in the fire. They agree in detail, however, that the dead will exceed 200, while some place the figure as high as 350.

Most of the dead were charred and burned beyond recognition, so that an accurate list of the dead may never be secured. Acapulco is dazed at the disaster. Many of the business shops are closed and many of the people crowding the churches, where masses are being celebrated for the dead.

The fire, which spread with incredible rapidity through the immense wooden and adobe structure, was due to the carelessness and inexperience of the operator of the moving picture machine. There was an explosion, a burst of flame, which communicated to the bunting used for decorative purposes, and in a few minutes the entire structure was a mass of fire.

The flames started practically over the main entrance. The exits were all in the front part of the building, which was almost immediately turned into a wall of fire, so that the people were trapped in the burning building. The people in a frenzied panic tried to run the gauntlet of flame, but where one escaped scores of others perished. As nearly always in catastrophes of the kind the women and children suffered most, comprising a majority of the dead.

The search of the ruins has thus far revealed no recognizable human forms. Charred bodies from which legs and arms have been burned have been taken from the ruins, and as there was no chance of identifying these remains all have been buried in a common trench by the municipal authorities.

The greatest loss of life was occasioned, according to survivors, by the fall of the roof, which crashed down on the entrapped people in what seemed a short time after the blaze was discovered.

Previous to this the men in the pit had fought like demons, striking down women and children in their efforts to escape. The fall of the roof, however, stilled the screams and groans of the fighting, panic-stricken audience.

The firemen and the crowds on the outside who had been attracted to the scene could do nothing to help the people in the burning building and were compelled to stand helpless and watch the theatre with its human contents burn. After the first five or ten minutes there were no cries heard and there was no noise save that made by the spurting and crackling flames.

Later reports indicate that no Americans lost their lives, though earlier dispatches had said that several were killed. The American consul, Mr. Morehead, had been invited to the performance, but pressing business made it impossible for him to attend and probably saved his life.

EXPLOSIONS IN MINE

Over a Hundred Men Who Were In the Pit Are Perhaps Killed

Newcastle, Eng., Feb. 17.—Many lives have been lost in a disaster in West Stanley, a mining town, twelve miles distant.

There were two explosions in the West Stanley colliery.

There were 136 men in the pit at the time and none of them have come to the surface, although rappings have been heard. It is supposed that these are from some of the miners who escaped death from the explosion and the fire which followed.

YANKTON DUE TODAY

Will Be First of World-Girdling Fleet to Arrive Home

Hampton Roads, Va., Feb. 17.—The chip-like dispatch boat Yankton, which valiantly has fought her way around the world in company with or ahead of the fleet, is due at Hampton Roads today.

The Yankton will be the first of the home-coming ships to renew acquaintance with the waters of Hampton Roads.

A Coaxer for Roosevelt

Rome, Feb. 17.—The mayor and city council are being urged to confer Roman citizenship upon President Roosevelt prior to his arrival at Naples, as an appreciation of American generosity in connection with the earthquake. It is thought probable that Roosevelt would then come to Rome to receive personally this exceptional honor.

The Practical and the Ideal

[Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.]

Leland Whiton was born to literature, but unfortunately after the school he was fitted for had had its day. His friend Forbes Hogden, a practical fellow, unincumbered with the slightest ideality, used to poke fun at him for writing poems and stories that no publisher would accept.

"Why don't you get down to what people want to read?" said Hogden.

"I can't write what isn't in me," replied Whiton despondently. "To portray natural emotions authors must experience them. It seems to me the most popular writers of the present day imagine things, then turn a lurid light on them and photograph the whole. I have written one work every word of which I felt, for I am in love with my heroine—not imaginatively, but really. I would like to see it published."

"You never will, because there would be no money in it for a publisher. Still, if you care to let me have it I'll turn it in at Sharp, Bliss & Co.'s and praise it all I can. But it won't do any good."

The next day Hogden, who really had a good opinion of his friend's abilities, received the manuscript and tossed it into a drawer, intending to read it before submitting it to the publishers. It lay in that drawer five years. Meanwhile Whiton, who without any income could not marry his heroine, drifted away to unknown lands. Then a report came that he was dead.

One day Hogden came across the manuscript his friend had left with him five years before. Hogden was writing stories in the current vein, from which by writing a great many of them he made a passable living. He read the manuscript and saw a great deal in it. Since there was no living owner he concluded to appropriate it to himself. He used the motif and the feeling, cut out the ideality, threw a lot of Greek fire into it and published it under his own name as a novel of the period.

The book proved a phenomenal success. Hogden made a lot of money out of it and, having established his literary name, wrote other books with all the Greek fire, but with none of the feeling of the one he had appropriated. They were even more successful than his starter. Having accumulated a competency, it occurred to him to marry and make a home for himself.

Now, it happened that Whiton had introduced him to the heroine of his novel and the lady of his love. Hogden went to see her, talked a great deal about his old friend Whiton, his impracticability, his incompetency and his ideality, all of which he classed in the same category. He told her what he had done with Whiton's work and ended by saying:

"All this money I have made has been coined out of Whiton's emotions, of which you were the exciting cause. I think you are entitled to a share in the proceeds. You can have half and all at my death if you survive me by marrying me."

The lady was of a practical turn of mind, without fortune and withal getting older every day. She accepted the offer. They were married and settled down into the humdrum of life.

One evening they were sitting before a fire. The children were asleep. The husband was dozing over a paper. The wife was darning stockings. There was a ring at the doorbell, and presently a man walked in past the maid who had admitted him.

"Mr. and Mrs. Hogden, I believe," he said.

"You have the advantage of us," said Hogden.

The stranger stood looking from the baldheaded, gray bearded husband to the fat elderly wife.

"I am Leland Whiton."

"You don't say so!" exclaimed Hogden, turning red and white by turns.

Now, a similar scene to this had been drawn in Whiton's novel that Hogden had appropriated. Whiton had handled it ideally; Hogden had transformed it into a tragedy. The transformer wondered which of the two would happen now. Whiton adopted neither.

"I have come back," he said, "to find the woman I loved married to the man the foundation to whose success was the work of my brain."

If there was anything dramatic in the words there was nothing dramatic in the way they were spoken. Hogden was not especially conscientious or sensitive. He did not cringe. He simply awaited developments.

"Individually you have the advantage of me," Whiton went on, "but I belong to a class that has the advantage of you—that class whose representatives will be remembered centuries after you have been forgotten, the class in which the most brightly shining light in America is Edgar Allan Poe."

"He was certainly the most distinguished failure in every field except the ideal," said Hogden.

"You also have an advantage of me in this," said Whiton. "Ideality fades with age, while to wealth every year is added interest. I am changed. I no longer dream. I wish I had been you and you had been I. You have the proceeds of your individuality. The proceeds of mine never materialized."

"Enough of this," the lady of two loves broke in. "Forbes, take the growler and bring some beer while I lay the table for a supper."

"At last," said Whiton, "I have become practical. Let there be no delay in either the beer or the supper."

Among the Clubs

for those not caring for the dance.

The next regular meeting of the club will be held on Tuesday, February 23d. It will be a dramatic afternoon held at First Church chapel at half-past two. Admission by ticket only.

NEIGHBORING.

Nobody knows how many women's clubs there are in the United States, says Harper's Bazar. The General Federation of Women's clubs was registered in the almanacs of 1908 as having over 3,000 clubs in its membership, with 150,000 women on their rolls. But that was in January, 1908, and the federation grows every year amazingly. It contains, too, only a few out of the numberless women's clubs in the land, since there are small clubs, societies and circles everywhere which do not affiliate themselves with any state or national organization, but exist simply for the pleasure and profit of their own membership.

The date for the annual guest night of the Heptorean club of Somerville has been set for Tuesday, March 9. The affair will be held in Unitarian hall, and the Criterion Dramatic club of Boston will present the comedy of "Jane."

* * *

The Philergians of Braintree celebrated their tenth anniversary yesterday, at Cochato hall and a delightful program was enjoyed. Mrs. Elmer Morrison presided with grace introducing the speakers with a few well chosen words. Miss Georgie A. Bacon, president of the state federation addressed the club. Members of the club read several interesting papers. Music by the Codman trio and the Philergian quartet added to the afternoons pleasure. At the close a reception and tea was enjoyed. Mrs. Wilson Marsh and Mrs. W. T. Babcock of Quincy were among the guests.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR.

To Quincy Daily Ledger:

In your issue of Friday I noticed in the editorial column reference to a hearing given before a Legislative committee on proposed change in our city charter whereby the Mayor is to become a member of the School Committee. If you will pardon the suggestion the Ledger might render a public service to the citizens of Quincy by thoroughly calling attention to the dates of all public hearings on matters of importance to our city.

It may be gratuitious on your part but I believe it would be appreciated. I have heard many citizens complain that they did not know of the date of the hearing in time to be present and are not now posted as to date to which it was continued.

Yours truly,
Walter F. Nichols.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

MUSIC HALL A SCENE OF UNSURPASSING BEAUTY

Third Annual Ball of Quincy Elks Crowning Social Event of Season.

Never did Music hall look more attractive than on Wednesday evening, the occasion of the third annual ball of Quincy lodge of Elks. The scheme of the decorations was laurel and roses with bunting of purple and white. The floral part of the decoration, was in charge of Derringer and he did his work well. Hundreds of yards of the beautiful green laurel were used as well as roses without number.

Long streamers of laurel and roses were festooned along the sides and ends of the hall and long streamers of the same ran from the corners and sides to the centre chandelier beneath which was a large basket arrangement of the same. In the centre of this was suspended the brightly illuminated Elks star. Along the sides and end in addition to the laurel and roses there were festooned broad streamers of purple and white bunting.

Over the centre of the platform was a large clock dial on the face of which was an Elks head with its antlers pointing to the hour of 11.

At the right of the platform, was a large purple shield on which was the following motto in letters of gold:

"The faults of our Brothers we write upon the sands," while on the opposite side was a similar motto reading: "The virtues on tablets of love and memory." About each of these mottos an American flag had been draped.

The most attractive place however, was the platform itself. On the front was a great bank of magnificent ferns. In the centre of this a huge bank of red carnations while along the front were potted plants of primrose and geranium. Behind this Cuff's orchestra which furnished the musical accompaniment for the party, was stationed.

The guests began to arrive shortly after 8 o'clock and were immediately taken in charge, by the reception committee who saw to it that nothing was lacking that would add to the pleasure and comfort of the guests. Mayor Shea headed the reception committee and he was ably assisted by John W. McAnarney, Rednor P. Coombs, John W. Sweeney, Edward J. Sandberg, Dr. John P. Reynolds, George A. Jordan, Albert A. Murphy, Edward L. Bean, John W. Ryan, Dr. Frederick E. Jones, George B. Gavin, Thomas P. Moran, John W. Graham, Hon. Eugene C. Hultman, Dr. C. J. Lynch, Hon. Henry O. Fairbanks, Charles C. Hearn, Dr. Frederick J. Peirce, Thomas H. Buttimer, George A. Bolster, Daniel Desmond, Dr. John H. Ash, John Hall.

Many of the guests of the evening came from out of town and by 9 o'clock when the march which opened the ball, was started, several hundred ladies and gentlemen were present. The balcony was crowded with those who preferred to watch the gay scene, while on the floor itself were those who had come prepared to enter more actively into the spirit of the evening.

Many handsome creations were worn by the ladies the varied colored materials of the gowns forming a charming picture as the wearers glided about the hall in the merry waltz or two step.

While the guests were arriving the orchestra gave a concert, the following program being rendered:

March	"Adalid"	Hall
Concert Waltz	"Jaime Mon Amour"	Caryll
Overture	"Orpheus"	Offenbach
Intermezzo	"Violets"	Remick
March	"Bostonese"	Bagley

By the time the concert was concluded the majority of the participants had arrived and the signal was given to get in line for the march. William J. Coleman, the door director led the march with Miss Margaret M. Coleman. Next in order came Mayor Shea with Miss Shea, Daniel J. Deasy, the chairman of the committee of arrangements, and Mrs. Deasy, Treasurer Benjamin Johnson and Mrs. Johnson, Secretary Edmund W. Courtney and Mrs. Courtney. Following them were the other officers of the ball and the guests in general the whole forming a line that more than encircled the hall.

Leo J. McMaster was director of the march and it was carried out without a hitch. As the marchers came down the centre sixteen front there was a well deserved round of applause from the spectators. As the couples came down once more in line for the circle they were met by two pages, Master Charles Williams and Master Arthur Deasy. These pages, as each couple passed gave out the dance orders.

Special mention should be made of the orders which were most elaborate. They consisted of a three page folder with a four page insert. They were of a buff color printed in brown ink. On the first page was an embossed design representing an Elk's head on the sides of which were the American and Elks flags. Beneath these was the ever present dial with the hands pointing to the hour of 11.

On the other pages were the menu for the buffet lunch, the dance order and officers of the ball. The orders for the ladies were tied with a purple ribbon, long enough to permit it to hang over the arm while those of the gentlemen held pencils. At the conclusion of the march general dancing was in order until 11 o'clock at which hour the lights were dimmed, the curtain back of the orchestra raised, disclosing to view a beautiful tableau, representing an Elk's head around whose antlers were the arms of a beautiful young lady. Above this was the motto "How I love an Elk." The young lady in the tableau was Miss Elcock.

As all good Elks stood in silence Mr. McMaster read the Elk's toast, which is always given at the hour of eleven by gatherings of the fraternity. Dancing was then resumed until midnight when there was a brief intermission.

The buffet lunch was served by Burleigh and Martin between the hours of 10 and 1.30. It was an excellent lunch and well served.

It was 2 o'clock before the last waltz on the order was over and the guests took their departure for home. Special cars were found in waiting for all parts of the city.

Thus came to an end the third annual event of Quincy lodge with the unanimous opinion that it could not have been more of a success.

As noted above, William J. Coleman was the floor director and he was assisted by Henry W. Tirrell, John W. Walsh, Ernest L. Saunders and Dr. Daniel B. Reardon as assistants and the following efficient corps of aids:

Walter N. Cummings, Leo J. McMaster, Shirley F. Nutting, Thomas J. Dunphy, Henry L. Kincaide, Joseph F. Mohan, Edward E. Miller, Albert C. Bruff, John J. Lane, Daniel J. Ring, Louis J. White, Ivers M. Low, Clarence J. Fouche, C. W. Nightingale, John D. Smith, William E. Cooper, Robert E. McDonnell, James W. Sweeney, Horace E. Spear, Dr. Matthew J. Sweeney, Edward D. Barrett.

REVIVAL CAMPAIGN BROUGHT TO A CLOSE

Final Meeting Held In Bethany Church Wednesday Night

A large crowd attended the final meeting of the envangelistic campaign in Bethany church, Wednesday night, nearly every seat in the body of the house being taken. The interested clergymen were there in full force.

Revs. Atwood and Walther assisted Dr. Hardy in the service and Rev. E. A. Chase made the plea for the offering.

The spirit of the meeting was very happy and enthusiastic, applause following the remarks of Mr. Chase and others.

Dr. Weddell's closing and farewell thought related to the Holy Spirit and he expressed the hope that this Holy Spirit might show to the people, Jesus. It was an impressive thought and well conveyed.

After the discourse, Dr. Hardy took charge of the service and spoke in a happy and appreciative strain of Dr. Weddell and of his work here. Revs. Chase, Thompson, Davis, Walther and Mr. Gay also spoke of the benefits received personally and the great good accomplished generally.

The latter part of the meeting was a veritable old fashioned Methodist "love feast" closing just in season for Dr. Weddell and Mr. Briggs to get the 10.08 train.

Altogether the meetings have been a great success few if any mistakes have been made and the Spirit of God has been present in power. Those who have received the most good out of the campaign are the ones who have put the most into it which fact is a law of life.

STARTED IN CLOSET.

Liberty Street Fire Caused by Lighted Match.

The alarm from Box 39 at 6.22 Wednesday evening, was for a fire in a double house on Liberty street, owned by Mrs. Hugh Jones and occupied in part by George W. Imley, and came near resulting in a fatality.

The fire was in the tenement occupied by Mr. Imley and was caused by a match setting fire to some clothing in a closet. It appears that a young child was taken up stairs to bed. Mrs. Imley then went to a closet in the room and in order that she might see better, lit a match. It is supposed that she must have accidentally set fire to some of the clothing although she did not discover it at the time.

Closing the door she went down stairs but was soon aroused by the child crying. Rushing up stairs she found the room full of smoke and the child nearly suffocated. An alarm was rung in from Box 39, which was pulled twice. This led many to thinking that it was a second alarm.

The department made short work of the fire which did a damage of about $50.

GIVEN FAREWELL PARTY.

At eight o'clock Wednesday evening the guests of Hotel Greenleaf assembled in the parlors of the hotel in honor of Mrs. Warren Edwards, who left for Washington this morning, where she will join her husband.

The party was arranged on the quiet, and the first inkling, Mrs. Edwards had of the affair, was when she was ushered into the parlor. Games were played and prizes distributed. The first ladies' prize was awarded Mrs. Starr who proved to be an adept, in picking cranberries from the cranberry bog. The first gentlemen's prize went to Mr. Hall who by diligent and persistent effort managed to pick over three hundred cranberries. After the prizes had been distributed refreshments consisting of ice cream, served in flower pots with sweet peas "planted" in them, and fancy cakes were served. The evening closed with dancing and singing, and the well wishes of all present for a pleasant and prosperous journey for Mrs. Edwards. The party was arranged by Mrs. C. W. Trull and Mrs. G. M. Morse.

—Mrs. Mary McCoy, aged eighty-three years, said to be the oldest woman postmaster in the United States, has resigned her position at Sheakleyville, Pa., which she has filled for forty years. Mrs. McCoy was appointed by President Johnson and in the early years of her service carried mail from Meadville, in addition to performing her other duties.—Boston Transcript.

COFFEE PARTY AT ATLANTIC

Sacred Heart Church Affair Nets Neat Little Sum.

The annual coffee party of Sacred Heart church was held Wednesday evening in Music hall, Atlantic. The hall was crowded to its utmost capacity and the affair was a big success both socially and financially.

From 8 to 9 there was a concert, consisting of vocal solos and selections by Wilson's orchestra of six pieces. Dancing was then enjoyed until 2 o'clock.

J. Henry Cunningham was chairman and R. J. Cole secretary of the general committee of arrangements.

The supper committee was composed of John J. Herne, Edward A. Shea, Martin Burns, Thomas Dolan, D. J. Nyhan and Cornelius Duggan.

Those who had charge of tickets were, Patrick Dolan, Myles Creamer, Timothy Keohane, Charles Donnelly and Charles J. O'Malley.

The floor was in charge of Joseph W. Sprunk, who was assisted by Timothy J. Sullivan, and John A. Duggan. The following were aids: Joseph Granahan, Arthur Murphy, Jeremiah Barry, John Granahan, A. S. Sprunk, James Costello, Edward A. Clifford, Thomas Dean, Francis Lavery, John Conly, Eugene M. Renna, Edwin Poland, Francis Martin, James Martin, Jr., John Dolan, A. Le Vangie, Charles Allback, Rennetto Gay, John McLeane, William W. Walker, William Coughlin, Stephen Edwards, R. J. Barry, Patrick Duggan, James Duggan, Frank O'Brien, Henry Golden, Lewis Barry, Neal Leary, and John McKenna.

Rev. John P. Cuffe, pastor of the church, has worked hard with his various committees for the success of the affair and expressed pleasure at the large crowd which was present.

GOING TO BALTIMORE.

Rev. B. F. Crawford Leaves Pastorate of Atlantic M. E. Church.

Rev. B. F. Crawford, pastor of the Atlantic M. E. church will preach his farewell sermon next Sunday. He has received and accepted a call to go to Baltimore, where he will be assistant pastor of the First M. E. Church.

Mr. Crawford has been pastor of the Atlantic church for the past two years, and has come to be thoroughly well known and liked by all his parishioners. He will have the best wishes of a large circle of friends in his new field.

Mr. Crawford leaves for Baltimore next week and will take up his new work Sunday Feb. 28.

It is said that a two thousand acre hog farm has been opened up in Virginia. Here is a rare chance to colonize the end seat hogs of the summer street cars.

And now the holiday college orator is busy studying biographies of Washington and we will hear again the peroration: "First in war; first in peace; first in the hearts of his countrymen."

The sentiment in favor of a tariff commission idea is growing. Mr. Carnegie favors it; the National Association of Manufacturers originated it; the press has given it publicity and popularity. A tariff commission of experts will doubtless be better fitted for the handling of this subject than a heterogeneous, unqualified mass like the House of Representatives.

The press and the people of the country are taking sides on the Pure Food question and it is reassuring to see that the majority is in favor of pure food unsophisticated without benzoate of soda, notwithstanding the faculty has taken issue with Dr. Wiley. Competition will settle the question. Manufacturers who use the benzoate will have to publish it and they will soon find that the unadulterated article will prove the rule of the survival of the fittest.

If Diaz of Mexico shall survive until the last month of 1909, he will have been President of that country for twenty-five consecutive years. The third term question has never troubled Mexico, which is a republic in name only. Nevertheless, the Diaz autocracy is the best government the country has ever had, and if such government could be transferred to Cuba, there would be better hope for that unstabled people.

The younger members of the House of Representatives in Washington, who are protesting against the autocracy of the big three or four—Speaker Cannon, Dalzell of Pennsylvania, Payne of New York and Tawney of Minnesota—are not a hopeless group of scrappers by any means. They have reached a position where they really believe they can dictate terms of peace. Their claims rest mainly on "Calendar Tuesday," or a call of committees, giving members a chance to get their bills before the House and rescuing from the Speaker, the appointment of committees. They desire to place their appointive power in the hands of a committee of the House to be known as the Committee on Rules. Uncle Joe has given out that he is willing to make concessions to the insurgents. He is willing to admit that members have a right to get their bills before the House and will give his consent to the "Calendar Tuesday." This means that Speaker Cannon has learned that the twenty-five men of the dissatisfied group are not the full muster with whom he has to reckon. It is anticipated that new members in the next House will probably be with the insurgents who hold over. The Speaker evidently recognizes the necessity of placating the new as well as the old members.

EDITORIAL COMMENTS.

There is a deeper solemnity and significance this year than usual to the encampment of the Massachusetts department of the Grand Army, following so closely as it does upon the celebration of the centenary of Araham Lincoln. The centenary has served to focus more clearly the public understanding of the meaning of Lincoln's life and of the war which furnished a background for this great American. Lincoln, and the Grand Army, have been accepted as realities and somewhat matter-of-fact realities, by many of the younger generation who never knew the touch of that dread period of our national history. The Lincoln centenary has accomplished something worth while in emphasizing for these younger folks the significance of the Civil war and the Emancipator. And at the same time the Grand Army has been brought to a larger and more fully comprehended place in the understanding of the younger generation, so that now, when the Massachusetts veterans gather together once more in annual convention, a deeper and more responsive realization of what this Army means, and what its passing will mean, is emphasized. A pleasant thought is that in the year since the last encampment there have been 101 fewer deaths than in the preceeding year, though with a loss of 742 for the year the sad note of depleted ranks is sounded. As their number grows less there is developed a softer and deeper affection for these old soldiers, and admiration for them is increasingly tinged with the note of melancholy.—Boston Advertiser.

BUSIEST CRAFT IN BIG FLEET

Yankton Is the First to Pass Capes of Virginia

Her Safe Return One of the Distinctive Features of Great Cruise—Acted as Pilot For Big Ships and Performed a Dozen Different Errands of Importance—Officers and Crew Prepared to Take a Good Rest

Fort Monroe, Va., Feb. 18.—A messenger from the home-coming battleship fleet, the yacht-like tender Yankton, put in here and began to take a full supply of coal preparatory to proceeding at the earliest practicable moment to Washington in response to a wireless summons picked up while the trim little craft was passing in the Virginia capes.

The Yankton will return to Hampton Roads in time to greet the fleet and then will journey back again to the capital to be used as convoy for some of the official parties that are to be present during the review of the fleet next Monday.

From the moment of the departure of the sixteen battleships on Dec. 16, 1907, the Yankton has hardly known a moment's rest. With a displacement of only 975 tons, against the 16,000 of the Connecticut and her class, the Yankton has been hammered by great seas even to the last day of the voyage, for when the anchors were let go in the Roadstead here Lieutenant-Commander McVay, in command, had practically his first relief from constant duty on the bridge for three days and nights.

The safe return of the Yankton is one of the distinct achievements of the cruise. Wherever the fleet has gone the Yankton has also. And while the larger ships have been lying safely in hospitable ports, the Yankton has been sent upon a dozen different errands, not the least of which was a mission of mercy to Messina after the earthquake.

Being less powerful and older than most of the battleships, the Yankton was unable to make the speed of the larger ships and usually was sent on ahead to point the way for the fleet and arrange for the reception prepared for the ships. The voyage of the globe, in consequence, has been one of long sea stretches for her officers and men, with few days in ports and plenty of buffeting by contrary winds and waves.

The little warship was shipshape and immaculately white when she steamed into the roads. Few of the hundreds knew that she had slipped by the government pier and had unostentatiously anchored far out in the roadstead in a convenient spot for coaling. The officers and men of the crew are pretty well worn out, however, and have been looking forward to a good rest.

CONFERENCE OF MOTHERS

Affairs of the Home and Childhood Will Be Considered

New Orleans, Feb. 18.—"Work for home and childhood in many states" is the keynote of the twelfth annual conference of the National Congress of Mothers, opened in this city today with an address by Governor Sanders of Louisiana. Other greetings of welcome to New Orleans, Louisiana and the south were extended to the delegates by representative men and women of the state and city. Responses were made by Mrs. Jefferson D. Gibbs of Los Angeles, Cal., speaking for the west; Mrs. George K. Johnson of Philadelphia, spokeswoman for the east, and Mrs. Frederic Schoff of Philadelphia, president of the National Congress of Mothers, who replied in behalf of the "guardians of childhood in home and nation."

The conference will remain in session four days, and the mothers will combine the discussion of topics of interest and importance with enjoyment of the Mardi Gras. The conference will close Sunday afternoon with a symposium of local work and concert at church.

WILL ADORN WHITE HOUSE

Rug Valued at $50,000 Accepted as a Gift to the Nation

Washington, Feb. 18.—A rug said to be worth more than $50,000 and claimed to be the finest in the world, was presented to the White House as a gift to the nation, and was accepted by President Roosevelt. It will be placed in the parlors of the president's home.

The donor was H. M. Topakyan, an Armenian of New York city. The rug is 6½ feet long and 4½ feet wide, is of imperial silk, heavily jewelled with pearls, turquoise, rubies and other stones.

High Prices For Longfellow Relics

New York, Feb. 18.—A copy of a privately printed book by Longfellow was sold at auction here to an unnamed buyer for $2200, and a series of letters of Longfellow, in his autography, brought $5100.

An Anti-Alien Measure

Helena, Mont., Feb. 18.—Representative Clayburg introduced a bill that would prevent after five years the holding of lands in Montana by aliens. It is aimed at Chinese and Japanese.

CZAR'S FAVORITE UNCLE

Grand Duke Vladimir, Popular Among Russians, Unexpectedly Dies

St. Petersburg, Feb. 18.—The Russian court, which had just emerged from mourning over the death of Grand Duke Alexis, has been plunged again into gloom by the death of Grand Duke Vladimir, which comes as a complete surprise and shock to a wide circle of society.

The grand duke has suffered for years from asthma. One of the attending physicians visited him Thursday afternoon and spoke most reassuringly of his condition. Half an hour later he was seized with asthmatic spasms and soon died.

The emperor, on learning of the death of his favorite uncle, proceeded immediately to St. Petersburg and entered the capital unheralded.

Grand Duke Vladimir was quite popular in St. Petersburg, his hearty manner and disregard for formality making an excellent impression upon those who came in contact with him. He mingled freely in the life of St. Petersburg, even in the days when it was supposed that he stood in danger of assassination. He served with distinction in the Russo-Turkish war and was decorated with the Cross of St. George.

ARMED WITH BLUDGEONS

Rowdies Hired by Irish Leaguers, According to William O'Brien

Cork, Feb. 18.—Addressing the electors last night, William O'Brien, who, as the leader of the minority at the United Irish League convention at Dublin was cried down in his advocacy of a policy of frank hostility towards the Liberals, complained of the manner in which he had been treated at the convention.

He declared hundreds of pounds of the party funds had been spent in engaging Belfast rowdies at 10 shillings a head, armed with bludgeons, to beat down all opposition to the program that had been arranged by the directory. He challenged President Redmond and the directory to bring action against him in order that the accuracy of this charge might be established.

RECEIVES UNUSUAL APPOINTMENT

Boston Woman Is Made a Sanitary Inspector

Boston, Feb. 18.—Miss Bessie Goldstein, for several years connected with the Civic Service house in the North End as teacher, has been appointed a sanitary inspector by Superintendent of Streets Emerson and is the first woman to receive such an appointment in Boston.

The appointment came as the result of a request of the newly organized Boston Woman's Municipal League, composed of members of some of Boston's foremost families.

INTEMPERANCE ALLEGED

Mrs. Tucker Files Suit Against Husband as His Hearing Ends

Chicago, Feb. 18.—The hearing before the army retiring board of the case of Colonel William A. Tucker, formerly paymaster of the department of the lakes, who seeks to be honorably retired on the usual retirement pay, has concluded.

Mrs. Mary Logan Tucker, wife of the colonel, immediately filed in court a suit for separate maintenance on the ground of intemperance.

Tucker went before the board with an air of confidence. Closeted in an adjoining room were those arrayed against him who seek to have him retired without compensation. These included his wife, Mrs. John A. Logan, his wife's mother, and Captain John D. Tucker, his only son.

Tucker, when the board announced that the hearing was ended, appeared visibly affected. "This ordeal is terrible," he said. "Just to think of my own son standing up against me. This is the first time I have seen my wife since October, 1905, when I left for the Philippines."

GOAT READY FOR TAFT

President-Elect to Be Made a "Mason at Sight" In Cincinnati Today

Cincinnati, Feb. 18.—All arrangements have been completed for making President-Elect Taft a "Mason at sight" at the Scottish Rite Cathedral today when a large and distinguished body of leaders of the order will crowd that building.

Grand Master Hoskinson, who alone under the constitution of the Ohio Grand Lodge has the authority, will confer the honor, which is likened to the ancient honor of knighthood on the field of battle, being an honor conferred for great achievements.

Crossing Tender Killed

Lonsdale, R. I., Feb. 18.—While he was returning to work from Lonsdale with his pay, Robert Murray, aged 45, a crossing tender at Whipple crossing, was struck by a train and instantly killed.

Danderine

Grows Hair and we can PROVE IT!

DANDERINE is to the hair what fresh showers of rain and sunshine are to vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates and strengthens them. Its exhilarating, stimulating and life-producing properties cause the hair to grow abundantly long, strong and beautiful. It at once imparts a sparkling brilliancy and velvety softness to the hair, and a few weeks' use will cause new hair to sprout all over the scalp. Use it every day for a short time, after which two or three times a week will be sufficient to complete whatever growth you desire.

A lady from St. Paul writes in substance, as follows:
"When I began using Danderine my hair would not come to my shoulders and now it is away below my hips."

Another from Newark, N. J.
"I have been using Danderine regularly. When I first started to use it I had very little hair, now I have the most beautiful long and thick hair anyone would want to have."

NOW at all druggists in three sizes 25c, 50c and $1.00 per bottle

Danderine enjoys a greater sale than any other one preparation regardless of kind or brand, and it has a much greater sale than all of the other hair preparations in the world combined.

Movement to Save American Resources Begun Today

MEETING IN WASHINGTON

President Welcomes Foreign Delegates In Address, Declaring Importance of Joint Efforts to Save Wealth of Continent For Future Generations—Conference an Outgrowth of Two Former Conventions

Washington, Feb. 18.—Union of the United States, the Dominion of Canada and the republic of Mexico in the movement to conserve the natural resources of the continent of North America is the purpose of the joint conservation commission which began its sessions at the state department in this city this morning. Taking part in the conference are delegates from the two neighboring countries, the national conservation commission of the United States which recently reported to President Roosevelt and representatives of the state department.

The Hon. Sydney Fisher, minister of agriculture in the Dominion cabinet, is the leading Canadian representative. The chairman of the Mexican delegation is the Hon. Romulo Escobar, former minister of agriculture of Mexico.

The foreign delegates to the conference were received at the White House by the president, who expressed his pleasure at the acceptance by Canada and Mexico of his invitation to the joint conference. He dwelt on the importance of the work of conservation, declaring that it transcended the boundaries of the three countries and depended on their cooperation. He called attention to the report of the United States commission and asserted that further efforts were needed to make the work already accomplished of benefit to the nation. He asked the foreign delegates to join with this country's commission in the formulation of a plan whereby the natural resources of the continent in lands, waters, forests and minerals may be wisely conserved for the benefit of future generations.

It is expected that the sessions of the conference will last three days. While in this city the Canadian and Mexican delegates will be the recipients of numerous social attentions, entertainments having been planned in their honor by their own countrymen and by many of the high officials of the United States government.

President Diaz of Mexico, Earl Gray, the governor general of Canada, and Sir Wilfrid Laurier, the premier of the Dominion, are greatly interested in the work of the conference and have written to President Roosevelt expressing their interest.

The conference is the outgrowth of the two conservation conferences held in Washington in which the governors of the states and territories were the principal conferees. At the second conference, in which, on Dec. 8, President Roosevelt and President-Elect Taft participated, representatives of the Canadian government were present, and they expressed interest in the conservation movement.

Out of that and the general interest the people of the United States are showing in the subject grew the idea of a North American conference to consider, in the words of the president, "mutual interests involved in the conservation of natural resources and to deliberate upon the practicability of preparing a general plan adapted to promote the welfare of the nations concerned."

Gifford Pinchot, chairman of the conservation commission, was sent by President Roosevelt to Ottawa and the City of Mexico to deliver in person invitations to the conference.

PERMANENT COMMISSION

Conference Thinks It the Proper Method For Dealing With Tariff

Indianapolis, Feb. 18.—The work of the national tariff conference convention was practically completed in the adoption of resolutions crystallizing its plans for the creation of a permanent tariff commisson and providing for a permanent organization to carry on the work of the convention.

Demand for the immediate creation by congress of a permanent tariff commission was voiced in resolutions adopted by the convention. To dispel any idea that delay in tariff revision is sought, or that the purpose of the gathering was to delay action on the tariff by congress, a provision was added urging that congress during its special session shall prepare and adopt a revised tariff to the best of its ability under present conditions.

Blocked by Smith

Washington, Feb. 18.—The stubborn and persistent opposition of Senator Smith of Michigan to the ratification of the Canadian boundary waterways treaty will carry the convention over until the next session of congress.

Cubans Want a Lottery

Havana, Feb. 18.—A bill to establish a national lottery for the purpose of increasing the national revenues was introduced in congress and referred to committee.

CRIMINAL LIBEL IS CHARGED

Natural Defendants of Two Newspapers Are Indicted

WARRANTS OUT FOR ARREST

President Roosevelt and President-Elect Taft Among Those Mentioned as Having Been Libelled by Stories In New York World and Indianapolis News—Cromwell Says He Was Asked to Pay $25,000 "Hush Money"

Washington, Feb. 18.—Bench warrants were issued late yesterday for the arrest of Joseph Pulitzer, the proprietor, and Caleb M. VanHamm and Robert Lyman, editors of the New York World, all of New York city; and for Delevan Smith and Charles R. Williams, owners of the Indianapolis News, for criminal libel in the publication in those newspapers of charges of irregularities in the purchase by the United States government of the Panama canal property from the French owners.

The idictments on which the warrants were based were returned by the United States grand jury sitting in this city and the warrants were issued later by Clerk of Criminal Court Noel. The warrants are directed against all five of the natural defendants of the two newspapers. The summons requires the corporate defendants (The Press Publishing company of New York) to appear in court forthwith to answer the indictment.

Theodore Roosevelt, William H. Taft, Elihu Root, J. P. Morgan, Charles P. Taft, Douglas Robinson and William N. Cromwell are named in the indictments as the persons alleged to have been villified by the stories appearing in the two newspapers.

Copies of the summons and of the indictment were served last evening upon the Press Publishing company by service on Otto Carmichael, its agent in this jurisdiction. The certified copies will be filed with Commissioner Shields in New York, who will issue warrants for the arrest of the natural defendants of the New York World, who will be brought before him to show cause why they should not be extradited to this jurisdiction for trial.

In the event that the commissioner should hold the indictment sufficient and the offense is one upon which the defendants may be extradited to this jurisdiction, the defendants can sue a writ of habeas corpus and have the commissioners' decision reviewed by the United States district court for the southern district of New York.

Should the decision of this court also be adverse to their interests, the case can then be taken to the supreme court of the United States for final review.

If the defendants should pursue the course outlined above probably at least a year will elapse before they can be brought before the district supreme court for trial.

Failure of an attempt to blackmail him, according to Cromwell, was the reason for the publication of the stories, which, he declared Thursday, "were exceptional and premeditated and made with fore knowledge of their infamous sources, and after specific warning by me of their falsity.

"The stories," he added, "were concocted more than two and a half years ago by unscrupulous parties in New York, some of whom have criminal records, in an attempt to blackmail me." He said that he was asked to pay $25,000 to have the stories suppressed.

"I do not believe The World was a party to these attempts, but it was dealing with the same gang. The indictments of the New York World and the Indianapolis News is not an indictment of the press of the United States, as they would like to have it appear to obtain the support of the general press of the country. I am in favor of a free and unmuzzled press."

WASHINGTON'S NEW COURT

It Will Be Presided Over by Judge Terrell, a Negro

Washington, Feb. 18.—Robert H. Terrill, a negro graduate of Harvard college, '84, who has been a justice of one of the magistrate courts of this city for the last seven years, has been appointed a judge of the municipal court of the District of Columbia, which has just been created by an act of congress.

Judge Terrell was appointed a magistrate by President Roosevelt in January, 1902. He is the only negro in the country holding a judicial position of the dignity of the one to which he has been elevated.

Sea Captain Killed

Boston, Feb. 18.—Injuries received by falling down the bunker hatch of his vessel caused the death of Captain Andrew Moar, commander of the British steamer Manx Isles. Moar had commanded steamers between this port and London and Antwerp for sixteen years.

Forger Signor Sentenced

Oakland, Cal., Feb. 18.—Frederick B. Signor, who pleaded guilty to forging the name of James A. Murry, a millionaire, was sentenced to seven years in prison.

CEMENT SHOW IN CHICAGO

Exhibition of New Building Material Is Opened Today

Chicago, Feb. 18.—Demonstration of the possibilities of concrete as a building material is the purpose of the second annual cement show, which was opened here today and will remain open for seven days. More than 150 manufacturers, representing capital of $250,000,000, have exhibits in the show.

The rapid advance of concrete in public favor is strikingly exhibited in the show by the figures stating that in 1896 only 150,000 barrels of cement were produced in the Unted States, while the output in 1907 was 49,000,000 barrels. The enthusiastic promoters of the use of cement in building declare that its use will solve the lumber problem and that its general adoption will mean the saving of most of the immense annual loss by fire.

Among the features of the show is the Edison exhibit of castings, by which it is possible to pour and cast a complete residence in twenty-four hours. They are the invention of Thomas A. Edison, who is greatly interested in the show.

TRIP THROUGH A SEWER

Ends With Laborer Being Fished Out of River With a Lasso

New York, Feb. 18.—Rocco Tonsoni, an Italian laborer engaged in repairing a sewer bulkhead, fell into a manhole 250 feet from the East river and before aid could reach him had been forced into the three-foot sewer and swept out of sight of his companions.

The flow of the sewer at this point is quite strong, and Tonsoni was carried along the narrow passage into the river. Here, however, Richard F. Ryan, a dock employe, was waiting for him with an improvised lasso, and when Tonsoni, face down, came out of the mouth of the sewer, he was caught by a well directed throw of the rope and quickly hauled to the pier-end above.

The Italian was unconscious when rescued, but artificial respiration soon brought him back to life. His condition, however, was such as to necessitate his removal to a hospital.

KENNY MUST FACE LARCENY CHARGE

He Is Said to Be Wanted In Several Cities

Boston, Feb. 18.—George F. Kenny, aged 45, formerly head of the George F. Kenny Paper company of Detroit, was brought here from Georgetown, D. C., to face the charge of the larceny of $1225 from Thomas H. Ruth.

Kenny, it is claimed, secured the money on checks drawn on the Seattle National bank, which were returned marked "no funds" and for which, as endorser, Ruth had to settle.

The police claim that Kenny is wanted in Detroit, LaCrosse, Wis., and Shanghai, on similar charges.

EDUCATOR AND DIPLOMAT

Venerable Dr. Angell Resigns Presidency of University of Michigan

Ann Arbor, Mich, Feb. 18.—Dr. James B. Angell has submitted his resignation of the presidency of the University of Michigan and the board of regents created the office of chancellor and offered it to him at a salary of $4000 a year with the continued use of the president's mansion on the university campus.

Dr. Angell, who on Jan. 7 last, celebrated his 80th birthday, has directed the phenomenal growth of the university since 1871, when he came to its presidency from the presidency of the University of Vermont. The University of Mchigan then had 1100 students, while today the attendance has reached 4780.

Twice has Dr. Angell been summoned to undertake diplomatic missions abroad, as minister to China in 1880 and to Turkey in 1897.

RECEIVED $4000 BRIBE

Jury Convicts Former Supervisor Coffey of San Francisco

San Francisco, Feb. 18.—The jury in the case of former Supervisor Michael W. Coffey, indicted on a charge of receiving a bribe of $4000 to vote for a trolley franchise for the United Railroads, returned a verdict of guilty. Judge Dunne fixed Feb. 27 as the date for pronouncing sentence.

Coffey, who was of Mayor Schmitz's board of supervisors, all of whom, except two, who were not involved, confessed to having accepted bribes through the agency of Abraham Reuf, is the first member of that board who has been prosecuted.

Freight Rate War Begun

Washington, Feb. 18.—A war in freight rates, the magnitude of which nobody yet can estimate, has been precipitated by the Boston and Maine railroad by its eliminating the differentials which hitherto have existed between Boston and New York, Boston and Philadelphia and Boston and Baltimore on import traffic.

Wife Murderer Electrocuted

Trenton, Feb. 18.—Adolphus Walker, a negro, who killed his wife in Camden county, was electrocuted at the state prison last night.

The Doctor's First Question

"How are your bowels?" This is generally the first question the doctor asks. He knows what a sluggish liver means. He knows that headaches, bilious attacks, indigestion, impure blood, are often promptly relieved by a good liver pili. Ask him if he approves of Ayer's Pills. Then follow his advice.

ASKING THE SPIRITS

By LULU JOHNSON.

Copyrighted, 1909, by Associated Literary Press.

"Ghosts!" repeated Paul Orford, with a smile. "To be sure there are ghosts. I have a personal acquaintance with half a dozen. I was one once. That was when the dramatic club put on 'Hamlet.'"

"Now you are frivolous," reproved Lucy. "It is a very serious matter to penetrate the veil that separates the present from the future and cross to that other shore. Mrs. Glendis says that we each should seek to test our mediumistic powers."

"There is one thing I like about ghosts," said Paul.

"What's that?" asked Lucy quickly as he paused.

"Their answers generally are yes and no," explained Paul meaningly. For nearly a year he had been trying to pin Lucy down to a definite acceptance or dismissal of his suit, but that tactful yet uncertain minded young woman would say him neither "yea" nor "nay," preferring to enjoy the greater freedom of action which is the privilege of the unengaged, while at the same time she held Orford her slave.

"Ghosts say lots more than that," insisted Lucy. "Mme. Goya was telling all about it. You start with the alphabet, and when you come to the right letter they give a rap, and in that way they spell out words. Mme. Goya says that it is the duty of every earnest thinker to develop mediumistic powers, because we never can tell whether we have the gift until we try to develop."

"She's right," declared Paul, with a greater interest than he had previously shown in the discussion. "Do you know I have thought for some time that I could develop along those lines with the proper sympathetic support?"

"You must join our circle," invited Lucy beamingly. She had been growing angry at Paul's covert sneers at Mme. Goya and Mrs. Glendis.

The latter had brought the adept to the attention of the Tuesday dancing class and had turned that select little company into a "circle."

The young man found it more interesting to sit in the darkness of the development room and hold hands, for there were times when something sent thrills through the investigators and caused the more timid among the girls to clutch more tightly the arms of their escorts.

Paul was not a member of the dancing class in spite of his devotion to Lucy, and he rather resented these seances.

"I think," suggested Paul, "that it might be well to try me out before I seek to display my powers in public. It will be an hour before your mother gets back from the Bradleys, and your father is too busy with that new book he borrowed to interrupt. Suppose we hold a sitting now?"

"I never heard of a sitting with only two," objected Lucy. "Even with the fifteen or twenty of our circle we get scarcely any return yet, and I do not believe that the two of us could get any response at all."

"We can try it," pleaded Paul. "We cannot do more than fail, and there might come some slight indication that one or the other had mysterious power."

"Yes, we can try it," assented Lucy brightly, glad to see Paul's interest. "Of course you must promise that if there is no development you will not be discouraged."

"I'll promise that," assented Paul promptly. "I'll not be discouraged."

"Then we'll try," agreed Lucy as she cleared the magazines and books from a light table and brought it into the center of the room. She placed chairs on opposite sides, disregarding Paul's suggestion that they be placed side by side, and then, turning down the light, she took her place in one seat and called to him to take the other.

"They almost always sing," she began uncertainly.

"Then we'll sing," assented Paul. "We'll follow all the process."

His hands closed over Lucy's, resting on the table, and softly Lucy sang one of the songs approved by her circle.

"Now you must keep very still," she whispered. "Just concentrate on the desire to obtain a communication. It may be some time before we feel any response."

"That's all right," was the ready reply. "I'd be willing to wait hours to absolutely make certain."

"You don't have to hold my hands so tight," suggested Lucy. "Just rest your finger tips on mine to complete the circuit."

"This is better," objected Paul, with truth. "We establish a better contact or whatever you call it."

"Don't talk any more," cautioned Lucy. "The spirits won't come while you are talking."

Paul subsided into silence. It was very pleasant sitting there in the half light with Lucy's hands in his own. In the soft gloom he could just make out the oval of her face and catch faintly the eager gleam in her blue eyes. He was willing to experiment along these lines forever.

Outdoors the rain beat against the plate glass of the windows with a sharp rattle that added to the comfortable feeling of those within, and apart from that only the crackle of coal in the grate broke the silence.

For twenty minutes no sign came, and then there was heard a succession of sharp raps that caused Lucy to clutch Paul's hands in tighter clasp and somewhat shook his own placidity.

The trial had been an excuse for holding Lucy's hands. He had not expected any manifestation.

"Did you do that?" she whispered.

"On my word, no," he replied. "You didn't tap with your foot, did you?"

Lucy shook her head. "I wouldn't cheat," she insisted reproachfully. "This is not a thing to make a jest of."

"Are the spirits present?" asked Paul, raising his voice slightly. And the response was a series of brisk raps.

"That is more than the proper number," objected Paul. "One is 'no,' and three is 'yes.'"

"I suppose that a lot means underscore marks," suggested Lucy. "Ask something else."

"Are you willing to answer me?" demanded Paul, and the three raps made an affirmative.

"May I ask some personal questions?" Again the three raps.

"I want to know if Lucy and I are to be married?" explained Paul. And Lucy gasped at this impertinence toward the spirits.

"They won't answer that," she insisted in a whisper, but the three raps came loud and clear, and, with a little cry, Lucy sprang to her feet and turned on the gas.

"You were cheating," she cried. "You were kicking the table leg."

"See for yourself," he retorted, turning the light table so that she might see that there were no scratches on the polished legs. "I am more mystified than you are. There must be something in it, after all."

"There must be," she assented softly.

"And you will accept their decree?" he asked. "You will marry me?"

"I suppose that I must, since it is the will of those 'over there,'" assented the girl. "I meant to some time, anyhow," she added half defiantly as Paul caught her in his arms, and the world beyond was forgotten in the joy of the life right here.

Late that evening Paul smoked his good night cigar in the comfort of the big armchair. At his feet lay Bunch, the English bulldog that was Paul's constant companion. Bunch was fast asleep on a rug, but he roused when his master stirred.

"Bunch," cried the jubilant Orford, "there was something in it, after all. I thought that spirit thing was largely a matter of imagination, but I'm certain that Lucy did not do the rapping, and I know that I didn't. It was a clear case of spirits."

Bunch blinked an intelligent eye and wagged his stumpy tail in assent. Paul started as the familiar rapping came again. Bunch's tail was pounding against the hardwood parquet border.

"So you were the ghost. You wagged your tail when we asked questions because you thought we were talking to you?"

Bunch's stumpy caudal appendage made answer again, and Paul's face was wreathed in smiles.

"We must never tell Lucy," he cautioned, and Bunch, almost asleep, made an instinctive effort to reply. Feebly the tail wavered, and only once did it strike against the floor.

"That's 'no,' and that goes," assented Paul. "You're all right, Bunch." And Bunch solemnly rapped out "Yes."

Chinese Maritime Mottoes.

John Henry Grey in his "China" tells of the mottoes which decorate a Chinese vessel.

On the masts of the seagoing junks are fastened strips of red paper inscribed with Chinese characters. Some of the mottoes follow:

"The mast is as a general commanding 10,000 soldiers."

"From every side of the compass may fair winds blow."

"May this mast scorn tempests from whatever quarter of the heavens they may come."

On the poop a pavilion is built, and over its doorway is a chance for more mottoes.

"May the wind not cause angry waters to rise." "May this vessel brave the storms of a hundred years."

There is always a shrine on board, and here the Chinese gods are appealed to.

"Wherever this ship may sail, grant her a prosperous voyage." "Enable us by trading to acquire wealth."

The very names of the junks would bring good luck if superstition could weave an actual fortune—Good Success, Golden Profits, Never Ending Gains.

Didn't Fall Quick Enough.

In a room on the top floor of a large factory a boy was amusing himself by going through the bayonet exercise with a long handled brush in lieu of a rifle. His boss, coming quickly upon him, gave him a box on the ear for wasting his time.

The sudden blow caused the lad to lose his balance and fall down the hoist shaft; but, fortunately, he kept his hold on the brush, the handle of which, getting across the shaft, broke his fall and enabled him to grasp the chain, down which he slid in safety.

The boss was horrified at the effect of his action and rushed breathless and gasping with fear down the eight flights of stairs to the basement, expecting to find a mangled body for which he would have to account.

He was, however, just in time to see the lad drop on his feet unharmed; so, recovering his self possession and his breath, he exclaimed:

"Want to be a soldier, eh? Well, you're too slow for that. Why, man, I can walk down all those stairs quicker than you can fall down the hoist shaft."—London Answers.

WHAT THE KIDNEYS DO.

Their Unceasing Work Keeps Us Strong and Healthy.

All the blood in the body passes through the kidneys once every three minutes. The kidneys filter the blood They work night and day. When healthy they remove about 500 grains of impure matter daily, when unhealthy some part of this impure matter is left in the blood. This brings on many diseases and symptoms—pain in the back, headache, nervousness, hot dry skin, rheumatism, gout, gravel, disorders of the eyesight and hearing, dizziness, irregular heart, debility, drowsiness, dropsy, deposits in the urine, etc. But if you keep the filters right you will have no trouble with your kidneys.

Mrs. Deborah Prouty, living at 85 North St., Quincy, Mass., says: "I am in a position to speak in the highest terms of Doan's Kidney Pills. My back ached nearly all the time and caused me considerable trouble. Any sudden movement, or if I attempted to stoop, sent sharp pains, through my loins. My health was much run down and I had but little strength or energy. I was very much alarmed about my condition when Doan's Kidney Pills were recommended to me. I had known so many people who had used them with beneficial results that I procured a supply at the Cox Drug Store. Three boxes convinced me that Doan's Kidney Pills were the best kidney remedy to be had and I am now in perfect health."

State House Hearing

QUINCY LOCALS BRIEFLY TOLD

The Bonita club holds a subscription dancing party in Electa Hall Saturday evening

Mrs. Harry Gallagher entertains the Neighborly whist club tonight at her home on North street.

The first annual dance of the Quincy base ball association will be held tomorrow night in Hibernian hall.

The second of a series of six weekly dances given by the Woman's Relief corps, will be held tonight in Electa hall.

The Quincy Y. M. C. A track team will try conclusions with the speedy track aggregation of Malden Y. M. C. A. in the local gymnasium tonight. The Malden team is one of the fastest Y. M. C. A. teams in the state and Quincy will go some to win.

Six tables were in play at the weekly whist tournament of the Granite City club Wednesday evening and some good scores were recorded. It remained for Robert Reed and James H. Penniman to carry off the honors of the evening however.

Quincy High and Medford meet at basket ball here tomorrow afternoon. Medford has a good five, but after Quincy's 53 to 9 defeat by Winthrop on Tuesday, they will have to go a whole lot to trim the locals. The home five is out for revenge on somebody.

Great interest is being manifested in the debate "Do we need a navy?" at the Unity club Friday evening. It is not often that one has an opportunity to hear so many representative men debating together on a subject upon which all have a special knowledge.

The St. Mary's basket ball five will entertain the Randolph A. A. at St. Mary's hall Saturday night. Keen rivalry exists between these two teams and the game is bound to be hot from start to finish. The second team will meet the Hingham A. A. in the preliminary game.

MEET NEW PASTOR.

Rev. Carl G. Horst Tendered Reception by Wollaston Unitarian Society.

Rev. Carl G. Horst, the new pastor of the Wollaston Unitarian church and Mrs. Horst were tendered a reception Wednesday evening by the parishioners of the church. The reception brought a large number who were glad of the opportunity to meet the new pastor in a social manner.

Rev. and Mrs. Horst were assisted in receiving by Dr. and Mrs. C. H. Adams, Mrs. M. C. Aitkin and Miss Harriet Turner.

The ushers were: N. O. Parker, W. J. Wellington, J. P. Cumings, H. A. Stevens, Robert F. Leach, Roy C. Baker and N. S. Robbins.

Light refreshments were served.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

W. B. POLLOCK PROMOTED.

Former Quincy Man Elected Vice-President of J. Transit Companies.

Walter Briesler Pollock formerly of Quincy has been elected vice-president of both the Western and Rutland Transit Companies, the former operating (in connection with the N. Y. C. & H. R. RR.) a line of freight steamers between Buffalo and Lake Michigan and Lake Superior ports, and the latter (in connection with the Rutland RR.) a line of freight steamers between Ogdensburg and Lake Erie and Lake Michigan ports, which means that the marine divisions of the Lakes and seaboard are to be placed under a single responsible head.

We know that the Marine Journal voices the sentiment of every one of the many corporations and individuals engaged in marine affairs at this great port when it says that this promotion meets with the hearty approval of all interested; while those who are more intimately acquainted with Mr. Pollock know that the New York Central's management have in their selection of a successor to the late lamented Gibson L. Douglass properly guarded the interest of this extensive corporation as well as those doing business with its marine department here and on the Great Lakes.

It was twenty-five years ago that Mr. Pollock began his service to this great trunk line railroad, and over ten years since he was sent from the Grand Central offices at 42d Street to take charge of the marine department in the Produce Exchange building with its large force of assistants and marine property; and it is safe to assert that during that time a man cannot be found that has had business with Mr. Pollock who doesn't believe him to be the embodiment of all that is high-toned and honorable in business, besides possessing the necessary qualifications to carry on the multiplicity of duties of this important department without friction inside or outside of it.

It is to be hoped that Mr. Pollock's added labors will not keep him away from his home port enough to deprive his friends here of their accustomed pleasant business and social inter-course with him.

SPEAKS BEFORE MEN'S CLUB.

Senator Hultman Explains Intricacies of Parliamentary Law.

Senator Eugene C. Hultman was the speaker at the regular meeting of the Christ church Men's club, held Wednesday evening in the parish house. The meeting was largely attended and the address was interesting and instructive.

Senator Hultman's subject was "Parliamentary Law" and as he has been in the State house several years he is thoroughly conversant with the laws which govern the house. These laws are very intricate in some cases and a man must keep in touch with them all the time.

Senator Hultman explained the laws thoroughly and also told a few anecdotes about men who have become entangled by the laws. He also told of some of the clever ways of getting around the parliamentary law.

After the talk there was an entertainment and refreshments were served.

WOLLASTON YACHT CLUB.

The house committee of the Wollaston Yacht club for the ensuing year is as follows: James S. Whiting, chairman; George H. Stebbins, secretary and treasurer; Josiah A. Fenno, sub-committee on wharf and floats; A. N. Poterton, sub-committee on lockers; Charles F. Austin; George H. Stebbins, sub-committ on pool. Commodore Dawes is the committee on entertainment.

THE GROUND HOG.

Cunning little ground hog,
Can you really say
What the weather will be like
Almost into May?
Will you really, truly,
Cross your heart and swear
If you see your shadow
We should have a care?

How can you, I wonder,
Dope it ready made
With a shadow only
For your stock in trade?
How can you so deftly
Six weeks' weather cook
When you know you never
Read a single book?

Say, did you inherit
From a grandsire dead
Skill to fix the weather
Some six weeks ahead?
Or does power inherent
Run through all your tribe?
And we'd like to ask you
Would you take a bribe?

Merry little ground hog,
You may think you're smart
As you so offhanded
Exercise your art
When you see your shadow Saying, "'Twill be thus Six more weeks of winter,"
But it's tough on us.

WEYMOUTH

The republican caucuses were held in all the Wards in town Tuesday evening and were very slimly attended, as it was thought there would be no opposition to any of the candidates, except in Ward two where there were two candidates for the school board. Joseph A. Cushing withdrew and on his motion T. John Evans was nominated for school committee by acclamation. It was practically conceeded that this ward should have one of the nominations for the school board. But a surprise was sprung in Ward one when the friends of the retiring superintendent of schools captured the caucus and nominated Fred Revinius for school committee. So the matter will have to be decided at the general caucus tomorrow night when there will be three candidates for the two nominations. It is a very funny situation and is caused by some of the very people who have been crying to take the schools out of politics.

Frank H. Torrey who was a candidate for Water Commissioner to succeed himself was opposed in the caucus, but came out victorious. Mr. Torrey's opposition to the superintendent of schools, is given as the cause for the attempt to oust him from the Water board. In Ward three there were twenty-one persons present including the Janitor. No opposition was anticipated to the regular order of things, so the insurgents got control of the caucus and succeeded in ousting William S. Wallace from the position of chairman which he has held for a number of years. Had there been the least inkling of the job, there is no question but what Mr. Wallace would have swamped his opponent.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

WINTER BALL GOSSIP

Fans Busily Engaged Doping Out Positions of League Teams.

EARLY SPRING TRAINING.

Managers Not All Agreed as to Benefits to Be Derived From Anti-Season Trips to Condition Men—The Financial Side.

This is the busy season in the Cigar Store league, and the argumentative baseball fans that comprise its extended circuit at their nightly meetings are doping out the positions of the 1909 clubs in the major leagues and settling the pennants in both organizations.

These comfortable enthusiasts, who, to judge from their conversation, know more about running a baseball team than any of the managers, have nothing but past performances to rely upon in making up their lists of clubs, and yet nothing is more unreliable. It has been the history of more than one championship season that a club which started out with the brightest prospects for a good position in the race has yet proved a grievous disappointment.

How often has it been figured out on paper before the season opened that such and such a club on the batting and fielding averages of the previous year and the strength displayed by its pitchers was almost a sure one-two-three proposition, and yet before the season was half over was hopelssly struggling in the second division?

Take last year's New York Americans as an example. The Highlanders started the season in a manner that gave every one the impression that the American league pennant was going to be a runaway race, yet toward the last of May the team began to drop, and it never stopped until it hit last place, where it remained for the rest of the season.

There is no doping out a sure pennant winner any more in either organization, and, while it will be pointed out that Detroit and Chicago ran true to form in 1908, both clubs had the closest kind of race, and the Cubs only won the flag on a technicality, while the Tigers were forced to the limit to win by a narrow margin.

A club like Chicago in the National league may and did last year have a clear lead for the pennant in midseason and be going at a fast gait, and fans can see nothing but the flag for the Cubs, yet some such sensational spurt as the Phillies made toward the close of the season may shatter all calculations.

It is a matter of history that Covaleskie in three games beat the Giants out of the National league flag. Incidents such as these, with the many minor ones of sore arms, players having an off year, accidents, and so on, show what a hazardous thing it becomes when trying to foretell the standing of baseball teams at the close of a season.

To what extent does the early spring training have on the fortunes of a baseball team? All the major league clubs now take these ante-season trips to condition their men, work out new plays, signals, etc., but it is a singular thing that no two managers seem to agree as to the exact degree of latitude a team can secure the most beneficial results. One will go just over the border line of the south, another as far as the geographical limits of the United States will permit, while still another will hike to the warm climate of southern California, not to mention those who favor the medicinal springs of Indiana, Arkansas and Texas.

Measured by results, it is not always the team which goes farthest that fares the best. Both Chicago teams last year took in the sunset country and both were successful, though Detroit and the Phillies almost paralleled their results without going a tithe of the distance traveled by the Cubs and White Sox. There were the New York Americans, for instance, who did their preliminary work in far Texas, and yet not only finished last, but were never in the race after a little over a month.

Managers argue pro and con about the baleful effects of suddenly jumping from the salubrious climate of the far south to the uncertain temperature of the north in early April. Some claim that the change stiffens the muscles and practically undoes any beneficial work that may be accomplished by the stay south, while others believe they offset a calamity by working north in easy stages, thus getting the players gradually acclimated to the changing weather conditions. These latter have the added advantage also of playing minor league teams on the way, which is not only a diversion for the men, but gives them better real practice than when the squad is divided into two teams, as the members of both nines are familiar with each other's signals.

There is still another thing to be taken into consideration besides the benefits accruing to the players, and that is the financial returns. Playing teams in southern cities and charging a nominal admission fee, more than one manager has been almost enabled to meet training expenses. Take the Athletics. Last year Manager Mack took his squad to New Orleans during the Mardi Gras season and played with the Southern league team of that city all during the festivities, when the Crescent City was crowded with visitors. The attendance during the week was nominal, but on Sundays there were from 5,000 to 7,000 at a game. It is a pretty safe bet that Manager Mack made enough out of these exhibition games to liquidate his hotel bills.

Animals at Play.

Cats delight in racing about, but not so often, I think, in circles, as dogs do. They prefer straight lines and sharp turns with the genuine goat jump. This sudden flight into the air, which appears to take place without the animal's knowledge or intention, cannot here be preparatory to life in the mountains, but the cat finds the high jump very useful, not only in pouncing on its prey, but in escaping its hereditary enemy. Brehm records a movement play of young chamois. When in summer the young chamois climb up to the perpetual snow they delight to play on it. They throw themselves in a crouching position on the upper end of a steep snow covered incline, work all four legs with a swimming motion to get a start and then slide down on the surface of the snow, often traversing a distance of from 100 to 150 meters in this way, while the snow flies up and covers them with a fine powder. Arrived at the bottom, they spring to their feet and slowly clamber up again the distance they have slid down. —"The Play of Animals," by Karl Groos.

The Ananias Story.

Go to church and hear the pastor, in his pulpit large and wide, tell about the dread disaster that o'erwhelmed the man who lied. It was Colonel Ananias, who in days long dead and gone, shocked his neighbors (who were pious) when he put the truth in pawn. Ah, he took the truth and hauled it through the cinders and the slack, and he slugged it, and he mauled it, and he split it up the back; so some bears came up and ate him, at the prophet's stern command, and the generations hate him as they march adown the land. He was cast into a furnace that was full of coal and wood, and he muttered, "This will learn us" (for his grammar wasn't good.) In the Red sea's depths he wallowed, with his chariots and men, till a whale came up and swallowed him, and he felt seedy then. Let us therefore shun the fable and the foolish, futile lie; do the best that we are able, camp in heaven by and by.—Emporia Gazette.

The Glory of New York.

What other city is there of like size which matches New York in position? It is a seaside city; the salt water laves its feet. As the traveler approaches it he thinks of Venice rising from the sea or is perhaps reminded of ancient Tyre, which "stood out in the sea as a hand from a wrist" and of which the houses were impressively tall. "Impressive" is not too indulgent a word for the skyscrapers of New York—clean faced, simple, original and audacious, they are characteristic of the land and of the people. They are not ugly concessions to utility, but a rather grand adaptation of architecture to circumstances. The ancients, harassed with dread of piracy, would not have dared to build a city like New York on the edge of a great harbor open to the sea. It is something which the modern world alone could have given us.—London Spectator.

Work of a Burmese Bud.

Instead of a coming out party as we know it, the Burmese girl's entrance into society begins when she has her ears pierced. As soon after this as she feels inclined she selects a husband and goes to live in a home of her own. The home is provided by the man, but it becomes his wife's as soon as they are married. All women, young and old, are addicted to the use of tobacco. The women seem to prefer the very large size black cigar. Often one meets a woman on the streets of a village with one of these huge cigars in her mouth and two or three more stuck in the holes of each ear.

Deceitful.

"Men are queer animals," said the pessimist. "They are all more or less deceitful."

"Oh, I don't believe that!" replied the optimist. "I think there are plenty of people who strive to be honest. I know I do, and I don't give myself credit for being any better than the majority of men."

"Then why do you ask me how my health is every time we meet and stand around and look bored if I tell you?"

Permanent.

Bride of Some Months—My tempers you say are trying.

He—At times.

"I would not have you worn out with them. If you cared to be released from"—

"Oh, no; not at all; not a minute. I don't feel so even when I am cross. I'm no ninety day volunteer. I enlisted for the war."—Life.

Not Disappointed.

"A young friend of mine," remarked a humorist, "got married last month. He said to me the other day:

"'When I married Mamie I thought she was an angel. But,' he added, 'I soon found out my mistake.'

"'Disappointed?' I asked.

"'Disappointed? Nit!' he cried. 'I found she was a good cook.'"

Doubly Exciting.

"Dorothy always begins a novel in the middle."

"What's that for?"

"Why, then she has two problems to be excited over—how the story will end and how it will begin."

A Chance.

Husband—My colleague is the most insatiable man I ever saw. He wants everything he sees. Wife—Can't you introduce our daughter to him?—London Mail.

MALDEN BOYS CAPTURE DUAL MEET

Exciting Contests Brought Out At Y. M. C. A. Gym

LOCAL TEAM WINS FIRST PLACE IN RELAY RACE

Tupper of Quincy Captures High Dive With Hittle of Malden Second

The dual meet between the Quincy and Malden Y. M. C. A. track teams Thursday night brought out some exciting contests. The meet which was won by the Malden boys was held in the local gym and although it was known that it would be an interesting one, the attendance was not large. It seems funny that local people refuse to take an interest in such games.

There were six events run off during the evening and all were closely contested. The fifteen yard dash was run in four preliminary heats, a beat for second men and a final. Newall of Quincy took the event, Enright getting second and Wilkins third, both of Malden. The time was 2 3-5 seconds.

In the shot put the men were pretty evenly balanced and it was necessary for each to have three extra tries to decide the event. Hittle of Malden put the iron sphere 42 ft. 3 in. and got the cup. Claflin and Lupton of the local team got the second and third prizes.

Malden got first and third in the potato race, Wilkins and Enright getting places. Wilson of Quincy finished second. The time was 35 3-5 seconds.

The rope climb was over very quickly for each man had only one try. Hittle of Malden won, with Picard of Quincy second and Holden of Malden third. Time 6 3-5 seconds.

The hottest event of the evening, outside the relay race, was the high dive. There were a bunch of starters, but they dwindled to a few and finally to Tupper and Hittle. Tupper won, with Hittle second. Third place was divided between Ulrich, Buckley, and Allen.

The big thing of the meet was the relay race although it didn't count in the points. Newall started and took the lead at the start, with the result that the Quincy team was never headed and won the race in the creditable time of 2m. 3 3-5 seconds.

The score by points was as follows:

	MALDEN	QUINCY
15 yd. dash	4	5
12 lb short put	5	4
Potato race	6	3
Rope climb	6	3
High dive	3 1-3	5 2-3
Total	24 1-3	20 2-3

The summary follows:

15 yd. dash—won by Newell (Q;) Enright (M) second; Wilkins (M) third. Time 2 3-5 seconds.

Shot put—won by Hittle (M); Claflin (Q) second; Lupton (Q) third. Distance, 42 ft. 3in.

Potato race—won by Wilkins (M); Wilson (Q) second; Enright (M) third. Time 35 3-5 seconds.

Rope climb—won by Hittle (M); Picard (Q) second; Holden (M) third. Time 6 3-5 seconds.

High dive—won by Tupper (Q); Hittle (M) second; Ulrich (Q), Buckley (Q), and Allen (M) tied for third. Height 5 ft. 11 in.

Relay race—Quincy vs. Malden, won by Quincy (Newall, Melville, Buckley and Griffin;) Malden, second. Time 2 m. 3 3-5 seconds.

HON. ROBERT LUCE RAPS BOSTON FINANCE BOARD

Says Report On Primary Elections Casts Odium On Election Reformers

Hon. Robert Luce paid his respects to the Boston Finance board, in his address before the Men's club of the Memorial Congregational church at Atlantic Thursday evening, denying emphatically the report of that board in regard to primary election, and accusing the board of creating false reasons why the plan should be given up.

George F. Sawyer, Jr., president of the club presided, and previous to the meeting he entertained a small party at dinner at his home on Faxon road. Covers were laid for twelve and in the party were Hon. Robert Luce, Hon. Eugene C. Hultamn, senator from this district, Representative Louis F. R. Langelier, ex-Senator Eugene H. Sprague, William M. Chase, chairman of the Republican City committee, Charles R. Safford, councilman Chas. A. Hadlock, W. F. Cummings, Rev. Thomas W. Davidson, Mr. French and George T. Magee, clerk of the City Council.

In introducing Mr. Luce, President Sawyer said he was the gentleman whom the ward supported for Lieut. Governor last fall.

In opening his address Mr. Luce expressed his pleasure at being present as it afforded him an opportunity to thank the gentlemen for their support in the recent campaign.

He then said that he would speak to them on the history of suffrage and the ballot.

In any country where people share in the government there should be some way for them to express their desires. On the whole in the long run the will of the majority is likely to be the insest although it is not true that the minority is always wrong.

It was in Rome that the first secret ballot was used in the expression of the people.

Cicero argued that the secret ballot meant the downfall of Rome and by some it is still believed to have been the cause of its downfall.

The speaker then told of the early methods of expression in the Massachusetts Bay colony where suffrage was limited to church members. The method of voting in those days was by corn and beans, and there was a penalty for putting more than one bean or corn in the box. There we have the first corrupt practice act.

Many in New England argued as Cicero that the secret ballot meant the downfall and it was not until war times that the secret ballot was used.

Many of the reforms are established in the colonies; thus it was in Australia, that the ballot was devised in 1850 to 1855. It was first copied in England and in Massachusetts in 1888 and this state came within a few weeks of being the first in this country to adopt the Australian ballot.

The voting in secret was not the only change for it provided for the arrangement of the ballot and booths. To us it not only gave decency but put an end to stories of the intimidation of voters.

In England the ballot never cantains the party disignation as it is the theory there, that voters should exercise their own judgment and there are those here who think in city affairs the voter should exercise his judgment, and that party designations should be dropped. Personally Mr. Luce said he favored dropping party names but on the other hand, it must be pointed out that all voters can not have an intimate knowledge of candidates so that it will still hold true that the voter must get his knowledge from some one else.

It is a question if this information is as good as could be obtained by a caucus.

Mr. Luce then spoke of the convention system and told of many evils that had arisen through conventions. He said it was intended that a convention should be a deliberating body but it became a dictatory body. He then recounted instances that had come from personal observation, to show how the popular will was averted by conventions.

These led up to the direct nominations act and the speaker said he took some pride in the share he had taken in it.

In closing he spoke of the contest now going on in New York for the direct nomination act, and that certain people were using the report of the Boston Finance board to defeat the efforts of Gov. Hughes, even going so far as to prevert the truth.

He then read from the report of the Finance board pointing out wherein it was wrong. He denied emphatically the statement of that board in regard to primary elections. It was unnecessary he said to create false reasons. It was never right to produce good results by tne use of falsehood. The report casts, he said, an odium on men who have been trying to reform elections.

The purpose of primary elections was fair play, honesty and good results.

Mr. Luce was given great applause at the conclusion of his address and upon motion of Mr. Cummings he was also given a rising vote of thanks.

MARRIED IN SCOTLAND.

Cambridge Man Takes Quincy Girl For His Bride.

Word has just been received from Scotland of the marriage of Miss Mary B. Leslie of Quincy and James Wilson Jolly of Cambridge, which took place at Aberdeen on Wednesday February 3d.

Miss Leslie was becomingly attired in a gown of white net over soft white lawn with val insertion. She wore a veil and an orange blossom wreath in her hair. She carried a spray bouquet of white and green decorated with satin ribbon.

Miss Bella Leslie, sister of the bride, was bridesmaind. She wore a pretty dress of pale blue voile with cream hand sewed embroidery.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. James Rae of the North Parish church, Aberdeen. After the ceremony dinner was served in the Cafe Royal, covers being laid for fifty persons. The evening was spent in singing and dancing, followed by a wedding supper.

Among the guests were friends of Mr. and Mrs. Jolly from the United States, among whom were Messrs. Fraser, Coull, Chesser and Valentine and Mrs. Taylor all of Quincy.

Mr. and Mrs. Jolly will reside for a time at 94 Constitution street, Aberdeen but will soon take up their home in this state.

ON ACCOUNT OF STRIKE.

Chief Burrell Sends Four Officers to Braintree.

Chief Burrell received a request from the Selectmen of Braintree this morning to detail four officers for duty at the D. B. Closson shoe factory, where a strike is in progress.

About 140 lasters went out this morning and as trouble was feared, Quincy and Weymouth were called upon to send officers to aid the Braintree force.

Officers Dinneen, Olson, Bouton and Whalan were detailed by Chief Burrell.

JAMES B. FLYNN.

James B. Flynn, aged about 67 years and unmarried, was found dead in his room in the house of Michael Fallon, 88 Walnut street, Atlantic, this morning.

The Fallons were aroused about 3.30 o'clock by Flynn's coughing and they gave him something to relieve an attack of asthma.

This morning they found him dead on a mattress that had probably been placed on the floor by Flynn during his suffering.

ENTERTAIN LOCAL SCHOOL TEACHERS

Woman's Club Gives Reception and Musical.

ORCHESTRA AND QUARTET FURNISH MUSIC.

Clubhouse Tastefully Decorated With Palms and Cut Flowers.

The Quincy school teachers were the guests of Quincy Woman's club on Thursday evening, at a reception and musical given in the clubhouse. Every teacher in the Quincy schools was invited and by the large number present, it seemed as if they all took advantage of the invitation.

The clubhouse was decorated attractively and everything was perfectly arranged. The reception was in charge of Mrs. Charles R. Safford. chairman of the education committee and much of the success is due to her.

The guests began to arrive about 8 o'clock and as each person entered they were handed a beautiful jonquil. They were then escorted upstairs where wraps were disposed of and thence down to the reception room, where the receiving line was stationed.

The ushers were Mrs. William O. Wellington, Mrs. Samuel Ames, Miss Josephine Kelly, Miss Delia Burke, Miss Helen Curtin, Miss Laura Tolman, Mrs. John Christiansen and Miss Margaret Gearwar. Miss Eliza Sheahan and Mrs. E. E. Jameson handed the jonquils to the teachers as they entered.

The following were in the receiving line: Mrs. Charles R. Safford, chairman; Frank E. Parlin, superintendent of schools; Mrs. Herbert J. Gurney, Mr. and Mrs. Dexter Wadsworth, Mrs. Wilson Marsh, Mrs. Eben Sheppard, Mrs. Chandler W. Smith, Mrs. Frederick Bishop and Dr. and Mrs. John F. Welch. While the guests were arriving and being received, Estey's orchestra gave a pleasing concert.

During the evening the Westland quartette sang several selections. These four beautiful singers need no introduction to Quincy people as they have appeared here several times.

The following program was rendered by the quartette.

"Waken, lords and ladies gay." Matthews
Quartette
"Long ago in Alcala." Messager
Mrs. Miller
"Drink to me only with thine eyes." Old English air
Quartette
Duet "Estudiantina" Lacome
Miss Dadmun and Miss Coe
"Little Pappose" Quartette Sherwood
Piano solo Miss Whiton Selected
"Magic month of May" Miss Coe Newton
(a) "One Mornining in May" } Mrs. Tirrell
(b) "Rock-a bye Song" }
Quartette
(a) "Tis Snowing" Bemberg
(b) "Rosy Morn" Ronald
Miss Dadmun
"Carmena" Quartette Wilson

After the concert refreshments were served, under the direction of Mrs. Henry G. Wright, who was assisted by Mrs. Herbert Hicks, Mrs. Charles Alden, Mrs. W. A. McCormick, Mrs. George Badger, Miss Elizabeth Rogers and Mrs. H. V. Hildreth. The pourers were Mrs. John F. Welch, Mrs. Zenas Arnold, and Mrs. Chandler W. Smith.

PHILATHEA BIBLE CLASS.

Noted Religious Worker Speaks at Special Meeting.

The Philathea Bible class of Bethany church held a special meeting Thursday night in Bethany chapel.

The meeting was opened with a hymn by a chorus of young ladies, after which W. E. Branch read the scripture and Dr. E. N. Hardy the pastor, led in prayer. Mr. Branch then in very fitting words introduced the speaker of the evening, Luther M. Tesh field secretary of the world-wide Baraca and Philathea Union.

Mr. Tesh gave a very helpful and instructive talk, showing the class how they might improve their home class, and also showed the great work being done by other classes.

At the close of the talk, Miss Isabel A. Mitchell sang "Face to Face," after which all adjourned to the parlors, where refreshments were served.

Another great treat for the boys of Quincy, Saturday, Feb. 20th at 9 A. M. Seventy-five colored slides with story of "The Lad from beyond Tuxedo" will be the feature.

A Chicago man has been sent to the Penitentiary for marrying fifty women. There is a law against unnecessarily cruel punishments otherwise the court would probably have left him to the women.

Cardinal Gibbons suggests the name "Our William" as a popular soubriquet for the President-elect. But "Our Big Bill" will probably be more apropriate and may keep us from forgetting our billion dollar expenses.

Much is said about the immorality of the stage. The stage like the press, the pulpit, and Congress is very much what the people demand—it is representative—and if the stage reaches the limit which is very close, it may cure itself by rising "on stepping stones of its dead self to nobler things." A slime bath is sometimes necessary to produce a reaction.

There is, in the city of Washington, a "Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals" and it has been so energetic in arresting and prosecuting those who overload, overdrive and underfeed their horses, that a group of horse owners have organized a "Horse Owners' Protective Association" to oppose the society and have recently had introduced a bill in Congress which seeks to abolish the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

We understand that after all there is to be no beauty squad from Congress to attend Mr. Taft at the Inauguration. Presumably the competition was so keen that the Committee could not bear up under it and decided on that maxim that has been the consolation of homely women everywhere, "beauty is only skin deep," to cover their defeat in providing Apollos for the occasion.

According to Judge E. C. Bumpus, who was one of the Commissioners to conclude the treaties by which the United States acquired the Panama canal property, there is no cause for scandal in the building of the canal.

In an address before the Commercial club of Brockton, Tuesday night, Judge Bumpus, in speaking of the various stories being circulated in regard to the canal, made the following statement: "When we got that land for 40 millions we got it cheaply. It was appraised at 90 millions. The government got something for almost nothing. The French spent millions of dollars. They shook the tree and we get the fruit. It is all rot about what the newspapers are printing about this so-called scandal. Honest men are talking it too and it is something they don't know anything about. All that is said about a sea level canal and that the dam is built wrong is only a sensational statement.

EDITORIAL COMMENTS.

There is considerable argument over the questoin of a censor for the stage in New York. It is hardly probable that such an official will be appointed—not for the time at least. It is more likely that the stir which has been created may result in certain managers cleaning up a little on their plays and ceasing to speed up in the endeavor to see which can produce the worst results .While the first censor to be appointed would probably be a good and able and honest man or set of men, in due time the censorship would become part of the spoils after election, just as the officers of certain commissioners are today . When that time arrived, to speak bluntly, a theatrical manager who had "bought protection" would be allowed to run almost any play he wanted to, while his neighbor who had refused to pay the rate exacted might be closed up for playing nothing worse than "Uncle Tom's Cabin." Censorship with politics behind it, and friends of the censor in theatricals and politics and enemies, perhaps, too, would create one of those beautifully muddled situations which now results in one gambler in New York breaking the law while another is driven out of business, or in one saloon keeper selling on Sunday while his neighbor goes behind the bars. The best and only right and effective censorship is that of the public that buys the tickets, and which ought to be ready to let the genuinely salacious and extreme plays alone.—Brockton Enterprise.

Is there a candy trust ?

On complaint of a manufacturing confectioner in this city, the Department of Justice has undertaken the work of answering this question. The complainant alleges that because he declined to join some association he has been subjected to the boycott and the blacklist. If the trust busters find that this is so, then they will also undertake prosecutions.

But there is no excitement over the case. Americans eat more candy than probably any other people acquainted with dentists and dyspepsia. They are beset by medical experts who tell them that it is good to eat candy and not good to eat it. This interesting diversity of opinion calls attention to candy; tends to sharpen the popular appetite for it. Consequently candy, in some form, from striped sticks and peppermint lozenges to nut-crowned bonbons, goes into nearly every home. Candy is therefore a household acquaintance, like oil and tobacco; yet the allegation that there is a wicked candy trust and that the government is plunging into the matter with hopes of having a big fight is taken as coolly as is the news that New York is going to experiment with side doors on elevated cars.

Is there a candy trust ?

Very few seem to care whether there is or not. If you want to see public excitement you must mention the oil trust or the beef trust. Then there's the wailing and gnashing of teeth. Candy being a luxury, the people take a different point of view, perhaps. Yet it's the luxuries that a good many people will have whether or not they have the necessaries.—Boston Journal.

One phase of the problem of the unemployed is uncovered by a report in the St. Louis Post Despatch. It referred to an incident of the recent blizzard that struck the west.

The Post Despatch says that in the basement of the Four Courts, St. Louis's city building, the "hobo four hundred slept warmly while snow drifted before the howling wind.

"A railway yard boss entered and cried an offer of jobs clearing tracks at $1.75 per day. The hobo 400 awakened, stared, turned over, snuggled closer to the warm floor bed and snored 'even as you and I.'"

Possibly all these men had been active in the "unemployed movement" and perhaps some had inveighed against the heartlessness of capital and the unfeeling brutality of the minions of wealth.

Possibly each man had a feeling of resentment against the slave of the industrial system who would thus rudely awake them from their slumbers and break in on their physical comfort with such a plebian job as the shovelling of snow with the thermometer registering somewhere near zero.

With the industrious man willing to work at whatsoever his hands find to do, humanity sympathizes and is inclined to help to the utmost of its power when he is out of employment.

Such a man in that hobo crowd would have jumped at the chance to earn $1.75 shovelling snow or doing any other labor within his power. Such a man would have remained as long as there was a shovelful of snow to remove and then he would have asked if there were not something else to shovel.

The whole world sympathizes with such a man but has only pity for the man who from disposition or acquirement has a distaste for labor and the accumulation of comforts and who rails at others who by their industry, alertness, braving of the elements and hard labor, mental or physical, have accumulated a few dollars while he has "snuggled closer to the warm floor bed and snored.—Beverly Times.

CRITICISM BY LAFOLLETTE

Does Not Like Way Senate Handles Appropriation Bills

HOT COLLOQUY WITH PENROSE

Acrid Exchange of Words In Which the Pennsylvanian Denounces Senator From Wisconsin ar Exhibits Anger—Compared Criticism to Arguments of Patent Medicine Vendor—Row Over Appropriation

Washington, Feb. 19.—The postoffice bill carrying appropriations of over $232,000,000 was passed by the senate after a stormy debate during which Senator Penrose, in charge of the measure, made an angry attack upon Senator Lafollette, who had entered upon a general criticism of senate committees because of what he termed their unwarrantable delay in reporting great appropriation bills.

Mr. Lafollette chided the senate with permitting a glut of important legislation to be disposed of in haste during the last days of the congress, and suggested that it would be no calamity if all of these bills were not acted upon in the regular session, saying that a reorganization of committees would allow the special session to consider them and other important legislation.

In the middle of his speech Penrose interrupted to ask Lafollette whether "he was delivering his regular lecture," adding that he thought he had heard it all before.

Mr. Lafollette chided the senate with having put off interstate commerce legislation for nine years and having delayed the pure food law seventeen years by applying the same methods against which he was contending. At this point Mr. Penrose arose and, glaring across the chamber at the senator from Wisconsin, said loudly:

"I shall not sit silent in my seat when misstatements are made or claptrap statesmanship is attempted here. I charge that the senator from Wisconsin had been on the committee on census and during his service on that committee has failed to attend a single meeting of it. He is on the committee on claims and has only attended its meetings once or twice in all his service and that attendance was only to bring to bring up some trivial claim; he is on the committee of pensions, which has one of the largest appropriation bills pending before congress every year, and he has hardly ever been present at its meetings; he is on the important committee of Indian affairs, which every year considers a great appropriation bill and he has seldom or never rendered useful service on it." Penrose said that he made all these charges without fear of contradiction.

"There is no senator," continued Penrose wrathfully, "who has a greater record for absenteeism than he. It ill becomes him to criticise these committees. When he is here it is to only delay the business of the senate, to hold up the transaction of public business and to embarrass those who, under their oaths of office and in the conscientious discharge of their duties, endeavor to enact legislation.

"I shall not sit here, and I desire to give notice to the senator from Wisconsin, and listen to arguments that might better be made by a vendor of patent medicine from the tail door of a cart in a village of Wisconsin than from a senator of the United States."

Mr. Lafollette had remained standing while these remarks were directed toward him.

"It is of little value," he said, "to utter a contradiction here to much that has been said. I have not attended the meeting of some of the committees to which I was assigned. Not feeling that I could render service of value to it, I asked to be relieved from membership on the committee on claims. I have been reasonably diligent on the committee on Indian affairs."

"It is the unanimous testimony of its members that you have failed to attend those meetings," Penrose interrupted savagely.

"I would have more confidence in the statement," replied Lafollette deliberately, "if senators on that committee made that declaration themselves. Looking intently at Penrose, Lafollette said with great deliberation: "Against his coarse and vulgar assault I put my record since I have been a member of this body."

After a few more acrimonious words between Lafollette and Penrose, the senate lapsed into the ordinary business of hearing additional amendments of the bill read.

THE UNTOLD HALF.

By ARTHUR BOLTONWOOD.

Copyrighted, 1909, by Associated Literary Press.

There is no particular excitement when one of the lumbering fruit boats of the Yellow Star line comes into port. There was no particular stir along the water front that biting, foggy morning in December when the Admiral Dart came wheezing up the harbor, swung into her berth at the Yellow Star docks with the aid of a couple of tugs—for the tide was running strongly—shot out her gangplank and disembarked the four passengers she carried.

She also disembarked Bobby Shacklett. But Bobby Shacklett did not come to the wharf by way of the gangplank. While the fussy little donkey engines in the sheds were puffing valiantly and swinging briskly out of the Admiral Dart's hold the many bunches of green bananas Bobby Shacklett, very thin, very pale and very much unwashed, came up from the stoke room, took a long breath of the misty air, shivered a bit—for his clothes were painfully thin and shabby—and then climbed over the rail and dropped unostentatiously to the wharf.

A couple of carriages bearing the steamer's late passengers whisked past him. Three rumbling drays went bumping past, one of the drivers shouting impolitely to Bobby to get to somewhere out of the way.

Bobby grinned. It was not a pleasant grin. He was thinking of his homecoming as he had planned it and as it had actually turned out, and comparisons, which are always odious things, were particularly so in this case.

He thrust his hand into the pocket of his ragged trousers, drew out a few pieces of silver, grinned once more, shivered again and made his way to the street.

A solitary hansom was drawn up to the curb, waiting for a chance fare. Bobby stepped over to it. The cabby surveyed him scowlingly, but Bobby, quite oblivious apparently to the dubious glances cast in his direction, climbed calmly in.

He gave an address on a certain conservative street uptown. The driver stared at him. Bobby smiled.

"Don't blame me, old chap," he said, noting the other's hesitation. "But I want to go there, strange as it may seem and incompatible as it may be with my present appearance. What's the row? Afraid I won't be good for the fare? Here you go."

He passed up the handful of silver through the trap. "Now, then, drive on," he commanded.

The whiplash sang through the air; the shambling horse lurched into a trot; the hansom rocked, and away they went through the dingy, noisy streets.

They drew up finally before an imposing house on the conservative uptown street. Bobby climbed from the hansom, and while the latter turned and went clattering away he shut his teeth grimly and mounted the brownstone steps with a light of determination in his eyes.

In response to his vigorous tug at the bell the door was opened by a statuesque butler, whose dignity stood out obtrusively all over him. He looked at the figure on the stoop and closed the door halfway.

"Well?" he said, and the manner in which he said it plainly bade the visitor begone.

"Is Miss Wadsworth in?" said Bobby quietly.

"Hi think not, sir. In fact, Hi am very sure she isn't," the butler replied.

A look came into Bobby's gray eyes—a look that had made better men than the butler quail many times before now.

"I rather think you are mistaken," said he. "I'm sure she is home, and, what is more, I am sure she will be glad to receive me. If you don't believe it, just tell her, if you will, that the general manager of the Colona Intercoast railway would like a word with her. I'd advise you to do as I say."

The butler hesitated but a second longer. The man on the stoop was looking at him with a most disconcerting determination in his bearing. The butler, unwilling, it is true, opened the door.

"Step in, sir," said he. "Hi will see."

A fire crackled cheerfully in a big fireplace at one end of the warm, dark hall. Bobby drew a chair close to it and, sitting down, held out his stiffened fingers to the grateful blaze.

Up the wide stairs creaked the butler with as much haste as his ubiquitous dignity allowed. Voices sounded above. There was a little gasp, a cry, the swish of skirts, the patter of light footsteps hurrying down the stairs.

Bobby arose from his chair just as Mary Wadsworth, more radiant, more beautiful, than ever, came running toward him.

"Bobby!" she cried, both her hands held out to him. "Bobby, I—I can't believe that it is really you and that you are back! I'm glad—oh, so glad I can't tell you properly!"

Bobby had stiffened. His face was very grave.

"Mary, please sit down for a moment," said he. "I shan't keep you long. Just a word of explanation, and perhaps even that is not needed," he added, with a lugubrious glance at his tattered raiment. "I must apologize for coming here this way, but stoking on a fruit steamer raises the very deuce with one's appearance."

She was about to say something, but he held out his hand.

"Please let me talk first," said he. "I must tell you before you say a word or else I shan't have the courage to. You see, it's all off—railroad gone up, contracts unfulfilled, and the fortune I went down there to stow away in my jeans some one else has walked off with. That's about all, except that I came back in the fruit steamer to tell you that I'm the largest, most inexcusable fizzle extant."

"That is all?" she asked suddenly. "Are you sure that is all? Do you mean to say in those few sentences you have told me everything?"

"All that you should know," said he.

She looked at him steadily, and a sudden light leaped to her eyes.

"You are telling me only half," she said.

He was silent.

"Why don't you tell me the other half?" she demanded.

"It—it wouldn't interest you," he said lamely.

She leaned toward him. "I know the other half without your telling it, you great big, generous boy," said she.

"Eh? What? What is it you know or, rather, think you know?" he asked.

"I know it all—the whole story," she declared. "I know why you are here as you are. I know it was because you shielded my brother when he—when he wasn't straight, when the gambling houses down there had done their worst for him. I know that you—you, dear, loyal Bobby Shacklett—threw everything into the balance—opportunities, contracts, everything, to save him and that now you have come back to me with your lips sealed, claiming that you have failed and offering no excuses for it."

Shacklett reddened. He smiled rather vaguely and looked decidedly embarrassed. Twice he essayed to speak and each time got no further than the initial word. The girl was watching him closely.

"It—it doesn't change things any, even if all you have said is true, and I haven't admitted yet that it is true," he said at last. "I've lost my money, and—you see that"—

"You have gained—gained something else," she whispered.

The butler was telling the pretty second girl about it below stairs.

"'Is h'arm was around her," said he disgustedly. "Think of it! And 'im nothing but a common tramp!"

The Pedigree of the Shirt.

Why does the being we call a "gentleman" wear around his neck a band of spotless whiteness and unbearable stiffness, at his wrists similar instruments of torture and before his chest a rigidly starched linen plate? No one outside of a madhouse would call these articles of apparel agreeable. There is for the custom no reason at all drawn from comfort, hygiene or usefulness. There is, however, the ghost of a dead reason. Once upon a time a "gentleman" was presumed to do no work, and he dressed to show this by putting on these visible signs that he never soiled his hands, sweated his neck or bent his noble back. It matters not that we no longer believe in this definition of a gentleman. We did believe once. Its ghost rules on. No man is bold enough to appear in society without this impossible harness. Only a professional humorist like Mark Twain or some one who wishes to pose as a mild lunatic dares rebel. Addison said that the man who would clothe himself according to common sense would find himself in jail within a week.—Frank Crane in Atlantic.

In the Heat of Battle.

There had been a hotly contested football game between the Steam Rollers of the Benjamin Franklin school and the Avalanches of the George Washington school. It was won by the Avalanches. After the game was over and the contestants had returned to their various homes one of the heroes of the winning team complained of a feeling of soreness in the lower part of his neck.

"I didn't feel it until just now," he said, "but it hurts like sixty!"

His father examined it. It began to swell and was very sore to the touch.

"I believe your collar bone is broken, my boy," said his father.

A surgeon was hastily summoned and made an examination.

"Yes," he said, "the bone is fractured. "How did it happen, Walter? Do you remember anything about it?"

"Why, yes," answered the boy. "I remember that when I tackled Skinny Morgan I fell on top of him, and I heard something crack, but I thought it was his collar bone."

Government by Veto.

A veto, used in connection with public acts, is a euphemism for smother, squelch, kill, etc. Owing to our elaborate system of vetoes our country may well be called the "veto country."

If a member of congress wishes a bill passed, it may be vetoed by the speaker.

If the speaker wishes it passed, it may be vetoed by a committee.

If the committee wishes it passed, it may be vetoed by the house.

If the house wishes it passed, it may be vetoed by the senate.

If the senate wishes it passed, it may be vetoed by the president.

If the president wishes it passed, it may be vetoed by the supreme court.

If the supreme court wishes it passed, it may be ignored and thus vetoed by any executive officer into whose hands it may fall.

If a bill succeeds in getting through all these safely, it is a good bet that it is something the people do not want. —Ellis O. Jones in Life.

TAFT DECLARED MASON AT SIGHT

HIGH AUTHORITIES PRESENT

Ceremonies In Scottish Rite Cathedral In Cincinnati, the President-Elect Later Witnessing the Regular Form of Initiating a Member—Conference With Hitchcock In Relation to Post of Secretary of the Treasury

Cincinnati, Feb. 19.—William H. Taft is a master Mason. The impressive ceremony which brought him that distinction was conducted by Charles S. Hoskinson, "the most worshipful grand master of the lodge of the most ancient and honorable fraternity of Free and Accepted Masons of the state of Ohio."

The highest Masonic authorities of seventeen states witnessed Taft's admission into the order, as did a body representing prominent citizens of Cincinnati and the members of Kilwinning lodge, of which Alfonso Taft, father of the president-elect, was a member, and into which Charles P. Taft was inducted under the auspices of his father.

Scottish Rite Cathedral was the scene of the ceremonies. Its main floor and galleries were crowded when the distinguished candidate arrived. The procedure which ended in the declaration that Taft was a Mason occupied thirty-five minutes. Taft received many greetings on a new plane of fellowship as he was escorted from the hall by the committee having in charge his initiation.

The experience of being declared a mason at sight did not end with the afternoon session of the grand lodge. Taft witnessed during the evening the regular form of initiating a member, the ceremony being conducted by Worshipful Master Patter of Kilwinning lodge. Between the two sessions of the lodge there was a reception for Masonic brethren at C. P. Taft's residence, and after the ceremonies there was a brilliant ball at the Alms Hotel, on one of Cincinnati's seven hills. The presence of the president-elect graced all these functions.

Frank H. Hitchcock, at the request of Taft, came here from Chicago and after a conference left for Washington. That the discussion related to the undecided post of secretary of the treasury was admitted, but beyond the statement that no decision was reached no information was obtainable. The suggestion that the place will likely go to Chicago or further west was made.

INDUSTRIAL INSURANCE

Civic Federation Commission to Make Thorough Study of Subject

New York, Feb. 19.—George W. Perkins has accepted the chairmanship of a commission now being organized by the National Civic Federation to make a thorough study of industrial insurance, including compensation for wage earners in the form of sick, accident, old age and death benefits.

This industrial insurance commission will collect data, compare various methods now in force in Europe as well as in this country, and promote such legislation as may be deemed necessary. It was shown at the annual meeting of the National Civic Federation that the United States is far behind European countries in making provision for the protection of unfortunates.

DIVORCE FOR MRS. LEMP

Brewer's Wife Gets Alimony of $6000 a Year and Custody of Son

St. Louis, Feb. 19.—A decree of divorce with alimony of $6000 a year and the custody of her son was awarded Mrs. William J. Lemp, Jr., in the circuit court here. The decision followed a trial which lasted more than a week.

Mr. Lemp is given the society of the 7-year-old boy from Saturday morning to Sunday evening of each week. Mrs. Lemp had contended strenuously for an award of $500,000 alimony in a lump sum.

The suit was filed by Mrs. Lemp last autumn. It was followed shortly by her husband's cross-complaint.

BRIBED A COUNCILMAN

Banker Convicted In Connection With Pittsburg Graft Scandal

Pittsburg, Feb. 19.—W. W. Ramsey, former president of the German National bank, was found guilty as indicted in connection with the recent graft exposures.

Ramsey was accused of bribing Councilman Klein by giving him $17,500, for which which amount Klein was to secure the passage of an ordinance making the bank a depository for city funds.

Mrs. Sage's Philanthropy

Yonkers, N. Y., Feb. 19.—Mrs. Russell Sage has purchased a tract of land 445 by 500 feet on the outskirts of this city, which she will turn over to the children of the poor of Yonkers for the purpose of a garden school. The old house on the premises will be turned into a gymnasium for the use of the children.

SPENT FORTY YEARS IN JAIL.

By the death of William J. Rockwell in the Dedham jail Tuesday, Massachusetts has lost one of the strangest men in her history.

Forty years ago Rockwell went to Dedham jail to serve out a light sentence for a misdemeanor, and liked the life of a prison so well that he took up his residence in a cell there.

When his sentence was served, Rockwell saw to it that he got in again for some slight infraction of the law. The years passed on and the tailor never left the institution but that the very next day saw him back again, taking up his work.

Fifteen years ago Rockwell learned that he could stay in jail, for the sheriff had no other person about who could be depended upon for such skilful, painstaking work. Rockwell was to have his cell for the remaining years of his life. He was free to come and go as he pleased, and during all the succeeding years no person had cause to complain of his conduct. Every day found him at his task, and when evening closed about the gray walls came the constitutional about the streets of the town.

Humor and Philosophy

By DUNCAN M. SMITH

THE ACCIDENTAL WINNERS.

A portion of the luck we have
We make ourselves perhaps,
But much the greater part of it
Comes in the line of snaps.
We rustle for our daily bread
And lose out in the fight,
And then there comes a streak of luck,
And everything is bright.

We hustle forth at break of day
Resolved to grab a chunk
Of what success there is in sight
By labor, skill or spunk,
And when the sun has laid aside
Its labors for the day
Without a thing to show for it
We seek our homeward way.

By coaxing, flattery or threats,
By talking through our hat,
By graft or grab or push or pull
Or anything like that,
We cannot get a grasp on luck,
Inducing it to play
A little while in our back lot
To pass the time of day.

Luck like a summer sigh comes down,
Or like an April rain,
Or like a poor relation who
Comes on most any train.
You cannot catch it with a net
Or dig it with a hoe,
For if it comes to you it comes,
And that is all you know.

Profitable.

"I thought you told me he was in his dotage."

"He is."

"Well, he skinned me out of $50 in a deal."

"You see, his is a case of precocious second childhood."

For Her to Pay.

A duke he would a-wooing go.
He didn't care for beauty.
He wanted one on whom there'd be
A very heavy duty—
In fact, he didn't care how great,
For she was billed to pay the freight.

Not if She Saw Him.

"I am fond of pretty girls."

"I am surprised."

"Why?"

"That you ever got near enough to one to become so."

THE FISHERIES PACT

As Sealed by the Senate It Exempts Bay of Fundy

Washington, Feb. 19.—The senate ratified and made public the special agreement with Great Britain, known as the 'Newfoundland fisheries treaty."

In ratifying the agreement the senate adopted a resolution, declaring as a part of ratification "the senate understands that it is agreed by both parties that the treaty does not include any question as to the Bay of Fundy or the innocent passage of American fishing vessels through the Gut of Canso, and that the respective views or contentions of the United Sattes and Great Britain on either subject shall be in no wise prejudiced by anything in the present arbitration."

The special agreement provides for the submission to the permanent court of arbitration at The Hague of questions relating to fisheries on the North Atlantic coast.

MURDER CONFERENCES

Contention That They Were Held Previous to Killing of Carmack

Nashville, Feb. 19.—Absence of some of the state's witnesses and a desire by the defense to arrange its plan of procedure caused an adjournment until Saturday of the Cooper-Sharp trial for the murder of E. W. Carmack.

The state has satisfied itself with offering testimony to prove that Carmack was slain by Robin J. Cooper; that John Sharp, when he heard the shots, knew what they were without looking around, and that, prior to the killing, several conferences had been held.

This, the state contends, is the foundation for proof of conspiracy. The state stops here and waits for the defense to offer its case.

WAS A CHAMPION KILLER OF BEARS

New Hampshire Town Loses Old and Honored Citizen

Center Ossipee, N. H., Feb. 19.—His snowshoes tripping in the railroad tracks at Ossipee Station as he was returning from a fox hunt, I. D. Carter accidently discharged his shotgun, receiving the charge in his right leg, which severed an artery and caused him to bleed to death in a few minutes.

Carter occupied the unique position of hunter, guide, trial justice and town clerk of Center Ossipee. As hunter he claimed to have killed moro bears than any other man in New Hampshire and his services were in great demand as guide during the hunting season.

He was born in this town 67 years ago, the son of Sanborn B. Carter, a lawyer. He is survived by one brother, Henry C. Carter, postmaster of Center Ossipee.

FORESTRY IS DISCUSSED

Conservation Conference Elects Pinchot as Its Permanent Chairman

Washington, Feb. 19.—Permanent organization of the North American Conservation conference was perfected at the first regular session with the selection of Gifford Pinchot, a member of the American delegation, as chairman, no other name being presented. He was placed in nomination by Sydney Fisher of the Canadian delegation and the nomination was seconded by Romulo Escobar of the Mexican commission.

Forestry formed the theme of discussion, and the situation in respect thereto was presented for the United States by Pinchot and on behalf of Mexico by M. A. DeQuevado.

MEETING OF LUMBER MEN

Discussing Matters of Interest to the Hardwood Trade

Louisville, Feb. 19.—Lumber interests all over the country are interested in the convention of the Hardwood Manufacturers' association which began here today. Practically every hardwood concern in the United States is represented.

Next week the Flooring Manufacturers' association, which works in conjunction with the hardwood men, will meet in Chicago for a convention. The delegates to the present convention will go to Chicago from Louisville.

May Be Arbitration Umpire

London, Feb. 19.—Dr. Heinrich Lammasch, an Austrian jurist and professor in the University of Vienna, has been proposed as umpire of the arbitration court to which it is intended to submit the Newfoundland fisheries questions.

Big Army Appropriation Bill

Washington, Feb. 19.—The army appropriation bill, reported to the senate late Thursday, carries $102,509,090, an increase of $4,783,056 over the amount as it passed the house.

No man has a cinch on wisdom. Any man is due to go off his base and qualify for service in the great army of fools at any minute.

It is hard to please everybody, and, after all, nobody would care to be that inoffensive, anyway.

QUINCY LOCALS BRIEFLY TOLD

Fred R. Snow of Marlboro street is at the Cape this week on business.

First annual dance of the Quincy baseball association in Hibernian hall tonight.

The regular weekly whist party of the Washington Social club will be held tonight at the clubrooms.

Harry W. Titus of Standish avenue leaves tomorrow night for Hollis, New Hampshire for the holiday.

Mrs. George L. Cole of Berlin street is convalescing from on operation performed at her home last week.

The Copeland club of West Quincy will hold its annual moonlight dance Washington's birthday in St. Mary's hall.

Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Milton of Hartford, Conn., are spending a week with Mrs. George B. Casser, 41 Franklin street.

Mrs. Henry Gallagher of North street entertained the Neighborly whist club Thursday evening. After the whist, refreshments were served and a social hour was spent.

The Y. P. R. U. of the Wollaston Unitarian church will hold a social and entertainment at 7.30 Wednesday evening, Feb. 24, in the vestry. A good time is assured.

On Wednesday, Feb. 24, the Ladies' Aid Alliance of the Wollaston Unitarian church will meet in the vestry. A paper will be read on "Four Distinguished Unitarian Women."

It is now positively announced that Mrs. Benjamin F. Trueblood, secretary of the American Peace Society will take the negative side in the debate "Do we need our navy," at the Unity Club tonight.

The police are getting after dogs running at large, who do not wear muzzles, as perscribed by an order by the Council. A dozen or more dogs have been disposed of up to the present time.

Tuesday afternoon the Wollaston, W. C. T. U. will hold its regular monthly meeting with Mrs. George E. Thomas, 28 Newton street. Mrs. Smith B. Harrington of Grand View avenue will speak on "Temperance work in other lands."

The alarm from Box 35 at 11.04 this noon was unnecessary. A fire was being built in the furnace of Hancock hall and the smoke pouring into the street, led some one to think there was a fire and the alarm was pulled.

The Quincy Y. M. C. A. mandolin club furnished the music at a banquet given on Wednesday at the Hotel Vendome. The following evening they gave an entertainment in the Morgan Memorial of Boston which several from Quincy attended. This popular organization is meeting with great success in this, its third season, and is quite in demand with music lovers.

The Country Club met with Mrs. Roderick McLennan Wednesday evening. Whist was played and refreshments were served and a pleasant evening was enjoyed by all present.

There was a good attendance Thursday evening at the weekly dancing party under the auspices of the Woman's Relief Corps. Dancing was in order from 8 to 12 o'clock.

Making It Plain.

Henri was paying his first visit to London and was already wishing himself home in gay Paree, for he knew not a word of English. He had been very unfortunate and had lost all his luggage, a toothbrush. So he determined to buy another. But how was he to make his needs understood?

At last his luck turned, however, and he espied a chemist's shop with a notice outside, "Ici on Parle Francais." In he went and told the assistant in French what he wanted. But that assistant knew no language except English, and another who came to help him was just as far at sea.

But the proprietor was an intelligent man, and he knew at once from the cut of the customer's clothes that he was speaking French.

"Leave him to me," he said, with a superior smile.

Then, forming a megaphone with his hands, he shouted in the Frenchman's ear:

"Our assistant who speaks French is out at lunch. You'll have to wait!"—London Scraps.

Swordsmen of the Sea.

The swordsmen of the sea are the sawfisher, spearfishes, sailfishes, swordfishes and the narwhal, with its spirally twisted straight tusks. The sawfishes inhabit the warmer seas, while the narwhal is a creature of the arctic. The tusk of the narwhal is hollow nearly to the point and is spirally grooved. It uses its tusk as a weapon of defense and to plunge through the ice to breathe, the narwhal being a cetacean. Sometimes when a boat has been caught in the ice great damage has been inflicted by the inquisitiveness or blundering of this great creature, that sometimes reaches a length of fifteen feet, with a tusk of from six to ten feet in length. As a rule, however, the narwhal uses its tusk for the purpose of killing fish for food. In the castle of Rosenberg the kings of Denmark have long possessed a magnificent throne made of tusks of this cetacean. These tusks are harder and whiter than ivory.

Beavers Train Their Young.

Naturalists have placed the beaver a long way down in the list of vertebrates, but it undoubtedly stands next to man in the variety of occupations in which it engages. All cats are hunters, while foxes that are not thieves may be included also among the Nimrods. All canaries are prima donnas, and monkeys make clever comedians, but it is only the beaver parent that educates its children to take up several trades. In a single colony among them you will find civil and marine engineers, woodchoppers, raftsmen, laborers, quarrymen, miners, plasterers, masons, carpenters, hodcarriers and fishermen. All beavers take contracts for building dams, but when the work is undertaken the task is so divided that each member of the colony has its own particular work to look after. In this way they make some wonderful excavations and construct their dams in an incredibly short time.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

LESS RIOTOUS AND BRIEFER

But Demonstrations by Suffragettes In London Continue

POLICE ARE LOSING PATIENCE

Inclined to Show Less Forbearance In Dealing With Recalcitrants—Efforts of "Volunteers For Dangerous Duty" to Reach Premier Asquith Are Unsuccessful, Many Women Being Roughly Handled and Arrested

London, Feb. 19.—Twice Thursday the suffragettes representing the Women's Freedom league failed to reach Premier Asquith to present to him the resolution adopted by that body for a continuation of the military propaganda for suffrage.

Sixty or more "volunteers for dangerous duty" came into conflict with the police on Downing street, where squads of police, mounted and on foot, had been drawn up, and the clash resulted in the rough handling of many women and the arrest of twenty-four of them.

Again last night, when the session of parliament was well under way, a contingent led by Mrs. Despard attempted to gain access to the premier, but the police barred the way. The women refused to budge, insisting upon their right to enter the building, although no serious disturbance occurred. Finally Mrs. Despard and several of the others were placed under arrest.

Eight women were fined Thursday, but they refused to pay the fines and were sent to prison for terms ranging from two weeks to a month. Most of the women engaged in the disturbance were from Glasgow, Manchester, Birmingham and elsewhere in the provinces. With the exception of Mrs. Despard, those prominent in suffrage movement held themselves aloof, but, as it is the expressed intention of the women to continue their campaign without intermission, the other leaders are likely to be heard from at any moment. They declare that they will not yield in their set determination to exhaust every means to compel the government to concede their demands.

The demonstrations so far have been less riotous and briefer than some of those on former occasions, because nowadays the police are always well-prepared, but it is evident that the authorities are becoming tired of these affairs and they show less patience and forbearance in dealing with the recalcitrants.

Last night's demonstration, however, was of a comparatively orderly and quiet character. Mrs. Despard asked the police inspector to be allowed to carry the resolution to Asquith. The inspector politely advised her to send it by mail. He also offered to take it in himself, but Mrs. Despard insisted upon a personal interview. As the chief delegate refused to depart she was, with several others who were attempting in a somewhat mild way to force their way in, arrested and charged with obstructing the police in the execution of their duty.

BLOW IN THE STOMACH

Alleged Cause of Death of Schoolboy In a Friendly Scuffle

Watertown, Mass., Feb. 19.—A scuffle between two schoolboys caused the death of one of them, Frank Crossland, 14 years of age, in front of the Marshall Spring grammar school.

The other boy, John Scanlon, 13 years old, was arrested, but was allowed to go home. It is expected that an autopsy will be held, and upon its outcome will depend the possible action to be taken against Scanlon.

The two boys started what was apparently a friendly scuffle. Scanlon struck Crossland in the stomach, it is alleged, and Crossland fell to the ground, dying a few moments later.

HONOR WITHHELD

Mayor's Decision Not to Make Roosevelt a Citizen of Rome

Rome, Feb. 19.—The mayor of Rome, Signor Nathan, has decided not to carry out the proposal to confer upon Theodore Roosevelt the citizenship of Rome during his stay in Italy on his way to Africa.

It was planned to confer this honor on Roosevelt as a recognition of the generosity of the United States towards the earthquake sufferers, but Nathan believes that when all nations did so much, no distinction should be made.

Wrecked on Cape Race

St. Johns, Feb. 19.—Unaware of the nearness of treacherous Cape Race, the Prince Edward Island bark Lavinia, in ballast, ran on shore in the midst of a blinding snowstorm. The crew escaped. The bark will probably be a total wreck.

Lincoln Pennies Will Soon Be Out

Washington, Feb. 19.—Abraham Lincoln's head is to appear on new one-cent pieces which will appear in about a month. President Roosevelt has approved the plan, which was presented to him by Director Leach of the mint.

AMONG THE SPORTS.

Washington's Birthday the High school team will play the fast Rindge Manuel team of Cambridge at the high school gym. Howe, R. Bates and Manning will probably be back in playing form and the game will be well worth seeing. The Cambridge five are considered one of the fastest teams around the hub. The game will begin at 3 o'clock.

The ball tossers are beginning to arrive at Hot Springs for the annual thawing out. Jimmy Collins is the latest arrival and says that the Boston Red Sox are going to be one-two-three this year for the American league pennant. Let us hope so, anyway for Boston certainly deserves a winner.

The Boston fans are indignant over the sale of "Cy" Young, the veteran twirler and mainstay of the Boston team. They are expressing their feelings openly and threaten to boycott the American league team and go to see the Doves play. Selling Cy may possibly have been a good baseball move, but it was anything but a good financial move.

The St. Mary's team goes to Hyde Park on Washington's birthday to play the fast Hyde Park five. This will be the third game of the season between these teams, each team having won one game. A large delegation will go with the team and root for victory.

The St. Mary's five against the Randolph A. A. at St. Mary's hall tomorrow night. A hot game is expected.

QUINCY BOWLERS OUTCLASSED.

The Quincy bowling team met the Norfolk Downs five last night on the latter's alleys, and were defeated two strings out of three. The Quincy boys, however, won out on totals by five pins the scores being 1,282 to 1,277.

Morton of Quincy was the high roller of the evening getting 298 for a three string total, and 115 for a high single. Lyons of Norfolk Downs was second man on three string totals with a score of 267, while Grant of Quincy with 101 was second man in singles. The summary:

NORFOLK DOWNS

INQUEST HELD.

An inquest was held before Judge Avery this morning on the death of Mrs. Klara, wife of Simon Simonson, who died at the Quincy hospital Jan. 24.

The woman, who lives at 660 Summer street, South Weymouth, was taken sick Jan. 18 and the local physician who was called, discovered evidence of criminal operation. The woman was taken to the Quincy hospital where she died.

HURRY TRIP FROM TEXAS TO VERMONT

Docter Wins In a Long Race Against Death

Burlington, Vt., Feb. 19.—A race with death across the United States from El Paso, Tex., to Burlington, was finished here Thursday when Dr. H. N. Jackson arrived at his dying wife's bedside after a sixty-four hour trip over more than 2500 miles of rails.

Dr. Jackson had been traveling in Mexico and had reached El Paso when he was notified of the sudden and violent illness of his wife through an attack of acute indigestion. He left El Paso Monday morning and covered the 1455 miles between that place and Chicago, including several stops and changes, in about forty-three hours. A special train was awaiting him in Chicago and he immediately set off on the last lap of his trip to precede death.

Mrs. Jackson is not yet dead, but her life is despaired of.

MONEY OF NO USE

Earthquake Refugees In Need of Shelter Beyond Anything Else

Rome, Feb. 19.—The special American relief expedition, headed by Nelson Gay of Boston and Earl Dodge, Ambassador Griscom's secretary, returned here from Calabria last night. They remained eleven days in the earthquake region, visiting forty towns and villages and collecting information with regard to thirty others.

Everywhere in the mountain villages they found great destitution. The people refused to receive money, saying that they did not know what to do with it; what they wanted beyond everything else was shelter. The Americans distributed a great quantity of provisions.

After receiving the report of Gay, the American Relief committee in Rome appropriated $30,000 for the erection of wooden barracks, $3000 for roofing and $24,000 for tent barracks for the devastated territory.

WITHOUT A PRESIDENT

Boston Republican City Committee In a Peculiar Predicament

Boston, Feb. 19.—Edward G. Graves, president of the Republican city committee, was summarily removed from that position in a decision handed down by Judge Richardson of the superior court, who rules his election illegal.

Although not a member of the committee at the time, Graves was elected to the presidency on Jan. 26. The election at once started a controversy on the part of Ward One Republicans, who finally brought action against Graves, seeking an injunction.

The committee is still in a quandary, as the bylaws state that organization must be perfected within thirty days after Jan. 1 and that former officers hold over until organization is perfected. The Republican city committee is therefore without a president and without the power of electing one.

GIRL TERRIBLY ABUSED

Dragged Into a Cellar and Mistreated by Gang of Young Men

New York, Feb. 19.—Gladys Curtis, a chorus girl, was found unconscious last night in the cellar of a building in the Syrian quarter, but practically within a stone's throw of the financial district.

She was taken to a hospital, where, after she had been partially restored, she told a story of horrible mistreatment by a group of young men.

The young woman says she was on her way to the "L" station to go home when she was seized by the men and dragged into the cellar. Three arrests have been made in connection with the case.

INFANT MORTALITY

It Is Declared to Be Largely Due to Parental Ignorance

New Orleans, Feb. 19.—"Establish juvenile courts in every city of the United States and reduce infant mortality," was the slogan of the opening session of the National Congress of Mothers.

In discussing infant mortality, Mrs. Frederick Schoff, the president, said: "One of the great objects to which the women of this country should devote themselves is the reducing of infant mortality. In the south alone this year ten thousand babies will die because of parental ignorance."

Long Distance Wireless

Los Angeles, Feb. 19.—Los Angeles was in wireless communication with the Hawaiian Islands last night for the first time. The distance between the two points is about 2200 miles.

Shah's Brother Kidnapped

Teheran, Feb. 19.—The shah's brother, Shua-es-Saltaneh, who arrived at Resht from Europe on Tuesday, has been kidnapped by the revolutionists and is held for ransom.

Whirled to Death.

Pawtucket, R. I., Feb. 19.—James Abrahams, aged 30, was almost instantly killed by being whirled around a shafting at the Saylesville bleachery.

NEW HOCKEY LEAGUE

Chicago, Pittsburg, St. Louis and Cleveland In New Circuit.

BASEBALL LAWS TO GOVERN.

Promoters of New Organization For Ice Sport to Follow Diamond Regulations as to Reserve and Waivers of Players.

By TOMMY CLARK.

If the present plans of the promoters do not fall through professional ice hockey will receive quite a boom in this country next winter. Recently in Chicago a new ice hockey league was formed, which is composed of three teams in Chicago and one each in St. Louis, Pittsburg and Cleveland and backed largely by baseball magnates, and will be governed by baseball laws in regard to players.

A strong effort will be made to put the hockey league on practically the same basis as organized baseball. Players will be forced to sign contracts and respect waivers and reserve clauses the same as under the national agreement. The promoters feel that by doing this they can in a measure keep their teams intact throughout the season, and that is important, as a great deal of the success of a hockey team depends upon its team work.

A representative of the men who are interested in the forming of such an organization has made a tour of inspection to the various cities in this country in which the game is supported and in Canada, and his report has been favorable.

It appears that this representative devoted a great deal of his time to solving the problem which has menaced the Western Pennsylvania Hockey league throughout the present season—viz, the binding of the players.

He has reached the conclusion that the only way to overcome the contract jumpers and "holdup" men is to draft rules much along the same lines that govern baseball and make the hockey players recognize drafts, waivers, purchases, etc., just as the ball tossers have to.

The men who are interested in the founding of this new professional hockey league are very optimistic as to its success. They fully believe that the enthusiasm of the followers of the game can be aroused in the cities mentioned to such an extent that goodly profits would be made above expenses. President Charles A. Comiskey of the Chicago American league baseball club has been mentioned as one of the promoters of the new league. Comiskey has had a lot of experience in the rink game, having been interested in the game in St. Paul when he was running the baseball team there.

WAGNER'S PRESS AGENT BUSY

Pittsburg's Star Shortstop Announces His Retirement From Baseball.

Almost every baseball fan in the country knows that Honus Wagner of the Pittsburg Nationals is interested, with two of his brothers, in a circus which is to take the road this spring. One of the first things Honus and his brothers did was to engage a real live press agent, and the latter has started in. Here's his first contribution:

John Honus Wagner, king of batters and king of shortstops, will play no more baseball. The king's edict was issued in the form of an interview in which the famous player sets forth his intention to retire permanently from the diamond and devote his remaining years to peaceful pursuits. Selling automobiles and conducting the circus he and his brothers will soon place on the road will take up Wagner's time in the future, he says.

When Wagner was seen at his home in Carnegie and asked if the rumor concerning his retirement was correct he said:

"Yes, sir. I shall not again play baseball," and the big shortstop emphasized his assertion with the air of one driving a tenpenny nail through each word to make it stick good and hard.

"But your contract—the fans are under the impression that you are tied up tight with the Pittsburg team for 1909," faltered the reporter.

"Yes, I know, but as to a contract that was outside talk. I never said I signed one. Mr. Dreyfuss has not sent me any contract for this year. I'm a has been. I am just beginning to find that out. I used to be able to play some, but, I tell you, I'm a has been. Besides that, I can make more money out of the automobile business than I can out of baseball.

"Then there's the circus that my brothers and myself are going to put on the road this year. All the time I can spare from the circus enterprise I shall devote to selling machines. Now, where is baseball coming in, even if I had not decided to leave the game?"

Harness Racing Dates.

At the annual meeting of the Ohio, West Virginia and Pennsylvania trotting circuit, held recently in Wheeling, W. Va., the following dates were agreed upon:

Baltimore, June 8-11; Fairmont, W. Va., June 15-18; Clarksburg, W. Va., June 22-25; Wheeling, W. Va., June 29-July 2; Canton, O., July 5-8; Rockport, O., July 13-16; Salem, O., July 20-23; East Liverpool, O., July 27-30; Greensburg, Pa., Aug. 3-6; Dawson, Pa., Aug. 10-13; Rockport, O., Aug. 17-20; Canal Dover, O., Aug. 23-26; Canton, Aug. 30-Sept. 3; Wheeling, Sept. 6-10; Fairmont, Sept. 14-17; Clarksburg, Sept. 21-24; Morgantown, Sept. 28-Oct. 1; Cumberland, Oct. 5-8; Hagerstown, Oct. 12-15; Baltimore, Oct. 19-22.

—The New York World comments on the side-door subway cars, to say that "no test is needed to prove that side doors are an improvement. Ten items enough tests have been made in other cities. Any person's plain common sense tells him that people can get in and out of cars more rapidly if they have more gangways." Which is sense, of course. How would Bostonians greet a proposition to go back to the old-fashioned style of car? The New York controversy is amusing.

—Of the "Charley Rosses" there is no end. One of these has just been killed on the O. & W. railroad tracks near Middletown, N. Y. He was Charles Brewer, a farm hand living at Crystal Run, who firmly believed he was Charley Ross, who was kidnapped from his home near Philadelphia in the 70s. Investigation showed however, that he was not. Charley Ross is the unsolvable mystery.

BURGLAR SCARE AT WOLLASTON

Window of Waterhouse Residence Tampered With.

POLICE CALLED TO HOUSE BY RINGING OF BURGLAR ALARM.

Officers Investigate But Fail to Locate Anyone.

What is thought to be another attempt at housebreaking in Wollaston was discovered early Friday evening, when the burglar alarm on the mansion of Frank P. Waterhouse 98 Prospect avenue sounded.

The alarm, which is an especially loud one, brought the police and the neighbors from all around.

The house was soon surrounded but no signs of an intruder were discovered.

Chief Burrell was sent for and arrived soon after with a detail of police.

An investigation was made of all modes of entrance but the police did not discover anything of a suspicious nature excepting that a window on the front porch was loose but could not be opened.

When they returned to the front of the house it was found that one of the spectators had opened this window, how it is not known.

Chief Burrell together with an officer and Harold Waterhouse, the son, entered by this means and made a thorough examination of the house.

Marks on this front window show evidence of an attempt to force it. Whether this was the cause of alarm or of a previous attempt to enter.

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

The first president of the United States was born in Westmoreland county, Va., Feb. 22, 1732. He died in 1799 at Mount Vernon, Va., in his sixty-eighth year. He was inaugurated president April 30, 1789, in front of Federal hall on Wall street, New York city, where now stands the subtreasury building. Washington served two terms as president and then retired to his farm at Mount Vernon. He was by training and choice a planter, though his military experience in youth and his general wisdom and patriotism led to his being called to the chief command of the Continental army during the Revolutionary war. In politics General Washington was a Federalist.

The Social Realm

Just where you stand in the conflict,
There is your place!
Just where you think you are useless,
Hide not your face!
God placed you there for a purpose.
Whate'er it may be;
Think He has chosen you for it;
Work loyally.
—Helen M. Richardson.

SECURES LARGE VERDICT.

N. G. Nickerson of Wollaston Wins Case Against Hyde Park.

A jury in the Superior Court at Dedham has for the last six days been hearing an important land damage case against the town of Hyde Park brought by Nathan G. Nickerson of Quincy and yesterday returned their verdict of $19,559 in favor of Nickerson.

The case arose out of the abolition of the grade crossing on Fairmount Avenue near the centre of the town of Hyde Park. Mr. Nickerson owned a piece of property which was developed for commercial purposes which was injured very much by reason of the town's raising the grade of Fairmount Avenue in front of his property. This it had to do in order to carry the roadway over the railroad tracks in abolishing the crossing.

The verdict is one of the largest of its kind ever rendered in Norfolk County, in fact the largest since the Fensmere case some five or six years ago, and is the largest verdict of any kind rendered by a jury in Norfolk for some years.

Counsel for the petitioner was Paul R. Blackmur of Quincy, and for the Town of Hyde Park C. F. Jenney and Harold Williams, Jr.

PRESENTED HANDSOME RING.

Friends of Albert Freberg Give Him a Surprise Party.

A number of the friends of Albert Freberg surprised him at his home Friday evening and presented him with a beautiful bloodstone ring as a token of their esteem and regard. TWENTY THIRD ANNUAL BALL

Granite Lodge O. S. S. G. Makes Merry at Music Hall.

ENTERTAINMENT FURNISHED BY VAUGHN DRAMATIC CO.

Wee Small Hours of Morning When Lights are Extinguished.

Members of Granite lodge Order Sons of St. George and their friends were out in large numbers Friday evening at the twenty-third annual concert and ball. The affair was held at Music hall and was most enjoyable in every way.

The entertainment was given by the Vaughn dramatic company who presented the comedy "The Private Secretary."

The comedy which was presented under the personal direction of H. C. Seeley, was one of three acts and abounded in humerous situations, which kept the audience convulsed with laughter from the time the curtain went up, until it was rung down for the last act.

The several characters were impersonated by S. Angus Anderson, Miss Florence E. Lynch, John P. Coughlin, Harold E. Watters, H. C. Seeley, L. Ernest Studley, C. C. Smith, Miss Emily Barns, Dan P. Murray, Miss Florence E. Lynch, Miss Edith B. Arey, Miss Mae V. Scanlon, C. C. Smith.

It would not be fair to pick out any particular character and say that he or she excelled for all took their parts equally well.

Between the acts Wilson's orchestra gave a pleasing musical program.

The entertainment was over at 10 o'clock and half an hour later the ball was in progress. This opened with a march and circle led by the floor director John H. Collins and partner. They were followed by upwards of fifty couples. The march over the order of eighteen numbers was entered into with spirit and these with the extras served to fill up the time until 3 o'clock.

The make up of the dance program was one that would please the most exacting as it contained a number of square dances in addition to the more modern ones.

Refreshments were served in the banquet hall at midnight during a brief intermission.

Those in charge of the affair and to whom credit for its success is due were: Floor Director—John H. Collins, Assistant Floor Director—Roy Prout, Aids—John Tate, J. Ernest Collins, George Davey, Joseph Tinney

Amusement Committee— Charle Vanner, chairman, Roy Prout, secretary; Robert Winship, treasurer.

John Tate, Charles Davey, Jr., John H. Collins, Arthur Newton, John Pascoe, Joseph Wardell, Herbert Collins, Fred Keast, James A. King, Jr.

Reception Committee— Charles Vanner, Charles Jones, John Pearce.

MICHAEL McNALLY BURIED.

The funeral of Michael McNally was held this morning from the home of his daughter Mrs. Timothy J. Carey of 1564 Hancock street. A high mass of requiem was celebrated at 9 o'clock in St. John's church, Rev. John J. Coan officiating.

A large number of relatives and friends of the family attended the funeral, including Mayor William T. Shea and several city officials.

The regular choir with John Mahon at the organ, sang the Gregorian mass, Miss Mary McConaty singing the "Pie Jesu." John Mahon sang the "Domine Jesu."

There were a large number of floral tributes from relatives and friends, including a beautiful standing cross, from the former fellow workmen of Mr. McNally.

The bearers were James C. White, John Richards, John Harkins and John Foley. The body was taken to New Calvary cemetery for burial in the faimly lot.

Mr. McNally was one of Quincy's oldest and best known residents. He was about 70 years old and for many years was employed by James C. White and John Richards as a granite carver.

Two sons and three daughters survive. These are Mrs. Timothy J. Carey, Mrs. Michael Hartrey, Mrs. William J. Costello, Dr. Henry McNally and Charles J. McNally.

OPEN WARFARE IN STEEL TRADE

Corporation Goes Back on Old Carnegie Price Policy

CHAIRMAN GARY'S EXPLANATION

Product to Be Sold at Modified Prices to Retain Fair Share of Trade—Independents Get Busy and Indications Point to Fight to a Finish—Severe Reduction Expected In Steel Duties by Those Interested

New York, Feb. 20.—An "open" market in the iron and steel trade that manufacturers believe will lead to a stimulation of the industry was created when Chairman Gary of the directorate of the United States Steel corporation made an official announcement that the "leading manufacturers of iron and steel have determined to protect their customers, and, for the present, sell at such modified prices as may be necessary with respect of different commodities in order to retain their fair share of the business." The prices which may be determined upon will be given by the manufacturers to their customers direct.

The action of the leading manufacturers in effecting an open market followed a series of conferences that have been held here for the last three days by Gary and the heads of the various subsidiary companies of the steel corporation, together with officials of other steel manufacturing companies.

Chairman Gary, in the official statement, says that the smaller steel manufacturing concerns, for one cause or another, particularly the tariff agitation, have become more or less excited and demoralized, and have been selling their products below those prices generally maintained; this led to unreasonable price cutting by certain manufacturers who, though opposed to a change, felt the necessity of protecting their customers.

It is reported that certain independent steel manufacturers were surprised when they learned that the United States Steel corporation had gone back to the old Carnegie steel price policy; that there will be an open market for steel from now on and that indications point to a fight to a finish among the various steel companies.

A representative of one large independent company said that the action of the United States Steel company was taken without consulting the independent companies and many of the latter companies yesterday sent their sales agents scouring the country for orders for steel at prices considerably below existing quotations.

Manufacturers are now convinced that the reduction in steel duties will be much more severe than expected. Not long ago the feeling prevailed that the steel schedule would be cut about 20 per cent. Later advices are that reductions will range from 30 per cent to 50 per cent. This, on top of a heavy reduction in steel, has created depression, mingled with alarm, in steel trade circles.

Open Warfare

Pittsburg, Feb. 20.—Steel markets were thrown into demoralization by drastic steel cuts. Tubes are from $10 to $12 a ton lower than at close of business Thursday. Steel bars are off $4 a ton.

Chicago, Feb. 20.—There is an open warfare here in steel. Structural steel has been cut from $1.60 to $1.25 per 100 pounds, which is equivalent to $7 a ton. This is the most severe reduction in steel in years.

UNIQUE ARGUMENT

"Women Take Home Ideas; Men Come Simply Loaded"

Chicago, Feb. 20.—Bishop Charles P. Anderson has added a unique contribution to the arguments in favor of woman suffrage. In an address to a men's club he took up the cudgels for the other sex.

"When men have an afternoon off they go to a ball game or a circus," he said. "When a woman has an afternoon off she goes to a meeting of the Browning club. The woman comes home loaded with ideas; the men come home simply loaded."

Veteran Engineer Dead

New Haven, Feb. 20.—Thomas G. Hinckley, a locomotive engineer, and who was the first to take a locomotive through the tunnel in the Allegheny mountains, died at his home in this city, aged 77. He was made an engineer in 1852, before he was 21 years old.

Brothers Sent to State Prison

Bridgeport, Conn., Feb. 20.—John and Thomas McGinley, brothers, both of Greenwich, were convicted by a jury of highway robbery on Paul S. Selehew of that town. They were sentenced to a term of not less than two years nor more than five in state prison.

May Sell Booze on Sundays

Chicago, Feb. 20.—The crusade to close Chicago saloons on Sundays received a severe setback when the state supreme court handed down a decision holding that it has not the power to compel Mayor Busse to close the groggeries on Sundays.

The Saving Of Bobbie.

By KATHLEEN O'BRIEN.

Copyrighted, 1909, by Associated Literary Press.

The Roberts' house party had been voted a success. It began on Friday night, and now that Sunday dinner was over the fortunate guests were bewailing the fact that the morning sun would see them all back in town again.

Robert Livingston, however, was not so sure that his visit had been altogether a successful one. He was desperately in love with Hulda Roberts.

This was no secret, for Robert had been guilty of relating his infatuation to every one who would listen to the harrowing tale for the past four years. The story was interesting to Robert, so why not to others?

The one cloud on his horizon, and this a cloud which the brightest sunshine could not blot out, was Carlton Carruthers. There he was even now, when the precious moments were so few, dangling over the side of the piano at which Hulda was playing softly.

Carlton Carruthers was likewise in love with Hulda, but he had never mentioned the fact to any one as yet, not even to Hulda herself.

Livingston leaned against the mantelpiece and surveyed the scene. Evidently a plan had occurred to him, for he suddenly walked over to the piano.

"Hulda, don't you think it would be a fine stunt to go for a short walk after that heavy dinner?" he suggested, absolutely ignoring Carruthers.

"Hardly in this toggery," Hulda laughed in reply.

"What have you against Miss Roberts, old man?" interrupted Carruthers, "that you should invite her for a stroll in the snow clad in a decollete gown and paper soled slippers?"

"Well, to be frank," admitted Livingston, "I was thinking only of you."

"Of me?" echoed Carruthers.

"Yes. You see, I wanted to speak to Hulda for a moment, and I knew you detested the cold, so I suggested going out of doors to get rid of you."

He was irresistible, and all three of them laughed.

"Livingston," said Carruthers, "I'll make a bargain with you. I'll go up in the library and smoke for just one hour, then I'll come back and claim Miss Roberts, and you to go to the library for an hour. What say you?"

"Gentlemen! Gentlemen!" cried Hulda. "How do you know that I could stand either of you for one whole hour?"

But Carruthers was gone, and there was nothing for her to do but stay with Livingston. Together they went into the great hall and curled up on an old settle before the open fire. The other members of the party had settled down into peaceful groups.

Most of the men had congregated in Mr. Roberts' study and were in a heated debate over politics, while the women were seated cozily about the drawing room talking over the same things that women always do discuss when the men are not about—clothes and servants.

Hulda felt something brush by her skirts and, leaning over, saw her favorite Angora cat purring at her side. Tenerly she picked the animal up in her arms.

"Bobby, dear," she cooed to it.

"Did I understand you aright?" exclaimed Livingston.

"I was speaking to the cat," reproved Hulda. "His name is Robinson Crusoe, but we call him Bobbie for short."

"You will forgive me, Hulda, won't you?" apologized Livingston as he nervously pulled at his perfectly fitted collar. "But you must remember that my name is Bobbie. And, Hulda," he continued as he leaned a little closer to her, "do you think you could ever come to think of me as Bobbie dear?"

"Why, Mr. Livingston"— began Hulda.

"Could you ever care as much for me as for"—

"You have no right to drag Mr. Carruthers into this," interrupted Hulda. "He is nothing to me."

"I was not thinking of Carruthers. I meant could you ever care as much for me as for Robinson Crusoe? Do you think"—

"I think we are sitting too near the fire and that it is high time that Bobbie was in bed like all other decent cats," answered Hulda as she gathered the Angora into her arms and rose from the settle.

"But I thought that cats never slept at night?" inquired Livingston, trying to hide his chagrin.

"Those are only street cats," informed Hulda. "Please take Bobbie and give him to the maid, won't you? And you need not hurry back," she added. Before Livingston could remonstrate the huge gray ball of fur was thrust into his arms.

Hulda then curled up again in the corner of the settle. To her the house party was a dire failure. That persistent Robert Livingston had again proposed, and here was she eating her heart out for Carlton Carruthers, who would rather smoke a cigar than talk to her. Just then Carruthers appeared on the stairs.

"Ah, there you are!" he cried as he discovered her alone. "So Livingston deserted you before the hour was up. Pretty hard. My, my, but you must have made it disagreeable for him! May I sit upon the vacant throne?" he asked as he seated himself at the other end of the bench.

For an hour or more Carruthers and Hulda talked in a low tone and were utterly oblivious that other inhabitants lived on the globe. The whole world seemed theirs, and the thought of others even existing would have marred the picture.

Suddenly the door leading to the back of the house was thrust open, and the maidservants came dashing through in wild disorder, one after the other, yelling: "Fire! Save me! Murder!" etc. The butler appeared on the scene immediately after them and made straight for Mr. Roberts.

In a moment all was confusion. Mrs. Roberts tried to calm the women guests, while most of the men made a dash for the kitchen. Carruthers hesitated as he felt Hulda grasp his arm tightly.

He looked down into the blue eyes and the rosy lips which had just made him so happy when suddenly from out of the heavens he seemed to fall to earth with a sickening thud.

"Oh, my Bobbie! My dear, dear Bobbie! Save him, some one!" cried Hulda.

Carruthers looked at the girl once more to make quite sure the cry came from her. There was no mistake. She wanted Livingston.

"Where is he?" demanded Carruthers huskily.

"Oh, he's in the kitchen. Save him, please do, for my sake!"

Carruthers waited for no more. His heart was too full, his brain whirling. Past the frightened women, down the long corridor that led to the kitchen, brushing maids aside, he strode to save his rival, Bobbie Livingston.

As he reached the kitchen he found the men had put out the slight conflagration and that it amounted to nothing. But Livingston was not in sight. Turning to Mr. Roberts, he asked for him.

"Oh, Livingston was here just a moment ago," said Mr. Roberts, "but I think he said he was going for a walk."

The men all returned to the main part of the house, assuring the ladies that it was nothing. Carruthers went over to Hulda.

"Where's Bobbie?" she asked, with great concern.

"He's gone"— began Carruthers.

"Oh, my dear, dear Bobbie!" wailed Hulda, not allowing him to finish his sentence. Then something brushed her skirt again, and, with a scream of delight, she picked up the cat.

"You told me he was gone," she said reproachfully to Carruthers as she hugged the fluffy ball to her breast.

"Is that the Bobbie you sent me for?" gasped Carruthers.

"Of course it is," Hulda answered rather sharply. "Who did you think I sent you for?"

"Why, Bobbie Livingston," weakly replied Carruthers as he mopped the perspiration from his brow.

Hulda hugged the cat for just a minute as she smiled. Then suddenly she turned serious and put him on the floor. She quietly sat down by Carruthers, and quite low in his ear she whispered:

"And you went in there to save Bobbie Livingston because I asked you to, and you believed all the time that—that"—

"What else could I believe when you were screaming to have some one save yur dear, dear Bobbie?" asked Carlton.

"Well, dear, dear Carl, I love you better than I did before the fire, if that could possibly be," whispered Hulda. And once more the earth was inhabited by two people only.

The Sword of Cornwallis.

Art is not always true to history. Schoolboys of several generations are familiar with the picture of Cornwallis surrendering his sword to Washington after the fall of Yorktown. Lord Cornwallis is revealed in the act of passing over his beautiful sword to the hand of his conqueror. The inference is that Washington took the sword and kept it as a trophy of victory. The facts are quite otherwise.

Cornwallis, proud even in defeat, declined to put in a personal appearance on the occasion of his surrender. The allied forces, American and French, who had besieged him for thirteen days, were drawn up in two columns along the road leading to Hampton. Rochambeau, on a fine bay horse, was at the head of the French column. On his white charger sat Washington at the head of the American troops. The surrendered British and Hessians marched out of their intrenchments and passed down between the two columns.

Many thousands of Virginian citizens were gathered to watch the scene, all eager to get a glimpse of Lord Cornwallis. But they were disappointed in that. Cornwallis pleaded indisposition and stayed in his quarters. He sent his sword by one of his officers, General O'Hara, to be delivered up to Washington. General O'Hara offered the sword to Washington, who directed him to General Lincoln, the officer whom Washington had appointed to conduct the surrender. Lincoln took the sword from O'Hara's hand and then politely handed it back, to be returned to Cornwallis.

Hereditary.

"And when you grow up," said the visitor to six-year-old Elsie, "I suppose you will get married?"

"Oh, there's hardly any doubt about it," answered the small miss. "Everybody says I am much like mamma, and she has been married three times, you know."—Harper's Weekly.

Arts of Oratory.

"I always keep a few funny stories on hand," said Mr. Spredeegle.

"They do help out."

"Yes. When I find my audience inclined to titter at my arguments I switch right into an anecdote so as to get legitimate credit for the laughter."—Houston Post.

SPEEDY JUSTICE IN VIRGINIA COURT

Negro Fiend Sentenced to Death on Confessing Crime

Roanoke, Va., Feb. 20.—Aurelius Christian, the negro who criminally assaulted and then murdered Miss Mary Dobbs, the 14-year-old daughter of a farmer, was sentenced to die in the electric chair on March 22.

Christian was tried at Fincastle at a special sitting of the court by Judge Anderson. Christian was indicted by the grand jury and Anderson appointed three lawyers to defend him.

At a conference between the lawyers and the prisoner, Christian made a confession, which he later repeated in court to the judge. No jury was summoned. The judge accepted Christian's confession and imposed the death sentence.

The negro said he was hiding in the woods when Miss Dobbs passed on her way to a store. He seized her and after assaulting her cut her throat and stabbed her three times "to keep her from telling." Christian showed no signs of fright.

The sentence came within twenty-four hours after the crime was committed.

TAFT IN KNOCKERS' CLUB

Goes Through Initiation and Dinner Without Having to Make a Speech

Cincinnati, Feb. 20.—President-Elect Taft was last night made a Knocker "at sight." His initiation furnished enjoyment for prominent business and professional men of the city at the Knockers' annual dinner.

Cincinnati's Knocker organization is an auxiliary of its business men's clubs. Its particular business is to knock hard and effectively everything tending to hinder the material advancement of the city and to originate and promote enterprises and undertakings for the city's welfare. It is unique in that it has no known organization and no one knows who are its members. The annual dinners of the Knockers' club have become famous for their entertainment features.

The president-elect was not allowed to make a speech, which was interpreted as a delicate compliment from his townsmen, who were in fact saying farewell to him as a private citizen. As the guest of honor at the dinner, it was his first escape from oratory for twenty years.

ARMY AND PENSIONS

Bills Carrying Heavy Appropriations Are Passed by the Senate

Washington, Feb. 20.—Not during the present session of congress has such a large amount of legislative business been done by the senate as was accomplished on Friday. The army bill, carrying appropriations amounting to $102,636,059, and the pension bill, with appropriations aggregating $160,869,000, of which $160,000,000 was for pensions and $869,000 for fees, etc., were passed. Forty-five other bills were passed.

Three of the great supply measures of the government passed through various stages of enactment into law in the house. The fortifications bill was completed and went over to the senate; the sundry civil bill was reported, and the postoffice appropriation bill was sent to conference.

BOOM FOR NORTH ADAMS

Capacity of the Greylock Cotton Mills to Be Doubled

North Adams, Mass., Feb. 20.—Four hundred additional operatives will be given employment at the Greylock cotton mills through the doubling of the mill's capacity, the announcement of which was made last night.

This will bring the total number of hands employed to 800. When the additions are finished the mill will have 1200 looms and 60,000 spindles. In order to accommodate the new operatives about fifty tenement houses will be erected by the company.

EXPOSURE OF GRAFT

Folk Declares That It Is a Help to City or State

Boston, Feb. 20.—"So far from injuring Missouri, the reign of law has helped," declared former Governor Folk of Missouri, who was the "national night" speaker at the Boston City club last night. Folk, speaking on the recent exposures of wrong doing in public office, said:

"One of the obstacles to the progress or righteousness everywhere is the mistaken view that it injures a city or state to prosecute wrongdoing. Such views are entirely false."

Toronto's New Bishop

Toronto, Feb. 20.—Archdeacon Sweeney was elected bishop of Toronto by the Anglican Synod. The synod had been deadlocked for three days. Sweeney was a compromise candidate.

The Fireside Diplomat.

"I don't want to be nagging at you," Mrs. Marryat began, "but it's the little things that bother me most"—

"Ah!" interrupted her husband sweetly. "I suppose you're going to tell me you haven't a decent pair of shoes."—Philadelphia Press.

Loss of SLEEP

Body and brain need sufficient peaceful sleep each night to repair the waste caused by the physical and mental exertions of the day. Broken rest brings on headache, despondency, irritability and nerve exhaustion. When the nerve force is low,

THE

Young Men's Christian Association OF QUINCY, MASS.

(Legal Title - Incorporated 1892.)

The Directors of the YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION of Quincy, with a firm faith in the great value of the work which is being done for the young men and boys of our city, make their appeal for donations and bequests toward paying the mortgage indebtedness on the new Association Building. When the building is free from debt it will serve as an Endowment, as there is a goodly income from the dormitories.

Should the Donor prefer, such sum as might be given could be used as an Endowment for an educational class or classes, the Boys Department, or as a special fund in other ways, and could be designated with the name of the Donor.

The Treasurer, WILLIAM F. CUMMINGS, 7 Clive Street, Quincy, or the General Secretary, ERNEST G. GAY, will be happy to answer inquiries.

OUR HOSPITAL

(Legal Title: City Hospital of Quincy)

INCORPORATED 1889

The Trustees of the City Hospital of Quincy earnestly appeal for donations and bequests for the Endowment fund. This now amounts to over $60,000 but a fund of at least $100,000 is urgently needed

Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000) will endow a Free Bed to which such name may be given as the Donor may desire, but any sum for this noble institution which stands ready to serve us all in the hour of need, will be most gratefully received.

The Secretary, TIMOTHY REED, Adams St. Quincy, or the Treasurer, RICHARD D. CHASE Savings Bank Building, Quincy, will be very glad to confer with any one or to answer any inquiries

The Scrap Book

In a Bad Way.

A doctor came up to a patient in an insane asylum, slapped him on the back and said: "Well, old man, you're all right. You can run along and write your folks that you'll be back home in two weeks as good as new."

The patient went off gayly to write his letter. He had it finished and sealed, but when he was licking the stamp it slipped through his fingers to the floor, lighted on the back of a cockroach that was passing and stuck. The patient hadn't seen the cockroach. What he did see was his escaped postage stamp zigzagging aimlessly across the floor to the baseboard, wavering up over the baseboard and following a crooked track up the wall and across the ceiling. In depressed silence he tore up the letter that he had just written and dropped the pieces on the floor.

"Two weeks! Hell!" he said. "I won't be out of here in three years."

LAUGHTERLAND.

All aboard for Laughterland!
'Tis a pleasant place,
Where the sun of happiness
Shines in every face,
Where the cares of this old world
Quickly are forgot
And there's never any cloud,
Any pain or blot.

All aboard for Laughterland,
Region of delight!
Can be reached by any who
Set about it right.
First you shake your troubles off,
Then begin to smile,
And you'll go to Laughterland
In a little while.

Children dwell in Laughterland
'Cause they do not know
What makes grownup people bear
Burdens as they go.
Light hearts seek for Laughterland,
Optimists go there—
Oh, it is the gladdest place
Known of anywhere!

What About the Other Eye?

A small boy was playing with the scissors, and his kindly old grandmother chided him.

"You mustn't play with the scissors, dear. I know a little boy like you who was playing with a pair of scissors just like that pair, and he put them in his eye and put his eye out, and he could never see anything after that."

The child listened patiently and said when she got through the narrative:

"What was the matter with his other eye?"

Mark Twain's Game of Billiards.

One day Mark Twain was in a billiard saloon, when a particularly unprepossessing looking man approached him and asked him to play a game. The humorist consented, and they began in earnest.

"I'll be perfectly fair with you," said the stranger. "I'll play you left handed."

"I felt hurt," said Mark Twain when he told the story, "for he was cross eyed, freckled and had red hair, so I determined to teach him a lesson for his audacity. But he won first shot and ran clean out, taking my half dollar, and all I got was the opportunity to chalk my cue."

The wonderful play of his opponent so astonished Mark that he exclaimed, "Great Scott, if you can play like that with your left hand I'd like to see you play with your right!"

"I can't," replied the stranger as he sidled out of the room. "You see, I'm left handed."

Her Own Doctor.

A Washington woman recently hired a negress. Going to the kitchen one day she was amazed to find the negress sitting on the floor, with her hair standing out from the head like a black nimbus. The girl was pulling one curly lock and then another in such a way as to suggest that she had suddenly lost her reason.

"What on earth are you doing, Mary?" gasped the lady of the house.

"Nawthin', ma'am, only I has got a sore throat an' was jest tryin' to find de lock dat would pull mah palate up an' relieve de tickle."

Optimist and Pessimist.

Sidney Rosenfeld once wrote a comedy entitled "The Optimist," which achieved success after its production, but was a long time reaching the stage. Manager after manager refused the manuscript, and one day Mr. Rosenfeld, whose patience was exhausted, blurted out to his sole auditor:

"Of course you don't appreciate the play! You don't even know the meaning of its name!"

"Yes, I do," protested the impresario. "Well," insisted Rosenfeld, "what's the difference between an optimist and a pessimist?"

The manager barely hesitated. "An optimist is an eye doctor," he said; "a pessimist is a foot doctor."

Be Yourself Always.

Whatever you are by nature, keep to it. Never desert your own line of talent. Be what nature intended you for and you will succeed. Be anything else and you will be ten thousand times worse than nothing.—Sydney Smith.

And Dear at That!

In the story of his life Hall Caine tells the following anecdote of Rossetti:

"Going one day with some of his artist friends to a tavern in Soho, Rossetti came upon an oil painting of the crudest color and most hideous design, so huge as to cover the whole side of a room and so grotesque in subject that they all burst into roars of laughter at the sight of it. Such unseemly merriment nettled the tavern keeper, who began to remonstrate.

"'Well, well,' said Rossetti, with a wink at all round, 'how much will you take for it?'

"'More money than you've got in the world, young man,' replied the tavern keeper. And then Rossetti, now nettled in his turn, said:

"'Really! We'll see. Say the word—how much?'

"'Five hundred pounds.'

"Then the young painters burst into screams of laughter, Rossetti's laughter being loudest of all. The tavern keeper stood silent until they were finished and then said to Rossetti:

"'Well, how much will you give for it?'

"'Five shillings,' said Rossetti.

"'Done!' said the tavern keeper. 'Take it away at once!'"

Insisted on a Miracle.

Dr. Walter C. Smith, the popular Scotch poet-preacher, on one occasion tried to explain to an old lady the meaning of the Scriptural expression, "Take up thy bed and walk," by saying that the bed was simply a mat or rug easily taken up and carried away. "No, no!" replied the lady. "I canna believe that. The bed was a regular four poster. There would be no miracle in walking away wi' a bit o' mat or rug on your back."

Making It Plain.

In the course of his sermon the preacher in a rural district used the word phenomenon. This word caused one of the members some trouble, for he was unable to attach any meaning to it. Finally he determined to seek an explanation from the minister and at the close of the service approached him on the subject.

"What did you mean by that there long word yer used in yer sermon?" he began.

"Oh, I see you do not know what a phenomenon is," replied the minister. "Well, have you ever seen a cow grazing in a field in which thistles were growing?"

"Yes; many a time."

"That is not a phenomenon. And no doubt you have often listened to a lark singing merrily away up in the clouds?"

"Yes."

"That, again, is not a phenomenon. But if you saw that cow sitting on a thistle singing like a lark that would be a phenomenon."

The Editor's Comment.

An erratic Memphis editor was a great admirer of John Sharp Williams, though he had never seen him. This editor in blind faith printed column after column in praise of the "gentleman from Yazoo." There was not an edition that didn't have something exalting Williams, and one day John Sharp, on his way home from Washington, dropped off at Memphis to get something to eat in the railroad restaurant. It was early in the morning, and the editor was eating at the same place after a night of work. The proprietor called the congressman's attention to the editor. "John," said the restaurant manager, "that fellow over there has been saying some pretty nice things about you." "I'd like to meet him," said Williams. So the editor was brought over and introduced. He rubbed his hand across his face wearily several times and said: "Williams? Williams? What? The congressman?" "Yes," modestly assented that gentleman, "the same." "You're not John Sharp Williams?" "There's no question about my identity," broke in the somewhat exasperated Williams, rather testily. "Well, all I can say is," muttered the editor as he shook hands with the statesman, "you're a —— sight brighter than you look."

Bearing Others' Burdens.

This is the paradox of experience—that the way to bear one's burdens is to add to them the bearing of some one else's. The way out of your own trial is by entering into the trials of others. The introspective and self absorbed sorrow grows heavier the longer you watch it, and the self forgetting service of another lightens the burden which you yourself have to bear. The more you shirk the more you have to bear. The more you add of others' responsibilities the more you substract from your own.—Professor F. G. Peabody, Harvard University.

Posting the Duke.

When Grand Duke Alexis of Russia was in Kansas in 1872 he was entertained at a great banquet in Topeka. This was served at the old Fifth Avenue hotel, then the town's swellest hostelry, and it was gorgeously decorated. A noted politician of those days was showing the distinguished guest around. Alexis saw a big sign in the banquet room, on which was emblazoned the motto of Kansas, "Ad Astra Per Aspera!" The duke was looking at it closely when the politician, swelling with importance and waving his fat hand toward the inscription, blurted out, "Them's Latin, your highness—them words is Latin!"

He Knew Where John Was Going.

"I canna' leave ye thus, Nancy," a good old Scotchman wailed. "Ye're too auld to work, an' ye couldn' live in the almshouse. Gin I die, ye maun marry anither man, wha'll keep ye in comfort in yer auld age."

"Nay, nay, Andy," answered the good spouse, "I could na wed anither man, for what wad I do wi' twa husbands in heaven?" Andy pondered long over this, but suddenly his face brightened.

"I hae it, Nancy!" he cried. "Ye ken auld John Clemmens? He's a kind man, but he is na a member o' the kirk. He likes ye, Nancy, an' gin ye'll marry him 'twill be all the same in heaven. John's na Christian."—Success Magazine.

According to Herbert Knox Smith, the commissioner of corporations, the tobacco trust has absorbed about two hundred and fifty separate concerns. Now do you wonder it is called an Octopus?

Where are the scales at Quincy Adams? We understand that carloads of rough dimension stone have to be sent to South Braintree to be weighed, therefore delaying the receiving of way bills, and also delaying the shipments, by having the cars laid off at South Braintree.

It is rumored that in his inaugural address President-elect Taft will outline the policy he will pursue in the appointment of negroes to federal officers. According to the rumor Mr. Taft will recognize merit in a negro as in a white person, and will be glad to appoint them to office (if) qualified to fill the position and—(if) there is no objection to them, as officials in the community where they may be stationed.

If the rumor is true these various (ifs) will prove an effectual barrier to the reappointment of Dr. Crum as collector of the port of Charlestown, S. C., and also to the appointment of other negroes to federal offices in the Southern states.

Therefore it does not look as if negroes who seek federal offices will meet with any more success in the future than they have in the past, as there will always be an objection raised whenever such an appointment is suggested.

According to a despatch from London, an American woman was arrested with twenty-three other women, in an attempted suffragette raid in Premier Asquith's residence. What next?

By the decision handed down by Judge Richardson of the superior court removing Edward G. Graves from the Republican city committee of Boston, the comittee is without a president and, according to the committee's by laws without the power of electing one.

Although the decision will undoubtedly meet with the disapproval of "he powers that be" in the Republican city committee, the average citizen will consider the decision a just rebuke to what must be considered one of the most high-handed proceedings ever attempted by a political machine.

Mr. Graves was president of the city committee last year, but at the fall elections failed to regain his membership in the Republican committee of Ward One. As the city committee is composed of the various ward committees, Mr. Graves, according to the court's decision was not a member of the city committee, and therefore could not legally serve as its president, even though elected to the office.

Is Boston so overcrowded with paupers, criminals, and "low caste" foreigners, that she is unable to make her own laws and conduct her own government? Senator Gary of South Carolina evidently thinks so, for in a speech before the Senate he said that the appointment of the Finance Commission was an indication that such was the case. Touching this question Senator Gary said:

"A little over a year ago there was created in Boston a Finance Commission composed of the very best citizens, for the purpose of investigating and reporting on the existing intolerable municipal conditions. The report of that Commission has just been made public and deals exhaustively with the situation. Among other things the Commission says: "The present electoral machinery is wholly unsuited for the requirements of successful municipal government through popular suffrage; and recommends to the Legislature the passage of a bill which will completely change the present form of city government, and divided the responsibility between the people of Boston and the Legislature.

"This, mind you, was the once refined and cultured Boston, the Arcady of American; Boston, that has now become so infested with aliens, thought to be incapable of self-government, that it is asked that the municipal government be divided between the people of Boston and the Legislature of Massachusetts. It is not surprising that schemes are being devised and ways and means provided whereby this congested mass of humanity may be pushed on to the South and West."

This is a pretty hard rap, and when taken with Senator Gary's indirect attack upon Senator Lodge in the same speech, will undoubtedly raise the ire of the citizens of this once refined and cultured Boston the Arcady of America."

EDITORIAL COMMENTS.

Let women beware the high-heeled shoes! The higher the heels the greater her contributory negligence in an accident. So the law and the precedent stand in New Jersey, where in Newark, two women lost suits for damages against the public service corporation, because testimony showed that they wore shoes with abnormally high heels. Now will some court discover what the dotted veil contributes to, besides blindness?—Boston Advertiser.

The proposition to pay to the widow of one representative-elect and the daughter of another, both of whom died before being sworn in, the salaries that attach to the positions for the present session, has taken up more of the time of the House than its merits justify. As neither of them ever became a member of that body, it would be the same as a gratuity to a private citizen. The policy that has frequently obtained of continuing the salary of a member who has died during the session is questionable, but much more defensible than the present attempt. The State is not a charitable institution. Though it appropriates much for charity this must be done through the regularly authorized channels, else no end of confusion and extravagance are likely to result. Were a test made of this case it is doubtful whether it would be constitutionally possible to grant the petitions, to say nothing of the obvious impropriety of establishing such a precendent.—Boston rTanscript.

The Observations In the Daily Walk

E. S. Bennett of Berlin street has returned from Tuttleton, California.

Miss Alice Beale of Vain street was tendered a surprise party last evening at her home by several of her classmates.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank C. Sass of East Elm avenue are receiving congratulations on the birth of twin daughters, born February 16th.

The Hospital Aid association will meet with Mrs. Horace F. Spear of Hancock street on Thursday, February 25, at 3 o'clock.

Miss Anna J. Jacobsen and Miss Mabel Jacobsen of Kendrick avenue are enjoying the week end and holiday at Maplehurst Farm, Hollis, New Hampshire.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cook of Somerville nee Ethel Hill of Walker street, have the sympathy of their friends owing to the death of their infant son born on Valentine's day.

There will be a meeting of the Relief committee of the Anti-Tuberculosis association, on Wednesday, February 24, at the home of Mr. Frederick W. Plummer, Greenleaf street.

First class talent will be heard at the concert given in the First Presbyterian church, next Wednesday evening, by the choir of the church under the direction of Prof. M. McLeod of Boston.

Rev. James Frazer Evans of Springfield, Mass., will preach morning and evening at the First Presbyterian church on Sunday. Mr. Evans is one of four candidates which will be heard to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Rev. N. J. Sproul.

Several members of the Quincy and Wollaston Young People's Religious Unions attended the vaudeville and dance held in Whiton hall, Dorchester, on Wednesday evening, under the auspices of the Boston Federation. One of the attractions of the entertainment was the Japanese chorus by nine young ladies of the Quincy union with Demie Gourlie at the piano. Miss Minnie Hardwick was soloist and pleased her audience with her singing and her graceful dancing.

Rev. B. F. Crawford, pastor of the Atlantic Methodist Episcopal church, will preach his farewell sermon Sunday and all parishioners of the church are invited to be present. Rev. Crawford has accepted a call to become assistant pastor of the First Methodist church of Baltimore, Maryland. During his pastorate in Atlantic, he has made hosts of friends and was much beloved as a minister. The best wishes of his congregation and their earnest prayers for his continued success will follow him in his new duties.

HOME RUN MADE AT EARLY DAWN

Local Ball Tossers Champion Ball "Givers."

The first annual dance of the Quincy baseball association in Hibernian hall Friday night, like everything else attempted by this hustling lot of ball-tossers, was a grand success in every way. The weather was anything but desirable, but this did not deter the royal rooters from being on hand to enjoy the fun, there being about 200 couples present.

Cuff's orchestra furnished the music and this in itself was enough to guarantee a good time. From eight o'clock until eleven dancing was enjoyed and then came an intermission, during which time a buffet lunch was served in the banquet hall by A. J. LaCroix.

It was "on with the dance" again at 11.30 and at two o'clock the first annual was over.

The hall was decorated with the club colors blue and white and two large blue pennants with white Q's on them, were suspended from the gallery. The stage was decorated with bunting and potted plants.

The floor was in charge of George Fallon and he was ably assisted by Ray Abildgaard and the following aids: James Elcock, William F. Kelly, Edward Ryan, Joseph L. Ford, James C. Michael, John Rogers, Jr., Edward Sweeney, John Higgins, Frank Flynn, John Smith, Frank Avery, Harry Moody and Sidney Patterson.

DO WE NEED OUR NAVY?

Prominent Men Discuss Question at Wollaston Unity Club.

Do we need our navy? was the subject of a debate at the Wollaston Unity club Friday evening.

Benjamin F. Trueblood, L. L. D. secretary of the American Peace society spoke for the negative, Charles H. Bedell electrical engineer of submarine boats at Fore River and Lieut. Ferguson, U. S. Navy took the affirmative.

The protection of commerce and rights of the nation, possibilities of war with Japan, the Hague conferences and many other interesting points were touched on, by both sides.

The evening closed with several entertaining readings by Mrs. Ferguson.

SCENIC TEMPLE.

On Tuesday evening, at the Scenic Temple, a special performance will be held with special extra motion pictures; interesting subjects of Western life. Special extra picture songs in addition to the regular numbers, beautifully illustrated, with other features of interest to all Red Men.

Favors will be given to some as souvenirs of the occasion.

Hodenosaunee Tribe, No. 62 of Wollaston, Mass., have set the evening apart, and the members with their wives will attend in a body. The body of the house will be reserved for all Red Men and their families insuring them of having good seats and a happy time.

DEMOCRATC HOUSE IN 1910.

Bryan Forcasts Victory for His Party In Next House of Representative.

New York, February 19.—Widespread interest among politicians has been aroused by an article by William Jennings Bryan in the March number of Munsey's Magazine, entitled "The Future of the Democratic Party." Mr. Bryan in his paper carefully analyzes the political conditions of the present day, discussing the policies of this party at length.

"It is more than possible—it is even probable," he declares, "that the House of Representatives to be elected in 1910 will be Democratic."

Sounding a word of warning to President-elect Taft, he continues:

"The President-elect cannot possibly satisfy the expectations of both elements of the Republican party. With a Republican Senate and a Republican House controlled by what Mr. Roosevelt calls reactionaries,, how can he escape conflict either with the Republican leaders or with the Republican voters of the Mississippi Valley?"

In discussing the tendency toward reform legislation, Mr. Bryan says:

"The Democratic party is in sympathy with the growing demand for remedial legislation; it is therefore rowing with the tide, for the tide is onward. Democrats, recognizing the responsibility of their position, and strong in the confidence they feel in the righteousness of their cause, are prepared to wage a winning fight against an opposition already panic-stricken."

Influential Democrats declare Mr. Bryan's article to be the most important political paper printed since the election of Mr. Taft last November.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR.

Editor Daily Ledger:

In your issue of February 8 appeared one of Mr. John L. Miller's characteristic letters in reply to a letter I had written relative to the derrick at Quincy Adams. Mr. Miller starts out by admitting that there is very little to answer in my letter, and then he proceeds to substitute his own conclusions for the incontrovertible facts set forth by me.

The granite men of Quincy are interested in this question, Mr. Editor, and that is my reason for returning to the discussion and taking up your space.

I repeat that the question did not arise between the committee and Supt. Martin when we met in Boston as to what kind of a derrick we should be furnished at Quincy Adams. The Board of Trade voted on that question,—unanimously excepting my dissenting vote,—and for that reason I resigned.

As to Mr. Miller's allegation that two years earlier I was in Boston with another committee of which I was a member, I need only say that, that committee's conference was with the vice-president of the road, and the question did not then arise as to the kind of derrick we should have, but the question was where it should be located. The vice-president asked us who owned a certain piece of land occupied by Mr. McGrath I stated I thought it belonged to the Adams Real Estate Trust. He asked me to look into the matter. I did so, brought the parties together, and the railroad was given a new entrance to the property in the rear. That was practically all that was done on the occasion in question.

During the six or seven years that Mr. Miller had been playing for derricks there were only two meetings (one with the Board of Trade and one with the Manufacturers' association committee) that I ever attended with them in Boston or elsewhere, excepting, of course, the second meeting of the Board of Trade. And if Mr. Miller had kept his ear to the ground and his facile pen out of ink, he would have learned who it was that was playing hide and go seek with his committee. The party's name is not Field.

He admits being responsible for the circulating of the petition which was signed by every one who was asked. Therefore he was doing in secret what should have been done openly before the Granite Manufacturers in meeting assembled.

Mr. Miller asserts I am one of the smallest shippers of granite. How does he know that? Does it make any difference? Should I not have the right to ship what goods I wish and have proper facilities placed at my disposal by the railroad for loading the same?

As a matter of fact, Mr. Editor, throughout the year my firm has doubled the number of men on the payroll that Mr. Miller has in his employ.

He claims he loaded 28 tons in 30 minutes. We could beat that in West Quincy by ten minutes and with a boom derrick. He claims to have loaded a 20 ton block in ten minutes, but he could do that in his own yard with a boom derrick which he has there. And what does all that talk amount to with practical men who know it is the power and speed behind the derrick that load the stone, whether it be an overhead crane or a boom derrick that is used.

Mr. Miller refers to my "oxen." I admit I have one bellicose ox that prefers fighting to working, but what bearing has that on the derrick question?

He admits the crane was frozen, as I stated, and I have no reason to change my statements regarding the lengths of time. I had boxed stone which I was anxious to ship and therefore I had an interest in knowing how long the crane was out of commission.

He says the cellar stone I referred to was "imaginary" and that none has been shipped for years. He evidently does not know that within six weeks about a thousand tons of block cellar stone went out of this city over the road to Boston. And he omitted to tell your readers that there are about 75 horses carrying stone for rough cellars every day in the week from the commons in Quincy and East Milton; nor has he mentioned the fact that one sloop averaged two or three trips a week last year from Brackett's wharf to Winthrop, Chelsea and East Boston, carrying this kind of stone; and he neglects to mention how much of that kind of granite Mr. Sandberg's sloop has carried out. But he wants the public to know that we have a derrick with one hoist at Quincy Adams. To mix the rough cellar stone with the hammered granite is something that cannot be done with one "purchase" without wasting much of the time of the teams waiting to unload.

Mr. Miller is not the only authority on granite shipping. If I wanted a good design for a monument, I would probably consult him,—although he has equals in that line,—but I should decline to ask his advice on questions pertaining to quarry business or transportation. My experience of fifty years in shipping granite has given me all the knowledge I require on those subjects.

He then undertakes to show us that he received a letter from the Superintendent of the railroad. The letter itself shows that it came not from Mr. Martin, but from Mr. Jackson of the railroad commissioners. This is only one of the many errors he made in his haste to rush into print. I told him many times that the railroad commissioners would take no action on a letter, and I was right.

As to the 40 ton stone, perhaps one or two a month are loaded, but why didn't he tell the public that about four thousand tons of smaller stone, each stone weighing less than a ton, have to be handled every month by that one crane. I have never criticised a crane for some places, but for public business in a public place, like this, we need more derricks to expedite business. Formerly we had two, one being capable of being worked by hand, the other operated by power. I made the plans and erected the larger one of those derricks at a cost to the railroad of one thousand dollars, some fifteen years ago. Mr. Miller criticised it at a meeting of the Association. Then somebody blew off the castings, supposedly with dynamite. The superintendent of the railroad advised me as to the facts and asked me to do what I considered necessary with the derrick to give facilities for loading. Mr. Miller was the first man I visited, and my asking him what changes, if any, he wanted, he replied "Put the castings on as they were before." When I was criticising the derrick in the Association he admitted he had been in error; he had not examined its power.

Now, Mr. Editor, I assert that Mr. Miller is to blame for allowing that derrick to be removed without making a struggle for its retention. He was President of the Manufacturers' Association at that time. If the crane were to break a casting, or anything else happened to it, we would be left without means of loading stone until the trouble was remedied, which would perhaps take several days.

As this communication is long, I will not take up any more of your valuable space at this time; but I may at a future time give you my ideas regarding the changes that have come about in the use of our granite.

Yours truly,
J. Q. A. Field.

WHAT THE KIDNEYS DO.

Their Unceasing Work Keeps Us Strong and Healthy.

All the blood in the body passes through the kidneys once every three minutes. The kidneys filter the blood They work night and day. When healthy they remove about 500 grains of impure matter daily, when unhealthy some part of this impure matter is left in the blood. This brings on many diseases and symptoms—pain in the back, headache, nervousness, hot,dry skin, rheumatism, gout, gravel, disorders of the eyesight and hearing, dizziness, irregular heart, debility, drowsiness, dropsy, deposits in the urine, etc. But if you keep the filters right you will have no trouble with your kidneys.

Mrs. Deborah Prouty, living at 85 North St., Quincy, Mass., says: "I am in a position to speak in the highest terms of Doan's Kidney Pills. My back ached nearly all the time and caused me considerable trouble. Any sudden movement, or if I attempted to stoop, sent sharp pains, through my loins. My health was much run down and I had but little strength or energy. I was very much alarmed about my condition when Doan's Kidney Pills were recommended to me. I had known so many people who had used them with beneficial results that I procured a supply at the Cox Drug Store. Three boxes convinced me that Doan's Kidney Pills were the best kidney remedy to be had and I am now in perfect health."

NORWEGIANS HOLD MASQUERADE

Over Seventy Couples Attend In Spite of Bad Weather.

The fourth annual masquerade ball of the Norwegian society of Quincy, was held Friday night in Electa hall and although the weather outside was stormy, inside the hall there was a gay scene. The hall was decorated with flags and bunting, the Norwegian flag and the Stars and Stripes being used as a background for Jacobsen's orchestra.

There was a concert from 8 to 9 by the orchestra and promptly at 9 o'clock the march was started, with about 75 couples in line. All were in costume and were masqued so as to completely conceal their identity. There were two prizes awarded, one for the best appearing lady and one for funniest dressed gentleman.

The judges awarded the lady's prize to Miss Ida Benson and the gentleman's to Oscar Swenson. All were then ordered to unmask and dancing was enjoyed until 2 o'clock. During the evening a supper was served in Protection hall.

The floor was in charge of Thorvald Johnson and the affair in general was under the direction of Nils Loddengaard, chairman of the committee of arrangements.

—The readiness with which men, and alas! women, in this era, kill each other, is only exceeded by the promptness with which, on small provocation, they kill themselves. Not only does it "seem" from reports in the newspapers, that murder and suicide are on the increase in the United States, but the statistics prove it, abundantly and sadly. Not alone desperate characters, schooled in depravity and familiar with crime, from whom violence is always to be anticipated, but young men and women, born to position and accustomed to refined associations, are numbered with increasing, alarming frequence, in the category of criminals and suicides. "It is a short way out," wrote a sixteen year old girl whose folly was not endorsed by her family. Something must be wrong with our society, our civilzation, our education, our religion, when life is held so cheap. There is much suffering and distress; but not more than always. And in this country there is less than in most, with prompter relief and larger opportunity. This phenomenon calls for study and remedy.—Universalist Leader.

JOLLY PARTY FILLS MUSIC HALL

Proceeds to be Used For Civic Improvements at Atlantic.

The Civic Betterment committee of Atlantic, representing the Quincy Woman's club, held a dancing party Friday evening in Atlantic Music hall.

Decorations of palms and bunting gave the hall an attractive appearance.

The success of the affair was due mainly to the earnest work of Mrs. Williams Ward Whitcher of Atlantic. The proceeds will go for civic improvement of the Atlantic district.

Harry Read and Mrs. Frederick Pierce led the grand march, followed by about sixty couples. Kanrich's chestra furnished music for dancing.

Mrs. John Carver, Miss Elizabeth Cook and Mrs. Theodore Parker served punch in the clubroom which was tastily decorated with candles, oriental hangings and rugs.

Harry W. Reed, was floor director and was assisted by Clifford Bean and Franklin Kolb.

The matrons were, Mrs. W. Ward Whitcher, Mrs. Harry W. Read, Mrs. Charles R. Safford, Mrs. Herbert S. Barker, Mrs. George A. Waterhouse.

The partonesses were Mrs. George W. Newton, Mrs. Herbert S. Barker, Mrs. John Carver, Mrs. Charles E. Cherrington, Mrs. Frank Emery, Mrs. Charles A. Hale, Mrs. Walter P. Hill, Mrs. George W. Hinckley, Mrs. Ralph W. Hobbs, Mrs. William A. Johnson, Mrs. Frank Jenkins, Mrs. Cecil H. Marble, Mrs. Frederic J. Peirce, Mrs. Harry W. Reed, Mrs. Joseph Ripley, Mrs. Charles R. ALL READY FOR BUSINESS

New P. O. Building to be Opened March First.

Quincy's new post office building is practically completed and will be occupied for business the coming week, or to be exact the last day of February. Previous to that time however, an opportunity will be given for the citizens in general to inspect the building which for its size is one of the best appointed post offices yet erected by the government.

Supt. Hammond says that the first mail will be dispatched from the new office on Sunday evening, Feb. 28, and the first mail received at the new building will be at 6.20 Monday morning, March 1.

This morning Post Master E. C. Mansfield and Superintendent Hammond issued invitations to a number of citizens to a private reception and inspection of the building next Thursday evening.

On this evening Postmaster Mansfield and other officials from the Boston offices will be present.

On Friday, Feb. 26, an opportunity will be given for an inspection of the building by the general public. On this day the office will be open in the afternoon from 3 to 9 P. M. and a general invitation is extended to the residents of Quincy to visit the building.

This will probably be the only time that the public will have an opportunity to inspect the working rooms of the building and many will doubtless take advantage of the opportunity thus afforded.

MILTON.

The warrant for the annual town meeting has been posted. It contains 55 articles.

The warrant committee's report is expected out early next week.

The Thursday evening club held a whist party at its club rooms Thursday evening.

The Milton police department have purchased a new 1909 model Stanley steamer to chase auto speeders with the coming season. The new car can easily develop a speed of 75 miles and it is figured out that nothing can get away from it. The machine in use last year is to be sold.

A dancing party will be held at Ellsworth hall next week.

Although an appropriation was made by the town last year for a horseless engine, Chief Engineer has not made a purchase as yet. Before he makes a purchase he desires to see several machines on the market tired out.

The Many Sided Roosevelt

J. A. Edgerton's Candid Review of Nonpolitical Questions With Which the President Has Been Most Prominently Identified—A Man of Deeds, Who Believes In Hitting the Trail of Progress and Advancing.

By JAMES A. EDGERTON.

AT noon of March 4 the administration of Theodore Roosevelt as president of the United States will close. He will then have been in office seven years and six months, lacking ten days. From the night of his wild ride down Mount Marcy, during which he came into the highest office in the world, to the present hour his administration has been striking, not to say spectacular. It is yet too early fully to measure either his work or his influence. That can only be done by the future which can know the effects of the causes he has set up and can view him with a dispassionate eye, a thing not now possible. All that can be done at this time is to recount the things for which he has stood and to give the results he has accomplished so far as they are apparent. Whatever may be his place in history, he has certainly filled a large angle in the public vision of his own day. Despite the opposition of powerful interests and the columns of abuse that have been aimed at him, Theodore Roosevelt has had a larger personal following in his own country and has aroused more interest in the world at large than did any other president while in office, with the possible exceptions of Washington and Lincoln.

Mr. Roosevelt's policies and activities naturally fall into two general divisions—those that are political and official and those that are not political or that fall outside of the ordinary sphere of presidential duties. It goes without saying that the first class by far exceeds the other in bulk and number of items. It is questionable, however, whether it has had a greater influence on the world at large. Governmental questions come and go, but the fundamental issues of life remain forever. Administrative policies affect one land, but nature, whether human or otherwise, affects all lands.

Advocate of Many Policies.

Among the nonpolitical questions with which President Roosevelt has been most prominently identified, some of them to the extent of making them almost synonymous with his name, are the square deal, the simple life, the strenuous life, clean sport, anti-nature faking, anti-race suicide, peace, strike arbitration, reformed spelling, conservation of natural resources, irrigation and improvement of farm life. It is with this side of his administration that I propose to deal, reserving his political policies possibly for a later article. It may be said that the Panama canal and child labor belong also in the nonpolitical division, but as these have been drawn more or less into partisan controversy I prefer to treat them under the other head. The isthmian canal was discussed long before Roosevelt, and child labor legislation was also advocated before he took it up, nor has he made it especially one of his policies.

In order to be perfectly frank, it may be well to say here that with some of Mr. Roosevelt's governmental policies, or, rather, with some of his methods and tendencies, the writer has not been in thorough accord, while with his nonpolitical and humanitarian projects I am in hearty agreement. I mention this for the purpose of making it clear that in this review any bias I may have in one direction is probably counterbalanced by that in the other and to state further that I desire to be as just, as fair and as candid as it is possible for one man to be in dealing with another. In the case of the president this is not exactly easy, as he is such a positive and combative character that he drives men into being partisans concerning him, one side swearing that he is an angel of light with a few human splotches to dim his glory, the other faction declaring that he is an imp from the pit who only poses as a reformer the better to work his diabolical ends. From either the angel or devil theory it is well to steer clear. Whatever else Theodore Roosevelt is, he is a man—"an average man raised to the nth power," some one has called him, but at any rate a man.

It is but natural that one with so many contradictions in his character should show some anomalies in his results. Here is one, and, while I have not seen it before stated, it seems to me the most striking of his career: That while he belongs, par excellence, to the type of man who does things, his own chief contribution to the world is not in what he has actually accomplished, but in his influence; not in the things done, but in the things advocated; not in what he has finished, but in what he has begun and left for somebody else to finish. With a man who has entered so many fields this is necessarily the case. What he has lived to see fully carried out during his own administration has been infinitesimal compared to what he has stood for. His enemies charge that his forte is one of promise rather than performance. This is scarcely just. He has performed many things and put other things in the way of being performed in the future. Yet it is true—and here is the anomaly—that, while he is a man of deeds, his chief influence on the world will come from his ideals and attitudes rather than from work actually done.

Lives the Simple Life.

Perhaps the one thing that will be most prominently associated with the name of Theodore Roosevelt in future is the square deal. This he has reiterated so often in word, in act and in his attitude toward every question that the phrase, though in use centuries before he was born, cannot now be mentioned without bringing up a thought of him. He is as much identified with it as is the name of Lincoln with "government of the people, for the people and by the people."

The president's advocacy of the simple life has faded somewhat from the public mind amid the other multifarious issues he has brought to the front, and yet it was due to him and to the encouragement he gave Pastor Charles Wagner, author of a book on the subject, that the movement was given such a powerful impetus in the United States. Mr. Roosevelt not only preaches the simple life, but lives it. He spends all the time possible with nature and exercises regularly. Contrary to the popular conception, he is most methodical in his habits and husbands every moment of his time.

The strenuous life is, of course, only another name for Roosevelt, as much a part of his identity as the "big stick," the rough riders and the Ananias club. It is a portion of his gospel of doing things which he preaches not only for the individual, but for the nation. Striving, energy, manhood, ambition, accomplishment—these spell his creed. Roosevelt chases our old friend, Inglorious Ease, and his son, the Mollycoddle, out of the back door and gives them a taste of the joy of action. One of his pet aversions is the chap who is "not worth his salt." Roosevelt is the apotheosis of the type of man who works, hustles, "gits thar." He has nothing of the philosophical and poetical in his makeup. If his idea of things could be summed up in a sentence it would be, Hit the trail of progress and keep going.

Has "Bully" Time at Work or Play.

Another thing he stands for is clean sport. This was shown conspicuously in his efforts to reform football. He believes in sport, does Roosevelt, not only in theory, but in practice. He spends his leisure in hunting big game and in life in the open, and his daily life is seasoned by tennis, bouts with the gloves, cross country rides, woodchopping and swinging, brisk walks. He has a peculiar faculty of giving his whole attention and force to whatever he has in hand, then of transferring both instantly to the next thing. He plays as he works, or, rather, he makes play of his work and work of his play, having a "bully" time in each. They are all a part of the game to be enjoyed to the full. It is probable that Roosevelt sometimes gets tired, but, if so, he never shows it. He is as fresh at the end of the day as at the beginning. This is true whether he works or walks, rides or romps, makes speeches or shoots bears and mountain lions.

The president's famous rebuke of nature faking came from the same corner of his brain—or was it his heart?—as the demand for clean sport. It raised about his ears a hornets' nest, but if ever a man could have a perfectly corking time with hornets he is the man. Writers of animal stories and some naturalists as well fell on him hip and thigh, criticising him for killing game merely for the sake of killing and saying other things about him that everybody has forgotten. That is one thing about Roosevelt. His phrases stick, while those of his enemies pass like words written in water. Whether his strictures of the animal writers were all deserved or not, the term "nature faker" is so pat that it will stay and will have a wholesome effect.

Move of Great Import.

The president's repeated pleas against the destruction of forests, his encouragement of the forestry bureau, his calling of two conventions of governors for the conservation of natural resources and his plan of interesting Canada and Mexico in the same cause all constitute a work the importance of which we cannot yet measure. Anything of this nature makes such a peculiar appeal to my own heart that I would not trust myself to make an unbiased judgment of its importance, for to me it seems, in connection with certain kindred movements, altogether the greatest cause set in motion by this administration and one that will redound more to its future credit than any other.

One of these kindred movements is irrigation in the west. The plan of giving government aid to these irrigation projects is distinctively a Roosevelt policy and has given him much of his popularity west of the Missouri river. Already vast arid wastes have been transformed into productive farms, orchards and gardens, and the effort is yet in its infancy. It is the kind of work that will bless mankind through the centuries. If he who makes two blades of grass grow where one grew before is a benefactor, then what shall be said of him who makes 2,000,000 blades grow where none grew before? He is probably a benefactor "raised to the nth power."

Still another of these kindred movements was inaugurated by Mr. Roosevelt when he appointed his farm commission, but which came so near the end of his term that it is impossible to measure its effects. If it covers the ground, however, if it does even a small part of what there is such crying need should be done, it alone will become an immeasurable blessing to the country.

It is one of the faculties of Roosevelt to bring almost every subject he goes after into universal discussion. It was so with his crusade against race suicide. He has been subjected to columns of ridicule for attempting to regulate not only governmental policies, but the size of our families, yet few have questioned either the righteousness or timeliness of his remark that "if a race does not have plenty of children then that race is decadent." It took courage to say that, but there was supreme need that it should be said.

Ahead of His Age.

Even greater ridicule greeted the president's espousal of reformed spelling. This was hitting the trail of progress a little too hard for the average American. He preferred to spell as his fathers had spelled, even though it were the most abominable way ever known to any language on earth. In this matter Roosevelt was simply ahead of his age. We shall come to it. Give us time.

One of the most noteworthy acts of the present administration was the president's successful effort to bring about peace in the anthracite coal strike. This not only ended a troublesome labor controversy that was bringing distress to thousands, but established a precedent for arbitration of industrial disputes.

It is one of the anomalies of the contradictory character of this man that, while he has stood for the militant attitude and has so insisted that boys learn how to shoot and that the nation should ever be prepared for war, his most conspicuous deed as president, at least in the eyes of other nations, has been in the interests of peace. To the world at large Theodore Roosevelt is chiefly known as the man who ended the war between Russia and Japan. For nineteen hundred years there has been no more honorable title than that of peacemaker.

RESOURCES OF WHOLE WORLD

Great Problem Coming Before International Conference

FOREIGN POWERS "SOUNDED"

They Look With Favor Upon President's Invitation to Name Delegates to Consider General Plan For Inventory, Conservation and Wise Utilization of Material Elements Underlying Development of Civilization

Washington, Feb. 20.—So thoroughly impressed is President Roosevelt with the necessity of conservation of the natural resources of the world that he has directed Secretary of State Bacon, at the suggestion of the North American conservation conference in session here, to extend a formal invitation to foreign powers to participate in an international conference to deal with this important problem to be held at The Hague next September. All of the forty-five nations represented at The Hague peace conference will be invited to participate.

The announcement of the proposed International gathering was made public by President Roosevelt following a luncheon which he gave in honor of the commissioners from this country, Canada and Mexico, who are in attendance upon the North American conservation conference. In addition Ambassador Bryce of Great Britain, Senator Knox and others were present.

In an official statement given out at the White House it was announced that the conference of delegates is convinced of the importance of the movement for the conservation of natural resources on the continent of North America, and believes that it is of such a nature and of such general importance that it should become world-wide in its scope, and therefore suggested to the president that all nations should be invited to join together in conference on the subject of world resources and their inventory, conservation and wise utilization.

Anticipating the wide interest that naturally would be aroused in other countries by the present conference, the president himself foresaw the probability that it would be the procursor of a world conference. In January last the principal governments were informally sounded to ascertain whether they would look with favor upon an invitation to send delegates to such a conference. The responses have so far been uniformly favorable.

It is believed that all nations invited will accept the invitation with the same degree of cordiality with which Canada and Mexico accepted the invitation to participate in the North America conference. Inasmuch as the move has been taken by President Roosevelt, the engineering of the matter wil be left to this government. It is probable that the various governments will send from three to five representatives each, but that will be left entirely with them.

In an official statement by Secretary Bacon it was stated that "such a conference might well consider a general plan for an inventory of the natural resources of the world and of devising a uniform scheme for the expression of the world results of such inventory to the end that there may be a general understanding and appreciation of the world's supply of the material elements which underlie the development of civilization and the welfare of the people of the earth."

FRUGAL TO THE END

Clergyman's Will Says Coffin Must Not Cost More Than $20

Worcester, Mass., Feb. 20.—"Not less than $15 nor more than $20 for coffin. Not more than $30 for monument. Body to be buried at foot of Cross Canadian cemetery, Webster. No flowers."

The above were some of the interesting injunctions in the will of the late Rev. A. T. Legris of Webster. Dr. Legris was wealthy.

The will was written by the deceased entirely in French and covers four pages. He was a frugal living man and wanted everything about his funeral to be as simple and as unceremonial as had been his life.

Trade Revival Is Slow

New York, Feb. 20.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly Review of Trade says that while financial and political developments, both in Europe and the United States, are distinctly better, the progress toward the eagerly expected revival of trade is slow, and, especially in the iron, copper and coal trades, is disappointing.

BIG AUTO MEET BEGINS TODAY

Famous Drivers In Mardi Gras Carnival In New Orleans

THREE DAYS OF TRACK RACING

Speed and Endurance Events on Crescent City Program—Strang, Robertson, De Palma, Schoeneck and Others Among Men Who Will Hold Wheels—Race For Women Enthusiasts One of the Popular Features

New Orleans, Feb. 20.—For three days, beginning today, the New Orleans man, his "sisters and his cousins and his aunts" and the numerous strangers assembled within his gates to witness the Mardi Gras will be "speed mad." The automobile races, intended at first to be merely an incident of the Mardi Gras season, are now the first topic in public interest, even among the least sportily inclined of the city's people.

The promoters of the motor races declare that the speed carnival is the greatest in the history of the United States. It certainly deserves the palm in one respect, if in no other—that is, in the number of famous automobile racers gathered here to compete in the speed and endurance events. The roll call sounds like a list of the entrants in the famous automobile races of the past. Among the men who will hold the wheels in the flights over the splendid new track at the fair grounds are Strang, Robertson, De Palma, Mongini, Burman, Schoeneck and others who have won fame for daredevil work on the courses of Europe and America.

One of the most interesting features of the races will be the speed contest for women, in which Mrs. Joan Newton Cuneo and Miss Alice Porter, two of the best known of America's women autoists, are entered. It is the first time that women have entered in a speed contest on a circular track, and the race will probably be one of the most popular events on the program.

Fred J. Wagner will start the races and will act as referee. He acted as starter for the Vanderbilt cup race and the Grand Prize race at Savannah and is well known among racing enthusiasts.

Speaking of the races, Homer George, secretary of the New Orleans Automobile club, the organization in charge of the contest, said:

"We have got together absolutely the greatest field of drivers ever corralled for a track meet. Besides, we are bringing the two wonderful women drivers of the world together, something that has never before been done on a circular track. The trade journals have run editorials protesting against allowing women to take such chances on a track with the high speed cars they are to use.

"The officers of the New Orleans Automobile club do not wish to appear boastful, but President Campbell has made it possible to present the positively greatest automobile carnival ever pulled off. Our meet will awaken the whole automobile sport and trade."

DELAY IS DANGEROUS

Bulgaria Asks For Speedy Recognition of Her Independence

Paris, Feb. 20.—Bulgaria has notified France and the other powers of Europe that she is now convinced that the moment has arrived for a formal recognition of her independence.

She calls attention to the fact that she has patiently followed the advice of the powers and maintained an attitude of dignity, and she expresses the fear that the internal troubles in Turkey will retard greatly the settlement of her pending questions with that country.

Further delay would be dangerous to all interests, it is pointed out, and likely to bring about a breach of the peace in the Balkans.

THE HATMAKERS' STRIKE

But Little Change Shown at Beginning of Sixth Week of Tieup

Danbury, Conn., Feb. 20.—The tie-up in the hat trade in this and other hatting districts of the country entered upon its sixth week with comparatively little change so far as the general conditions existing in this city are concerned.

Today the 2500 men who are on strike here received the third of the weekly benefits from the funds of the United Hatters of North America, the married men getting $7 and the unmarried men $5.

Used Worthless Checks

Boston, Feb. 20.—Frank J. Kenney, after being convicted of the larceny of $1225 from Thomas K. Ruth, was sentenced to three years in the house of correction. It was charged that he obtained this amount by means of worthless checks in connection with real estate deals.

TO EVANGELIZE WORLD

Pleas For Former "Dark Continent" In Methodist Churches of Chicago

Chicago, Feb. 20.—The Africa diamond jubilee of the Methodist Episcopal church, the great movement for foreign missions started in Washington last month, will hold the attention of the congregations in the Methodist churches of this city tomorrow. Pleas for support of the movement to evangelize the world, and especially the formerly "dark continent," will be made by the local pastors and by the visiting divines.

Most prominent among the city's Methodist visitors is Joseph C. Hartzell, missionary bishop, who will speak in the First Methodist Episcopal church of Evanston. Others who will present the cause of Africa are Rev. Bishop William F. McDowell, Rev. J. G. Vaughan, field secretary of the African diamond jubilee, and Rev. J. E. Crowther.

FALL FROM CHURCH ROOF

Experience Which Few People Could Have and Live to Tell of It

Chelsea, Mass., Feb. 20.—Manuel Center, a Pole, with five fellow-countrymen, was at work on a staging on the high roof of the St. Stanislaus Polish Catholic church in the center of the burned district of Chelsea, which building replaces one burned during the April 12 fire. The staging slipped and Center was precipitated to the ground sixty feet below. The other men clung to the narrow platform until they were able to gain secure footing, but they were given a terrible fright.

Center was hurried to a hospital where an examination showed that he had sustained nothing more serious than a few severe cuts about the head. He was not even placed on the dangerous list. The man is 34 years old and married.

NEGRO FREELY USES HIS REVOLVER

Kills One Woman and Shoots Another and Self

Newton, Mass., Feb. 20.—John Brown, aged 19, according to the police, shot and killed Miss Laura Bland, aged 16, seriously wounded her sister, Emma, aged 28, and then shot himself, inflicting wounds which will probably prove fatal. All the persons concerned are negroes.

It is said that Brown was engaged to be married to Josephine Bland. He went to the Bland house last night, but he was refused admittance. The police say he threatened to shoot everyone in the house, and, breaking in the door, began firing his revolver.

The first shot struck Laura Bland in the heart, killing her instantly. Brown next chased Emma Bland through the house and shot her as she fled by the back door. Then he fired a bullet into his own head. The rest of the family, including Josephine, had hidden in closets in the house and escaped injury.

Brown and Emma Bland are dying. Brown denied the shooting and refused to make any statement about the affair.

EXTORTION CHARGED

Two Chicago Labor Leaders Are Indicted by Grand Jury

Chicago, Feb. 20.—Martin B. Madden, president of the Associated Building Trades of Chicago, and M. J. Boyle, business agent of the Electrical Workers' union, were indicted by a Cook county grand jury.

Two separate indictments were found against each of the men. One charges extortion of $1000 from H. P. Nelson of the Nelson Piano company, for the alleged calling off of a strike against the company, and the other charges the extortion from Joseph Klicka of $700 under similar circumstances.

Many contractors, architects, owners of buildings and labor officers were called before the grand jury.

What DO YOU DO for Quincy?

A Little Wad of Common Sense.

A New Aid Fable.

This is not a George Ade fable, though it may sling some slang. It is a Home Aid fable.

Once there was a Geezer, who sat around and cut Kindling too small for Cook Stove purposes. He Whittled against Time and Flabbergasted against his Town. The town was No Good, he said—strictly on the Blink. Yes, it was N. G. Why, hadn't he lived Here since '84 and found that the Place was Punky? Sure, Mike!

Look at that town over in the next County. Grown like Jonah's Gourd. Must be a Jonah here. We've grown some, but I don't see that we're knocking any particularly Big Persimmons. That's the way this Gazaboo knocked his town.

One day a Sarcastic Stranger floated into the Town that was Knocked from the burg that had Blossomed like Jonah's Gourd. He Heard some of the Flabbergasting and Dropped to the situation.

"Look here, you," he remarked to the citizen who was Handing Out the Knocks. "What do you do for this town? Are you doing your part to put this Burg on the Upgrade? What's that hefty Bunch of literature sticking out of your Clothes?"

"That's a Mail Order Catalogue from Chicago—a town that is a town," replied the Geezer.

"So I thought," said the Impertinent Arrival. "Now let me hand you out a nice little Wad of common sense. For the past ten years you have been sending your money to the Chicago Mail Order houses instead of spending it among your home merchants. What would have happened to Chicago fifty years ago if all the First Settlers had shipped their Loose Coin to New York on catalogue inducements? Why, you'd have to use a sand dredger now to find the Original Site of Chicago. Now, in the Burg from which I have just Blown in we got over all this Bum Business years ago. We passed Resolutions that we would trade at home and help our own town to Spread out so that you could Sight it on the map without using Opera Glasses. But you and a Bunch of other folks in this town have wasted your Substance in Riotous Expenditures in Chicago by mail and let the sheriff hang out the 'Nothing Doing' sign in front of some of your own town's mercantile Emporiums. Look at our Town and then look at yours. What makes the Difference?"

Whereupon the Whittling Gazaboo threw a few well chosen Thoughts into his mental makeup and went down to the village store to Annex a linen collar in place of the Paper Circles which he had bought from Chicago at Two Bits a Box.

MORAL: If you want your town to grow, patronize home enterprises.

STATE HOUSE LETTER.

Boston, Feb. 17, 1909.

Savings Bank Commissioner Pierre Jay has sent to the House his annual report, showing that at the end of the official year, October 31, 1908, the number of savings banks in the state remained the same as it was for the year before, 189. Taking all the banks together, they make a surprising showing of the immense strength these institutions are to the business of the state, as well as a solid foundation for their depositors as a reliance for a dark day. During the official year the assets rose from a total of $756,987,959 to $761,790,744. Here are some of the principal items of the total at the last date ;public funds $77,941,775; railroad bonds, $140,148,263; street railway bonds, $15,633,616; bank stocks, $11,416,195; loans to counties, cities or towns, $10,906,223; to railroads. $7,191,359; loans railroad bonds, $1,501,674; loans an real estate, $322,710,828 ;loans on personal security, $128,965,546; real estate held for banking purposes, $7,540,852; real estate held by foreclosure, $3,623,749; cash in banks on interest, $16,899,868.

The most striking change in the situation is the increase of $12,714,000 in real estate loans and the decrease of $15,651,000 in loans on personal security. This change occurred right in the face of assertions before legislative committees that savings banks were refusing loans on real estate and were loaning their available funds only on personal security. The number of accounts opened during the year was 233,484, and the accounts closed numbered 231,150. The number open at the close of the financial year was 1,973,926 and the average in each account was $359.45. The amount deposited during the year was $118,007,503, and the amount withdrawn was $142,191,093. The dividends declared during the year amounted to $26,684,040, or 76.99 per cent. of the income of the banks, and 3.5 per cent. of the total assets. The expenses of management were .25 of 1 per cent., and that was also the proportion of the state tax to the assets.

The report makes special mention of savings bank life insurance, describes the different kinds of policy which are issued, and notes that only two savings banks, the Whitman and the People's of Brockton have gone into the new form of business. Regarding all the savings banks in the state, the average interest they received on their loans was 4.87 per cent. The average rate on real estate was 4.78 per cent, and on personal security, 5.1 per cent.

Something vigorous is doing in the department of the commissioner of weights and measures, Daniel C. Palmer, and any one who saw the immense stack of old cans, measures, scales and other stuff at the exhibition in Mechanics hall, which he had gathered within one year of service in Massachusetts would doubt that the trade people of the state were cheating their customers on an incalculably enormous sale, nor that the people's defender in the person of the commissioner, was hustling after the criminals. His annual report, sent to the legislature today, shows that during the year 2,404,310 scales, weights and measures were tested, and that 42,740 of them were condemned. He has prosecuted 110 cases for violation of law and secured 108 convictions. The fines amounted to $916. He recommends legislation to cover the scale of short weight packages, extension of the sealers' work; that fruits, vegetables and nuts shall be sold by weight, dry measure or count; that the sale of kindling wood be regulated ;and that the law be extended to include the inspection of all forms of weighing and measuring apparatus by which the cost of transportation or labor is determined.

No exceptional significance attaches to the half-masting of the state house flags on Monday, the 11th anniversary of the blowing up of the Maine in Havana harbor. The entire proposition came from a fond Boston mother whose son, named for Sigsbee, was born on that day. It was a memorial of the men who lost their lives with the Maine, and not a token of public regret, as some might reasonably suppose, at being draw into a war which the official records have since proved to have been entirely needless to secure all that was demanded by the United States.

The committee on the state house is pressed with requests for more room by departments which are being crowded, even though the gas and electric light commissioners have been forced to vacate their quarters, and though half a dozen commissions are already outside of the state house. Already there is anxious waiting for the accommodations which can come only with the construction of the projected new wing to be extended eastward, parallel with Beacon street.

Reference to the next legislature has been reported by the state house committee on the proposed improvements of the grounds, and the proposed memorial for John Adams, John Quincy Adams and John Hancock will also go over to next year,—and it has been going over so many years in succession that it can almost go alone,—for lack of funds, while Hooker and Banks get their statues. Thus do our legislators make freak distinctions sometimes.

Rural towns may have something coming to them ,if the bill goes through for $1,000 to gather and disseminate information regarding idle or partly improved (they do not say "abandoned" any more) farms. The first proposition was for $2,000 but the committee on agriculture cut it in two.

Manufacturing companies from all over the state were represented at the hearing for reduction of the basis of the corporate franchise tax from 120 per cent. of the value of the physical plant of the corporation to 100 per cent. Former President Jones of the state Senate is counsel for the petitioners. Robert Luce is associated with him. Tax Commissioner Trefry is against them, and Deputy Commissioner Andrews told the committee that it would take $36,000,000 from the tax lists.

Gov. Draper plans to make Washington's birthday the most brilliant function ever yet observed in the state house, with attendance by military bodies in uniform, patriotic and historical societies and what not. What a plain, democratic people we are?

A new illustration has been found of the misgovernment of Massachusetts and the mismanagement of the state house by Sergeant-at-Arms Remington. The state house elevators will not go both ways at the same time, and there is considerable profanity about it. It is suggested that the independence league make this one of the planks in its platform for reforms in the coming campaign.

A GREAT RECORD

DR. LEONHARDT'S INTERNAL PILE REMEDY MAKES 98 PER CENT. OF CURES.

Dr. Leonhardt's Hem-Roid has been tested in several thousand cases, and was successful in all but two per cent.

Hem-Roid's wonderful record is due to the fact that it is an internal remedy. The cause of piles is internal, and it is too much to expect to cure piles with ointments, suppositories or operations. Hem-Roid cures the internal cause.

William A. Carey of South street leaves this afternoon for New York City, where he will spend a few days with friends.

Hamilton F. Conant of Boston and Dr. E. N. Hardy of Quincy will speak to the men at the town hall, Thursday evening.

The Charitable society connected with St. Mary's church will hold a whist party at St. Mary's hall next Tuesday evening.

The Bonita club, which is composed of girls who summered at Town River the past season, hold a subseription party tonight in Electa hall.

The storm of Friday night carried away what ice there was in the streets. Quite a few people found water in their cellars this morning however.

The regular meeting of the Junior Alliance club which was scheduled for Monday, Feb. 22, has been postponed until Monday, March 1. The meetings to follow will be held as usual on the second and fourth Mondays of each month.

At a meeting of the Central Labor Union Thursday evening, James Watson, who has been secretary of the union for two years, handed in his resignation. It was accepted and Charles W. Hanscomb was elected in his place.

The Ladies' Benevolent society of Memorial Congregational church gave a supper and entertainment in the church on Wednesday evening. An old New England supper was served followed by recitations by Mrs. Frank Butler and vocal solos by Miss Annie Harding. Both responded to encores. Miss Margaret Read rendered a pleasing selection on the piano and Miss Jordine Davison sang two pretty songs. Eight of Mrs. Frank Butler's pupils contributed to the enjoyment of the entertainment. The supper was under the direction of Mrs. William Cummings of Clive street.

Makaria Fraternity
SUNDAY: 12 TO 1—SHARP
Bethany Church, City Square
If YOU are a young man, and not associated with any other Quincy church, YOU are most cordially invited to come to our meeting.
A warm welcome—Hearty singing—A helpful hour together.

—If you know a good thing, tell your neighbor about it. It will help him about his work, and it surely can not do you any harm. Bottled-up goodness soon turns sour and spoils.

—We can all scare up money enough for the car fares to Washington to attend the inauguration now that we know that the hotels there are not to be allowed to charge over ten dollars per day.

WEYMOUTH

Miss Dora Cata is entertaining Misses Helen and Beatrice Attwood of Wanregan, Conn.

William R. Geidart a noted temperance lecturer and organizor of the Sons of Temperance of Nova Scotia, will give an address at Temperance hall Sunday afternoon at five o'clock.

There are a score or more article calling for electric street lights.

The second annual cosmopolitan costume party of the Immaculate Conception associates was held at town hall Friday evening and was attended by many from the neighboring towns.

David Heffernan was taken to the Carney hospital Boston on Sunday. He is ill with an attack of typhoid fever.

The socialist party is to place a full ticket in the field for town officers and are to hold a number of rallies, the first will be held on the evening of Washington's birthday at engine hall Ward three. John Doran, Esq., will preside. The principal speaker will be Daniel White of Brockton.

The warrant for the annual town meeting which takes place Monday, March 8 at Town hall beginning at nine o'clock in the morning was posted Friday and is a record breaker, containing 85 articles many of which are very important. The more important ones are those to see if the town will accept the provisions of section 22 chapter 25 revised laws of Massachusetts in relation to watering streets and to appropriate $1000 for street watering. To see if the town will lease the Franklin school property to Reynolds Post 58 G. A. R., for a term of five years and also see if the town will assume custody of the books of record documents and papers of said Post.

To see if the town will elect a board of health on the official ballot of 1910.

To see if the town will appropriate $1200 for a lockup in Ward one.

To see if the town will vote to name the school house on Lake street the Garfield school.

To see if the town will vote $5000 for the purpose of installing water meters and to see if the town will accept the provisions of Section 37 of chapter 19 in its application to the police force thereby placing said force under the rules of the civil service.

CROP ONLY HALF HARVESTED.

Warm Weather Interferes with Cutting Ice.

The mild weather for the past week has caused the local ice situation to assume quite serious proportions. Although there has been some cold weather the winter on the whole has been an open one and none of the local ice men have been able to house their usual amount of ice.

The result is that only about one half the usual amount of ice has been housed. The season is so far advanced that there is not much hopes of the local firms getting any more this year.

This means that before the summer season is over, they will be obliged to buy ice from other places.

There is plenty of ice in Maine and New Hampshire, but the trouble there, is that the firms have no place to store the ice after it is cut.

The number of ice houses are limited and unable to learn beforehand what the demand is likely to be, they have housed only about their usual amount.

In view of these facts it would seem that not only would there be a scarcity of ice this coming summer, but that the price will be high as well.

The Health of Your Horse

will be best promoted—best preserved—if you are ready to give the proper remedy at the proper time. The proper remedy for all strains, sprains, or colic is Perry Davis' Painkiller. The proper time to use it is when trouble first shows itself. Be prompt and you'll not only save the horse suffering, but you'll spare yourself trouble and expense—maybe save a long time waiting. You ought to have a botle ready. The new size bottle costs 35 cents; one larger, 50 cents. Be sure your druggist gives you Perry Davis'.

AMUSEMENTS.

Keith's Theatre.

Another rather luminous star comes to Keith's theatre next week in Blanche Ring, a Boston girl, who has attained the highest possible point in musical comedy, and is now proving an even greater success in vaudeville. Miss Ring made her first start in Boston when she appeared with "The Defender," and gave "The Good Old Summer Time" a popularity that has not been attained by any song since, although she herself, has started the public whistling a great many songs. Another feature that is sure to make a lasting impression in Boston is a sketch called "Circumstantial Evidence." Critics say nothing just like this has ever been given to the stage. There are fourteen men and no women in the cast. Another sketch with more comedy in it, that will demand attention, is called "Freckles," played by Anna Blancke & Co. It was written by J. Frank Davis, and Robert Hilliard, the actor, the action taking place in Madison Square Park, New York, and the principal characters being a waif of the streets and a grand army man. Others are Kenney, McGahan and Platt in a novelty, Hal Merritt, the talking cartoonist; LeRoy and LaVanion; San Stern in a monologue and the Keith special show.

Boston Theatre.

The big Boston theatre under its new management of Charles Frohman and William Harris, started upon a new era of undoubted artistic and financial prosperity last Monday night with the George M. Cohan and Sam Harris idealized minstrels. There has never been a minstrel show to equal this one and it would seem that the limit had been reached in cost and merit of talent and scenic and costume oppulence. Large as is the Boston theatre it has been filled to about its capacity at every performance. The old policy of Wednesday and Saturday matinees will be the rule of the new management that intends to place this magnificent playhouse where it has always belonged among the best in the world. Beginning March 1, "Way Down East" will be the attraction for two weeks. Matinees will be given on Wednesdays and Saturdays, and the prices will be for all performances from 25 cents to $1.50, with 800 good seats on the lower floor at $1.00. The sale opens Tuesday morning, Feb. 23, and mail orders will receive prompt attention.

Castle Square Theatre.

At the Castle Square, on Monday, Wednesday and Saturday afternoon and evening, John Craig and his stock company will produce for the first time in Boston one of the latest of Henry Arthur Jones's many famous dramas, "The Evangelist." It is a strong play of modern life upon a timely subject, and it has been warmly approved both in London and New York, the only two cities of any considerable size in which it has hitherto been acted. Mr. Jones's reputation is a dramatist, as the author of "The Middleman," "The Liars," "Mrs. Danes's Defence," and "The Hypocrites," is well known, and Mr. Craig has done not a little to command the support of Boston theatre-goers by securing "The Evangelist" ahead of all other managers. On account of the tremendous demand ofr seats "The Circus Girl" will be played next week, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday matinees and evenings.

Gaiety Theatre.

Reared upon the solid foundation of plot and point the half hundred talented entertainers who participate in the fun and melody festivities guaranteed in The Cracker Jacks, the big burlesque company that will invite favors at the Gaiety theatre in Boston for the holiday week, something of a more substantial character than is ordinarily assured in this class of stage amusement can be anticipated with delight. Because of its captivating beauty and brilliancy this great show is popularly known as "The Soul Kiss of Burlesque." The chief number in this part of the bill will be the novelty juggling act by the five Piroscoffis, declared to be the best and most artistic of its kind in the whole amusement world. There are matinees every day at the Gaiety.

Orpheum Theatre.

It is enough to severely tax the energy and resources of any vaudeville manager to maintain the high standard that has been established at the Orpheum theatre since the inauguration of the London Music Hall policy, but there is absolutely no indication of any dropping away from that standard in the wonderful bill which is announced for next week. The greatest Hebrew comedian on the stage, Joe Welch, will top the bill with a bunch of nonsensical chatter that is sure to dispell any idea of looking on the serious side of life. Mr. Welch is famous as the creator of Hebrew characterizations and he will be soon for the first time in two years in monologue. In cognito, the mysterious society woman will remain over for another week and several other star acts will complete the really remarkable bill.

Burton Holmes' New Japan.

Burton Holmes promises an absolutely new glimpse at an absolutely new Japan at his travelogue entitled "The New Japan, Today" as the second of his "Beautiful Way Around the World" series. Mr. Holmes spent four months in Japan this last summer, taking motion pictures of everything that was in motion, and snap-shooting everything that was quaint, beautiful and interesting in still life. Not a picture will be reminiscent of anything heretofore given by him. His travelogue will be just as different from any former ones on this same subject as the up-to-date, rapid-fire gun, world-power Japan is from the quiet Japan of the Samurai, the Geisha, and the two-handed sword. Of course, Japan is still a land of wondrous beauty and Mr. Holmes will show this wide-awake, progressive, up-to-dateness in nature's wondrous settling of cherry blossoms and dainty gardens, of the lotus and the ever present back-ground of the impressive Fujiyama. "The New Japan, Today" will be given at Tremont Temple, Boston, on Friday evening, February 19th, at 8.15; and repeated on Saturday afternoon, February 20th, at 2.30.

Chief Burrell did not care to state.

Nothing suspicious was discovered in the house with the exception of the connection of the alarm on one of the kitchen windows which had been worked loose possibly by the wind.

This the chief said might have made a short circuit and caused the alarm.

Mr. Waterhouse and his wife are spending the winter in Florida. His son, who lives opposite was early on the scene.

A few days before he left Mr. Waterhouse had the burglar alarm installed.

ANNUAL LADIES' NIGHT.

Wollaston Congregational Club Will Entertain Fair Sex.

The annual Ladies' Night of the Wollaston Congregational club will be held on Tuesday evening, February 23. Edwin D. Sibley, author of "Stillman Gott" and numerous stories of New England life will be present.

He will read some original short stories. A short musical program will also be enjoyed.

The usual dinner will be omitted and refreshments will be served after the entertainment instead. The evening's program will begin at eight o'clock.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Does Your Hot Water Bottle Leak?

You never can tell when a Hot Water Bottle is going to make trouble by springing a leak.

Hot Water Bottles are apt to give all sorts of trouble unless they are good, and it's hard to tell the difference between pure rubber and poor rubber in a Hot Water Bottle when its new.

The THERAPEUTIC VALUE of a Hot Water Bottle is well known. The application of heat by this means quickly allays pain, reduces inflammation and combats disease in many ways. A Hot Water Bottle is needed by every family—that is a good one—we sell good ones.

BOYS' CONFERENCE.

Local Delegates Report Great Time on Return From Providence.

The delegates have returned from the boys' conference held in Providence for the last four days. It was the greatest conference ever held and every one of the five hundred present enjoyed every minute. Among the speakers were ex-Gov. George H. Utter, Ernest L. Ver Wiebe of Harvard, President Geo. B. Stewart, D. D. Auburn Theogical Seminary, N. Y. Commander Ballington Booth, American Volunteers and David R. Porter, New York city. It was a strong program and meant much to the boys of the two states. The motto for the conference was "Do your Best." The delegates from the Quincy Y. M. C. A. boys' department were Lester H. Clee, boys' work director, Ed. L. Brooks, Corliss Berry, Chester Gurney, David Melville, William Hall, Charles Bishop, Roy Sidelinger, Wendall Clark, Alex. Mundie, George V. Shirley.

PATRIOTIC SERVICES.

On the eve of Washington's birthday a patriotic service was held at the Point church. A letter from George L.Phillips was read ;the G. A. R. and W. R. C. were represented; the pastor, Rev. A. R. Atwood, delivered an address on "Lessons from the Life of Washington," and the following musical selections were rendered:—"Star Spangled Banner," "Mine eyes hath seen the glory," "Sun of my Soul," "Day is dying in the West," "Holy, Holy, Holy," "O Love that wilt not let me go," "How firm a foundation," and "America."

April 7—Rev. T. J. Crosby of St Lukes church, Linden. These clergymen will remain and preach at the 8 P. M. service. On the Fridays of Lent there will also be Litany with address at 4 P. M.

FLAGSHIP COMMONWEALTH.

The new steamer Commonwealth, flagship of the Fall River Line fleet, will be placed in service between New York and Boston on Sunday, February 28. She will leave Fall River, the eastern point of departure, on her first trip. So many New England folks are going to Washington for the inauguration ceremonies that all the staterooms on the steamer now in service were reserved months ago and the Fall River Line management has had to hurry up and get the Commonwealth ready in order to take care of the increased travel. There will be two steamers from Fall River on February 28. The Plymouth will convoy the Commonwealth and will bring over three companies of the Sixth Massachusetts infantry and two troops of cavalry.

PRAISE LIFE AND WORKS OF ERICKSON

ADDRESSES MADE BY MAYOR SHEA AND OTHERS.

Fine Musical Program Rendered by Local Talent.

A large attendance was present in Faxon hall Saturday evening at the unveiling of a portrait of Capt. John Erickson. The exercises were held under the auspices of Court John Erickson, No. 155, Foresters of America.

Besides the unveiling exercises, there was a very pleasing musical concert given by several well known Quincy musicians. The program opened with an overture by Kronstrom's orchestra which furnished music during the evening.

Otto Gelotte, chairman of the committee of arrangments presided and made a few brief remarks in behalf of the committee. He then introduced the first speaker of the evening, Mayor William T. Shea. The mayor spoke of the life of John Erickson and of his connection with the famous Monitor. Erickson was the one who first brought out the Monitor which later defeated the Merrimac. The Mayor said: This victory stayed the success of the Confederates and caused the reconstruction of every navy in the world.

The unveiling address followed the address by the Mayor and was given by Prof. A. Lundquist of Harvard University. Prof. Lundquist gave an interesting address on the life and works of John Erickson.

He told of his wonderful abilities and ambitions as an inventor and of the many wonderful things that he had invented, in Sweden, England and America. He also told of the great things that Erickson had done with compressed air and later with steam.

Two little girls Miss Hilda Cederstrom and Miss Hilda Erickson pulled the strings that caused the veil to drop from the beautiful picture of Erickson. The hall rung with applause as the picture was presented to view.

After a selection by the orchestra there were addresses by Hon. Edward P. Barry of the Governor's Council and by Bert T. Mitchell of Marlboro, Grand Chief Ranger of the Forester's of America. Both spoke of the works of Erickson and praised the good work of the local court.

After Mr. Mitchell's address the remainder of the evening was taken up with a concert. The following program was rendered:

Soprano Solo Who'll buy my lavender
Miss Bertha Carlson
Violin Solo Flow gently sweet anthem
Mr. Wesley Carlander
Duet (selection) Misses Bertha Carlson and Ruth Colin.
Waltzes The Enchantress Orchestra
Soprano Solo Mignon Miss Bertha Carlson
Violin Solo Blue Bells of Scotland.
Mr. Wesley Carlander
March Bjorneborgarnes Orchestra
Piano accompaniment by Miss L. Carlander

The committee of arrangements was as follows.

WRITES OF TRIP AROUND THE WORLD

Wollaston Boy Has Many Interesting Adventures in East

James F. Costello of Wollaston, who is making a trip around the world on government transports, writes very interestingly to one of his classmates in Quincy, under date of Calcutta, Jan. 16, in part as follows:

"Iwill try to give you a few impressions of the places which I have seen on my trip through the far East.

On the way across we stopped at Malta, Port Said, Colombo and Singapore, and stayed at each place long enough to see the points of interest. From Singapore I went to Manila, where I enjoyed myself more than at any other place. I had letters of introduction to a number of people, including Governor General Smith; and I knew Mr. Fred Moir, and Mr. Tribou of Wollaston, who are out there in the government service. I spent some pleasant hours with them, and had the pleasure of reading the Quincy news in the Ledger which is sent to Mr. Tribou regularly.

Manila is a quaint old place, and the old city has a wall around it which the Spanish were forced to build because the Filipinos had an unpleasant habit of making raids at night and killing off a few of the residents. Every evening there is a band concert on the Lunetta, which is a large park. I had the pleasure of hearing the Constabulary band, which won second prize in the contest at the St. Louis exhibition.

From Manila I went to Hongkong across the roughest piece of water in the world when the north east monsoon is on. A fine view of the town and harbor can be seen from the peak.

Next I went to Shanghai, which is considered the finest city in the far east. I had letters of introduction to Judge Wilfly of the United States court and Mr. Bassett, the district attorney. There are many things to see here, among which the Chinese City is perhaps the most interesting. It would be impossible to attempt to see it without a Chinese guide. It is like a huge maze and you couldn't find your way out of it. The Chinamen left a very good impression with me. In their dealings they are honest, and when they say, "can do" or "no can do," they stick to their word, and that is more than can be said of the Japanese. They are too polite and full of excuses. I do not think you will find a few in the whole of Japan. They wouldn't stand a "look in."

I saw all the leading cities of Japan. Nagasaki, Kobe, Kioto, Yokohama, and the pretty towns around it and Tokio. Here I met a Japanese fellow with whom I have corresponded ever since I was in Quincy High school. Each of us wore a white ribbon in our button-holes, so when I stepped off the train we were able to identify each other. He was very nice to me and took me around Tokio. I liked Japan. It is a beautiful country and the women are very fascinating with their curious dress.

From Japan I went to Korea. The Koreans are very peculiar looking people. The men wear white baggy trousers tied at the ankles, white coats and high crowned hats, which rest on the top of their heads and must be tied under the chin to keep them on.

From Korea I went to Dalny, Manchuria, and then to Port Arthur. This perhaps was the most interesting place which I visited. There is a very good museum there containing guns and rifles captured from the Russians, barbed and electric wires which were used for defences and models of the forts made out of earth and pebbles. I visited the demolished forts, and only those who have seen them can get an idea of the enormous work accomplished by the Japanese.

I have just arrived at Calcutta, a place which will have great interest for me.

STRICKEN WITH YELLOW FEVER.

Hutchin Mitchell Unable to Return With Fleet.

Hutchin Mitchell, a well-known Quincy young man who was with the American fleet on trip around the world, did not return with his comrades. He lies sick with yellow fever in Manila, Philippine Islands, and was not able to make the trip home.

Hutchin who was on the battleship Vermont, which was built in Quincy, was extremely popular with everybody on board. His friends will be sorry to learn of his critical condition.

There was a large attendance Monday at the Washington birthday party given by Elmer W. Baker. The affair was held at Music hall and dancing was in order from 3 to 11 o'clock.

SECOND ANNUAL LADIES' NIGHT

Houghs Neck Associates Entertain Fair Sex.

OFFICERS OF LADIES' AUXILIARY OCCUPY SEATS OF HONOR

Speeches and Dancing Form Evening's Entertainment.

The Houghs Neck Associates, held their second annual ladies night Monday evening at Hotel Pandora, Houghs Neck. The affair was easily the best of the many social affairs that have been held at the beach in past years.

About seventy-five members and their ladies were present. The big dinning hall of the hotel was a pretty scene when all the guests had taken their places at the tables. The hall was prettily decorated with Japanese lanterns and red, white and blue bunting while huge flags had been placed on the walls. Directly in back of the table reserved for the officers of the associates and the ladies auxiliary, a large picture of Washington decorated with a huge American flag was hung. The supper tables were very artistically decorated with plants and flowers.

At the officers table were seated President Archie F. Baird, vice president, Daniel J. Maloney, Treasurer, John R. S. Ross, secretary Alfred N. LaBrecque and the nine directors, President Katherine Regan of the Houghs Neck Ladies Associates, vice president Mrs. George McEwan, treasurer Mrs. E. C. Piper and secretary Mrs. Edna Catarius.

At eight the supper was served and it did credit to the cooks. The menu consisted of roast turkey and all the "fixin's" cake, pie, fruit and coffee. During the supper Miss Ella Acorn entertained the guests with piano solos. When the supper was nearly finished president Baird made a few remarks, after which he called upon the following, vice president Daniel J. Maloney, Arthur H. Dunham, Joseph M. Brickley, Captain Ross Y. Woodbury and Captain Oliver G. Fosdick and president Katherine Regan of the Ladies Auxiliary.

When the supper was finished the guests adjourned to the clubhouse and enjoyed dancing.

The committee in charge of the affair was, E. C. Piper, chairman, Joseph M. Brickley, Neil J. Regan, Daniel J. Regan, Dr. Ernest Mains and a committee from the ladies auxiliary consisting of Mrs. Neil J. Regan, Mrs. Edna Catarius, Mrs. Ernest Mains, Mrs. Alice Stewart, Mrs. George McEwan, Mrs. Waldo L. Hutchins and Mrs. Jason L. Harvey.

TACTFUL.

"Talking about tact," said a woman who is just verging on middle age, "I never saw any one get out of a difficult situation more deftly than did a man I met at a blacksmith shop in a New England village I was driving through last summer. I was alone in the lanes with my friend, the horse, when I noticed that he limped a bit, so when we reached the next village I stopped at the door of the blacksmith's shop. A man was holding up the door-post and to him I said:—

"Will you please tell the blacksmith to come out? I want to see him."

After the manner of the village loafer, he did not stir, but smiled sweetly at me, and, lifting up his voice cried:—

"Bill, come out! There's a lady wants to see you."

From the depths of the blacksmith shop a voice roared:—

"Is she young, John, or old?"

In the words of an old poem, I looked at John, and John looked at me. Then, still without moving, he called:—

"You'll be satisfied Bill, when you get out."—N. Y. Tribune.

OFFICER BOWTON IS SUSPENDED

Accused of Conduct Unbecoming an Officer

Officer John Bowton, Jr., has been suspended by Chief Burrell for conduct unbecoming an officer. The suspension was made Saturday.

Officer Bowton when he completed his tour of duty Friday night secured a two days' leave of absence from Sergt. Barry, who was in charge of the station.

Shortly after Chief Burrell came to the station intending to suspend the officer but he had gone.

The chief has preferred charges against the officer to Mayor Shea, and has sent a copy of the charges by mail to the last known address of Officer Bowton. The two days' leave of absence expired Sunday night but the officer did not report for duty.

The officer was separated from his wife some months ago and was later brought into court for non support. He was fined $50. Sentence was suspended and he was directed to pay $8 per week for the support of his wife and children.

It is reported that he has told fellow officers that he intended to leave the department the first of March.

Under the civil service rules, Officer Bowton has two weeks in which to ask for a public hearing. If he does not the chances are that he will be dismissed from the force at that time.

N. S. C. HUNTING TRIP.

Four members of the National Sportsman's club of West Quincy, went on a gunning trip to Hanover, Monday.

The day was an ideal one for such an outing and after hunting through the woods all day, the hunters were rewarded by getting four big rabbits. The party arrived home at about eight o'clock in the evening and reported a good time.

The few members of the club, who have been hunting since the shooting season opened, have made quite a record, over seventy rabbits having bitten the dust through the gunners' unerring aim.

HEART PARTY.

A very enjoyable heart party and dance was enjoyed on the evening of Washington's birthday at the home of Mrs. Henry T. Fitton of Newport avenue, Wollaston. There were three tables of progressive whist in play and the games were close and interesting.

Hearts was played from 8 to 10 and at the end of that time prizes were awarded to the lady and gentlemen who had the highest scores. The prizes were awarded to Mrs. Russell T. Anthony and Russell T. Anthony. After the play, dancing was enjoyed until 12 o'clock. Refreshments were served during the evening.

ASH WEDNESDAY.

Lent will be opened tomorrow, Ash Wednesday, with special services in all the Catholic churches of the city. The holy ashes will be distributed after the 7.30 mass tomorrow morning and also after the evening services. The services in the evening will be at 7.45 and will consist of a sermon and benediction.

SLIGHT BLAZE ON WATER STREET

The alarm from Box 136 at 1.45 this noon was for a slight fire in the Bigson house at 274 Water street. The house is at present occupied by two Hebrew families.

—It seems the fashion at Houghs Neck to organize clubs. The young boys have banded together and have called their club the Houghs Neck Young Boys' Christian Association Eugene P. LaBrecque was elected president, Fred Blaird, vice president and Wallace Coughlan, secretary and treasurer. Since the boys organized the girls wanted to too, and will probably, before the week is out.

"Not until some American fleet returns victorious from a great sea battle will there be another such homecoming, another such sight as this. I drink to the American navy—President Roosevelt's toast to the United States navy."

That the humble railroad tie is a most important factor in the material development of the country is a great truth that is little understood by people outside of railroad circles. The puffing engine that speeds at the rate of a mile or more a minute over the country is a slave to the two steel rails that insure a smooth and safe road and these rails in turn depend on the old-fashioned wooden cross-tie which holds them in place.

Yankee invention has not yet found a substitute which has induced the railroads to give up wood, although experts say that the day will surely come when the country's forests will no longer be called upon to supply the demand for ties. Up to the present time it seems that no other material has been found which has the resiliency of wood and which at the same time causes less wear and tear on the rails, fastenings, and roadbed.

The country's railroads during the last two or three years use 110,000,000 to 150,000,000 of sawed and hewn ties a year. The ideal tie timber is white oak, which combines the qualities of durability, hardness, strength, and close grain. It is not only excellent for ties, but is widely used in ship building, for general construction, etc. On account of this wide use, the supply has been greatly reduced and some of the railroads have been forced to pay almost prohibitive prices for ties, or to substitute other and cheaper woods to replace the white oak ties rapidly disappearing from their lines.

Over 40 per cent of the ties recently purchased by the railroads of the country are oak, according to latest statistics of United States Forest Service.

Cedar, which is very durable, has been extensively used to take the place of white oak for ties, but it is so soft that is readily cut by the rails. This necessitates the use of tie plates and other protective devices when cedar ties are used. As the supply of cedar is also running short, it is necessary for the railroads to seek further for new tie timber. One of the woods which has all the requisites of a good tie, with the exception of durability, is the beech.

A beech tie generally consists largely of sapwood, which partly accounts for its lack of durability, but, on the other hand, allows a thorough and easy preservative treatment. In Germany and France, beech ties have been successfully preserved from decay, and are used very extensively. Beech is found widely distributed throughout the eastern part of the United States, and at the present time is comparatively cheap and abundant. If, therefore, the railroads whose lines are located in the regions where beech is abundant can make use of this wood, treated with some suitable preservative, another source of supply of tie timber will be opened up.

Experience proves that wear can be successfully retarded by the use of tie plates and other mechanical devices, and decay can be postponed by the application of proper preservatives. The new conditions have made it necessary for many railroad companies to meet the problem of preservation by establishing treating plants at central points of distribution along their lines.

EDITORIAL COMMENTS.

We had three chief engineers at Panama who resigned in rapid succession. Wallace, Shonts and Stevens left because of the excessive strain the post involved. Lieutenant Colonel Goethals has been chief engineer for three years and he is breaking down. He can't sleep. "Too much nagging," he says. "If they would only quit, those people at home who don't know what they are talking about but go on forever talking just the same."

Whose word are we going to take about this Panama project—that of the French engineer, or that of our own men who are "giving their strength and energy and enterprise to put this great work through?"

The American people are with Mr. Taft. The canal will be completed and the carpers must stop senseless criticism.— Detroit Free Press.

On general principles there is little reason to hope that the ranks of happy wives and mothers will be soon overcrowded or that there will be too much domestic happiness in the world. Between the glamour of a stage career and the unrivalled glory of a real home, the disparity is so patent that there can hardly be any special credit attaching to the choice of the latter. At the best a stage career is not conductive to domestic joys, even though there are numerous instances of happily wedded members of the dramatic profession. There will always be plenty of substitutes for even the most gifted of actresses, but there is no substitute can take the place of a single wife and mother with the maternal and domestic instinct normally developed. When a womanly woman, with such healthy and ennobling instincts, turns with loathing from the atmosphere of the stage to the quiet life of the home, she makes a wise choice. There can be no universal sphere or profession. It would not be well for every woman to be a wife and mother in a quiet, domestic retreat, any more than it would be well for every woman to be an actress. It requires "all sorts and conditions of men" and women to make a world, but every addition to the list of those women who sincerely long for domestic tranquillity is to be welcomed and the surrender of no worldly honors or emoluments can be considered a costly sacrifice in attaining it.—Kansas City Journal.

The London Evening Standard is the latest English journal to get excited over the use of the words "America" and "American" to describe the United States, its people and affairs. It admits that a generation or two ago the error was an excusable one, but asserts that the recent growth of Canada in population and importance entitles it to a share in the terms now monopolized by the United States, and suggests that somebody invent a new word to describe the land of the free and the home of the brave. An idea of the excitement under which the Standard is laboring may be gained from the fact that it employs the expression, "It's up to" the people of the British empire to add the new adjective to the language. When the Standard forgets its dignity and its responsibility as the guardian of the pure well of English undefiled we may know that it is tremendously in earnest. Furthermore, the Standard speaks of the "bigger half" of North America, departing from its customary accuracy.

Some of the reasons assigned for robbing Uncle Sam of the adjective American are amusing. "If the United States formed the country of the nineteenth century, Canada will surely prove the country of the twentieth. Its population is already greater than was that of its southern neighbor at the beginning of the last century, and it has actually received a greater number of immigrants in a single week than were landed in the United States during a whole year at the beginning of the nineteenth century." This "sounds big" until we remember that the actual present population of the Dominion of Canada is only about 5,500,000, or some 2,000,000 less than that of the State of Pennsylvania alone. The Standard calls upon the Canadian authorities to invent an "adequate and correct adjective" for the United states and then insist on its general adoption throughout the Dominion. This is about as sensible an idea as that of simplified spelling. The confusion which such a plan would entail is obvious. Canada could not effect the proposed reform unaided, and the rest of the civilized world has become too accustomed to the present use of "America" and "American" to join in the movement. There is no ambiguity in the present use of these terms. Everybody knows exactly what they mean and John Bull might as well pocket his pride and stay in the procession.—Pittsburg Gazette Times.

Naturally senators coming from states which have navy yards within their borders rally promptly to the defence of these establishments whenever the need of retaining them is questioned. They have recently done so, and the public is disposed to attribute their conduct to a realized sense of the political value of navy yards. This is unjust to some senators, for the navy yards of today are nearer great industrial establishments, and freer from political influence than at any time in their history.

Men not old can remember the time when the Boston yard was a valuable political asset to the congressman from that district. Navy yard workmen who voted against the Administration stood in imminent danger of losing their employment. Those "good old times" have passed away, together with campaign assessments and congressional orders for employment, which navy yard officers were compelled to honor. Men of all parties are found on the employment list, and if ideal conditions have not yet been attained they are much nearer than seemed possible to the reformers of the early eighties.

A navy yard is of commercial industrial value to its vicinage, a fact congressmen appreciate, and of which a community is well aware. Correspondingly the Government is benefited by favorable labor or other conditions of the environments of a navy yard. The Boston yard draws its expert labor from the supply of skill that a city of more than 600,000 inhabitants affords. Therefore the Boston yard is eligibly situated for Government needs. The necessity of maintaining it has been challenged by a number of fresh-water senators, but the force of their criticism has been more energetically directed against the establishment which, though at Kittery, Me., is commonly known as the Portsmouth Navy Yard. Yet the Navy Department would be very sorry to see the latter yard closed. It possesses a fine equipment, which is being steadily expanded, and while its labor supply is not great it is if excellent quality. Its boat builders have long been famous for their skill. The small boats of the navy are of their construction, the service drawing its equipment of this kind of craft from Kittery. Great vessels, battleships of the first class, find abundant water there. The battleship Maine was recently docked at Kittery, and the new, deep, wide channel enables the heaviest of vessels to make their berths at the wharves under their own steam. At high tide there would be many feet of water between the keel of the Mauretania and the mud were that monster steamer to enter Portsmouth harbor. At mean tide there is abundant depths for battleships. So much for water. As for land, the Government has in reserve there enough to permit great expansion of the establishment.—Boston Transcript.

The national Civic Federation is trying to work out some feasible plan for inducing the different states to unite in some movement for uniform legislation on those matters whose national importance is admitted. The Federation declares that the continued existence since 1890 of the annual conference of commissioners on uniform state laws, created by the different states at the instance of the American Bar Association, shows that the state executives and legislatures are fully alive to the importance of this subject. The last-named organization has been instrumental in securing the passage in 35 states of a uniform negotiable instruments law, and is promoting other commercial measures, including a uniform food law, to conform to the national law. It is pointed out that this necessity for uniform legislation is further illustrated by the proceedings at the annual meetings of the national association of the state attorneys general and of the state labor commissioners, insurance commissioners, etc., etc. The arguments in favor of uniform legislation are very strong and have been set forth repeatedly by many of our ablest Americans in public life. Elihu Root, in 1906, when he was secretary of state declared, "no state can live unto itself alone," and insisted that it is the duty of each state to frame laws and administer the public business "with reference not only to its own social affairs but with reference to the effect upon its sister states." And Mr. Root has recently pointed out the need of patriotic and intelligent action in strengthening the efficiency of the state governments. More recently in his address at Albany, he said:—But there are two dangers coming with the development. One is the danger that the national government will break down in its machinery through the burden which threatens to be cast upon it. This country is too large, its people are too numerous, its interests are too varied, and its activity too great for one central government at at Washington to carry the burden of governing all of the country in its local concerns, doing justice to the rights of the individual in every section, because that justice can be done only through intelligent information and consideration. And the mass of business that is now pressing upon the legislative and executive and judicial branches of our goverment in Washington seems to have come about to the limit of their capacity for the transaction of governmental business.

The point made by the able New York statesman will probably be brought more and more to public attention as time goes on. But it is at least worth notice that the New England states are ahead of other sections, in that the six states of this section are honestly trying to obtain uniformity of legislation on many subjects, through the cooperation of the governors and other public officials of those states and, when their work has been done, through the adoption of such recommendations as they may agree upon.—Boston Advertiser.

PRESIDENT IN JOYOUS MOOD

Impressed by Sight of the Returned Battleship Fleet

HIS TOAST TO THE NAVY

Home-Coming Can Only Be Equalled by Return of Some American Fleet After Victory In Great Sea Battle—Sperry Praises His Men For Co-operation—Prophecies of Disaster Are Happily Unfulfilled

Fortress Monroe, Va., Feb. 23.—"Not until some American fleet returns victorious from a great sea battle will there be another such homecoming, another such sight as this. I drink to the American navy."

This was the toast of President Roosevelt as he stood in the cabin of the cruiser yacht Mayflower, on the conclusion of the review and the ceremonies attending the welcome home of the American battleship fleet.

He was surrounded by the admirals and captains of the sixteen world-encircling vessels, brilliantly attired in all the gold lace of special full-dress uniform, and every glass was raised in response to the president's suggestion. "We stay-at-homes also drink to the men who have made us prouder than ever of our country," added the president, and again the toast was pledged.

"When the fleet sailed from San Francisco, Mr. President," replied Rear Admiral Sperry, "you sent a message, saying this a heavy responsibility and a great honor. That we have today fulfilled the responsibility makes this the proudest moment of our lives. I say 'we' advisedly in speaking of the fleet, for no one man could have done what has been done without the loyal and willing co-operation of every man on the fleet."

Thus briefly the commander-in-chief of the returning ships made his official report to the commander-in-chief of the army and navy.

The president was in the same joyous mood as he was when the ships set sail fourteen months ago, and to those who also witnessed that notable departure of the first real battle squadrons ever gathered under the American flag, he constantly expressed his enthusiasm over the safe and triumphant return of the fleet which was dispatched under his orders on a cruise which, it was said, was too hazardous for any such body of ships to undertake.

"Do you remember the prophecies of disaster?" the president asked. "Well, here they are," he added, pointing to the ships, "returning after fourteen months without a scratch. Isn't it magnificent?"

To the men and minor officers the president expressed his appreciation and the thanks of the country for the prestige which the cruise of the fleet has given to the American navy, by making visits to the four divisional flagships, the Connecticut, the Louisiana, the Georgia and the Wisconsin.

CLEMENCY EXTENDED

Pennsylvania Bank Cashier Was Convicted of Many Charges

Pittsburg, Feb. 23.—Oliver F. Piper, former cashier of the People's Bank of California, Pa., who a year ago entered a plea of guilty to a charge of conspiracy and embezzlement, was yesterday sentenced to serve two and a half years in the state penitentiary.

There were charges enough to make prison terms covering the rest of his natural life, but the district attorney, the private prosecutors' counsel, and the bank examiners, all asked for clemency in his case.

Newton, Mass., Feb. 23.—Skaters from many sections of New England plied their blades on the ice here in races for the New England championships at one and three miles. Frank P. Dannahy of Dorchester won both races, covering one mile in 3:43 and three miles in 11:45.

Police Guard Around Church

New York, Feb. 23.—Threats contained in a black hand letter to blow up the church and kill the assistant rector, Father Liberati, have impelled the placing of a day and night police guard around the church of Our Lady of Loretta.

Postal Savings Bank Discussed

Washington, Feb. 23.—For two hours and a half the senate discussed the postal savings bank proposal, but an attempt to reach an agreement as to a day for voting on the measure failed.

AVOID THE KNIFE

CUTTING WON'T CURE PILES—INTERNAL TREATMENT NEEDED.

A gardener doesn't kill weeds by cutting their tops. He attacks the root. Just so with piles—the cause is within, entirely out of reach of surgical instruments, ointments or suppositories. The only cure for piles is internal, and the only guaranteed internal remedy is Dr. Leonhardt's Hem-Roid. It has cured 98 per cent. of cases, and 24 days' treatment is sold for $1 at Clyde T. Cox's, Quincy, Mass., under positive guarantee. Or mailed by Dr. Leonhardt Co., Station B, Buffalo, N. Y. Write for booklet.

TILLERS OF ARID LANDS

Gather at Cheyenne to Discuss Problems Confronting Them

Cheyenne, Wyo., Feb. 23.—More than a thousand delegates, representing every state in the west and several foreign countries, were present at the opening today in the Capitol Avenue theatre of the third annual transmissouri dry farming congress.

Although the movement to bring together the tillers of the arid lands of the west is only three years old and its formal organization dates from last year's congress, it already ranks in importance with the national irrigation congress and the transmississippi commercial congress. The purpose of the congress is the discussion and comparison of methods by which the arid districts can be placed under tillage and the natural rainfall conserved, closer co-operation between the state and the government departments in studying dry farming methods and the employment of statisticians, lecturers, experimental farmers, etc., whose duty it will be to visit the various states, meet the farmers personally, attend farmers' institutes and work with the agricultural stations all over the west in disposing of the problems now before the farmer of dry lands.

FUTURE BATTLESHIPS

Will Be Twice the Size of Largest Now Building, Says Goodrich

New York, Feb. 23.—Rear Admiral Goodrich believes that battleships twice the size of the largest now building will be launched in the not far distant future. Speaking on "The Navy" at the annual banquet of the United States Society of the Cincinnati here he said:

"Over in the Brooklyn navy yard we are refitting one of the vessels that formed part of Rear Admiral Sampson's fleet in '98. That boat is of 9000 tons displacement. We now have ships of 18,000 tons and are building battleships of from 20,000 to 21,000 tons displacement. If we are spared for a few years more, we shall see ships of 30,000 and 40,000 tons displacement."

DECISION GOES TO SUMMERS

Englishman Outpoints Britt In Twenty-Round Bout

London, Feb. 23.—Johnny Summers, the English pugilist, received the decision on points over Jimmy Britt of California in a twenty round bout. The fight was held before the National Sporting club.

Both Summers and Britt had trained hard for this meeting and were in far better condition than when they met last November. Britt had the better of the bout in the early stages, but after the tenth round the Englishman had somewhat the best of him and the decision in Summers' favor was a popular one.

CHURCH BROTHERHOOD

Theme of Convention of Representatives of the Presbyterian Church

Pittsburg, Feb. 23.—The annual convention of the Presbyterian Brotherhood of America began in this city today. It is one of the largest and most important gatherings of the denomination in recent years. More than 3000 delegates, representing upward of 10,000 Presbyterian churches, are present.

The theme of the convention is "The Brotherhood of the Church," and many related topics will be discussed during the three days' sessions. The convention will be followed by a great conference of the Protestant church laity, representing societies of various denominations.

THIRTEEN OUT OF FIFTEEN

Smith Has Good Lead Over Frantz In Their Bowling Match

New York, Feb. 23.—In the first round of a bowling match between James Smith of Brooklyn and Louis Frantz of Cleveland in Brooklyn, the local player defeated his opponent by thirteen games out of fifteen.

In the grand total for the fifteen games Smith had the better of Frantz by more than 600 pins.

The second round of the match will be payed in Cleveland.

ADDRESSES ON MISSIONS

Will Be Made by Roosevelt After Personal Observations

Chicago, Feb. 23.—While in Africa President Roosevelt will not only visit a number of missions, but will make addresses giving his observations when he returns to this country.

This statement was made here at the Methodist Ministers' weekly meeting by Bishop Hartzell, who has charge of the Methodist African missions and who recently visited the president at the White House.

Confirmations Shut Off

Washington, Feb. 23.—By reason of a decision by the senate committee on judiciary not to report to the senate any more nominations at the present session, several federal judiciary appointments will fail of confirmation at the present session. Unless the nominations are made by Mr. Taft the incumbents of the offices will receive no pay for the time they have served.

REACHING THE SPOT.

It Can Be Done, So Scores of Quincy Citizens Say.

To cure an aching back,
The pains of rheumatism,
The tired-out feelings,
You must reach the spot—get at the cause.
In most cases 'tis the kidneys.
Doan's Kidney Pills are for the kidneys.

Jas. C. Dunn, living at 508 Washington street, Quincy, Mass., says: "For some time I was afflicted with lumbago. My back ached constantly and I could hardly get about the house. The constant aching gave me so much trouble that my nervous system became all unstrung and I had about dispaired of ever getting anything that would cure me when Doan's Kidney Pills were brought to my attention. I procured a supply at the Cox Drug Store, began their use and after a short time, I received more belief than from all the other remedies combined. I can say my trouble has vanished and I gladly recommend Doan's Kidney Pills."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co. Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

RAINEY HAS MORE TO COME

Has Not Yet Commenced Fight on Panama Canal Purchase

HAS SIMPLY ATTACKED GRAFT

Sees Attempt to Saddle an Additional Burden of $1,250,000 Upon This Country In the "Proposed Cromwell Treaties"—Panama Deprives Herself For Five Years of Her Fixed Source of Revenue—Burton Replies

Washington, Feb. 23.—Asserting that his recent speech in the house relative to the purchase by the United States government of the Panama canal had brought upon himself "villification, misrepresentation and abuse almost without a parallel in the history of that body," Representative Rainey (Ills.) delivered in the house of representatives a lengthy speech in reply to the charges that the information upon which his remarks were based was obtained by "ex-convicts and mailers," this accusation having been made openly in the house by Representative Lovering (Mass.).

"True loyalty to this great enterprise," Rainey said, "means that you must expose and denounce all kinds of graft in connection with it, in order to avoid the pitfalls in which the French Companies fell, and I propose to do this whether it meets with the approval of the next president of the United States or not. I want to say to all those who are spending so much time abusing me that I have not yet commenced this fight. I have only trained my guns on some of the least objectionable features in connection with Panama matters."

Mr. Rainey said that he did not attack the canal, but simply attacked the graft connected with that enterprise. He asserted that Lovering had not attempted to deny a single fact he had stated, but after making his charges, proceeded to eulogize William N. Cromwell.

"I never heard until he made his speech that any persons were trying to get Mr. Cromwell to purchase any alleged evidence of the guilt of Mr. Cromwell," he said. "I knew nothing of any attempts to sell any story to the Democratic national committee until the gentleman made his speech on this floor."

Continuing Rainey said: "Mr. Cromwell, in the speech made by him through Mr. Olcott (N. Y.) has seen fit to discuss his present efforts to conclude a treaty between Colombia and Panama in which he refers to the necessity for some contribution from Panama to Colombia as her proportion of the public debt of Colombia."

"The Cromwell Treaties"

Referring to these as the "proposed Cromwell treaties," Rainey asserted that Cromwell proposes to so change the Hay-Bonau Varilla treaty as to impose upon this country an additional burden of $1,250,000.

"And he proposes that this sum shall be taken from our treasury and paid, not to Panama, but to Colombia. In addition to that he proposes that for five years after 1913 the $250,000 we agreed to pay Panama shall be paid to Colombia direct. In other words, by the treaties of which he is so proud, Panama deprives herself for five years of her fixed source of revenue and consents that it be paid to Colombia, and the United States contributes from its treasury $1,250,000 and pays it to the treasury of Colombia. I know of no precedent for Mr. Cromwell's treaties. No people in the world, after having successfully completed a revolution, have ever been called upon to pay any portion of the debt, foreign or domestic, of the country from which they separate.

"The situation Cromwell is endeavoring to force by the treaties is that the United States is to be required to increase its treasury deficit and to pay to Colombia $1,250,000; Panama impoverishes herself by giving up the $1,250,000 clearly belonging to her and gives up for five years after 1913 the revenue we propose to pay her.

"These treaties," continued Rainey, "have already been approved by the admistration in this country. It remains to be seen whether they will be ratified by the general assembly of Panama and by the senate of the United States."

After the Illinois member had spoken for an hour Mr. Burton (O.) took the floor to reply. He vigorously defended those whom Rainey, on a former occasion, made the objects of an attack. Rainey, he said, had conjured up wrongs and buttressed them with slander and falsehood, thereby placing himself on a level with "the scurvy politician." He challenged Rainey to get from behind the protection afforded him by the constitution of the United States and rules of the house and to make his charges in the open.

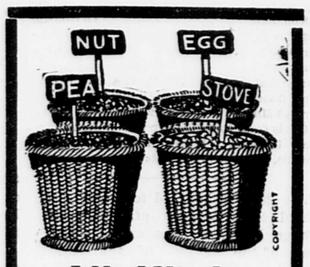

Mr. Lovering (Mass.) joined in the discussion and insisted that Rainey had proven nothing.

The incident was closed by a declaration by Mr. Cockran (N. Y.) that persons whose reputations were attacked in the house should have an opportunity to defend themselves in the same place.

PEDAGOGUES GATHER

Matters of Educational Interest Under Discussion In Chicago

Chicago, Feb. 23.—Seldom in the history of the United States has there been so distinguished a gathering of educators as the assemblage which gathered here today for the convention of the department of superintendence of the National Educational association. Prominent teachers from all parts of the country comprise the membership of the department, and the greater part of them are present at the convention.

The pedagogues were welcomed to Chicago by President Schneider of the Chicago board of education. The opening session was taken up with the reading of papers on "Elimination of Waste In School Work."

Among the prominent men and women attending the convention are Stratton D. Brooks, superintendent of schools, Boston; Charles P. Cary, state superintendent of public instruction, Wisconsin; Julia Richman, district superintendent of public schools, New York city; Kenyon Butterfield, president of Massachusetts Agricultural college, Amherst; Elmer Ellsworth Brown, United States commissioner of education, Washington, and William H. Maxwell, superintendent of schools, New York city.

LEFT NO EXPLANATION

New York, Feb. 23.—Second Lieutenant John J. Moller, Eighth United States infantry, stationed at Monterey, Cal., who was on furlough in the east, shot himself in the head at the Grand Union Hotel late last night and died an hour later.

He left a letter addressed to Chaplain Smith of the army on Governor's Island, directing the disposal of his effects and asking that his mother be notified of his death. He left no note explaining why he killed himself.

Lieutenant Moller was born in 1881 in Missouri. He was appointed a cadet at the Military Academy at West Point in 1900, and received his commission as second lieutenant of the Eighth infantry in 1904.

SHARP TREADS ON DANGEROUS GROUND

Contradicts Himself In Giving Important Testimony

Nashville, Feb. 23.—Court adjourned Monday during cross-examination of John D. Sharp, co-defendant with Duncan Cooper and Robin Cooper, now on trial for the slaying of Edward W. Carmack.

After giving his account of the shooting under direct examination Sharp was turned over to Attorney General Garner. Sharp is a man of high temper and Garner soon had him beside himself. On direct examination he swore that he saw the killing and that "Carmack fell after Robin Cooper had fired three times." One of the bullet wounds, a necessarily fatal one, pierced Carmack's neck within one-sixteenth of an inch of the spinal cord and came out under the tongue. As Sharp swore that Carmack was facing Cooper, aiming a revolver at him, this wound would be impossible to reconcile with the statement.

On cross-examination, however, Sharp said that Carmack turned his head just as the second shot was fired. He did not explain how Carmack could turn his head far enough to permit the ball to enter the median line of the neck on a straight line.

DAMAGE OF $2,500,000

Ice Three Feet Thick on Farm Lands Adjoining the River Elbe

Madgeburg, Ger., Feb. 23.—The peril to the surrounding villages has been increased through further frosts, although the floods have slightly abated.

The ice is now three feet thick over the agricultural lands and the river Elbe is still unable to return to its original bed, owing to the ice blocks.

Military forces are engaged in building dams to prevent further inroads of the water. An estimate of the damage done in this vicinity is $2,500,000.

FIRST ON PACIFIC COAST

Winner of Marathon Run Reduces Record Made by Hayes at London

San Francisco, Feb. 23.—The first Marathon race on the Pacific coast was won by Oko Bodikker in 2:40:31 3-5, beating the record of Hayes, who won the Olympic Marathon at London from Dorando, by almost fifteen minutes.

There were forty-seven entries. The course was twice around Golden Gate park and it ended at the stadium.

Timber For Earthquake Victims

Naples, Feb. 23.—Steamer Eva, from New York Feb. 1 with timber purchased by the fund provided by the United States congress, arrived here and left later for Messina.

The Iroquois club will give a banquet tonight to all those who took part in their recent minstrel show. The banquet will be served in Thompson's cafe and the party will then adjourn to Protection hall, Johnson building, where there will be an entertainment and dancing.

The Wollaston hook and ladder apparatus was called out on a still alarm on Sunday. It made a quick run from the hose-house to Box 57, where it was learned that the cause of the alarm was a fire in a tree at the corner of Willow street and Elm avenue. The fire had been attended to before the arrival of the fire team, however, and the apparatus returned immediately.

The mid-year meeting of the Boston Federation of Young People's Religious Unions will be held with the Wollaston union on the afternoon and evening of February 28. The afternoon session at 4 o'clock will be devoted to the transaction of business, after which refreshments will be served. The evening meeting which opens at 7.30, will be addressed by Rev. Samuel McChord Crothers of Cambridge, and there will also be special music.

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. William Johnson of Faxon road feel keenly the loss of so popular a couple from their midst, but business interests have called Mr. Johnson west and he will make his home there with his wife and little son, Horace. They will be sincerely missed by neighbors and friends, whose best wishes for continued health, wealth and happiness follow them into their new field.

Miss Florence Cummings of Clive street spent the holidays in Exeter, N. H.

Miss Lelia Whittemore of Bradford, N. H., was a guest of Miss A. Maud Briggs of Appleton street over the holidays.

Miss Mable Drew of Walker street left Saturday for Jackson, N. H., with the Applachian club to remain until Wednesday enjoying the delights of snow-shoeing in New Hampshire.

There were three "sunlights" on Washingtons birthday and all were largely attended. In Music hall, Hibernian hall and St. Mary's, the merry dancers held forth from 3 o'clock to 11. The crowd at Music hall was the largest of the season about 250 couples being present.

The sum realied from the Civic Betterment dance given in Atlantic on Friday of last week was not equal to that of last year. The committee however are glad that the Civic Betterment spirit was so keenly felt and that the social drawing together of so many interested workers was accomplished. This in itself was a truimph. The money cleared will be spent to the best advantage in local improvement.

How a Hat Is Sized.

C. writes that the size of a hat is calculated on a curious principle. It is the length plus the breadth divided by 2. Thus a head 8¾ inches long and 5¾ inches broad would require a hat size of 14½ divided by 2, which is 7¼—Gladstone's size.

Your correspondent G. is perfectly right in his description of the curious way in which the size of a hat is obtained, writes G., but his sample dimensions are slightly misleading. Such an "oval" as 8¾ inches by 5¾ inches would scarcely be met with twice in a lifetime. The normal difference between the length and width (technically called the "oval") is invariably through the gamut of sizes 1½ inches. Thus an ordinary 6¾ hat would measure 7½ inches long and 6 inches wide and a 7¼ (four sizes bigger) 8 inches long and 6½ inches wide. The longest head I have measured in many thousands was 8⅝ by 7⅝, which is the equivalent of a 2¾ inch oval. Needless to say, the inside of the hat was the shape of a canalboat. — Manchester Guardian.

It Did Not Work.

Mrs. Billings was installing the new cook, a maiden from Finland, to whom the kitchen contrivances of America were new and wonderful. "This, Ina," said the lady, indicating a perforated wooden board that hung against the kitchen wall, "is the order list. See, it says 'butter, eggs, sugar, coffee, tea, molasses'—everything that we need to eat. Whenever we are out of any of these things all you need to do is to place one of these little pegs in the hole opposite the name and the things will be ordered."

Mrs. Billings is not a methodical housekeeper. There were several consecutive days when she completely forgot the existence of the order list in the kitchen, but Ina labored with it faithfully.

"Meesis," pleaded Ina, after struggling with the order board for three days, "I tank dose board must be out of order. I push dose peg in yust so far as I can, but notting will come—no egg, no butter, no nottings."—Youth's Companion.

The Voice and the Phonograph.

A vaudeville monologue man met a friend in a Broadway car. After they had talked awhile the friend said:

"I've been conscious ever since we began to talk of some change in you, but I couldn't make out what. I know now. It is your voice. You speak so much more distinctly than you used to."

"That is because I have been talking into a phonograph," said the vaudeville performer. "The surest remedy on earth for slovenly speech is to hear a little lecture of your own rolled off a phonograph record and find that about half the words have been pronounced in direct opposition to Webster and all the rest of the authorities. That was my experience. I practiced for two months hard before I could improve a speech that had been good enough for the theater up to the point where it would pass muster in a talking machine."—New York Sun.

BASKET BALL AND OTHER SPORTS

St. Mary's Team Defeated by Hyde Park Five

MAKARIAS TAKE GAME FROM BOSTON QUINTET.

Rindge Team Fails to Show Up So Q. H. S. Game is Called Off

St. Mary's defeated Randolph, Saturday night in St. Mary's hall, West Quincy, by the score of 33 to 12. The visiting team has been trimming the fastest fives about this vicinity all winter and a close game was expected Saturday night. However Randolph didn't play its game and St. Mary's scored an easy win.

The West Quincy five bewildered its opponents with its fast teamwork, Mullen and Morrill surprising the Randolph team by going down the floor continually. Both these boys are coming back into the form they showed in the old days, when St. Mary's used to beat the best in the country.

The score was 18 to 2 at the end of the first half and the local team kept adding a few for good measure in the second. Randolph played better in the last half and for a time showed a little speed. For Randolph Landers played the best game. These teams meet again Thursday night at Randolph and a big bunch of rooters will accompany the team. The summary.

ST. MARY'S		RANDOLPH
W. Duggan rf		lb Shay
D. Duggan, Kolson, lf		rb Cummiugs
McLaughlin c		c Landers
Mullen rb		lf Robinson
Morrill lb		rf Lind

Score St. Mary's 33, Randolph 12. Goals from floor W. Duggan 3, D. Duggan 3, McLaghlin 2, Mullen 5, Morrill 2, Cummings, Landers 4, Lind. Goals from fouls W. Duggan 2. Referee Joyce, Umpire Joyce. Scorer Fitzgerald. Timer Barron. Time 20m. periods. Attendance 200.

The second teams of both clubs clashed in the preliminary game and the visitors came out ahead 27 to 11. This game was full of excitement as the boys roughed it all through. Duggan and "Nedzo" Bennett excelled for St. Mary's, while Downey, Rudderham and French played best for Randolph. The summary:

RANDOLPH 2nd		ST. MARY'S 2nd
Riordan lb		rf Croto
McMahon rb		lf Duggan O'Rourke
Downey c		c Canavan, Duggan
Rudderham lf		rb Rooney, Bennett
French rb		lb Collins

Score, Randolph 2nd 27, St. Mary's 2nd 11. Goals from floor McMahan, Downey 6, Rudderham 3, French 3, Duggan 3, Canavan, Bennett. Goals from fouls Rudderham, Collins. Referee Joyce Umpire Joyce. Scorer Fitzgerald. Timer Barron. Time 20 m. periods. Attendance 200.

The St. Mary's five journeyed to Hyde Park Monday afternoon and in the deciding game, announced as for the semiprofessional championship of the state, were defeated 28 to 16. A crowd of over 100 went with the local team and rooted hard for victory.

Never before did Magnolia hall see such a crowd as witnessed the game. Over 700 people crowded into the small hall and the excitement was at fever heat all through. Hyde Park hasn't been defeated on that floor for two years, but they feared it yesterday. Hence the vast crowd.

Nobody was disappointed either, for the game was hot from the very start. Everything was played from association and rugby football to sprinting, basket ball being the least evident of any of the various branches of sport. The players held each other continually and it was almost imposible to get away.

When one of the local boys did manage to get away, he would slip on the smooth floor and then his opponent would have a free shot. On the other hand the Hyde Park team was used to the floor and consequently was able to follow the ball better. This was about the only advantage Hyde Park had, but it counted for a whole lot.

There were several little bits of side play that kept the crowd interested all the time. "Dan" Duggan and Finn had it out during the afternoon and furnished lots of fun. Mullen and F. Sullivan also had a battle royal, but Mullen had the better of the argument.

"Bill" Duggan and McLaughlin also had plenty of work, but both got good baskets. For Hyde Park the two Sullivans and Robertson excelled. Another game will probably be arranged between these fives to be played on a neutral floor. The summary:

HYDE PARK		ST. MARY'S
Robertson rf		lb Morrill
F. Sullivan lf		rb Mullen
Conway c		c McLaughlin
J. Sullivan rb		lf W. Duggan
Finn lb		rf D. Duggan

Score. Hyde Park 28, St. Mary's 16. Goals from floor Robertson 5, F. Sullivan 3, Conway 3, J. Sullivan 2, Finn, Morrill, Mullen 5, McLaughlin, W. Duggan 2. Referee McNulty. Scorer Fitzgerald. Timer Barron. Time 20 m periods. Attendance 700.

There were two games at the local Y. M. C. A. on Monday night, Makaria defeating the second team of the Boston Y. M. C. A., 39 to 22, and the Quincy employed boys trimming a similar team from the Cambridge association.

In the first game Tupper and McKenzie excelled for Makaria, while Benson and Neate carried off the honors for Boston.

Pinel, Glover and Dackers played best for the Quincy E. B., while Gates was the star of the Cambridge five. The sumary of the first game:

MAKARIA		BOSTON Y. M. C. A 2nd
Tupper rf		lb Weir
McKenzie lf		rb Gourlie
Ulrich c		c Mortimer
Morris rb		lf Benson
Mundie lb		rf Neate

"BIG FINE" CASE ON TRIAL AGAIN

Rehearing Begun Today In Federal Court In Chicago

GREAT ARRAY OF LAWYERS

Legal Lights Representing Government and Defense In Retrial of Suit In Which Judge Landis Imposed Fine of $29,240,000—Scores of Subpoenas Issued For Witnesses, Among Them Officials of Company

Chicago, Feb. 23.—The retrial of the famous Standard Oil "big fine case" began today before Judge Albert B. Anderson of Indiana in the United States circuit court in this city.

The present proceedings constitute a rehearing of the case in which the Standard Oil company of Indiana, a subsidiary company of the Standard Oil company of New Jersey (the parent of all the Standard Oil companies) was fined $29,240,000 by Judge Landis for rebating. The famous fine was imposed Aug. 3, 1907, and on July 22,

JUDGE A. B. ANDERSON.

1908, the United States circuit court of appeals reversed the decision. On motion of the government the supreme court ordered a rehearing of the case.

A brilliant galaxy of legal luminaries represent the two sides in the famous case. The government's interests are in the hands of District Attorney Sims of Chicago, acting as special counsel, assisted by J. H. Wilkerson. Moritz Rosenthal, the head of the Standard's legal forces, who is frequently referred to as "the highest priced lawyer in the United States," and John S. Miller, with numerous assistants, have charge of the oil company's side of the matter.

Scores of subpoenas have been issued to witnesses in the case. One subpoena was issued for President Moffatt of the Standard Oil company of Indiana. Other Standard Oil officers who have been served are G. W. Stahl, treasurer; John C. McDonald, auditor, and Edgar Bogardus, traffic manager.

Other witnesses who are to appear are George Robert and C. Crossland, expert rate clerks for the interstate commerce commission; Secretary Kilpatrick of the railroad and warehouse commission, F. S. Hollands, rate clerk for the Chicago and Alton railroad, and J. S. Howard, formerly auditor of the Chicago and Alton railroad. Bogardus, Hollands and Howard were witnesses at the previous trial.

OUR LATEST DREADNAUGHT

Battleship Utah, Without Armor or Armament, to Cost $3,946,000

Camden, N. J., Feb. 23.—The keel of the battleship Utah, a sister ship of the Florida, now being constructed at the Brooklyn navy yard, was laid in the yard of the New York Shipbuilding company here.

The new battleship is to have a displacement of 21,387 tons and will have a speed of 21 knots an hour. The contract price, without armor or armament, is $3,946,000. Her tonnage is to be 1000 tons greater than that of the North Dakota, or that of the Delaware, the most recent "Dreadnaughts."

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

BANQUETED BY IROQUOIS CLUB

Minstrel Beaux and Belles Guests of Honor.

The interior of Thompson's Cafe presented a gay scene Tuesday night at the banquet tendered by the Iroquois club, to those who took part in the recent minstrel show. There were about eightly people present and all agreed that the Iroquois were good hosts.

At eight o'clock the guests gathered in Electa hall and a group picture of the whole crowd was taken. They then formed in twos and marched across to Thompson's where an excellent supper was waiting. The menu contained chichen salad, potato salad, cold ham, apple sauce, rolls, ice cream, cake and coffee.

Everybody did justice to the banquet and then the post-prandial exercises began. "Dan" Driscoll, president of the Iroquois club addressed a few words of welcome to the company and also thanked all those who had in any way helped to make the show a success. He then introduced Joseph H. Elcock as toastmaster.

Songs followed in quick succession by Robert McDonald, Ernest Godfrey, Daniel Driscoll, Andrew J. Dinegan, under whose able direction the show was produced, Frank Driscoll and others. The entire company joined in all the choruses and the cafe rang with the singing of the happy banqueters.

After the minstrel beaux and belles had tired of singing, three cheers were given for Thompson's, the Iroquois, the ends, waitresses; and everybody that anyone thought of. The line of march then headed back to Electa hall where dancing was enjoyed until 12 o'clock, Wilson's orchestra furnishing the music.

Mayor William T. Shea had been invited to attend, but a wireless was received stating that a previous engagement would necessitate his absence. He sent his best wishes, however, and said he was sorry he could not be present. Among the other invited guests were Timothy J. Collins, Peter M. Sullivan and Walter H. Cobb. The latter however did not attend.

MORE ABOUT THE TRAVELLING CRANE

John L. Miller Replies to J. Q. A. Field

Editor of the Daily Ledger:

Dear Sir.—I note in your issue of the 20th. another long letter by J. Q. A. Field in answer to mine of the 8th. Instead of confining himself to the question he started in a former letter, he jumps all over the pasture.

Now Mr. Editor I had no idea of getting into a newspaper controversy with Mr. Field or anyone else, for you must have a better use for your paper, and as it is not a question of public interest, anything I have to say to Mr. Field will be of the briefest, and I will take no further notice of his communications.

Now Mr. Editor, Mr. Field puts me in mind of a text from which I heard a noted divine preach recently "Their young men shall see visions, and their old men shall dream dreams" and as Mr. Field has reached that time in life called old age, he has also taken to dreaming.

As to what passed between the railroad officials and the committee of the Granite Manufacturers' Association (composed of Alfred O. Diack, P. W. Driscoll, Mr. Field and myself) the other members of the committee know, and the style of the derrick was discussed fully with the vice president and then before three other head officers. Mr. Field was alone in advocating the boom derrick, he was alone in a full meeting, he was alone before the Board of Trade and is all by his lonesome now.

As to the petition, if Mr. Field would refresh his memory he would know that the Association voted to have the petition circulated, and that our secretary took the petition around for signers. He did not ask Mr. Field to sign, feeling confident that it would be a waste of time.

As to shipments, I never claimed to be one of the largest shippers, yet anyone hearing Mr. Field talking before the special committee on grade crossings would suppose I was about the only one.

As for his statement that he employs double the amount of men, does not make him a large shipper at the derrick, for nearly his whole output of the quarry is sold to local manufacturers.

He takes exceptions to my statement that "There is no cellar stone shipped except locally" and he goes on to prove the correctness of my statement. He says that the cellar stone are teamed over the road to Boston and by Mr. Sandberg's sloop to Chelsea, and that is certainly what was meant by the term "locally." I would like to ask Mr. Field, if he had a special cellar stone derrick if he could put the stone on the car and pay the freight to Boston, then reload them on wagons and carry them from one to three miles to the cellar and then have anything left? The price is so low that there is hardly a day's pay for a team to go direct from the quarry.

As to my not publishing the letter of the superintendent of the railroad, that was not necessary, as Mr. Field had already published his, and there is no reason why I should waste your space on the same thing. I have the letter with a dozen others at my office, which Mr. Field can see.

As to my responsibility for the removal of the old derrick. I am glad to say that I could see no use for it, unless it be for a monument to Mr. Field's lack of grasp of the shipping question, for he tells us that he put it up. No Mr. Field the railroad will not keep derricks standing unused. They want a profit on their investment and are entitled to it.

Your customers in Quincy often feel that you should fill orders faster, but you don't put up derricks or more men to work because they think so. Neither will the railroad maintain a boom derrick to load the imaginary cellar stone.

Our crane is perfectly satisfactory and the granite business is extremely fortunate in having it and the railroad has paved the whole yard, a thing unheard of in Westerly or Barre.

Now Mr. Field, don't give us any more of your dreams, and just make the best of your lost cause.

Respectfully yours,
J. L. Miller.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR.

Dear Editor:—At the last meeting of the City Council I suggested that a committee be appointed to consider the matter of increasing the production of our present industries, and in sustaining the suggestion stated that the financial interests of our city could possibly, in some instances, offer more inducements to competent parties to handle work they feel under present conditions diffident about undertaking, feeling that while their interests and the communities interests are mutual, yet the producer carried the heavy load, with little assistance or sympathy, also rates of public service of all kinds in Quincy, was such as to mitigate against the common interests of our city.

To get the ideas of thinking men, I wrote, and received the following replies the first relates to conditions in one of the principle granite centers and suggests what has been done there and results obtained. My contention is that we have the ability here, encourage it and get results.

The second letter suggests present conditions in our city and the possibilities with energies rightly directed. I trust the publication of these letters will at least assist the committee and suggest some thoughts among our citizens generally.

John R. Richards.

Barre, Vt., Feb. 22, 1909.

Mr. John R. Richards, Quincy, Mass.

Dear Sir:—In reply to your favor of recent date, I wish to say that the Barre banks have always stood by the Manufacturers here, believing that their own future and the future of Barre as well, depends upon the product of our granite hills, and the success of Barre men in placing that product on the market in a finished state. The Granite Manufacturers of Barre, are not men who were born "with a silver spoon in their mouth," and who entered the granite business to find investment for their capital,—they are men who started at the foot of the ladder, with honest integrity and perseverance as their only capital, and by strict attention to business, and a desire to make the name of Barre granite famous, many of them find today that they have won a competence. But there is another factor that has played a very important part in this condition of affairs, and that factor is the above mentioned, Barre banks, and two thirds of Barre's granite men today, can trace their present business conditions back to the time when Barre's financial institutions were their chief support and succor, when they were unable to walk alone. Not that Barre banks have helped every and any one who wished to enter the granite business, not by any means, but whenever they could invest their money to as good advantage, at home, they have held that it has been their duty to do so. Barre, and Barre's industries have always been handicapped by a lack of capital, and if local banks chose to refuse accommodations to Barre business men, it would mean stagnation, and we should have to be dependent on outside capital to run our business enterprises, which would mean that a syndicate could come in and take over the entire outfit and run it to suit themselves. You will remember that a short time ago a syndicate attempted to get control of our quarries, install more modern machinery, in other words invest capital that the Barre men did not posses, and control the output of Barre granite.

I had heard it intimated that Quincy banks were not as accommodating as they might be to the Manufacturers, but have never heard their reasons for taking this position. You mentioned the fact that Barre banks advanced money on granite contracts,

FORTY TABLES IN PLAY.

Whist Party at St. Mary's Hall Largely Attended.

A very largely attended and successful whist party was held at St. Mary's hall Tuesday evening under the auspices of the Ladies' Charitable society of St. Mary's church. It was the last social event before Lent and therefore called out a large number including Mayor Shea, who, however, arrived too late to participate in the whist.

There were forty tables in play and for two hours the contest was a keen one.

At the conclusion of the whist there was dancing, Henry Teasdale presiding at the piano.

Souvenirs for the best scores at whist were given Miss Dalphe, Miss Ethel Burns, Mrs. John Dakers, Miss Marion Hart, Miss Louise Pickering, Rednor P. Coombs, George Hibbard, John Crowley and Mr. Donaher.

HEARING ON NEPONSET BRIDGE

Bill to be Discussed at State House Thursday.

A hearing of much importance to Quincy is to be held at the State house tomorrow.

The matter in question is the bill for a new bridge across the Neponset river to take the place of the present bridge connecting Quincy with Boston.

The matter came up in the legislature last year when it was referred to the park commission to investigate and report to this year's legislature.

The Park Commissioners' report was that the present bridge would have to be rebuilt inside of five years at a cost of $200,000, and they recommended a new bridge to cost something over $300,000.

It is on the bill for this bridge that the hearing is to be held and it is important that the interest of the city should be looked after.

If the bill passes it will provide how the bridge shall be paid for and some of the arguments at the hearing will be on this line.

It means much to Quincy whether the city is to be assessed half of the cost of the bridge or whether part of the cost shall be assessed on towns south of Quincy or whether the expense shall be borne by the whole Metropolitan district.

It is in such matters as these that the Board of Trade and Citizens' Association should be interested in and they should be represented at the

A NEW ARCADIA.

A Complete Working Outfit for Nature and Science.

For ten years the department of nature and science in St. Nicholas has been, under the direction of Edward F. Bigelow, of Stamford, Conn., an important educational feature of that magazine. Its aim has been unerring accuracy in portraying nature from the standpoint of the child; and to this end the editor has had the co-operation of nearly all the best naturalists, scientists and nature artists in the country.

Now Nature and Science is to have a complete working outfit covering more than half an acre of ground at Stamford, Conn. This outfit and its arrangement originated wholly with a wealthy philanthropist and lover of children, who has watched for some time "on the quiet" the work of the department, studied the correspondence with the children—some of them in foreign countries—investigated all the requirements, and without the suggestion of any one other than his architect, is to supply a series of convenient, portable buildings in which the various departments of the work will be caried on systematically.

There will be separate buildings for offices, museum (for interchange of specimens,) laboratories, a lecture hall for talks to visitors and for regular instruction to local young folks, astronomical observatory, photograph gallery, greenhouse, vivaria, insectary pet houses, etc. Viewed from a balloon the outfit will seem like "a series of playhouses with a fence around them." In their cuteness, they surely will apeal to the fancy of the young folks.

And yet in their roominess and thorough equipment they will be ample for all the work of Nature and Science. The little village of buildings in courtyard style is to be known as Arcadia—that is the home of pleasure and contentment in all nature.

ANNUAL FAIR AT POINT CHURCH

Ladies' Aid Society Does Rushing Business.

The annual fair under the auspices of the Ladies Aid Society of the Washington Street Congregational church, was opened Tuesday evening and was largely attended. There were tables for the sale of various things, including the candy table, the cake, mystery, punch, fancy and apron table.

The following ladies had charge of the tables. Candy, Miss Beatrice Adams, Mrs. Grace Pierson, Mrs. Awelda Melville and Miss Emma Hayden.

Punch, Mrs. Eugene R. Stone and Mrs. E. H. Bushnell .

Mystery, Mrs. Thomas W. Lincoln, Jr., and Mrs. John Roach.

Cake, Mrs. H. H. I. Smith and Mrs. T. R. McKenny.

Apron, Mrs. Charles H. Sherburne, Mrs. Charles H. Damon, Mrs. William Hayden and Mrs. William Lee.

Fancy, Mrs. C. W. Newcomb, Mrs. M. E. Wight, Mrs. P. H. Holman, Mrs. H. D. Adams and Mrs. R H. Newcomb.

At 8 o'clock an entertainment was given consisting of a one act drama entitled "Quits."

The fair will continue tonight and tomorrow night, with suppers at 6.30 and entertainment at 8 o'clock.

—A London commentary says the worst pitfalls in the American market are due to the sanguine temperament of the American people, not American speculators only, or business men only, but the people as a whole. From the biggest millionaire to the poorest peanut-stall keeper they have all got a glowing future in their mind's eye. If it remained there it might do no great harm, but they are continually trying to discount it far in advance. If business is bad today, they are sure it will be much better next week, or next month, or next year. The boom of which they are ever dreaming has got, they say, to come sometime, and they hate to miss it. Looked at from a disinterested standpoint, it may seem absurd to foreigners, this constantly looking ahead to better times, but as sure as anything can be the foreigners themselves make the biggest kind of boomers, once located in this country.

Here is an egg story from Whitwell street. Mrs. C. H. Penniman has a brood of spring chicks which have started in to make a record for themselves. Last week one of them who has just turned seven months laid an egg which when measured, was found to be 7 1-4 inches by 6 1-2 inches. Inside the egg were two yolks.

Vagaries of a Cold.

You can never be quite sure where a cold is going to hit you. In the fall and winter it may settle in the bowels, producing severe pain. In the summer it may give you colic with diarrhoea or summer complaint. Do not be alarmed nor torment yourself with fears of appendicitis or inflammation of the bowels. At the first sign of the pain or cramp take Perry Davis' Painkiller in warm, sweetened water and relief will come at once. There is but one Painkiller, Perry Davis'. It is now put up in a large 35c size as well as the regular 50c. size.

The police of Boston can now sympathize with the London coppers. They too have had to quell suffragette demonstrations.

It is rumored that Admiral Bowles while in England, hopes to close several contracts for ships to be built at the Fore River Works.

It is a well known fact that the Fore River company is doing everything possible to promote the Curtis type of marine turbine engines, and it is hoped that the engines have reached a stage of practibility whereby the company can compete with other companies installing other types of turbine marine engines.

This type of engine is only in its infancy, so that if the Curtis make proves worthy Quincy's name will be brought to the front in this field.

The first Curtis engine installed by the Fore River company was in the Creole. While this was not a huge success, it gave the company a chance to see a working experiment.

If the engine in the North Dakota works successfully, and there is no reason to think otherwise, there seems to be no valid reason why the Fore River company should not be able to land several contracts abroad.

In a few days the post office at Quincy centre will be moved from its present location at the head of Granite street to the new Federal building on the corner of Washington and Maple streets. The question has been asked by many, what effect will the changing of the location of the post affice have on the business houses near the present office? Opinions seem to differ. Some believe that there will be no practical effect, while others are inclined to think that these houses will notice a faling off in business.

It has been a noticable fact in years past, that where ever the post office was located, business stores in that immediate vicinity were in great demand. As soon as the office was moved to a new location the demand fell off, and there were vacant stores to rent. Thus it was when the office was moved from the Adams building to its present location. When the office was located in this block there were no vacant stores there, but as soon as it was moved there were several and the block has not been looked upon as a good business location since that time. This would seem to bear out the statement that the post office carried the business with it.

The moving of the post office to Washington street however is somewhat of a different proposition. Unless something unforseen should happen the office will be located in the new building for many years. It would seem however that its moving to this location would not effect business houses, that are now located near the present office, very much.

In the first place there are at present no lacations for stores near the new office, and it does not look as though there would be. People from South and West Quincy going to the office will have to pass very near to the block of stores at the head of Granite street. They will then cross over, and probably go through Maple street to the new office. As there is no shopping district on Washington street they will naturally have to go where the stores are.

There are several prominent buildings of a semi public nature in the immediate vicinity of the new Federal building, notably the Y. M. C. A. building, the Thomas Crane Public Library, with its handsome grounds, the Coddington school building, just across from the library, while in the rear is the Savings Bank building. Also near by is the new court room building, or Hancock building as it is called.

The nearest business block is the Johnson building at the corner of Maple and Chestnut streets and the Insurance Co. building at the corner of Washington and Coddington street. This latter building stands out alone and residents hope that some day it may be removed altogether and that corner thrown into the library lot.

The only good place therefore upon which to erect a business block, would be on the land lying between the Federal building and Temple street. A great improvement in the order of things could be made by removing these buildings and throwing the land into public plot similar to the surrounding the library.

Washington street will in the near future doubtless become the main thoroughfare of the city leading as it does to the section along the South Shore. When this time comes, blocks of stores may be expected to be erected near the Federal building. But that is a long way off. In the mean time it does not seem as though the present stores in City Square would suffer much by the change in the location of the post office.

It will seem odd at first to go down Washington street to visit the post office but people will soon get used to that and in a short time will have forgotten that the post office was ever located on Granite street.

EDITORIAL COMMENTS.

Here is a paragraph from the Boston Record: "The $1000 stamps in Boston are not few. I find, at least, crease in the commercial failures have specimens that will bring that price easily. The stamp held at $2000 Frank Brown showed me. It is the issue by Alexandria, Ill., in 1843. There are only five in existence, I believe."

There are collectors of first editions of rare books, and of "old masters" in paintings and sculpture, and of magnificent tapestries, and these things bring great prices. They are beautiful, the are ornamental, they make a room worth while; in themselves they deserve the money paid for them. But what do you really think of a man in a world full of beautiful art who will pay $1000, and all that um represents in hard work and trials and troubles, just for a little mite of a stamp of no sentimental associations, of no beauty of no grace in a room or building, and will pay it merely because the little stamp has few brothers in the world?

Why not pay $1000 for an old shoe because it is so queerly broken or patched or mended that it has no prototype in the world? One scheme would be as sensible as the other.—Brockton Enterprise.

The signs of improvement in financial and trade conditions in the principal business centres of the United States continue to make bankers and merchants more hopeful every day. Credit and confidence are being gradually established on a firmer basis.

All reports concur in stating that in the prominent industries the progress is steady and naturally slow, but along very safe and satisfactory lines. There has been a gradual defour; the collectors assert that they indicating that the effects of the financial depression of the last year are passing away, which of course aids in increasing the general volume of business.

In the stock markets there has been so much buying outright of small lots of bonds and stocks that there is not so much evidence as formely of big deals, corners and starting fluctuations for purely speculative purposes. The small purchasers have simply laid aside their securities as an investment and are not making any noise in the market.

It is observed that much of the business in bonds has represented a conservative sort of speculation, but in addition to this kind of operations there has also been a genuine buying movement for the account of institutions and individuals who have abiding faith in the permanent investment value of high grade American railway mortgages. Moreover the first-class industrials have not been neglected.—Boston Globe.

The ceremonies at Hampton Roads Monday upon the return of the battleship fleet were brilliant and impressive—most properly so. The popular demonstration supplied a background of enthusiasm for the formal official reception in which the President took part as the foremost figure in the most spectacular incident of his term of office.

The welcome home of this fleet is a hearty recognition of its notable achievement, more generous and satisfactory because its mission has been one of peace instead of war. The battleships have circumnavigated the globe, covering in their cruise 42,300 miles. They have demonstrated not only the radius within which our naval power can be efficient for protection or for defence, but the stability and the capacity of the units making up this vast aggregation of naval strength. Not a serious accident has marred the course of this long voyage, and the vessels arrive back at the point from which they started 14 months ago as fit for service as when they set out.

It is a performance unparalleled in the world's annals. But having done it once, it is safe to predict that the United States navy will not be sent out to do it again. The cost of this excursion is very great. The bill for coal alone, burned in the furnaces of these great ships, will amount to millions of dollars. The subsistence of some 15,000 officers and men for more than a year is an item of large proportions.

It is to be considered, of course, that the expense of keeping these ships in commission on their home stations would have mounted to high figures, but nothing in comparison with that which has been incurred in this extraordinary service.

This voyage will not be repeated. But it has served its purpose and the battleship fleet is welcome home again. —Boston Post.

OLD CAPEN HOMESTEAD.

Effort Being Made to Induce Heirs to Buy It.

An effort is being made by Edward W. Capen of Wollaston to rally the heirs of the Capen family to the rescue of their historic home on Washington street, opposite Melville avenue, Dorchester.

The house, which is the second oldest in New England, was commenced between 1630 and 1638, soon after the arrival of the colonists under Rev. John White, so often called the "father of the colony," and a few days ago it looked as if nothing would prevent its being torn down immediately.

The place was recently sold to W. H. Crosby, who owns considerable land in the vicinity and it was his intention to tear down the house and divide the land which goes with it, into 16 building lots for apartment houses. Many protests came in, but none availed until John W. Dunlop, a real estate man also, came to him and asked that he desist his murderous intentions for a few weeks until the heirs of old Barnard Capen could get together and talk to him about buying the place. Crosby being in a liberal frame of mind, agreed to do this, and now it all depends on whether the Capens will stand by the old homestead.

This is the only hope, because none of the various historical societies in the state intend to preserve the house that was built to withstand attacks by Indians.

The Dorchester Historical society already has a home of its own, the old Blake house which it had moved to Edward Everett square, and the society is in no condition to make any further expenditures of historic houses, no matter how antique and historic they may be.

The Sons of the Revolution have no particular interest in the house except to say, "it is too bad if it cannot be preserved."

The Massachusetts Historical society the Bostonian Society and the Society of Colonial Wars are all much in the same position.

With the exception of one year the homestead has, up to a short time ago, been in possession of the Capen family.

The west end was built first, one side of the original building showing an arrangement whereby the inmates could better protect themselves from the tribes of Indians. Several arrows sent into the early New England home have been found by the Capen family from time to time when repairs have been made in the house.

Inside the house the ceilings are very low, that in the kitchen being scarcely six feet above the floor, making it impossible for a tall man to step about in comfort. The parlor has one of the prettiest colonial corner closets in existence.

WEYMOUTH

With the arrival of the fleet comes home two of our Weymouth boys Fred Vinal and Mr. Hahn.

The First Baptist church was filled Sunday evening with a congregation which had gathered to hear the story of the life and conversion of George Attwood the clown who was converted at the recent revival in Boston. Mr. Attwood gave an interesting account of his life and how while under the influence of liquor he drifted into one of Dr. Chapman's meetings.

Charles Price and Mrs. Charles Hollis sang solos and at the close of his address Mr. Attwood sang "Where is my wandering boy tonight" the congregation joining in the chorus.

As is their usual costom the members of the South Shore Commandery Knights Templars celebrated Washington's Birthday with a banquet, entertainment and dance at Masonic hall.

Mrs. Susie A. Sanborn of Chelsea has been spending a few days with Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Perry.

The Ladies Social Circle of the Universalist church opened its annual fair at Lincoln hall last evening. The handsomely decorated booths and tables were in charge of the young ladies of the church. The entertainment was the rustic drama "Old Acre Folks" with the following cast: Lyman C. Williams, Carrie S. Robinson, Franklin P. Whitten, F. Adelaide McCarthy, Joseph W. Blanchard, Alice M. Nash, Mrs. Bessie B. Vinton, Edwin Davis, Harold Hyland and Joseph B. Vinal.

This evening the cantata "A Garden of Singing Flowers" will be the attraction.

Ex-representative James Carey of Haverhill, gave an address on "Socialism" at engine hall Monday evening under the auspices of the Weymouth Socialist club. Rev. William Hyde who has met Mr. Carey in joint debate of socialism a number of times in this and other places kindly consented to preside over the meeting.

The socialists and republicans have a full ticket in the field for town officers and there are three candidates running on nomination papers. John F. Reardon who has served the past three years on the school committee is a candidate for re-election. John B. Whelan is a candidate for the office of tax collector and Abbott Healey for selectman.

Today is Ash Wednesday the beginning of Lent. Services were held at the church of the Sacred Heart this morning and will be held this evening at that church and at Trinity Episcopal church.

CRETIC GOES ASHORE TWICE

First Strikes on Sandy Shore, Second Time on a Ledge

WAS IN DANGEROUS POSITION

Big White Star Liner Had No Wireless Apparatus and Summoned Help by Aid of Rockets and Whistles—Finally Drawn Off by Five Tugs—Was Late In Reaching Boston From Naples—Has Many Passengers

Hull, Mass., Feb. 24.—Extricating herself from the sandy shore of Georges' Island, in Boston harbor, only to run upon the more dangerous rocks of Centurion ledge, the White Star liner Cretic, Naples for Boston, was in a positon early today that might easily prove disastrous.

Loaded well down with freight and 1195 persons, the great steamer lay amidships upon the ledge, and although she ran up previous to high tide, it was believed that the five tugs which had been sent to her assistance would prove inadequate to draw her off.

The steamer's difficulties appeared to be the result of trouble with her steering apparatus, and the general opinion among observers on shore was that she had lost her rudder. The life saving crews from the Stony Point and Point Allerton stations went to her assistance at the appearance of the first danger signals, several hours before midnight.

The Cretic was steaming up the harbor shortly after 10 o'clock last night, apparently looking for an anchorage, when her steering gear suddenly became disabled and three successive rockets signalled to the life savers that the great steamer was ashore. At that time the Cretic had run up on the shores of Georges' Island and it was not a very difficult matter for the steamer to muster her great engines and draw off from the land.

Without the help of the steering gear, however, she was helpless, and in trying to back out from Georges' Island the Cretic ran up on the far more treacherous rocks of Centurian ledge, about one-half mile east of the island. Before the tugs had attempted to pull her off she had run up on the rocks nearly to amidships, and with the wind blowing a gale her position was an exceedingly dangerous one.

The officials at Fort Warren, located on Georges' Island, caused the great searchlights of the fort to be turned on the steamer so that the life savers might be guided in their work.

The Cretic was drawn off this morning by five tugs which went to her assistance. She headed for quarantine. Whether the steamer sustained any damage is unknown.

Red rockets flaring in the darkness and shrieks of big siren whistles were the first notification that marine observers had of the danger that threatened the vessel.

The Cretic, unlike the Republic, is not equipped with wireless, and the first call for assistance that reached this point came from Fort Warren a few minutes after the rockets had been observed.

The Stony Beach life saving crew got out their big surf boat, and with a crew of five men, Captain Sparrow in charge, was soon heading in the direction of the helpless steamer to render assistance.

Boston was called up and the steamship officials notified of her position. While tugs were hurrying down Boston harbor, and the life savers were making strenuous efforts to get alongside, it could be seen from shore that an effort was being made on board to get the vessel off.

The Cretic was due in Boston yesterday but had apparently encountered much bad weather on her trip across, and it was after dark when she passed in by Point Allerton. The wind at that time was blowing from the southeast, but was far from being regarded as dangerous to navigation. A drizzling rain fell and the night was very dark, but no person on shore here, who observed the progress of the big vessel, had any idea that she would soon call assistance.

Joker Causes Revivalists to Make Hasty Exit From a Church

Smyrna, Del., Feb. 24.—While an exhorter at a revival meeting in a church here was picturing the torments of the damned, a fantastic face appeared at a window, causing a panic among the worshippers, and they fled from the building in alarm.

It developed that a practical joker carved a head out of a pumpkin, placed a lighted candle in it and held the figure up at the window.

MARCH MAGAZINES.

"A Knight Errant in Broadway" in March Lippincott, is the story of a certain Englishman's perfidy when he took root in Wall street. This is only incidental, however, to the central characters, a bonny English girl of mettle and a young American who has red blood enough to rise above his early environments, which threaten to suck him down. The story is full of action in present-day affairs and quite characteristic of Mr. Holland's best style.

There are some wonderfully fine short stories. "As Played by the Orchestra," by Marion Hill, is a theatrical story on new and original lines. It deals with a troupe of playerfolk doing "one-night stands" about the country. "Being Nice," by Dorothea Deakin, is a delightful story of a prankish girl. "Miss Tooker's Wedding Gift," by John Kendrick Bangs, is a sprightly story which incidentally reveals some unique publishing methods.

To "top off with," there is "Walnuts and Wine," the famous humorous department. The March Lippincott's bears the guinea stamp.

"Lincoln and Grant" by General Horace Porter is the leading article of a series in the March National that adds new lustre to our Lincoln heritage. A new serial, "The Adventures of Floyd Ireson," by H. C. Gauss, is a strenuous story of the simple fisher-folk of Marblehead. It grips the heart; you can hardly wait till it sweeps finally to its grand finale.

"With Taft in the Southland" is written in Joe Mitchell Chapple's "Happy Habit" way. The reader could not have personally gone with Mr. Taft on this Southern tour and received a more intimate conception of the President-elect than Mr. Chapple gives in his description.

"The Bridging of Space" by Garnault Agassiz is a timely and thorough article on wireless telegraphy, telephone and telepost.

"Affairs at Washington" are as varied and vital as the federal legislation and the localities and men of which and of whom it discourses. To do this in a chatty, letter- writing way each "revolving moon" is one of the distinguished achievements of Joe Chappue's National Magazine.

The ring of steel, the swish of the hockey club and all the delights of the healthy and vigorous winter sport of Ice Hockey are contained in the very attractive front cover page, in colors, of the February American Boy.

The contents of this issue are not only particularly varied but of especial timeliness. A fine serial entitled "In Old Shiawassee," by John T. McIntyre, telling of the experiences or a pioneer boy in Michigan, starts in this issue, and "Frontier Boys on the Overland Trail" is continued with increasing interest.

The final chapters of "That Dillingham Boy" are given. Among the many fine short stories are: "Walter Ramsey's Valentine," telling of a boy's heroism in the face of great danger; "The Hockey Championship" being the account of a great contest. "Yellow Tail, the Siskiyon Puma," is a thrilling story of a hunt among the mountains of California.

Then there are interesting and instructive articles on Ice Hockey, Washington, Philately, How to Make Garden, Lights, Poultry Keeping, Canine Pets for Boys, and many others.

The many practical departments will please every boy with a hobby, and the result of an interesting Gardening contest is also given, and in addition there are over 90 illustrations. $1.00 a year. —The Sprague Publishing Co., Detroit, Mich.

Following is a list of a few leading articles in the Technical World for March:

"Who Owns the Earth?" "Looting the Forests" by Henry M. Hyde.
"Shortcutting the Atlantic Shoreline" by William Atherton Du Puy.
"New Home of Mr. Taft" by Newton Forest.
"Nothing Wrong at Panama" by Roy Crandall.
"What One Acre Will Do" by F. G. Moorhead.
"Marvels in Modern Surgery" by C. F. Carter.
"Catching Butterflies by the Ton" by Dr. Alfred Grandenwitz.
"Pictures That Speak" by P. Harvey Middleton.
"Making Better Stuff to Breathe" by H. G. Hunting.
"Copper Sheets and Wire Direct from Raw Ore" by F. A Talbot.
"Curious Automobile Features" by William Walsh.
"The Flip-Flap," A New Sensation by Fritz Morris.
and 20 Other Articles with 130 Illustrations.

In Everybody's Magazine, "The Stock Yards of New York" by John Parr. "The Poison of the Street" brought forth more comment than any article published since Lawson days. It showed up the tricks of the brace game that Wall Street allows to be played by the relentless brigands who give it its bad name.

There will be another article in April—watch for it! And we want every reader of this sheet, be he editor or layman, whether he has "played the market" and lost, or won—or never played at all—to join us in pressing the warfare far into the territory of a common, ever-present foe.

Other good things in the March Everybody's:

"Woman's Only Business" by Eleanor Hallowell Abbott; "As to Ourselves" by Dr. William Hanna Thomson; "Stalking the Biggest of Big Game" by Richard Washburn Child; "The Need of Change" by Julian Street and "The Title Market" by Emily Post.

Battleship Fleet Had a Stormy Run From Gibraltar

MANY HAVE BEGUN COALING

Departure of Large Number of Enlisted Men Whose Terms of Service Have Expired—Loaded Down With Luggage, a Large Part of Which Consists of Souvenirs Gathered In Various Parts of the World

Fort Monroe, Va., Feb. 24.—The bad weather which greeted the battleship fleet at the Virginia capes Monday, the worst the sixteen ships have experienced in any port visited on their way around the world, continues. The ships at anchor pay little heed to the blow, but the little steam launches running between ship and shore are buffeted by wind and waves.

Nearly one-half of the ships have begun coaling in spite of the weather. All of the vessels came in with bunkers nearly empty after the long and stormy run from Gibraltar. It is hoped that the last of the ships will have been coaled by Saturday in order that the men may parade in Norfolk on that day. This will be the first shore leave the men will have. They are being kept aboard ship now in anticipation of an inspection of each ship by Admiral Sperry and an inspection board from among the officers of the fleet. It is possible, however, that the complete inspection may not be made until after the ships have been distributed to the navy yards.

The battleship Vermont is still in quarantine, owing to there being a case of smallpox among the crew. The sick man was taken to the naval hospital at Norfolk and most of the officers and members of the crew have been vaccinated anew.

One of the most interesting sights Tuesday was the departure of a large number of enlisted men whose terms of service had expired. As they left the side of the vessel on which they had served they were given lusty cheers by the sailors. Still attired in their sailor togs the men reached the government dock loaded down with all manner of luggage. Many of them had their belongings and souvenirs of the long trip stowed away in canvas bags, while others were equipped with suitcases. The latter were invariably plastered all over with labels from foreign hotels and transportation companies.

The first class liberty men of the fleet made many side excursions from the various ports visited, and they were also entertained at the best hotels. Their uniforms were respected by every nation. On these visits the men accumulated many of the traveling labels. The bluejackets brought home all manner of souvenirs from every country visited.

A number of the sailors who left Tuesday were long enlistment men who undoubtedly will come back into the service before three months have elapsed. They have saved considerable money on the trip and are anxious to go home and tell of their experiences.

Last night there was a ball at the Chamberlin. Entertaining for the officers will continue almost incessantly while the ships are here, and the hospitalities ashore will be returned aboard ship as soon as coaling and inspection days are over.

SIX "ARRANT" REBELS

Sperry Tells Southerners He Has Them on His Personal Staff

Richmond, Feb. 24.—"We welcome you to the hearts of a people who yield to no one in devotion to the American navy or in loyalty to 'our' flag."

This sentiment, expressed at a luncheon in the Jefferson Hotel by Mayor Richardson in welcoming Rear Admiral Sperry, Rear Admiral Wainwright and fifty-four of the officers under the former's command to this city, found echo in words of Sperry, who said:

"On the world's cruise I have had about me a splendid corps of officers. In my personal staff of seven men, six of them are commonly known in the ships as 'arrant' rebels. Georgia, Florida, South Carolina, all are represented among my personal aides, while my old sour apple state of Connecticut is left out entirely. With these men at the wheel, is it any wonder that we have gotten here and have gotten here on time?"

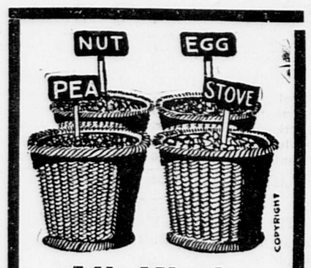

The luncheon, at which men of all walks of civil life, of all ages and of unyielding loyalty to the cause of Lee and Jefferson, fraternized in staunch fellowship with the fighting men of the navy, was given by the Richmond chamber of commerce. Sperry received an ovation. He pointed out that the voyage around the world was no junket.

"While we have been encircling the globe," he said, "we have doubled the score of last year's target practice. The fleet's efficiency has increased 25 per cent by economy of coal consumption, due to hard and faithful work of men below decks. When a contest comes a navy must know how to get there, and how to stay there when it gets there."

WELL KNOWN BUSINESS MAN.

Hilay Berger Will Soon Remove to Lawrence.

One of Quincy's well known business men is soon to leave the Granite City and take up his residence in the mill city of Lawrence. Hilay Berger of 98 Franklin street has sold his dry-goods business to Harry J. Paul of Boston who will take charge about the first week in March.

Mr. Berger is well-known not only among the Hebrew population, but also among the Gentile residents of the city. He has been a resident of Quincy for many years having come here in 1893. He is a naturalized citizen and has cast his vote every election day for the last ten years.

When Mr. Berger first came to this city he started out on a small scale, with only a basket. In a year he had a team and carried a large stock of dry-goods. In 1906 he opened the Modern Home Furnishing store in the Adams building, but gave it up after about two years. Since then he has continued on his team.

Mr. Berger has been connected with many societies while a resident of Quincy. Among them being the Congregation of Arath Achuim, of which he was treasurer for several years. During his term as treasurer the Jewish synagogue on School street was purchased by the congregation.

He is also a member of the Pride of Quincy lodge 443 I. O. B. A. and is one of its ex-presidents. He has twice been treasurer of the ball committee. Besides these societies Mr. Berger also belongs to King Solomon lodge 236 I. O. O. F. and to Quincy lodge 943 B. P. O. E. Mr. Berger is married and has two children.

HOLSTEIN CATTLE.

Holstein-Friesian cattle have become widely known among dairymen because of their extreme profit making capacity and are widely spread over Continental Europe. They are supposed to haxe ariginated in Holland, where they have been bred for at least 2,000 years as dairy cattle.

The moist lowlands of Holland produce abundant feed, and the inherited skill of the Hollander coming through many generations of people who have devoted themselves entirely to the care of cows, with a process of selection of the superior cattle, aided by Government regulation as to breeding, have produced the most wonderful and useful breed of the world.

The cattle breeders of other countries have recognized this, and have used the Holland cows in building up such well-known races as the Ayrshire and Shorthorn, while Continental Europe, from the Arctic Circle down, possesses offshoots of the Holland breed, all of which, under various names, are uniformly animals of a strong and vigorous character, yielding largely of milk and fattening into profitable and excellent meat.

The size of the breed is large. The cows, properly reared, weigh at maturity well toward 1,400 pounds, and average from 8,000 to 12,500 pounds of milk, and 300 to 550 pounds of butter per year.

The quality of the milk, related to butter fat, shows an average of about 3 1-4 per cent. fat. The other solids are about 9 per cent., and are uniformly present to this extent, making a milk exceedingly desirable for liquid consumption or for butter or cheese production. It is a milk which does not readily separate its fat as does that of breeds whose milk characteristically shows larger fat globules, and it is, therefore, the best possible milk for shipping purposes.

Of the 1,994 Holstein cows tested by State experiment stations during the year ending May 15, 1908, the average seven-day yield was 13,61 pounds of fat from 393 pounds of milk, showing a fat percentage of 3.46.

Holstein cattle are by no means dainty in their choice of food from calfhood up. They freely consume all sorts of roughage. They possess vigorous constitutions and are hardy under all conditions of climate; free from disease, and breed with great regularity, producing very large and strong calves, which are raised without difficulty.

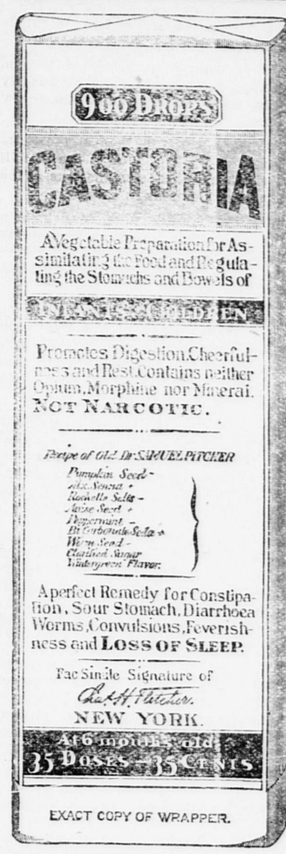

The nearness in composition to the human mother's milk has led generally to the use of Holstein milk for infants, and the supplying of pure Holstein milk for this purpose has become a distinct feature of the city milk trade.

LOCALS

There will be a lull in social events from now on, for Lent begins today.

The class of 1904 and 1905 Quincy High school will hold a joint reunion tonight in Electa hall.

Francis E. Muller, an eminent Boston attorney, will address the members of the Quincy Council, K. of C., on Friday night.

William A. Carey of South street returned Tuesday from New York City, where he spent the holiday with relatives.

The gale of last night blew down the flag pole from the top of the building occupied by the National Sportsman club of West Quincy.

Lawrence Moran of Washington street and James Mahon of Penn's hill left Boston this morning on the Melrose. Both were home over the holiday.

The no-school signal was fifteen minutes late in sounding this morning so that many of the children were well on their way toward school when they heard the whistle.

The regular weekly cribbage tournament of the Washington Social club was held Tuesday evening in the rooms of the club on Washington street. Some exciting games were played during the evening.

The committee of the Houghs Neck Associates appointed to secure a suitable lot for an eight room school house, reports that it has five fine lots. The committee was appointed at the suggestion of the Ledger.

Some of the post office clerks were noticed carrying things over to the new building this morning. The new quarters will be open for business next Monday. Tomorrow there will be a private inspection and reception and on Friday a public inspection.

At Bethany church this evening the Rev. C. F. Hill Crathern of South Braintree will give a lecture on "The Place of Great Men in World Movements" before the Bethany Bible Reading club. The lecture will be of great interest as comparison will be drawn between the leaders of Israel and other great ancient and modern leaders.

Ash Wednesday was celebrated in all the Catholic churches this morning. Services will be held tonight and every Wednesday and Friday night during Lent. The Wednesday evening services will consist of a sermon and benediction, and the services on Friday evenings will consist of the stations of the cross, rosary and benediction.

The concert for children and young students to be given Saturday in Colonial hall at 3.45 P. M. by Miss Spear with Mrs. Chandler W. Smith at the piano and several other solists and orchestra assisting is attracting many adults as well as little people. The ushers will be Miss Edna Hammock, Miss Emma Harris, Miss Beatrice Morrison and Miss Carlina Walker.

The Rebekah Associates will hold a dance tonight in Faxon hall. Dancing will be in order from eight to twelve.

Mrs. John F. Donovan of Watson Terrace iwll entertain the Neighborly whist club at her home tomorrow night.

A hearing will be held at the State House, Friday, on the bill to eliminate party designations at the municipal elections in Quincy.

Quincy Pickwick club is to have a a theatre party next week Wednesday evening when members will enjoy seeing Fritzi Scheff at the Colonial theatre, Boston.

Another "Kommers" is booked as the next attraction of the Wollaston Unity club at its meeting on Friday, March 5th, at the Unitarian vestry. Two have already been held with great success.

The contract fo rthe addition to the Lincoln school building provides that the work shall be done by union labor such parts of the work is unionized. It also provides for the completion of the addition July 1, 1909.

The fancy dancing of little Constance Fryer of Edison street was one of the features of the holiday entertainment of the Cochato club of Braintree. Constance did the butterfly dance and was very graceful and clever.

A successful musicale was given Tuesday night in the parish house of Christ church. Those who took part were Miss Lucie Newcomb pianist, Mrs. Read of Providence, soprano, Miss Carlson, contralto, and Mr. Flieferd, violinist.

NEW THEATRE FOR QUINCY.

At last Quincy is to have an up to date permanent attraction, in what is claimed by the State authorities as the best and safest place of amusement in the State of Massachusetts, Quincy Music hall.

Every Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Saturday evening and Saturday afternoons for the entire season, the very latest and newest products of Moving Pictures and high class specialities, will be given for the small price of ten cents, lasting two hours.

Mr. W. E. Greene, who is the largest importer and renter of moving pictures in New England, will give Quincy nothing but clean and wholesome performances.

The first date will be Monday night, March 1st, at eight o'clock the doors opening at 7.30 and thereafter Mondays, Tuesdays and Wednesdays, Saturday nights, and Saturday afternoons, with the exceptions of a few dates that have been booked for dancing and which will be anounced later.

This is an enterprise coming into our city and which should be patronized by the best people in Quincy, and we certainly hope to see every performance well attended.

A safe and commodious asbestos fire-proof booth is now being installed, under the supervision of the State authorities, which is proof against any possible danger from fire.

TODAY'S COURT.

Louis Washanan was arraigned for allowing a dog to be unrestained at Holbrook. Case continued until next Wednesday.

QUINCY WOMEN'S CLUB.

Unusual interest was taken in this week's meeting of the Quincy Women's club as it was the occasion of the first dramatic performance since the formation of the club. To have the advantage of scenery, stage and seating capacity the meeting was held in First church chapel. Soon after one, club members began to gather, and by two o'clock there was a good sized assembly.

A half hour's concert by the Edgecomb trio; Anna B. Eichorne, violinist, Ethel E. Edgecomb, cellist and Marion C. Whiton, pianist, from two until half past, was much enjoyed as these ladies not only play delightfully but are particularly pleasing in their selections.

At half past two a ten minute business meeting was held with the usual reports and announcements of various chairmen.

But good music and interesting business was as nothing compared with the pleasant anticipations of the play and there was a rustle of excitement when the curtains rolled aside disclosing an attractive room in the chateau d'Autreval near Lyons in October of 1817 wherein was to be enacted "The Ladies' Battle" or "A Duel in Love," a comedy in three acts translated from the French of M M. Scribe and Legouve.

The cast was:

Baron De Montrichard—Mrs. Walter E. Simmons.

Gustave De Grignon—Miss Edith Randall.

Henri De Flavigneul—Mrs. George E. Badger.

Officer of Dragoons—Mrs. Charles R. Safford.

Two Dragoons—Mrs. Chandler W. Smith, Mrs. Edward E. Jameson.

Servant—Miss Elizabeth Hubbard.

Countess D'Autreval—Miss Mollie Brown.

Leonie De La Villegontier— Mrs. Dexter E. Wadsworth.

It was a most finished production from begining to end with every detail perfect as to setting, costuming and acting. The furnishings were loaned by Mrs. George W. Morton, president of the club, and arranged by Miss Etta M. Prescott. Mrs. Isabelle Davis was stage director and manager and had also been of great help during the final rehearsals.

As for the actors, they were capital, the winsome ladies, gallant gentlemen and stern dragoons each and all were perfect in their parts, receiving applause and a flatering curtain call at the end of the play.

Miss Mollie Brown was the star and she certainly is more than an amateur for in every line and motion there was action that was expressive and convincing. She was sweet, facinating and girlish, winning merited praise and applause. If Miss Brown as aunt was young and attractive she had a close rival in her niece as acted by Mrs. Wadsworth, who was girlishly sweet; an artless innocent girl, lovable and loving. Although rivals in love the two ladies were fair to each other and all ended well.

The hero, Henri de Flavigeul, was acted by Mrs. George L. Badger and as the servant in disguise or the much sought for nobleman was cleverly done. The part was long but well sustained throughout by Mrs. Badger.

Miss Randall as Gustave de Grignon, put considerable life into the part and made a decided hit, receiving with Miss Brown a curtain call at the end of the first act.

Mrs. Simmons in make-up and acting was good as she always is in whatever she undertakes. Although suffering from a slight illness she carried her part though with much credit.

Mrs. Safford as officer of the dragoons was most effective and although having little to say carried off the part well as did Miss Hubbard as the servant and Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Jameson as dragoons.

All in all it was one of the best amateur performances given in Quincy for some time, judged from a woman's standpoint, for of course no men were there to pass judgment, although many wanted to be. One however sent a sweet reminder which was appreciated by one of the stars.

Mrs. W. H. Doble and Miss Alice Keith Prescott were at the door, Mrs. Harry L. Rice, Mrs. N. S. Hunting and Mrs. Henry Wright ushered.

NEIGHBORING.

The midwinter meeting of the State Federation at Medford on Feb. 19th was of more than usual interest to club women and there was a large attendance. The main topic was the desirability of recreation of all kinds as a benefit to the physical condition of young and old.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED.
by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

THE
Young Men's Christian Association
OF QUINCY, MASS.
(Legal Title Incorporated 1892.)
The Directors of the YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION of Quincy, with a firm faith in the great value of the work which is being done for the young men and boys of our city, make their appeal for donations and bequests toward paying the mortgage indebtedness on the new Association Building. When the building is free from debt it will serve as an Endowment, as there is a goodly income from the dormitories.
Should the Donor prefer, such sum as might be given could be used as an Endowment for an educational class or classes, the Boys Department, or as a special fund in other ways, and could be designated with the name of the Donor.
The Treasurer, WILLIAM F. CUMMINGS, 7 Clive street, Quincy, or the General Secretary, ERNEST S. GAY, will be happy to answer inquiries

OUR HOSPITAL
(Legal Title: City Hospital of Quincy)
INCORPORATED 1889
The Trustees of the City Hospital of Quincy earnestly appeal for donations and bequests for the Endowment fund. This now amounts to over $60,000 but a fund of at least $100,000 is urgently needed
Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000) will endow a Free Bed to which such name may be given as the Donor may desire, but any sum for this noble institution which stands ready to serve us all in the hour of need, will be most gratefully received.
The Secretary, TIMOTHY REED, Adams St. Quincy, or the Treasurer RICHARD D. CHASE Savings Bank Building, Quincy, will be very glad to confer with any one or to answer any inquiries.

but I do not think you will find that this is a general practice, it may be done where a customer asks for accommodation and has not security at the time to back it up, and the bank rather than place him in an embarrassing position by refusing him, takes over some contract by assignment, as additional security.

I am pleased to note that you state that a progressive element has taken charge of your Association, and I trust you may be able to accomplsh results. Shall be pleased to give you any information at any time.

With kind regards, I remain,
Very truly yours,

Mr. John R. Richards, Quincy, Mass.
Boston, Mass., Feb. 20, 1909.

Friend John:—Your letter of the 16th was duly received and contents noted. It is certainly time that something was being done in Quincy, and if the new officials get the proper support and interest of the manufacturers at large a great deal can be accomplished.

The matter of rates and facilities is the all-important subject for any product, and it is becoming more and more realized by the granite men that they have been sitting back and allowing the railroad companies to establish such rates and regulations as they saw fit. There was a time when it was rather difficult to reach them on such matters but it is somewhat different now—they are amenable to the Interstate Commerce Commission and have to come to time when a case is presented and properly established against them.

Take the rate you mention—Barre to the Kansas point, 58 cents; while the Quincy rate to the same point is 70 cents there cannot be but a few miles difference from either place, and if a number of specific instances of this kind were found—and they undoubtedly could be—such would warrant a petition to the Commission for a ruling. The principal trouble is that the interested parties have heretofore failed to take advantage of the machinery provided to regulate such things, and the other side like a bad schoolboy, has continued what they apparently had the liberty or opportunity to do.

The rate from Quincy to Boston would rightly be considered an unjust one but it is not hard to find the reason for it. By it they calculate to divert tonnage from water and steam lines starting from Boston.

Speaking of water front, it is astonishing that so many miles of it are lying idle around our town; it is still more astonishing when we take into consideration that contractors on the water front down the East coast can freight their product to New York and Philadelphia at from 50 cents to $1.00 per ton, both rough and dressed granite. The trouble seems to be with Quincy that every one is too much interested in his own particular affairs and not enough for the general welfare. It seems possible to me that could the granite men get together and reach some conclusion as to the tonnage that passes through New York, that some carrying line could be established by water which would give low rates and good service; there is nothing that will improve conditions in railroad matters quite so much as good, keen competition.

Of course no boat line would consider this proposition unless you had some figures for them upon which to judge the matter. It is needless to say that every business man in Quincy should be interested in the granite business inasmuch as it may be considered the sole support of the city; and I think that if a Committee such as you mentioned considered the matter properly something could be evolved to boom business, and that something, in my idea, would be any thing in the form of publicity.

The manufacturers' trade paper advertisements do not amount to anything—it is just so much money given away. I think it would be more for their benefit if they would get together, put their hands in their pockets for a few dollars—perhaps one-tenth part of what they pay yearly to trade papers— have a pamphlet published giving a short history of the City—both historically and physiologically, giving a list of its manufacturers, also your quarries, and describe the different grades of stock gotten out in the various ones.

If I judge correctly conditions in the quarry line have improved considerably of late; there seems to be a good many quarries in operation now, that formerly were shut down, consequently conditions have improved in the matter of making prompter shipments, and I think in all honesty you could make a very good representation of this feature before the trade throughout the States.

This policy I am aware is pursued by a great many of the Western growing communities where there are industries. It not only advertises their business but adds to their population and city wealth.

In closing would just say that there is nothing to be gained by sitting down like "Macawber waiting for something to turn up," and undoubtedly the granite manufacturers of Quincy have been sitting down long enough. She has more reason to hustle now than ever, in view of the fact that quarries are being developed in nearly every State where granite exists; consequently native granite is being more and more used.

Yours for Betterment.

DECIDE ON SCHOOLHOUSE SITE

Houghs Neck Associates Have One All Picked Out

LARGE DELEGATION TO ATTEND HEARING AT CITY HALL

Other Important Matters Discussed At Regular Meeting

The Hough's Neck Associates held their regular bi-monthly meeting at the club-house, Wednesday night. Though the weather was rather bad, many members attended. President A. F. Baird presided.

The following committee's reports were accepted as progressing, gas, express, ways and means, auditors, school, supper, streets, sewer, garbage, house, janitor and treasurers.

A letter was read from one of the larger Boston stores which granted the associates their request for better express service. The reading of this letter was received with joy, as the associates realized the great victory won by them. On the strength of the letter the secretary was instructed to get an interview from other big stores for a possible chance of getting better express services from them.

The matter of a school house site was discussed at great length by many members. It was voted that the associates as a body agree on one lot and that lot is on the Cavanagh farm. This lot is located at the junction of Sea street and Manet avenue. It was also voted that a large delegation be sent to the council chamber to attend the public hearing Monday night.

The committee in charge of the Ladies night reported that considerable money was left over.

The ways and means committee reported that good progress had been made in the rehearsals of the minstrel show. The treasurer reported that he had started a building fund.

TENDERED A SURPRISE PARTY.

Friends of Miss Anna McGuinness Present her with a Ring.

One of the most enjoyable surprise parties of the year was tendered to Miss Anna McGuinness at her home Tuesday evening. Miss Anna Hennessy of Quincy in behalf of the company presented Miss McGuinness with a beautiful ring.

During the evening games were played and a light luncheon was served.

Solos were sung by Miss Helen McGuinness, Miss Alice Daley of Medford and Miss Mae Hennessy. Miss Helen McGuinness, Miss Jessie Kelman and William Claurity were in charge of the affair and much of the success is due to them. Among those present were: Richard Hennesy, Edward Clexton, Miss Mae Curley, Miss Marion Walsh, Miss Ama Regan, Miss Therasa Thonton, Joseph Capiferri, Charles O'Brien and many others from Malden, Braintree and Boston.

ON HAVERHILL'S NEW CHARTER.

City Solicitor Nichols of Haverhill to Address Board of Trade.

The Board of Trade has been fortunate in securing City Solicitor Nichols of Haverhill to speak on Haverhill's new city charter at the next meeting of the Board.

Haverhill is one of the first cities of this state to adopt a new charter providing for government by commission, and it will be interesting to learn how it has worked out, up to date.

The meeting will be held next Wednesday evening at the rooms of the Board in the Adams building and members are requested to invite their friends to be present.

RESIDENTS OF NEPONSET WANT HEARING CONTINUED

Question of Building New Bridge Across Neponset River Discussed at State House

A hearing on the matter of building a new bridge over the Neponset river to connect Quincy with Boston was held at the state house, Boston, this morning before the committee on Roads and Bridges.

The city of Quincy and Neponset was largely represented at the hearing those present from Quincy being: Mayor Shea, City Solicitor McAnarney, Senator Hultman, Representatives Thomas and Langelier, Pres. Hobbs of the City Council and Paul R. Blackmur, President of Citizens' Association, ex-Mayor John O. Hall, Herbert T. Whitman and Walter S. Pinkham.

The hearing was on the report of the Metropolitan Commission who were appointed by a special act of the legislature last year to investigate the needs of a new bridge.

Thomas M. Babson, corporation counsel of Boston was the first speaker. He said that it was agreed that this bridge ought to be rebuilt.

Under the general law the city of Quincy would have to pay one-half the cost, but the cities and towns south should pay part of the cost.

The proposition is that a resolve be reported for a commission to apportion the cost among the cities and towns to be benefited by the bridge

Mr. Babson said they would be as much benefited as Quincy. He said he did not know of any existing commissions on building bridges.

City Solicitor McAnarney said the position of the city of Quincy was that our end of the bridge is in a very fair condition. It is only the Boston portion that is unsafe. As far as Quincy is concerned its end could be repaired for $3,000. We agree that a broad bridge would not be a drawback. It comes to us however as a luxury.

He said there was no question but what the bridge was unsafe on the Boston end.

We do not want to stand in the way of a bridge providing it is recognized what that bridge will mean. It is the main thoroughfare for pleasure driving to the south shore. Barnstable and Plymouth counties and places north of Boston would be benefitted by those traveling to the south for pleasure.

Mr. McAnarney said the bridge should be built as a matter of development to these sections and the sections benefited should bear a portion of the expense.

He agreed that a commission should be appointed to consider the matter of apportioning the cost.

He said it would be a rank injustice to ask Quincy to come forward and pay half of the cost.

Mayor Shea said it was only fair that a commission be appointed before definite action is taken to build the bridge. He said we feel our portion of the present bridge is in fair condition and with an ordinary outlay will be good for 10 or 15 years.

Paul R. Blackmur president of the Citizens' Association said 600 feet of the bridge was in Quincy.

Quincy has to pay four-fifths of the expense of maintenance. He then cited the building of the Quincy Point bridge which was done by a special commission who apportioned the cost. It was important that this should be referred to a commission. It requires careful investigation as to who should pay the cost.

He said he believed that the Commonwealth should stand part of the expense also Norfolk and Plymouth counties and the street railway.

He said if the bridge is built under the general law Quincy would be called upon to pay a large share of the cost.

Senator Hultman agreed with the other speakers that it was desirable to have a commission. Our end of the present bridge is in fair shape.

It is the connecting link to the reservation at Nantasket. He thought the Highway Commission and Metropolitan Park Commission should consider the matter and apportion the cost.

Plymouth, Norfolk and Suffolk counties should be included.

Representative Thomas spoke along the same lines and favored a special commission.

John P. Riley, Matthew Cummings and others from Neponset favored the new bridge.

They also argued for a continance of the hearing that others from Neponset who were unable to be present today might be heard.

CHOIR GIVES CONCERT.

Interesting Program Rendered at Water Street Church.

A very pleasing concert was given Wednesday evening in the First Presbyterian church under the auspices of the choir. There were thirteen numbers on the program including, vocal solos, trio, cornet solo and readings by Mrs. A. Isabelle Davis and chorus singing by the choir. The selections by the choir were beautifully sung under the able leadership of Prof. M. McLeod of Boston. Mrs. D. Ross organist of the church presided at the organ.

Miss Belliveau was accompanied by Mrs. Thomas Milne at the piano, with violin obligato by Lawrence Sjelderck

The following program was given:

Chorus		By the Choir

HOLD ANNUAL REUNION.

The annual reunion of the classes of 1904 and 1905 of Quincy High school, was held Wednesday evening in Electa hall. Dancing was the main feature of the reunion, Merrill's orchestra furnishing the music. A large attendance was expected, but on account of the weather many stayed away.

The committee in charge of the affair was: Herbert Percival, chairman; Miss Gertrude Jones, secretary; Miss Marjorie Fay, treasurer; Wallace Bennett, Lawrence Allen, Willard Burke, Miss Gertrude Barber, Carl Gram, Miss Helen Rhines, Clark Boynton, Miss Annie Blacklock.

The Constipation Evil

IS RESPONSIBLE FOR MOST CASES OF PILES.

Constipation paralyzes the blood vessels of the lower bowel, and often causes piles. Women, and all other indoor workers, are the most frequent sufferers. But curing constipation alone won't cure piles. A special medicine is needed—internal treatment, to strengthen the flabby veins and start pure blood circulating.

Dr. Leonhardt's Hem-Roid is the only internal pile cure. Sold under guarantee. $1 at Clyde T. Cox's Quincy, Mass., or Dr. Leonhardt Co., Station B. Buffalo, N. Y. Write for booklet.

RECEPTION TO NEW PASTOR

Wollaston Baptist Church Welcomes Rev. J. E. Walther.

MANY LOCAL CHURCHES REPRESENTED BY THEIR MINISTERS.

Deacons And Their Wives Assist in Receiving the Guests.

A reception was tendered Wednesday evening to Rev. Joseph Walther, the new pastor of Wollaston Baptist church. The chapel was prettily decorated, so that it looked like the drawing room of a large mansion. The reception lasted from 7.30 to 10.

In the receiving line with Mr. and Mrs. Walther were Deacon and Mrs. George Brown, Deacon and Mrs. Herbert Bartlett, Deacon and Mrs. Charles C. Goodspeed, and Deacon and Mrs. J. E. Thomas.

The ushers were Charles Bailey, Edward Badger, Arthur Sparrow and Harry Burgess.

During the evening refreshments were served. The following committee had charge: Mrs. E. G. Gay, Mrs. A. H. Gould, Mrs. K. F. Harriman, Mrs. Harry Burgess, Mrs. J. A. Horton, Miss Charlotte Scarboro, and Mrs. E. J. Badger.

The pourers were Miss Marion Barker, Miss Edith F. Barker, Miss Anna Gould and Miss W. B. Church.

There were a large number present, including ministers and laymen from other local churches. Among others noticed were Rev. R. J. Davis pastor of the Calvary Baptist church, Rev. A. M. Thompson of the United Presbyterian church and Rev. E. A. Chase of the Wollaston Congregational.

RECEPTION AND ENTERTAINMENT

Wollaston Congregational Club Observes Ladies' Night.

Ladies night was observed by the members of the Wollaston Congregational club on Tuesday evening.

Preceding the entertainment an informal reception was held in the church during which organ selections were rendered by William Weston.

The evening opened with a short business meeting in charge of C. L. Seavey the vice president.

The resignation of the secretary N. R. Hoover, owing to his removal from Wollaston was read and accepted. R. B. Locke was elected to fill the vacancy.

The entertainment opened with a piano solo by William Weston, following which the speaker of the evening, Edwin D. Sibley of Somerville was introduced.

Mr. Sibley is the author of numerous short stories depicting life in New England.

During the evening he read many of these in such a realistic and humorous manner that the audience laughed and laughed again.

Intermingled with the stories were vocal selections by Mrs . Slade, accompanied by A. F. Schenkelberger on the flute and William Weston on the piano.

At the close of the evening refreshments were served by a committee composed of Messrs. Percy Hull and Ralph Blake and Misses Thomas, Francis Jones, Caroline Lewis, Lucy Chase, Edith Chapman and Helen Seavey.

FOR PRIVATE INSPECTION.

New Post Office Building to be Opened Tonight from Six to Ten.

A private inspection of Quincy's new post office building will be held tonight from 6 to 10 o'clock. Superintendent Hammond will be on hand to show, those having cards, through the building.

Post Master Mansfield of Boston and other post office and government officials will also be present.

Tomorrow, Friday the building will be open to the general public for inspection from 3 to 9 P. M. As this will probably be the only opportunity the public will have to inspect the building thoroughly a large number will doubtless take advantage of the opportunity offered them.

Mails will be dispatched and received at the new office commencing next Sunday evening.

How about that blizzard Mr. Weather man?

According to the New York wholesalers the hens are busy again. Tuesday 16,651 cases, or nearly 6,000,000 eggs arrived in that city.

The Brockton Enterprise says, "the Boston Post calls attention to a curious fact in the following paragraph: "When the orchestra played the 'Star Spangled Banner' at the children's celebration of Washington's birthday in the Old South, not one of the thousand present gave it recognition by rising. Later, in obedience to summons from the platform, the audience got on its feet to join in singing 'America.'

Should it be necessary to especially signal for anybody to rise in a public place when the national airs are played? They seem to do these things a little better abroad. Children especially should be drilled to pay some attention to this patriotic tribute, and should greet the first bars of the song by standing. It is worth while now and then to remember what country we are living in, and to act as though the knowledge pleased us."

We have often marvelled at lack of patriotism displayed in both children and "grown-ups," not only in this one particular thing, but more especially, in saluting the flag.

Take any parade and when "old glory" passes how many men and boys raise their hats?

And yet abroad in almost all of the large countries, when ever the flag is displayed off comes the hat or cap. A silent tribute to the emblem of the fatherland.

With the exception of the bill, providing that the mayor shall be made chairman of the school committee, the bill for legislation to provide for the elimination of party designations at all municipal caucuses and elections, is of the most importance to the citizens of Quincy. This bill which is to come up for a hearing tomorrow, if passed, means that hereafter a candidate for office, (whether it be mayor, council or school committee) will run as a citizen, with nothing on the ballot to show "how he was nominated or indicating his views or opinions."

It will also mean that in place of the joint party caucus now required by law, for the nomination of candidates for election to municipal offices that the city clerk shall call a caucus of all legal voters of each ward on the same date. At this caucus for nomination, the two persons receiving the highest number of votes will be the candidates and the only candidates whose names will be printed on the official ballots to be used at the election.

If the Legislature passes the necessary legislation the act will be submitted to the legal voters of the city for their acceptance at the next election, and, if accepted by a majority of the voters it will go into effect at once.

Although there appears to be little objection to the bill there seems to be some question, as to whether or not the candidate whose name comes first on the ballot, will stand any better showing than the man whose name is second on the list.

In the towns and cities where party designations have been eleminated, it is claimed that the position of a candidate's name on the ballot, makes no difference to the voters. They vote for the man they want regardless of where his name is placed.

For the past two or three years party lines have been loosely drawn at municipal elections in Quincy so that the bill if passed and eccepted will really make very little change in the present order of things.

RUSSIA'S HAND MAY BE FORCED

Pessimistic Feeling Over the Situation In the Balkans

DUMA LEADERS FEAR CONFLICT

Express Themselves as Convinced That War Is Inevitable—Berlin Admits That Situation Is Far From Being Clear—Uneasiness In France Over Germany Having Declined Overtures For Intervention

St. Petersburg, Feb. 25.—The pessimism with regard to the Balkan crisis is steadily deepening in diplomatic circles, where it is believed that Austrian action against Servia may be expected within a fortnight unless a solution to the present grave problem is soon arranged.

Foreign office officials state that Russia is not disposed to consider an invasion of Servia alone as a casus belli, but there is fear that the government's hand may be forced under such circumstances by popular feeling. The beginning of hostilities would throw thousands of Russian volunteers into the Servian ranks.

Duma leaders who visited the foreign office yesterday express themselves as convinced that war is inevitable. Information received from Kiev indicates that no military measures have yet been undertaken on the southwestern frontier, but all applications of officers for leave of absence have been refused and the Kiev department is ready for instant mobilization.

Russia the Key to the Situation

Berlin, Feb. 25.—It is admitted here that the Balkan situation is not clear and will remain clouded until those powers which, like France, are striving to maintain peace, make their voices heard at St. Petersburg and induce Russia to notify Belgrade that in the event of war Servia cannot rely upon either direct or indirect Russian support.

Whether Russia and the other powers will use their influence in peaceful support of Servia, it is believed, depends to a great extent upon their success in bringing the Servians to a calm attitude appropriate to the circumstances. The real key to the situation is, for the moment, Russia, whose decision is eagerly awaited.

Powers' Overtures Declined

Paris, Feb. 25.—The attitude assumed by Austria-Hungary and Russia in the difficulty between the former power and Servia is creating considerable uneasiness here. France is anxious to play the role of pacifier, but Germany having declined the French, British and Italian overtures for intervention at Belgrade, the French government has decided, in view of the attitude of Russia, to initiate no new action except with the complete approval of Russia and Great Britain.

Tension Is Dangerous

London, Feb. 25.—The British foreign office recognizes that an undue prolongation of the tension between Austria-Hungary and Servia is dangerous, but it is hopeful of an early relaxation in the situation. So far as is known officially here, Germany has not declined to participate in a joint action, and negotiations are still going on with the view of a proffer of good offices.

INCAPACITY CHARGED

Porto Ricans Ask President to Remove Judge From Office

San Juan, P. R., Feb. 25.—A resolution was introduced in the house of delegates urging President Roosevelt immediately to remove Judge Rodey of the United States district court. The resolution is based on declarations made at a legislative hearing of charges brought against Rodey of incapacity and ignorance of the old system of law.

Judge Rodey has taken action in the matter himself and has issued an order against those who have attacked him to show cause why they are not guilty of contempt.

Old Sea Fighter Dead

Washington, Feb. 25.—Rear Admiral Samuel R. Franklin, retired, died at his home in this city, aged 84. He was a native of Pennsylvania and retired in 1887. A large share of his forty-six years of service was passed at sea and included naval actions and operations in the Mexican and the Civil wars.

Mrs. Teal In the Tombs

New York, Feb. 25.—Mrs. Margaret Teal, charged with attempted subornation of perjury in connection with the Helen Kelley Gould-Frank J. Gould divorce action, was committed to the Tombs prison as the result of developments at the trial Wednesday. She has heretofore been out under $5000 bail.

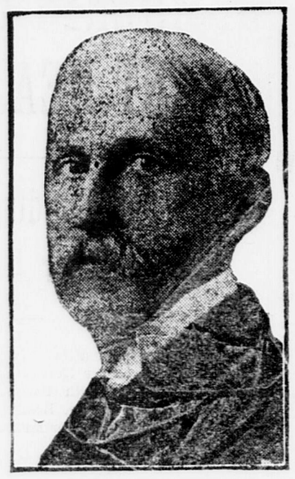

Cuba's Independence Day

Havana, Feb. 25.—The fourteenth anniversary of the uprising at Baire, marking the beginning of the war of independence, was observed throughout the island as a national holiday. President Gomez and Vice President Zayas went to Matanzas and unveiled a statue of Liberty.

THE TREASURY PORTFOLIO

Said to Have Been Offered to and Accepted by Franklin MacVeagh

New York, Feb. 25.—President-Elect Taft completed his cabinet by the offer of the treasury portfolio and its acceptance. That the tender of the office was made to and accepted by Franklin MacVeagh of Chicago is as near a positive statement of what is believed to be the fact as may be made in the face of an absolute refusal by Taft to throw any light on the most interesting situation.

FRANKLIN MACVEAGH.

There are reports that the name of A. B. Hepburn, former comptroller of the currency, has figured largely in the conferences on the subject. It is declared that should anything arise to eliminate MacVeagh from the list as it is now understood to stand, Hepburn will be selected to take his place.

TWELVE MONTHS' SENTENCE

Lawyer Fischer-Hansen Pleads Guilty of Attempted Bribery

New York, Feb. 25.—The trial of Carl Fischer-Hansen, the lawyer and society man charged with the bribery of a witness, was brought to a sudden close by the entering of a plea of guilty by the defendant to an amended complaint charging attempted bribery.

A sentence of twelve months' imprisonment in the penitentiary was imposed on Fischer-Hansen by Justice Dowling. Before beginning to serve out the sentence of the court, the convicted lawyer is to be given a week in which to settle his business affairs.

The sentence carries with it disbarment.

DECLINES PRESIDENCY OF DARTMOUTH

McCall Thinks He Owes Duty to the Public Service

Concord, N. H., Feb. 25.—A letter from Congressman Samuel W. McCall of Massachusetts, declining to become president of Dartmouth college, was received and given out by Frank S. Streeter, one of the Dartmouth trustees and chairman of the subcommittee for the choice of a new president.

Mr. McCall says in effect that while he appreciates the honor which the trustees would confer on him, he considers that his duty to the public service makes it advisable to decline.

FLED WITH MOTHER-IN-LAW

New Hampshire Man Landed In Jail by Norfolk Police

Norfolk, Feb. 25.—Fred Sargent of Laconia, N. H., who deserted his young wife and came to this city with his mother-in-law and his little son, was fined $50 and went to jail in default. The mother-in-law, who was on bail, is now believed to be in Boston.

The young wife traced the couple to this city for the purpose of securing her child. Local police restored her son and she has taken him home.

Charges were brought against Sargent and the mother-in-law and both were convicted. Every effort of the police will be made to bring the elder woman back here.

Inspection of Locomotive Boilers

Washington, Feb. 25.—A meeting was held at the department of commerce and labor to prepare a measure for submission to congress extending the steamboat inspection service over locomotive boilers. It is expected the bill will be prepared for introduction in congress at this session.

Spies Lynched and Mutilated

Vienna, Feb. 25.—It is reported here that two Austrians, who were taken for spies, have been lynched at Cettinje, Montenegro. According to the report the ears and noses of both men were cut off.

Hopkins Gains One Vote

Springfield, Ills., Feb. 25.—The thirty-sixth joint ballot for United States senator showed little change from the ballot of last Thursday. Senator Hopkins got 65 votes, a gain of one.

Wisconsin Deadlock Continues

Madison, Feb. 25.—The sixteenth ballot of the Wisconsin legislature for United States senator in joint convention resulted in no choice. Stephenson received 56 votes out of 128 cast.

BANISH THOSE GRAY HAIRS!
Kill the Dandruff Germs—Stop Hair Falling

Thousands of mothers are looking younger.—Their gray hairs are gone. The natural color has come back, and with it a new growth of soft, glossy, luxuriant hair. Why should you look old before your time, when you can look years younger by using

WYETH'S SAGE & SULPHUR HAIR RESTORER

Dandruff Cured

Three applications removed all the dandruff and left my scalp clean, white and smooth.

It Is Positively Guaranteed to Restore Faded and Gray Hair to Natural Color

If other "so-called" Restorers have failed, don't give up hope, but give WYETH'S SAGE AND SULPHUR HAIR RESTORER a trial. You run no risk. If it is not exactly as represented, your money will be refunded.

PROFIT BY OTHERS' EXPERIENCE

Gray Hair Restored

My hair was getting quite gray and falling out rapidly and I was troubled with a terrible itching of the scalp. My head was full of dandruff, which fell upon my clothes and kept me continually brushing it off. While on a visit to Rochester I heard of your Sage and Sulphur for the hair. I got a bottle and used it. A few applications relieved the itching, my hair stopped falling out and gradually came back to its natural color. It is now a nice dark brown color, soft, glossy and pliable. Several of my friends want to use it, and I want to know what you will charge me for six bottles of it.

Grew Hair on a Bald Head

For two or three years my hair had been falling out and getting quite thin until the top of my head was entirely bald. About four months ago I commenced using Sage and Sulphur. The first bottle seemed to do some good and I kept using it regularly until now I have used four bottles. The whole top of my head is fairly covered and keeps coming in thicker. I shall keep on using it a while longer, as I notice a constant improvement.

EMBEZZLEMENT IS ALLEGED

Secretary of Savings Institution Has Left For Parts Unknown

CASHED A CHECK FOR $4000

Woman Drew It For Purpose of Wiping Out a Mortgage, but it Is Unaccounted For on Institution's Books—Shareholders Will Lose Nothing by Alleged Shortage, as Missing Man Was Bonded

Newport, R. I., Feb. 25.—Hermannus H. Klaasens, secretary of the Newport Co-operative Association for Savings and Building, is wanted by the police on a charge of embezzlement, it was announced, following a special meeting of the directors of the association.

Klaasens is said to have been missing since Saturday. According to the auditors of the association, a check for $4000, which he received a few days ago for the association, and cashed, is unaccounted for on the books.

The association includes in its large membership some of the most prominent citizens of Newport. It is declared that the shareholders will lose nothing by the alleged shortage, as the secretary was bonded for $3000 by a surety company, and the last official statement of the association's affairs showed a guarantee fund of $2350 and undivided profits of $7015.

The directors voted to make good the amount of the missing check to the Newport woman who drew it for the purpose of wiping out a mortgage.

Klaasens was formerly in the regular artillery, stationed at Fort Adams. Later he became a clerk in the employ of Clarence A. Hammet, a real estate broker. Hammet bequeathed his business to Klaasens and another clerk. Klaasens has been secretary of the Savings and Building association for a year.

He married, about eighteen months ago, a Newport young woman.

Shrubb and Longboat Have Trained Hard For Tonight's Race

Buffalo, Feb. 25.—In the Seventy-fourth regiment armory tonight Tom Longboat, the Indian runner, and Alfred Shrubb, the English crack, will meet in a fifteen mile race. Unless all signs fail it will be a race that will fully repay the sports who have come here from many points to see it run.

Both Longboat and Shrubb are in fine condition, having trained hard for tonight's race. The Englishman has declared that he will retrieve his reputation, which has suffered from his recent defeat by Longboat in a Marathon race in New York. Longboat is not talking much, but his friends are pointing to the fact that he made his reputation at shorter distances than the twenty-six miles that go to make up a Marathon.

ON STATE'S AUTHORITY

Diseased Cattle Said to Be Sold For Use as Food In Massachusetts

Boston, Feb. 25.—The Post says: Cows tainted with tuberculosis and condemned by inspectors of the state cattle bureau are being sold for beef by the state of Massachusetts.

That this is being done with the sanction and under the direction of the cattle bureau is shown by an extract from a letter written by Dr. Austin Peters, chief of the cattle bureau, to Frank W. Chase, inspector of animals at Oak Bluffs, Mass., recently.

Diseased cows that have been ordered killed by inspectors of the bureau are transported to a slaughter house in Somerville. When they are dead their bodies are cut up. If the animal is declared only slightly infected with tuberculosis Peters allows it to be sold for beef.

BREACH OF CONTRACT

Charge of Doctor Against Ex-Queen in Suit to Recover $11,600

Washington, Feb. 25.—Ex-Queen Liliuokalani of Hawaii was sued in the district court by Dr. Charles H. English to recover $11,600 alleged to be due him on account of breach of contract in the payment of a medical bill.

The plaintiff alleges that he accompanied the ex-queen to the Hawaiian islands as private physician under a contract to receive $300 a month and expenses and a bonus, and the defendant broke the contract.

Considered Needless Expense

Hartford, Feb. 25.—The general assembly agreed with a committee that it was not worth while to send Governor Lilley and his staff and an escort of the two companies of foot guards as Connecticut's representives at the inauguration of President Taft. The resolution called for an appropriation of $12,000.

Open Market For Lead

Pittsburg, Feb. 25.—Following the lead of the United States Steel Corporation, the National Lead company has declared an open market for lead and its products. This move is due to the discovery that the independent lead companies were cutting rates to secure contracts.

GOVERNMENT IS EMBARRASSED

Series of Demonstrations In an Effort to Force Hand of Premier—Women of Social Distinction Fall Into Clutches of Police After Making Ineffectual Attempts to Get Into Parliament—Exciting Street Scenes

London, Feb. 25.—Every effort of the suffragettes to force the hand of the government becomes more determined and it is increasingly difficult to predict how their demands may be successfully parried.

The situation has taken an embarrassing aspect for the government, owing to the high social position of many among some thirty or more women arrested last evening, these including Mrs. Pethick Lawrence, Lady Constance Lytton, sister of Lord Lytton and daughter of the former viceroy of India; Miss Stratford Dugdale, daughter of Commander Dugdale and cousin of William R. W. Peet, who was elected yesterday as member of the house of commons for Taunton; Miss Daisy Solomon, daughter of the ex-premier of Cape Colony, and Mrs. Catherine Elizabeth Corbett, an aristocratic supporter of the suffragette movement.

Both sides were well prepared for last night's attempt by the suffragettes to force themselves on Premier Asquith, who on Tuesday declined by letter to receive the deputation. The women held "parliament" at Caxton hall and a number of them started on "danger duty" in a solid phalanx led by Mrs. Lawrence.

The police, abandoning former tactics of barring the approach to the house of commons, adopted the new plan of breaking up the procession close to Caxton hall. They permitted the suffragettes to proceed simply by couples, escorted by small parties of spectators. The women were thus not given much chance to create a disturbance, although they were allowed to come within close proximity of parliament. The police, however, kept them continually on the move and none were allowed access to the building. Finally, several of the women, including Mrs. Lawrence, the leader, were placed under arrest.

Word of the reception of this deputation having been brought to Caxton hall much excitement ensued and Mrs. Saul Solomon volunteered to lead a second deputation to the house. This in effect met the same fate, but led to more exciting scenes and a much larger number of arrests.

A third attempt was then organized at the hall, but this time the destination of the deputation was Brookes club, where the premier was dining. Near St. James palace a large body of police descended upon the procession, which was compelled to break ranks, and several more arrests were made. Only two or three of the women reached the doors of the club, where they were intercepted by the police and compelled to abandon the enterprise.

The demonstrations last night did not occasion such scenes of roughness and violence as on former occasions, but the leaders of the movement declare their intention to adopt still more forcible methods. The speakers at the "parliament" were most earnest and the meeting was in session throughout the evening, continually receiving messengers who reported the progress of the deputations.

New York Suffragists Busy

Albany, Feb. 25.—Hosts of suffragists and anti-suffragists crowded the great assembly chamber in the capitol and for over four hours their chosen speakers argued before the members of the judiciary committees of the senate and assembly at a joint hearing for and against concurrent resolutions proposing an amendment to the constitution striking the word "male" from the suffrage clause.

The question of woman suffrage has been threshed out annually at legislative hearings for a score of years, but never has such a distinguished throng of women graced a legislative hearing as were present Wednesday.

Suffragists Made Happy

Pierre, S. D., Feb. 25.—An equal suffrage bill was passed by the house by a vote of 68 to 28. As a similar bill was passed in the senate early in the session and barely failed in the house, suffragettes are jubilant over the outlook.

When the Sun Came Out.

By ELLIOT WALKER.

Copyrighted, 1909, by Associated Literary Press.

"It may be cold and cloudy, but the view is a great, soft toned picture," mused Edwina, gazing from an open space halfway up Partridge mountain. "My mood is just right to appreciate such a wild, gray day. It takes me out of myself."

She sighed, shaking her head resolutely, then braced against a sudden sweep of bitter wind, feeling a tingle of defiance in confronting the howling gust.

Her laugh, reckless, unmirthful, echoed along its hoarse trail. "Sunshine!" she cried. "Bah, I like this better! It puts in one's soul a sense of strength, ambition to overcome obstacles, to rise above foolish grieving. That's what I want."

She clung to a sapling, bending with its sway, closing her eyes, drinking in deep drafts of the invigorating air, whose frosty breath stung her cheeks to a glory of color.

"Come!" rang her voice. "Come on, old Boreas! Swing me! Pelt me! Help me!"

There was a wildness in her supplication, a beseeching note. Edwina Surrey, throwing herself to nature's rough embrace, had much to forget.

A shout—that of a panting man and alarmingly near—caused the girl to turn in sudden dismay.

"Coming! Here's help!"

Swish! Whir! Like a swift, enveloping sheet the snow was upon her, blinding her now wide opened eyes, choking back her startled exclamation.

A dense, thickening, whirling mantle, it swept from the lowering heavens, searching every leafless brown bush and gray rock crevice with white, relentless fingers.

Edwina could not see. She heard a crashing through the brush, an irritated mutter. "Where in blazes is the creature? Ow, my shin!" and then louder: "Hello! What's the trouble?"

The girl grasped her little tree, tightening her lips.

"It's Ham," she swallowed. "Oh, he mustn't find me."

But Hamilton Knight stumbled into the open. His eyes were keen. In three seconds he had reached the shrinking figure.

"My good woman," he began, "don't be afraid of me. I heard you calling for assistance."

He bent nearer, brushing the snow from his eyes, and a prolonged "Whew!" broke from his pursed lips.

Edwina straightened up, facing him defiantly.

"You are mistaken, Mr. Knight," in an acid voice, somewhat shaky. "I am quite capable of caring for myself."

"Then why did you call, Edwina?"

"I didn't. I was only singing."

"Singing! Well—I—swear!"

"Will you please go?"

"And leave you here? No, I will not. It's the nastiest first of the season storm I ever saw, and it has come to stay awhile. What business have you in this lonesome hole anyway?"

"None of yours. I guess I can walk where I please. You've no right"—

The man interrupted her coolly.

"Be sensible, Edwina. This is a bad fix, and we must get out of it. All my strength and wits will be needed to find a way down to the road. I see you are warmly clad. That's good. I'm dressed for tramping, so we can push along without picking a path. Regard me as you like—stranger, St. Bernard dog, pious monk, any old thing—but be sensible. That's all."

"You may know best," the girl shivered a bit. "Personally I don't mind a snow flurry."

Knight shrugged. His features set anxiously as he peered here and there.

"It doesn't let up at all," said he. "Do you know just how you got to this spot?"

"Oh, I merely kept going!" carelessly.

"Hum! So did I. We'll break our necks attempting to go straight down. There must be paths and wood roads we can strike by keeping along the side. That is best, I think. If the sun would only come out and clear up things!"

"Pshaw! We will have no trouble. Go ahead."

She spoke in that tone of polite resignation which hints at hope of early deliverance from forced escort. The man stamped, evidently nettled.

"Cold feet?" asked Edwina in simulated sympathy.

"No. Come along."

For a few minutes it was not hard traveling. The girl pushed on behind the tall figure, half smiling to her thought of annoying him, unconsciously admiring the broad back and strong steps of this lately disearded lover.

It had been a bitter quarrel, lasting about four minutes, with a dogged silence worse than words on the part of the recreant Hamilton and an outpouring of recrimination from Edwina, of which she still felt proud.

Mr. Knight had kissed Lillian Carey. Miss Carey had returned the salutation with interest. Hattie Benson had seen them and promptly reported. Lillian went to Springfield that evening. Knight refused to explain, assuming an air of injury.

He received his dismissal with a sulky snort. The rest of the unhappy matter went as such things go with proud hearts—long walks in solitary affliction and complete indifference—externally.

Now, treading in Knight's big footsteps, the girl's soul rankled at the necessity of his help. He should be shown his place in her regard at every opportunity.

It angered her to note her inability to go faster. Surely he need not take such strides. The going was becoming more fatiguing.

Edwina's toes ached; her fingers were numb; she kept slipping; the snow sifted down her neck and blew in her eyes. Her knees commenced to wabble. Knight plowed ahead, occasionally halting for the lagging feet, then striding on.

"Mr. Knight!" Edwina was three yards in the rear and breathing fast.

He did not seem to hear.

"Ham!"

The man stopped. She caught up and smiled dolefully.

"Getting tired?" he puffed. "It's a trifle rough, and we are among some mean rocks. I declare, Edwina, I'm puzzled!"

"No—not lost?"

"Oh, no! I don't know where I am, that's all. It's nothing. We'll land somewhere. Say, your teeth are chattering. It can't be you mind this little tramp! Brace a bit, and we'll get over that bowlder."

"Ham—I—never can climb it. I—I've sort of given out. This—this horrid snow"— The words faltered to a shaking whisper and broke in a sob.

"Curse my carelessness!" cried the man, seizing her hands. "Why, you are half frozen, child. I'm warm enough. I'll have to set you right and be quick about it." He dragged off her damp gloves.

Edwina was conscious of being rubbed, kneaded, shaken, jounced, hugged, slapped and generally stirred in an agitating process that presently sent a glow of warmth through every vein.

She did not protest. In fact, her submission to this treatment was amazingly tractable. Circulation seemed more important than dignity, and, after all, it was only Ham.

But when he exclaimed, "There, how's that?" and kissed her she shrank away in indignant remonstrance.

"How dare you? It was a mean advantage."

"I forgot. Naturally when a chap has been engaged to a girl for months he forgets." His reply was not apologetic. Edwina frowned severely.

"All that is past," she said. "I'll thank you to recover your bearings."

"Up we go, then, to the top of this rock and try for a glimpse over the trees. It's pretty steep, but not bad footing. Give me your little fist."

A scramble, a haul, and they stood on a level stone backed by a hump of granite. Knight steadied her as the snow eddied about their heads, mocking their straining eyes.

"No use," observed Hamilton, attempting a laugh. "The best I can do is to wrap you up in my coat, leave you in a snug corner and dig directly down to—somewhere." He began unbuttoning his heavy reefer, adding: "I'll find a house, get help and be right back. Answer my calls and be a brave girl."

Edwina stared at him in silent dismay.

"Before I start, dear," he said huskily, "I'm going to break a solemn promise. Next week," he hesitated, then went on impulsively—"next Wednesday I could tell. Lillian Carey is engaged to my brother Bob—and—that—was—why I've had some tough days, Edwina."

The girl's arms reached for him. She cried out wildly. He clasped her close, his face bent to the nestling head, and for a long minute both forgot the peril, the estrangement, everything save the sudden joy of understanding.

A rift broke in the clouds. The snow ceased. A streak of blue sky widened. Below their perch, only a hundred yards distant, the highway showed clearly in a growing light, with dotting houses lifting shining white roofs.

Edwina raised here eyes and blinked in a dazzling shaft of radiance.

"Ham!" she cried joyously. "Quick! Look, dear. The sun has come out."

A Canine Actor.

In those days (in 1876) I was always accompanied by a favorite and beautiful old collie called Smut, which I took to rehearsals. It followed me everywhere, even on the stage during the actual performance of the play. Night after night Smut performed his part in an admirable and irreproachable manner, lying down at my feet while I sat under a tree taking part in a dialogue with one of the characters. On a hot, sultry night in July, however (for the play enjoyed an exceptionally long run), Smut became bored, thinking, no doubt, that the play had had its day and that it was now the dog's turn. He advanced quite quietly to the center of the stage with an almost managerial sense of his own importance, sat down in a dignified manner on his haunches and yawned in full view of the audience with the sublime indifference of a dramatic critic. The audience were naturally amused. Encouraged by the success of his unconscious efforts, Smut went from bad to worse by snapping up a passing fly, which he swallowed with the enjoyment of a gourmet, inevitably spoiling the quiet scene on which we were engaged.

She Rose to the Occasion.

"That's a nice looking chap at the next table," said the young man who was treating his best girl to a lobster supper. "Is he a friend of yours?"

"Yes, indeed," laughed the pretty girl.

"Well—er—I think I'll ask him to join us."

"Oh, this is so sudden!"

"What's so sudden?"

"Why—why, that's our young minister."—Chicago News.

OF HOTEL FAME.

Mr. Peter C. Kimball's death occured quite suddenly on Sunday at the home of his son Henry B. Kimball, who has resided for some months in Braintree at 184 Middle street.

A wife of large patience and helpfulness in his day, for some time now an almost helpless invalid, two sons, two daughters and several grandchildren, survive him.

People who visited the sea shore twenty-five and more years ago well remember the place in Cohasset, especially noted for its dinners, where Mr. and Mrs. Kimball entertained the public. Since Mr. Kimball turned over his business to his son Henry, he has been in the habit of spending his winters in Florida, but infirmities on his own and Mrs. Kimball's part closed the door to the sunny climate and the orange grove, of which he was the owner. The journey was too much to undertake.

His death was quite sudden, even at the age of 86 years and 7 months. His mind seemed strong and his body quite vigorous in most respects. Mr. Kimball will be thought of and sincerely remembered by those who long knew him as a courageous, capable and conscientious man, and notably as a kind father and estimable citizen.

One of his daughters is Mrs. Watson, whose husband is well known in this town, and who has not ceased to show her loving cause since the father and mother have especially needed her.

The funeral was held on Tuesday at 2 o'clock, and the services were conducted by Rev. Granville Yager, at one time pastor of the Congregational church in Cohasset, and a friend of his family. The remains were conveyed to a family burial place in Hooksett, New Hampshire, after the services.

LOCALS

Quincy L. O. L. lodge holds its fourth annual dance at Electa hall, March 12.

The City Council Committee on Finance meet tonight to consider the annual budget.

A dance is to be held in Electa hall this evening under the auspices of the Woman's Relief Corps.

The high winds this morning are a reminder that March with its disagreeable winds is close at hand.

Charles F. Knowlton, formerly Commissioner of Public Works was in town this week calling on friends.

The pipers and caulkers of the Fore River shipyard held a smoker last evening in Protection hall, Johnson building.

The Ladies Aid society of the Universalist church is to give a supper and entertainment in the vestry next Wednesday evening.

The class in stencil work under the auspices of the Arts and Crafts of the Quincy Women's club meets tomorrow afternoon from two until four for the first lesson.

A large party of friends journeyed to Boston Wednesday to see Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Billings of Island avenue, Houghs Neck, off on their trip to California, where they are to live in the future.

The Rebekah Associates held a dancing party in Faxon hall Wednesday evening. Wilson's orchestra furnished music and dancing was enjoyed from 8 to 12. During the evening refreshments were served.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene R. Stone of River street leave Sunday night for Washington to take in the inauguration. They will stop over in Baltimore on the way and plan to arrive in Washington on Tuesday.

Quincy High is scheduled to play the Everett High school independents tomorrow afternoon at the local gym. The Everett five is fast and has defeated many of the best teams around Boston, so a fast game may be expected when they apyear here.

In St. John's, St. Mary's and the Sacred Heart churches Wednesday evening, the opening Lenten devotions were held and were largely attended. The services consistedof the rosary, sermon and benediction, after which the holy ashes were distributed.

Ambrose O'Mara of Walnut street has in his possession a beautiful Angora goat which calls attention to itself whenever it goes out for an airing. The handsome Billy is very vain indeed and not at all averse to admiration when he takes his Sunday morning airing along the streets in Atlantic.

CASTORIA.
Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.
The Kind You Have Always Bought

Mrs. Herbert Y. Follett of Wollaston is hostess tomorrow afternoon for her bridge club.

The Shakespeare society of Atlantic lunched today at the Copley Square hotel, Boston after which they spent the afternoon at the Art Museum.

Mrs. Wallace Egerton of Briggs street entertained the Afternoon Sewing club Wednesday. Coffee, sandwiches and cake were served after a social hour.

John W. Walsh, the well known salesman at Henry L. Kincaide's, was taken to the City Hospital yesterday, suffering from apendicitis. An operation will be performed today.

MRS. JOHN CRANE.

Mrs. Lucy A., widow of John Crane, died at the home of her son Emery L. Crane, 20 Whitney road, on Wednesday after a short illness. She had the misfortune to fall by slipping on a rug breaking her arm and a few days later became dangerously ill of pneumonia but although in her eighty-fifth year she rallied and reports were favorable up to the time of her death on Wednesday of heart failure.

Mrs. Crane is of the older generation and has seen friends and neighbors of many years pass on into the world beyond. Devoted to her son Mr. Emery L. Crane and her daughter Miss Carrie Crane she was also the recipient of their most faithful and loving care and passed her late years most happily surrounded by her children and grandchildren, by whom she will be missed.

For years Mrs. Crane and her husband were residents of South Quincy residing near the old Adams houses. After Mr. Crane's death she made her home with her son.

Funeral services will be held from her late home 20 Whitney road on Saturday afternoon at three oclock.

PRIZES ON EXHIBITION.

The best prizes yet seen for the annual State Boys Athletic meet are on exhibition at Thompson's Resturant. There will be thirty-six individual prizes and as many more for relay races.

Entries are coming in rapidly from associations as far away as Gloucester. A trophy will be given the association making the most points. Cambridge, last year's winner will make a strong bid for the honor again this year. Somerville, Quincy and Newton will also be in the running for first place honors. The Lynn team is said to contain some stars.

Although the meet promises to be the most interesting yet held and it will be "up to" the Quincy boys to uphold the honor of the City of Presidents.

CEMENT SCHOOLHOUSES.

Charles S. Howe, president of the Case School of Applied Science, of Cleveland, Ohio, one of the leading engineering schools of the West, on a recent public occasion stated, according to Cement Age, that cement as a product was important historically, because it had been known for thousands of years through great masterpieces of art and architecture, but not until recent years was much known of the chemistry of cement and concrete, which have now become the great structural materials. While this country had been backward in its use until comparatively recent years, American energy and enterprise have become thoroughly applied to the subject, with the result that a vast quantity of cement is now manufactured, thus making its use a subject of extreme importance to all classes, owing to economic considerations. He predicted that cement would be the great building material of the future, not only because of its durability, but owing to its fireproof qualities. As an educator, he regretted that all schoolhouses were not constructed of cement, as there has recently been occasion to deplore the use of inflammable material. It is estimated that we spend a billion dollars for building per year, while our loss by fire represents 500 millions. This is false economy. He called attention to the necessity of having a substitute for our almost exhausted lumber supply, which, it is estimated, will practically disappear in from twenty to thirty-five years at the present rate of consumption. This substitute must consist largely of cement.

PROBATE COURT.

Judye Flint held probate court at Dedham Wednesday and transacted the following business:

Wills allowed—Of William I. Bowditch, Brookline; Samuel K. Williams, Brookline; Catherine D. Dunlop, Brookline; and Ephraim T. Whitcomb, Holbrook.

Administrations granted on the estates of Lucy J. Staples, Dedham; Annie M. Mann, Randolph; Jane T. Osgood, Milton; Joseph B. Leard, Norwood; and Lewis B. Paine, Randolph.

Trustees granted—To Henry Ware of certain estate given in trust under the will of Joseph K. Clark, late of Brookline, bond $20,000.

Inventories—Estate of Mary F. Morris, late of Quincy, at $517.22.

Adoption and change of name—George W. and Esther Sallander of Quincy were given leave to adopt Milton Rollins of Boston and change his name to Milton Sallander.

Accounts were allowed on the estate of Samuel J. Ross 2d of Weymouth and several others.

WHITE HOUSE RENOVATED.

When William Howard Taft steps into the White House at noon on the fourth of March as the new President of the United States of America, he will find a model home equipped with every modern convenience; that is, what other Presidents have never enjoyed. Before the election of President Roosevelt few changes had been made in the White House since the days of John Quincy Adams, when it was rebuilt after being fired by the marauding British troops, only the walls being left standing.

The Executive Mansion, as it was called before the advent of Mr. Roosevelt—he dubbed it officially "The White House"—was the first public building erected at the seat of government. The architect was James Hoban, who drew his plans closely after those of the seat of the Duke of Leinster, near Dublin, Ireland. George Washington, himself selected the site, laid the corner stone on October 13, 1792, and lived to see the building completed. John Adams, however, was the first president to occupy it, which he did in 1800.—From "New Home of Mr. Taft," in March Technical World Magazine.

GREAT MEN AND GREAT EPOCHS.

Rev. C. F. Hill Crathern's lecture on "Great Men and Great Epochs" before the Bethany Bible Reading club Wednesday evening was a masterpiece. It was one of the best lectures heard in Bethany church in a long time.

The lecture gave evidence not only of extensive reading but the most discriminating judgment in selecting those great men and marked epochs best illustrating the influence of a few men on the great movements of history. It was a great subject treated in a masterly way.

Dr. Hardy conducted the opening exercises and Deacon E. W. Branch made a brief address on the outline of the year's reading. In spite of the severe storm there was a goodly number present.

GRANITE CITY WHIST.

Eight tables participated in the weekly whist tournament at the rooms of the Granite City club Wednesday evening. Play was keen during the while twenty-five hand sand as a result some good scores were made. W. W. Ewell secured the highest per cent with William R. Thomas a good second.

HOUSE TAKES BIT IN ITS TEETH

Rejects Amendments to Legislative Appropriation Bill

Washington, Feb. 25.—The house of representatives, by sweeping majorities, many times defied the senate by rejecting its amendments to the legislative appropriation bill providing for increases in salary for the president, the vice president, the speaker, the judiciary and for the creation of the offices of under-secretary and fourth assistant secretary of state. Party lines were obliterated completely.

It was a regular field day in the lower body and oratory and confusion vied with each other for the lead. Not during the present congress has the speaker been compelled to wield his gavel with such force to bring about order.

Of parliamentary tangles there were many, but Speaker Cannon emerged from them all with his decisions undisputed. The fight raged for more than six hours, at the end of which the bill was sent to conference.

LAUNCH PARTLY WRECKED

Expert Seamanship Prevented Serious Mishap In Hampton Roads

Fort Monroe, Feb. 25.—After being flooded in brilliant sunlight throughout the morning the American "battle fleet" in Hampton Roads was swept by another severe storm yesterday afternoon.

Two sailors on ships' launches were tossed overboard during the afternoon, but both were rescued. A launch belonging to the battleship Rhode Island was partly wrecked in trying to come alongside the ship's gangway. A luncheon party of women was aboard and when the wave-tossed boat dashed into a side boom of the armor-clad vessel several of those on board fainted.

The launch drifted rapidly away from the ship and another little steamer was sent to pick her up, but the helpless launch drifted more than half a mile in the choppy seas before it was secured. Only the expert seamanship of those in charge of the launch prevented more serious mishaps.

ADMITS IRREGULARITIES

Embezzlement Charge Sprung Upon Cooper In Carmack Murder Case

Nashville, Feb. 25.—A sensational charge that Duncan R. Cooper, chief defendant in the Carmack murder trial, had been a defaulter to the extent of $100,000 while clerk and master of chancery of Maury county, was sprung by the state during the trial Wednesday.

"I admit lack of business ability in my office," said Cooper. "I had my brother and my brother's son in the office. There were many errors, but every soul who had a dollar in that office got it out and there never was a dishonest act. Of course, I am responsible for the errors and do not shirk it. I resigned to enter the legislature."

When court adjourned the cross-examination had reached only the beginning of the trouble with Carmack, the early editorials.

KILLS GIRL HE LOVED

Boston Man Then Goes to His Room and Takes Dose of Poison

Boston, Feb. 25.—Catherine McDougall, a waitress, was shot three times and killed by Hiram Perry. The woman was 22 years old. Following the shooting, Perry, who is 30 years old, went to his home at 24 Compton street and attempted suicide by taking carbolic acid. He was taken to the city hospital.

The murder was committeed in the waitress' room on Cherry street. As far as can be ascertained, jealousy and anger at the refusal of his offers of marriage were the cause of Perry's act.

All last night the ablest physicians at the city hospital worked unceasingly over Perry, trying to save his life that he might be tried on the charge of murder.

Census of Japanese In California

Sacramento, Cal., Feb. 25.—The senate passed the bill providing for a census of Japanese in the state to determine whether or not California shall ask for a general Asiatic exclusion act. The bill has already passed the assembly and will be signed by the governor at once.

Yale Forestry Graduates

New Haven, Feb. 25.—A class in forestry of twenty-five men graduated at Yale today, although they will not receive diplomas until June, as they have four months' field work ahead at Doucette, Tex.

Permits Boxing In Tennessee

Nashville, Feb. 25.—The senate passed on final reading the house bill permitting scientific boxing in this state. The bill now goes to the governor for his signature.

They never come.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR.

Editor of the Ledger.

A prominent citizen of Massachusetts now at Havana, Cuba, writes the undersigned referring to the U. S. Battleship "Maine."

"Being interested in the raising of the famous battleship "Maine," a note at this time will be of interest. Having visited and closely inspected the wreck very carefully. Investigating thoroughly the sentiment of all Americans and Cubans.

It is a steady clamor of both nationalities and an eye sore to all Americans visiting this port.

The last act of ex-Governor Charles Magoon was to impress the Cuban and U. S. governments to remove the wreck from the harbor. President Roosevelt sent an order to Congress only last month.

There are so many of the western and central states Congressmen and Senators who care little or nothing for such coast expenditures, therefore the lack of interest on the part of the U. S. Government.

The wreck today, takes up much of the harbor for merchant marine use, as all vessels have to come to anchor in the harbor. The action of tides has formed an island about the wreck. It is an eye sore to visitors, and a national disgrace to remain so long, 11 years. The Cuban government is in no shape to think of the task of aiding in the removal, they have troubles of their own, being at war right now.

The citizens and visitors strongly commend the action taken by your Spanish War Veteran Association that every exertion should be brought to bear and not let up one bit, steadily pushing this most important matter to a finish.

WELCH BUYS READVILLE TRACK.

A. J. Welch of Hartford now owns the Readville track. This is the statement sent out from the office of J. Murray Howe, the real estate broker appointed by the sale committee of the New England trotting horse breeders' association to act as its agent in the transfer of the famous race course.

The sale has been hanging fire for two weeks, and yesterday Mr. Welch came to Boston for the purpose of closing the deal. This was quickly done, for the matters which delayed the passing of the papers had all been straightened out last week. These included the equity in the house of the Gentlemen's driving club and that of several stables owned by individuals.

The property, which consists of about 75 acres of land, is assessed for $92,000 in the towns of Hyde Park and Dedham. The price paid by Mr. Welch is considerably below the assessed value, the stockholders voting at a recent meeting to let him have the plant for something like $70,000.

☞Excitement increasing every day. Great piano contest drawing towards close. Every candidate is working. All hope to get the piano, but no one knows who will win. Keep on working. Folsom Tea Co., 7 Granite street, Quincy. Feb. 25-1t.

At the meeting of the S. of V. Auxiliary held Wednesday evening, the balance of the officers were installed by Past Div. Pres. Richards of East Weymouth. They were: Vice President, L. E. Gragg; secretary, Rose Reed; outside guard, Ethel French. A light collation was served and an old-fashioned spelling match enjoyed.

REACHING THE SPOT.

It Can Be Done, So Scores of Quincy Citizens Say.

To cure an aching back,
The pains of rheumatism,
The tired-out feelings.
You must reach the spot—get at the cause.
In most cases 'tis the kidneys.
Doan's Kidney Pills are for the kidneys.

Jas. C. Dunn, living at 508 Washington street, Quincy, Mass., says: "For some time I was afflicted with lumbago. My back ached constantly and I could hardly get about the house. The constant aching gave me so much trouble that my nervous system became all unstrung and I had about dispaired of ever getting anything that would cure me when Doan's Kidney Pills were brought to my attention. I procured a supply at the Cox Drug Store, began their use and after a short time, I received more belief than from all the other remedies combined. I can say my trouble has vanished and I gladly recommend Doan's Kidney Pills."

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

HEARING ON BILL TO ELIMINATE PARTY NAMES

Arguments in Favor of Bill Heard at Morning Session.

Although it was expected that the bill filed by Mayor Shea, before the legislature to eliminate party designations from the municipal caucuses and elections, would have clear sailing considerable oppostion has developed.

A hearing was held on the bill at the State House this morning before the committee on elections. Not many from Quincy were present when the hearing opened and anticipating no opposition the Quincy bill was taken up first.

Before the hearing had progressed far however there were quite a number from Quincy present. They included Mayor Shea, City Solicitor McAnarney, Paul R. Blackmur, president of the Citizens' Association, Walter S. Pinkham, Representatives Thomas and Langelier, ex-Mayor John O. Hall, ex-Representative Edward J. Sandberg, W. M. Chase, chairman of the Republican City Committee, ex-Tax Collector James H. Cunningham, Herbert Y. Follett of the Ward Five Republican committee, Albert Q. L. Whitman and ex-Chief Engineer Amos L. Litchfield.

During the hearing local politics were gone into and some of the famous mayoralty campaigns were rehearsed. Mr. McAnarney in opening said that the bill was in compliance with a demand that we have the privilege of conducting caucuses for Municipal elections without party designations. While party designations are of use in national and state affairs it was believed advisable to conduct city affairs along the citizens line.

One of the organizations of Quincy took up the matter and invited all other organizations to send representatives. The one vote passed at this meeting was in favor of eliminating party designations.

At a subsequent mass meeting of the citizens it was also so voted unanimously. Mr. McAnarney since then had been no oppostion to the change as far as he knew. He said the citi-

CELEBRATES THEIR SILVER WEDDING

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Walters Bountifully Remembered.

Mr. and Mrs. John R. Walters of 48 Copeland street, celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of their marriage at their home Thursday evening. Over 200 relatives and friends were present and a good time was enjoyed by all.

Mr. Walters is a member of the Welsh Associates, and many of his fellow members were present. There were many presents, among them a beautiful silver tea service from the Welsh Associates.

The ushers were Benjamin Williams, John G. Roberts and Frank Carlton. During the evening a collation was served.

Mr. and Mrs. Walters have been residents of Quincy nearly 25 years, having come here shortly after their marriage in Wales.

Mr. Walters is the owner of the Aberoguen Monumental works, and is very well known in the city, especially among the granite men. He was born at Bethesda, Wales. Mrs. Walters was also born in Wales, in the town of Ffestiniogo.

THE BOYS' MEET.

Saturday, February 27th, is the great athletic day for the boys of the states of Massachusetts and Rhode Island. The meet is to take place in the Quincy Y. M. C. A. at 2 P. M. and promises to be a great one. One hundred and thirty boys from seven different associations have entered, making a total of two hundred and thirty entries. The meet includes running, jumping, relay races, shot put, etc. Great interest is being shown throughout the states and one of the biggest meets ever held for boys is predicted. The prizes are the best ever offered for a meet of this kind.

Charles Edwin Hoffses, one of the best known and most highly respected citizens of this place, died at the Emergency hospital, Boston, Wednesday. He had been in poor health for a short time and had gone to the hospital for treatment. He was born in Waldoborro, Maine, October 18, 1846. In 1883 he married Miss Sarah L. Chessman of this town, who survives him, together with a son, C. Edwin Hoffses, and three daughters, Ida, wife of Herbert F. Pray, and Misses Della and Amy Hoffses, all of this town. Deceased had been employed for 35 years as shipper in the wholesale department of the Singer Sewing Machine Company, Essex street, Boston. He was a member of Governor Greenhalge lodge, New England Order of Protection, Boston. The funeral will take place from his late residence on Washington street, Saturday afternoon at two o'clock.

Almost fifty of the friends of William H. Trask, driver of the Standard Oil Company's team, tendered him a surprise party at his home, 91 Phillips street, Tuesday evening and presented him a handsome easy chair. Guests were present from Quincy, Hingham, Braintree, Rockland, North Abington and the Weymouths. There was a program of vocal and instrumental music, and readings. A lunch was served during the evening.

The annual fair of the Universalist Social Circle closed Thursday evening when the cantata, "A Garden of Singing Flowers," was given by the young ladies of the church with Joseph W. Blanchard as Gardener. Miss Emma L. Clapp was accompanist, assisted by William Baldwin, violinist.

Eugene Tompkins, proprietor of the Boston Theatre, who died Monday, aged 59, was cousin of Mrs. A. Granville Bowditch of Quincy avenue.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR.

Editor Daily Ledger:

Like many others, I admire and commend the spirit of your paper in allowing live subjects to be discussed in your columns. It is a good policy, but unfortunately some people take advantage of the situation and rush in letters on dead questions, like the question of raising the "Maine."

As "A. B. H." so neatly put it a few days ago, the wreck ought to be left where it is as a monument to the soldiers and sailors who were hurled into eternity without warning. But I put my case on a practical footing, and I know what I am talking about. I got nearer Cuba than Framingham, and saw service in actual combat for my country.

The Maine cannot be raised, and any attempt to raise the wreck would only disturb the bodies of our brave boys. Let them rest there in peace, undisturbed by unwise experimenters. This is the sentiment of the navy.

Yours Respectfully,
J. A. B.

NEGROES FOR PROHIBITION

As Interested as Whites In the Great Moral Movement

Atlanta, Feb. 26.—Following the lead of the whites, the southern negroes began today a prohibition movement of their own at the first meeting of the anti-saloon convention of the negroes of the south.

During the sessions of the convention there will be addresses by leaders of the south of both races. In announcing the purpose of the convention the committee in charge said:

"We are determined to prove to our worthy white friends that we are as profoundly concerned in the great moral movement as any others. It is an opportunity for our people to give the world notice that we are on the right side of every question for the promotion of the public good."

F. F. CRANE SPEAKS FOR QUINCY

On Hearing of Bill for Harbor Improvements.

The hearing at the State House yesterday on the act: To provide for the improvement of the harbors and waterways of the commonwealth, was well attended by Quincy men. The Committees on Waterways of the Citizens' Association and the Board of Trade both being represented.

The chairman of the committee Frank Fessenden Crane spoke very briefly in favor of the first section of the bill which read as follows:

Section 1. The board of harbor and land commissioners is hereby authorized and directed to prepare and adopt a comprehensive scheme for the improvement and development of such harbors and inland waterways in the commonwealth of Massachusetts as will promote the commercial and industrial progress of the commonwealth.

He said that the city of Quincy favored the bill to that point and stopped there, as they had not considered the rest of the bill closely enough to be able to state that it was the proper manner to handle that question, but that it was of the utmost importance that the harbor and waterways should be improved and that a comprehensive scheme of improvement would be of great value, and that the city of Quincy hoped that this committee would consider the act favorably as to that portion of it.

The city of Quincy has sent to Washington for two years a delegate to help the Brockton delegates advance the New York, Brockton and Boston canal as a government proposition.

Quincy is deeply interested to have the United States government build the canal and that the city hoped the state might help on the approaches from Boston that three things were of vital importance, first, that Channell Rock should be removed, second, that the dredging of the south channel at the draw bridge to the same depth as on the north was most important, and third, that the channel should be widened to four hundred feet, its entire length, if that was done Quincy would be in proper shape to handle water front business.

The southern states are considering the canal proposition with much greater enthusiasm than the people of Massachusetts. Three-fourths of the coal product of the United States, is produced in the states of Pennsylvania, Virginia and Maryland and if the canals were completed from Branfoot to Boston the saving on cost of coal per ton delivered in Boston would be a dollar per ton. That if the Providence and New York and Brockton canals were built a saving of 138 miles between Boston to New York would be made and it was a matter of great importance to have the harbor and water fronts improved at once.

MANY OFFICIALS INSPECT NEW FEDERAL BUILDING

Postmaster Mansfield and Ex-Congressmen Atwood and McNary Among Guests

In response to invitations issued by Postmaster E. C. Mansfield and superintendent Charles L. Hammond, a large number of representative citizens attended the reception and inspection of the new Federal building Thursday evening.

The reception was from 6 to 10 o'clock and not only were there many from Quincy present but nearly all of the superintendents of the Boston postal stations as well as ex-congressmen H. H. Atwood and W. S. McNary who were largely instrumental in getting the bill for the building through congress.

Many of the clerks of the Quincy office and most of the carriers of this office were present, and they showed the guests through the building explaining the methods of handling the mass of mail matter with quickness and dispatch.

Most of the furnishings were in place so that an intelligent idea was afforded of how Uncle Sam's agents transact business.

Everybody was delighted with the building and its appointments, for it is certainly a modern post office in every way. All of the offices in the building are attractive, but none more so than the private office of the superintendent, which is furnished luxuriously, and Mr. Hammond has good reason for feeling proud of his new quarters.

During the inspection music was furnished by Smith's orchestra composed of employees at the Boston center office.

The inspection lasted until nearly 9 o'clock at which time caterer Seiler served an excellent lunch, the letter carriers acting as servers.

Superintendent Hammond then rapped for quietness and in a few words welcomed those present saying that we think we have the best office in the Boston district, and are very glad to see you here. He then introduced Postmaster Mansfield.

Mr. Mansfield said that it was a pleasure for him to be present, and congratulate Quincy on its fine building and fine superintendent. We look to Quincy, he said for fine service for Quincy is a part of the Boston Postal district, the largest district in the United States.

We have 61 branch offices covering 160 square miles with 3000 employes serving 1,300,000 people. He said it is a great satisfaction to know you have a modern building so well equipped, and he was glad to have such a building in his district.

He said he hoped the business men had felt no deterioration in service since the office was made a part of the Boston district. It was with a great deal of pride that he congratulated the city of Quincy on the new edifice, its superintendent and its employees, who are to work among such pleasant surroundings.

Mayor Shea said it was a pleasure to him to express the pleasure of the citizens of Quincy on their new building, and to congratulate the superintendent on the energy he has displayed. He said we know that since he has been in charge he has displayed great energy and that the facilities of the office have been increased.

The mayor assured Postmaster Mansfield that there had been no deteriorations in the service and he did not believe superintendent Hammond would allow it.

A. B. Raymond, who has been the superintendent in charge of the construction of the building, said that he had superintended the erection of many public buildings and this was about the best of the lot. The lay out here is particularly well adapted for the work. In this room it will be noticed that there are no pillars to abstract the work such as are in many buildings.

Mr. Raymond said that there were a number of details in a building that seem absurd but which amount to a great deal. These trifles put together make perfection.

He said careful attention had been paid to this building. Mr. Raymond said in closing that he had officially turned the building over to Superintendent Hammond, its custodian and received his receipt for it. He would now turn it over to the citizens of Quincy.

Ex-Mayor Charles M. Bryant said that he was the chairman of the two committees that went to Washington to work for the building.

He congratulated the citizens on having a Post Office that was an ideal building. He said we now know where the post office is and that it will not be continually shifting about. Much credit for the building belongs to superintendent Hammond.

Ex-Congressman Harrison H. Atwood said that 12 or 14 years ago when he was in congress, representing the tenth district, he offered an order for a post office building in Quincy. It seemed that Quincy then needed two things, a post office and the dredging of town river. Here you have a building which for utility can not be beat. It is a beautiful piece of work. You have a first class Postmaster and a first class superintendent and no doubt first class carriers.

Lysander Richards was then introduced. Mr. Richards said he was postmaster in Quincy half a century ago. The office was then located where the city treasurers office now is. That was from 1852 to 1854. He was then but 18 years of age so could not hold office in his own name. Frank Williams was the postmaster and he was the acting postmaster. All that Mr. Williams did was to sign his name to papers occasionally. He said then about the only expense of the office was his salary. Now it was $40,000.

Inspector Jennings of the post office department, said he could join with others in congratulating Quincy

Jack Binns who flashed the Republic's C. Q. D. got to be a national hero P. D. Q.

The Kaiser and the King of England have kissed but it was left for their queens to "make up."

Barefoot dances are quite the rage in New York society. Is this the beginning of a Salome style for ball gowns?

No matter what the weather happens to be in Washington on March Fourth Congress is sure to feel that the temperature is warmer.

Senator La Follette says Senator Hale is "inconsistent." At the White House he would have promptly been elected to the Ananias Club.

Daniel is the only man who ever lived who was not spoiled by being lionized and though Mr. Roosevelt has escaped so far no one is willing to predict the ultimate effect of lionizing upon him until he has returned from Africa.

A bill has been introduced in the Kansas legislature to tax all bachelors over forty years of age. Like the bull which the farmer attached to the plow to show "that bull there was something in this life besides pleasure" the bachelor should be made to pay for his liberty.

President Roosevelt will engage in exterminating wild animals in Africa during the next year. When he returns he will tell all about it in the magazines and if he is a true sportsman he will most likely render himself eligible for the Presidency of the Ananias club.

Unless there is some unlooked for hitch it looks now as if the city council would decide to build the proposed new school house at Houghs Neck, in the Cavanagh lot, provided the land can be bought at a reasonable price.

While nothing definite will be known until after the public hearing Monday night, it is rumored that several members of the council have inspected the lot and agree that it is well adapted for school purposes.

The lot is located at the junction of Sea street and Manet avenue and is plenty large enough for a school building.

So far as can be learned the residents of Houghs Neck are quite satisfied with the Cavanagh lot, and many of them will speak in favor of it at the public hearing.

The pastor of a church in an Ohio town has found it necessary to denounce kissing during services. This is somewhat surprising. There was no such accompaniment to sermon, singing and prayer in our time, but the world moves, or as Cicero puts in "Tempora mutantur;" and we must change with the times. The pastor says that the practice of kissing during service is more stimulating and pernicious than alchoholic beverages. We are not surprised to hear it. We have known, however, that in rural communities, the church, or "meeting house," as it is very properly called, was not altogether for prayer and praise. It subserved another very human, though not acknowledged function, for the display of the best clothes of the parishoners and for flirtation. Human nature is an ineradicable infection. Boys and girls will be boys and girls.

At the hearing at the State house Thursday, on the recommendation of the Metropolitan Park Commissioners, that a new bridge be built across the Neponset river the majority of the parties interested, while agreeing that a new bridge would be a great improvement, favored the appointment of a commission to apportion the cost of construction, among the cities and towns to be benifited by a new bridge.

Unless a commission is appointed, Quincy will be obliged to pay half the cost of construction if a new bridge is built, which is more than the city wants, or should be required to do, as the Quincy portion of the present bridge, is in fair condition, and with a small outlay would be good for several years.

As the Neponset bridge is the main thoroughfare for pleasure driving to places on the south shore it is only fair that Plymouth and Barnstable counties and places north of Boston should pay their share of the cost of building a new bridge.

When the Quincy Point bridge was constructed, a special commission apportioned the cost among the several places benifited by the bridge, there is apparently no reason why the same thing should not be done if a new bridge is constructed across the Neponset river.

EDITORIAL COMMENTS.

Boston has had an open-air as well as a committee hearing on woman suffrage, and the overflow meeting on the State house steps was the more picturesque, if not the more impressive. The English suffragettes who spoke made their appeal in a pleasing manner, and whatever the voting sentiments of the men in the crowd, and of the non-voting women in the same crowd, there was good natured attention and harmonius reception, not much like the scenes in London as the cables tell of them.

The occasion at the State house has focused an increased popular attention to the woman suffrage cause, though in Boston opinion on the question may not have needed the stimulus. The issue is today more sharply defined than ever before. So much the new style of suffragette has accomplished, certainly.

The very insistence of the new campaign—that is, the new flavor of the campaign—has stirred the opponents as well as the supporters of woman suffrage, so that today there are few women who have not a decided and avowed opinion either for or against the idea of women's unrestricted voting power.

There are fewer women and fewer men without any opinion on the matter than there were a decade ago. The question of majority is yet disputed, but there is no longer a dispute on the question of the degree of interest taken.—Boston Advertiser.

The days will soon be here when a lot of humans will be gladly wandering out of doors and marching through the woodland; and then the air some days will be heavy with smoke, and the annual spring-time story will come of tracts of woodland being ravaged by flames.

State Forester Rane is appealing to the towns to take steps to cut down the volume of this distruction. The legislature has adopted a law prohibiting open air fires in certain towns, except under certain defined conditions, and placed authority with the State warden forester and State warden looking to the enforcement of the statute.

Even in towns which have not adopted the new law, it might well be followed for the interests of the people. Why should not people be willing between the dates of April 1 and Dec.1, to refrain from setting fires in the open air except when given the written permission of the forest warden, or when they can build them on plowed fields at least 200 feet distant from forests or sprout lands; and why shouldn't they be willing to watch such fires till all danger of burning anything else in the vicinity is past?

And why should men, knowing the dry and tinderlike condition of woods after a few dry warm days, elect to go into the woods and smoke, and throw burning matches and burning tobacco around where they may ignite twigs and start fires which may cost thousands of dollars and cause untold trouble?

If every man would show discretion and a reasonable degree of common sense in these things there would not be each year the vast destruction of woodland which is rapidly making it a serious problem how to save enough of the forests in some places to even provide for the present generation.—Brockton Enterprise.

President Roosevelt is interested in the preservation of the natural resources of the United States, and is of opinion that other countries should begin to look out for theirs.

His idea is that a world conference on the subject would do a lot of good, and so he intends to invite the 54 nations represented at the last Hague conference to participate in another conference to be held at the Hague in September.

Acting Secretary of State Bacon says that "Such a conference might well consider a general plan for an inventory of the natural resources of the world and of devising a uniform scheme for the expression of the world results of such inventory to the end that there may be a general understanding and appreciation of the world's supply."

That will prove of general interest. One half the world does not know how the other half lives. We imagine there is a large body of people in every state that could not tell offhand what are the natural resources of the State next to their own. When it comes to countries, the ignorance of the resources of the country across the border is general among the people of the country on the other side.

The conference can correct this, and what is more important, reach some definite conclusions as to common effort to preserve the resources of all. Wastefulness is not peculiar to any country, but is more or less common to all.

Some of the peoples of the world are more careful than others, due principally to the paucity of their resources, and in a conference their experience will be of value to those who are less prudent. Forestation and the conservation of water power will be two subjects that will engage the attention of the conference.

The North American conference now in session at Washington will be able to furnish light on these two topics, and probably suggest others that will be equally important and interesting.—Lynn Item.

Are doctors good for anything?
Foolish question! Yet some people act as if a medicine could take the place of a doctor! The best medicine in the world cannot do this. Have a family doctor, consult him frequently. If we did not believe doctors endorsed Ayer's Cherry Pectoral for coughs and colds, we would not offer it to you.

CANAL DOOMED TO FAILURE

That Is the Opinion Expressed by Eminent French Engineer

MAKES AN AWFUL PREDICTION

Vivid Presentation of Disaster to Follow Building of Lock Canal Across Isthmus on Plans Adopted by United States—Thirty-Three Years' Work Will Go For Nothing and $650,000,000 Will Be Sunk

Boston, Feb. 26.—Phillipe Bunau-Varilla, the eminent French engineer, was the principal speaker at the Commercial club dinner last evening, given at the Algonquin club, having especially come from France for that purpose.

He attacked the accepted scheme for the construction of the Panama canal, charging among other things that the Gatun dam, in process of construction on the isthmus, is absolutely without trustworthy foundation and apt to precipitate the nation into so serious a catastrophe as to sully the reputation of our country.

"The point at issue is the stability of the Gatun dam," said Bunau-Varilla. "It is the cornerstone of the canal system, which consists in creating a great lake at 85 feet altitude on both sides of the Culebra ridge, and in connecting this surface of water with the oceans by a flight of three locks on each side.

"If the Gatun dam gives way, it will be the most dramatic catastrophe in the history of public works. The result of an expense of $650,000,000; $25,000,000 spent by the French share and bondholders, $400,000,000 spent by this government, the result of thirty-three years of efforts, will be annihilated in a quarter of an hour, the town of Colon will be wiped out and possibly a whole fleet will be stranded and made prisoner for years by nature if the fleet happens to be in the lake at that moment.

"I contend that such a thing is not a dream of a sick imagination. It is not only possible, it is probable; it is not only probable, it is almost certain. This high degree of probability can be established by facts without introducing any element of personal opinion in the argument."

Mr. Bunau-Varilla contended that the minority report of engineers was in error on four points: Estimated cost, width of tide locks, concerning dredgable matter and foundation of dam.

Prosecution Fails to Trip Cooper on Shortage In Chancery Office

Nashville, Feb. 26.—After undergoing for nearly two days a most searching cross-examination, Duncan B. Cooper was given over to his own counsel last night by the state.

The prosecution did some execution in its efforts to show that Cooper, as clerk and master in chancery, was short $100,000 and that a legislative investigating committee charged that a defaulting state treasurer used nearly $100,000 of the state's funds in promoting a Mexican silver mine and a Walnut Log company, which Cooper managed. The witness insisted, however, that every dollar of the chancery shortage, due to a faulty office system, had been repaid and that he did not know that the state treasurer, M. T. Polk, was using the state's funds in the investment.

AMERICANS SATISFIED

Code of Naval Warfare Signed by Delegates to Conference

London, Feb. 26.—The international naval conference concluded its labors and the delegates today attached their signatures to a code of naval warfare, to frame which they came to London.

The American delegates expressed themselves as well satisfied with the code as it has been drawn up, believing that it contains much that will prove of great advantage to American commerce in time of war.

The code consists of sixty-nine articles, sub-divided into eight chapters. It is for the greater part highly technical.

NEWFOUNDLAND POLITICS

Morris Asked to Form New Cabinet Upon Resignation of Bond Men

St. John's, Feb. 26.—The government of Sir Robert Bond has tendered its resignation to Governor MacGregor, and it is probable that Sir Edward Morris, the opposition leader and formerly a minister in the Bond cabinet, will be called upon to form a ministry.

As Morris has no more supporters in the house than has Bond there is intense interest in the probable development of the next few wees.

Acquitted of Murdering Husband

New York, Feb. 26.—Rose Gratzione, 20 years old, who, when but a bride of six months, shot and killed her husband because unable to endure longer his alleged brutal conduct, was acquitted of the charge of murder by a jury in Brooklyn. There was an affecting scene when the jury decreed that the young woman might go free.

Foxy Mr. Blake.

[Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.]

I was sitting on my porch one afternoon when a man came in at the gate with a lawn sprinkler. A few moments later he was trying to sell me one, declaring that it had a patent ball valve.

"Get out of these premises as quickly as possible," I said, "or I'll help you."

The man, abashed, turned to go. He had not got far before I called him back and apologized for my harshness, handed him a cigar, asked him to be seated and told him the following story:

"I am a retired railroad detective. Railroads are good pay, and I was successful in hunting train robbers and other pilferers, thus regaining for them a number of considerable sums of money. My bonuses made me comfortable, and a part of them are in this house and grounds.

"I am going to tell you about the last case I ever handled. I was at work at the time for the V. L. and X. railroad. They wanted a man of the name of Charles Blake for getting away with $100,000. My reward was to be $10,000 if I caught him and secured the return of the money. I tracked Blake into the Rocky mountains and arrested him. He was sensible and knew his own interests. He told me that he would willingly go with me and would return every cent he had stolen, relying on the company not to prosecute him.

"I assured him that what the company wanted was the money and promised him immunity. He was an educated and refined man and insisted that he be not subjected to the ignominy of riding handcuffed. Since he was a puny little fellow that I could swing around my head by one leg and I saw no reason why he should be overanxious to contend with me, I assented. He sat by me apparently as my friend, and no one knew that he was my prisoner.

"It's a long journey from the Rockies to Chicago, where I was taking him, and I was glad to have some one to talk to. Blake was very intelligent and entertaining. He was an engineer and had worked at his profession on many roads for which I had done detective work. After the present disagreeable matter was settled up he had a scheme on hand by which he could make ten times the amount which he had stolen. He had invented a railroad self acting switch which could never send a train awry. He explained it to me, making drawings of it on the back of an old letter, and I confess I was delighted with the man's ingenuity.

"What puzzled me was why a man with so much ability should have put himself in the way to spend most of his life in state prison. If he had only applied one-tenth of the ingenuity he had exerted in his scheme of robbery to any honest purpose he might have been eminently successful. I said as much to him, and he said he knew it.

"Before we reached the Mississippi river I was in complete sympathy with my prisoner and congratulating myself upon the approaching acquisition of $10,000. The afternoon before we were to reach Chicago he told me about an air pump he had invented, offering the whole thing to me if I would take out the patent and sell the rights. After I had established it I could give him an interest or not, as I liked. As for him, he proposed to give all his attention to his railroad switch. Naturally I was interested and was quite absorbed in the principle of his pump, which he explained to me.

"'There is a ball valve to it,' he said, 'the ball lying in a socket, and the greater the air pressure behind it the tighter it holds. It's like this.'

"Twisting the letter on which he had drawn his switch into a cornucopia, he dropped a paper wad into the large end, and it sank at once into the small end. 'When I blow,' he said, 'you'll see that the wad stays right where it is. He put the small end into his mouth and pointed the cornucopia at my eyes and within a foot of my face. Then he blew.

"I was looking to see the working of the ball valve when I suddenly felt the flames of Tophet in my eyes, in my nose, in my mouth, in any crevice open to them. As for seeing anything, I was blind as a bat, and the pain in my eyes was excruciating. My nostrils and the roof of my mouth were on fire. The fellow had blown red pepper in my face.

"While I was gasping, sputtering, trying to wipe away the pepper, the rascal ran to the car door, shouting, 'My friend has got a fit; I'm going for help.' The train was moving some twenty miles an hour, but he found a grassy slope, on to which he jumped and made good his escape.

"The episode marked my retirement from the detective service. I hadn't the face to report the matter to my employers, but instead sent in my resignation. You may imagine, my dear sir, what it cost me to have a man come to me to sell me any contrivance whatever involving a ball valve. Now that you understand the cause of my rudeness I trust you will pardon me."

The man arose and bid me good morning, saying as he departed: "Under the circumstances, sir, I consider you a model of self control. I regret that I haven't my card with me, but I will send you one, and I trust that some day you will call upon me."

As he went to the gate there was something familiar in his figure and his walk. This was explained when I received his card. It bore the name of Charles Blake.

HONORS TO ROOT

Recognition of His Services In Behalf of Universal Peace

New York, Feb. 26.—Recognition of the services of former Secretary of State Elihu Root in the cause of universal peace is the purpose of the dinner to be given to the New York senator-elect by the Peace Society of New York tonight.

ELIHU ROOT.

Over 500 persons, guests and members of the society, will attend the dinner at the Hotel Astor. Among the guests who will address the society will be President-Elect Taft, Governor Hughes, James Bryce, ambassador from Great Britain; Senor Nabuco, ambassador from Brazil, and Baron Takahira, ambassador from Japan. The chairman in charge of the dinner is Hamilton Holt, editor The Independent, and the presiding officer will be Hon. Joseph H. Choate, former ambassador to Great Britain. Mr. Root will deliver one of the addresses.

END OF THE EARTH

Lowell Says It Will Come When Unknown Dark Planet Jolts the Sun

Boston, Feb. 26.—"A collision of an unknown dark planet with the sun will terminate life on the earth," said Professor Percival Lowell, director of the Lowell observatory at Flagstaff, Ariz., in a lecture last night before the students of Massachusetts Institute of Technology and others.

"The event will be prophesied fourteen years before the catastrophe occurs," continued the professor, "and chaotic confusion will reign in the world during the days preceding the calamity."

The chance of the catastrophe happening in the near future are declared by Lowell to be very slight, however.

WEAVERS DEMAND HIGHER WAGES

Results In Closing of Woolen Mills In Woonsocket

Woonsocket, R. I., Feb. 26.—The strike of 130 weavers employed by the Montrose Woolen company caused a sutdown of the company's plant last night. The weavers ask for higher wages than they are getting at present, because of the introduction of a difficult two loom system in the mills.

The mill officials declared vacant the places of the strikers, and announced their intention of taking steps immediately to fill their places. An increase of 5 per cent was offered, but declined.

The mills have been working night and day for nearly two months.

FRIENDSHIP'S BOND

Will Prevent Clash of Arms Between United States and Canada

Ottawa, Feb. 26.—A statement of Canada's view as to the impossibility of future trouble with the United States was made at an artillery luncheon by Prime Minister Laurier, who said:

"Canada has little reason to fear that she will ever be invaded. We have but one neighbor of this continent, the United States. While our frontier has been crossed in the past, there is no reason to believe that Great Britain and the United States will ever again be at war or that Canadians will ever live in any but peaceful relations with their cousins, the great people of the United States."

INVECTIVE IS FREELY USED

Congressmen Excited Over Secret Service Detectives

OPERATIONS ARE RESTRICTED

One Speaker Declares Them to Be Worthless and Cites the Assassination of McKinley to Sustain His Argument—Another Speaks of Roosevelt In Most Uncomplimentary Language Until Compelled to Stop

Washington, Feb. 26.—By an overwhelming vote and without party distinction, the house of representatives sustained the committee on appropriations in again reporting a provision in the sundry civil appropriation bill restricting the operations of secret service detectives of the treasury department.

The discussion arose over an amendment by Mr. Bennett (N. Y.), striking out the provision limiting the field of operations of the secret service. A similar paragraph in the last appropriation bill is what gave rise to the president's strictures upon members of congress.

Mr. Bennett entered a general defense of the secret service detectives. His remarks were listened to intently by Mr. Smith (Rep. Ia.), who on their conclusion spoke of the numerous special agents, postoffice inspectors and others, "every one of whom," he said, "is of a higher and nobler type than the members of the so-called secret service."

He vehemently declared, in speaking of the secret service, that it was a matter of common knowledge that one of the requisites of a detective was that he should be a "common liar." The secret service men, he charged, were worthless, "and," he said, "nowhere except in the vainglorious boastings of Chief Wilkie and the testimony of men who did not know anything about it did I find that it (the secret service) had done anything except in the watching of jurors and the like."

Mr. Smith suggested that if detectives were necessary to hunt down jurors they should be assigned by the department of justice and not be taken from the force in the counterfeiting section of the treasury department. In prior years, he said, the abuse of the field of operation of the secret service was only incidental, but now it had become an enormity.

Mr. Smith referred to the assassination of President McKinley and seemed to use all the invective he possessed. "The only president assassinated since the service men were detailed to watch the president," he said, "was when President McKinley was shot down at Buffalo with a secret service man by his side who was unable to observe the approaching murderer with his bandaged hand. That man did not even capture the murderer."

Then with the expression of bitterness still on his face he slowly remarked: "But it took a man with a black skin to capture the assassin."

Cook Takes a Hand

Mr. Cook (Rep. Col.) also discussed the provisions with much freedom of speech and frequently referring to the president in most uncomplimentary language, as in the following:

"It is unfortunate, not only for President Roosevelt, but for the citizens of the republic, that he has not a legal mind and no equipoise of reason, riding through and around the arena of political action on his broncho of arrogant, egotistical impulse, pretending to throw his lariat of execution at the heads of broad horns of capital, for the delectation of voting labor and ending the scene with the cunning catch of a prairie wolf or a gopher."

So denunciatory of the president was Cook that he was denied the privilege of continuing his remarks after he had spoken but a few minutes. In the main he was addressing himself to the work of the secret service agents in Colorado in a certain alleged land fraud case, one of whom, he stated, was a horse thief. The case, he said, had come to the United States supreme court and was unanimously decided in favor of the defendants.

Referring to the attitude of the president in the matter of ferreting out frauds, Cook declared that "In all of this fuss and feathers of the whole administration the president and his pliant attorney general have not sent a single plutocrat to the penitentiary."

After a defense of the secret service by Mr. Driscoll (N. Y.), Mr. Tawney (Minn.) attacked Chief Wilkie and accused him of standing practically alone in the campaign against congress restricting his activities.

On the vote being taken the amendment of Bennett was rejected, 41 to 153.

SPORT ON ICE YACHTS

An Exciting Diversion in Which Many Delight.

RACES FOR CHAMPIONSHIP.

Many Famous Speedy Ones Entered In Contests to Be Held on Shrewsbury River, New Jersey, For American Title—The Imp Feared.

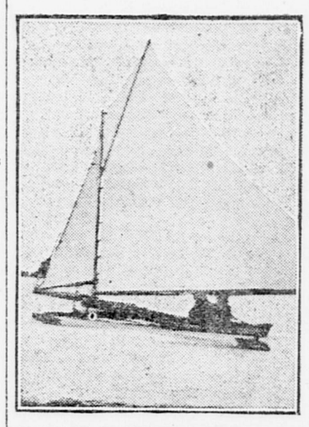

The hardy skippers of the racing ice yacht fleets in many parts of the country where the "mosquito fleets" hold sway during the cold months have been jubilant. The recent cold snap sealed the broad stretches of the Hudson, the St. Lawrence, the great lakes, the streams throughout Pennsylvania and New Jersey and furnished means of enjoying this attractive winter pastime. Many races have been held in the different parts of the country, and more are to come.

There is unusual interest in this season's ice boat doings along the Shrewsbury river, in New Jersey, because the American championship was left undecided last year, unfavorable weather conditions halting the regatta before the final race was sailed. Three first class clubs have representative yachts entered for the championship. The North Shrewsbury Ice Yacht and Boat club of Red Bank will enter the Imp, owned by Messrs. Willis and Burd, and Henry Grant's Tyro. The colors of the South Shrewsbury club will be flown by the X. L. N. C. and Hazel L. or Georgie II., and the Shrewsbury club is pinning its faith on the Drub and Isabel.

The Imp is a great favorite with Red Bankers, and even her most formidable adversaries are fearful of her prowess and the skill of the men who lie in her cockpit. She holds several records because of her ability to take kindly to almost any kind of weather.

The story of ice boating on the Shrewsbury reads like an Oliver Optic novel. It was fifty years ago that it had its beginning. At that time Squire Lawrence Earle and Jacob McClane kept a general store at Broad and Front streets. Among the stories that drifted into town and were discussed over sugar barrels and sacks of potatoes were the thrilling experiences of the ice yacht skippers of the northwest.

Neither Earle nor his partner had ever seen an ice boat, but they decided that they could construct a boat of a certain form that could be used on ice. Then came a season when the good folk of Red Bank, N. J., thought their industrious storekeepers were clean daft, for very seldom could they be found behind their counters to look after the business. They kept their plans a secret until after four weeks the boat was ready to be moved down to the river. Two men could not get it out alone, so they called in some of their trusted friends to help. However, it was found that the boat was far too large to be taken out of the cellar, and it was necessary to take it apart to get it out.

At last, however, it was launched on the ice of the Shrewsbury, the event being marked as something of an occasion, people from far and near hurrying to get a look at the queer craft. And it was an odd achievement, for it had runners made of ordinary skates. For a mast broomsticks were spliced together, a regular mast being too heavy, and the sail was of muslin. Very cumbersome and bulky that first ice boat might have been, but to the astonishment of those who were looking on, only too ready to laugh at it, the boat not only stayed right side up, but she sailed well. Her builders have long since gone to their long rest, but ice boating from that day to this has been the particular delight of Red Bankers.

Improvements quickly followed, stimulating the interest of the inhabitants of that long strip of country bordering the Shrewsbury, and ice boating was accepted as a sport peculiarly belonging to them.

Just as in the case of the ice boat's popular sister, the sailing boat, the last quarter century or so has produced a tremendous change. No longer is the accepted sailing craft heavy and bulky. Rather, it is built on slim lines, fine and slender and trim and altogether beautiful. So the ice boat has molded fashion from the newer styles, and the up to date ice yacht is as delicately built, as slenderly fashioned and as surely constructed for speed as her sister of the waterways.

BASKET BALL GROWS UNPOPULAR

Too Much Roughhouse Disgusts Followers of Game

HIGH SCHOOL TEAMS OBSERVE RULES TOO CLOSELY

Rules Must Be Modified if Game Is To Continue Popular

Basket ball as it is played today differs greatly from the style of play that was in vogue two or three years ago. To be sure the rules have undergone some changes and this would change the game some. But the slight changes in the rules are not enough to cause the vast change in the game as it is played this season. In fact there are two changes and it is hard to decide which is the worst and which pleases the public the most. The two changes are the extremes which have been noticed this year especially. First, the absolute refusal of one referee to call a foul, and second, the perfect willingness of another to call fouls for every little thing.

Which is the most pleasing to an audience which comes to see a fast game? Do the spectators wish to sit and watch the players throwing or attempting to throw baskets from free tries all through the game, or do they desire to witness the vain struggle of one player trying to squirm away from another? The former style of play is seen more perhaps in high school basket ball, where the teachers and coaches insist on clean playing all the time.

To bring about this end it was decided to make certain rules for the referees to follow, and so every official in a game was instructed to be extremely careful in his judgment of plays, and to allow no rough tactics whatever. Hence it came about that a foul was called for the slightest breach of the rules, with the result that in some games between forty and fifty fouls were called. When it is considered that it takes time to shoot fouls, it will be seen that there is not much time remaining for real playing. This continual shooting of fouls necessarily slows up the game and causes interest to wane in one of the best of indoor games.

On the other hand in semi-professional and professional basket ball, the very opposite is true to what is said of the game as played by the high school teams. Here hardly a foul is called and the rules of the game are not observed at all, either by the referee or the players. From the time the whistle blows it is one continual roughhouse each player continually struggling to get away from his opponent and get a shot. This is almost impossible, for the players hold and push and do everything else that is against the rules. But the referee seldom if ever blows the whistle and the rough play continues. The rules say that holding is a foul, that two arms around is a foul, that pushing is a foul. Running with the ball is also a foul, but these rules are constantly broken by the semi-professional player, and it all goes by the referee unnoticed.

Hence the game is fast becoming unpopular with a vast majority, who thoroughly enjoy good clean sport, but look askance at anything that brings back the days of the bullfights, and other sports that have been condemned by the sporting fraternity. Of course the attendance is still large in some places but where a thousand used to attend a game, now about half the number attends.

The writer does not wish to detract from the interest and value of the sports, for he is an enthusiastic follower of the game and has followed it for many years. But the criticism is from a fair and unbiased standpoint, given after careful observation of the styles of play seen both in the high school and in the semi-professional game. Any fair-minded man will admit that the game has lost many of its former royal supporters, because of the continual roughhouse tactics that are allowed at the present time. Now the thing to do is to find a remedy for the bad features that have crept into the game in the last year.

The cry will be, when a change is suggested, "Why not have the game as it was a few years ago." Just the thing to do, but how is it to be accomplished. The happy medium is undoubtedly the thing we want, but the way to get it, is the question that we have to consider. It is a difficult thing to figure out, and practical experience will show results. But we may go ahead and change rules back and forth from now until doomsday, and it will never do any good until we get officials who are willing to enforce the rules when necessary, and who know when and when not to enforce them.

If the rules are carried out to the letter then we will have what we have in the high schools now, a game that is slow and unentertaining, except perhaps to a crowd of girls, and even then not extremely so. Again, if the rules are not enforced at all, we have the roughhouse game as seen in the semi-pro ranks of today. Hence the happy medium is indeed what is wanted, and the nervy, level-headed referee to run the game. When we get this combination working, then we will have a game worth witnessing and one that is interesting to all.

There was a splendid array of home talent and all present enjoyed a pleasant evening. W. R. Haysorn officiated as chairman. Refreshments were served during the evening.

State House Hearing

zens ought to be free to express their preference irrespective of party. If we can break away from parties the feeling is that we can get better men to run for office.

People should be able to do this without breaking away from their party. The best citizens have frequently declared they would run if they could get away from politics.

Mr. McAnarney then cited the election of Mayor Shea as an instance of voters breaking away from their party. He said we want the right to conduct our affairs as a corporation would. He knew there were men who were elected to office through party affiliation. He said this bill should not be confounded with any attempt to amend the charter. It does not interfere with the cnarter in the least.

In drawing the bill Mr. McAnarney said that he had followed the Haverhill act. Strong men refuse to go into a political squabble for councilman.

When asked as to the character of the Councils for the past few years Mr. McAnarney said there had never been any charge of graft and as a whole they were honest men, but not men of the proper calibre. They do not represent the business sentiment. We want to make this a purely local affair.

He said we want to eliminate the party designation so that a voter can vote for a man and not forsake his party. He would have the bill left to referendum. Mr. McAnarney also referred to the first Bryant election which was won by a combination of Bryantites and Democrats.

Mayor Shea said all that was wanted was an opportunity to present the question to the voters. If the citizens want it they are entitled to it.

Representative Burr who was evidently familiar with Quincy politics asked the Mayor a number of questions.

Paul R. Blackmur gave the history of several elections to bear out the claim that it was desirable to eliminate party designations one of which was where R. F. Claflin who ran for Councilman at large on the Democratic ticket was defeated by clerks.

He said the people say we have had enough of the present way and that we want to try the other method. He said not the most desirable men as a rule go to the City Council.

At this point the chairman asked if there was any opposition and Messrs. Sandberg, Hall, Chase, Whitman and Follett stood up.

As there were other matters before the committee the Quincy hearing was adjourned until afternoon that the opposition might be heard.

—Mrs. Maud Wood Park and Miss Mabel Willard have started together to make a tour around the world, studying the condition of women in different countries as they go. They will visit Japan first. They expect to be gone two years.

—Norwood women, some 500, are much stirred up because on account of a blunder of the clerk of assessors, their names were left off the voting lists and it is now too late to remedy the matter. There is quite a little rivalry this year, two women being candidates for the school board but their election will have to be settled by the men.

☞Elmer W. Baker openes a dancing class in Quincy Music hall on Thursday evening March 4th; gives a dancing party on St. Patrick's night and his Saturday night socials will be continued after Lent.

MAXIMUM FINE OF $270,000

Best the Government Can Do In Standard Oil Case

RULING OF JUDGE ANDERSON

It Upsets Calculations of the Prosecution by Declaring That Alleged Rebates Accepted After Each Settlement Constitute Unit of Offense—Blow to Government More Crushing Than Reversal of Landis' Decision

Chicago, Feb. 26.—From Judge Landis' fine of $29,240,000 to a possible maximum fine of $720,000 is a far cry, but that is admitted to be the meaning of a ruling made by Judge Anderson in the re-trial of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana for alleged rebating.

The ruling was informal and was made for the purpose of expediting the hearing, but although the government has the privilege of presenting further arguments, it is practically certain that there will be no change in the ruling when it is formally entered.

The decision of the court of appeals which reversed Landis' fine ruled against the view of the jurist that each carlot of oil on which a rebate was accepted constituted a separate offense. There were 1462 of these carlots, the freight charges for which were paid in thirty-six different settlements.

Judge Anderson interpreted the decision of the appellate court, which, he said, served as his guide, as implying that these alleged rebates accepted after each of the thirty-six settlements constituted the unit of offense. The appellate court, however, did not so state explicitly, nor did it clear up the point whether the alleged offense was a continuous one, the whole forming a single violation of the Elkins law.

Judge Anderson's ruling was a severe blow to United States District Attorney Sims and his associates in the prosecution. He and his assistant, James H. Wilkerson, had argued that each shipment, of which there were 500, making possible a maximum fine of $10,000,000, constituted an offense.

This view Anderson declared he could not understand. He said that it had not been made plain what comprised a shipment—a trainload, a carlot, or a gallon.

Mr. Wilkerson argued that the fine which would be possible under the court's ruling would serve merely as a license to a great corporation. On this point Anderson said, in effect:

"That is a consideration which has no weight with me whatever. I am not concerned with the effectiveness of the statutes, but with their interpretation and application. If the view that I have taken has the effect that has been stated, this is a matter for the law-makers to consider. If their laws are inadequate, let them supply a remedy."

The reversal of Judge Landis' decision was a telling blow, but Thursday's was crushing, according to lawyers for the defendant. A fine of $10,000,000, it was believed, would suffice to indicate that the government had the power to deal efficiently with alleged corporate evils. Anderson's ruling, it is said, removes even that chance.

WAS TIRED OF HIS WIFE

Howard Would Get Rid of Her, According to Soldier's Testimony

New Bedford, Mass., Feb. 26.—Testimony of a desire on the part of William C. Howard to rid himself of his wife, on account of whose death he is now on trial for murder, was given by Private August Johnson of the Coast Artillery Corps at Fort Rodman, where Howard was also stationed last summer.

Johnson said that while they were in hospital together at the fort Howard told him he did not relish giving his wife $12 a month from his pay, as he had agreed to do after his arrest for non-support.

"I'll get rid of my wife or do something to myself," Howard declared at this time, according to Johnson.

STEPHENSON'S "BARREL"

Federal and State Officials Were on Hand at the Tapping

Madison, Wis., Feb. 26.—That state officeholders, present and past, state employes, federal officeholders, several prominent attorneys and others were paid money to further the interests of United States Senator Stephenson as a candidate in the recent primary election, was shown in a statement of election expenses filed by Rodney Sackett with the legislative committee investigating the senatorial primary.

The making public of the list created a sensation. The amounts ranged from $25 to $3000.

A Wrong Guess.

Botanical Youth (in park)—Can you tell me if this plant belongs to the arbutus family? Gardener (curtly)—No, young man, it don't. It belongs to the county council.—London Globe.

BASKET BALL.

Stetson hall, Randolph, was the scene of a hot basket ball game Thursday night, when the speedy St. Mary's aggregation of West Quincy met and defeated the Randolph five for the second time within a week.

Randolph had quite a record when she appeared in St. Mary's hall last Saturday night, but the local five made her look like a back number. Thursday night was slightly different, Randolph having the advantage of being on her own floor. This did not stop St. Mary's however, and they won again by the score of 18 to 17.

The game was just as close as the score indicates, it being nip and tuck between the two teams all through the game. A large crowd attended the game, nearly 200 rooters going from West Quincy on special cars and doing much towards winning the game with their encouraging cheers.

Randolph was the first to score Robbins throwing a pretty basket on a clever one-hand shot. The West Quincy crowd went wild the next minute when "Dan" Duggan and Johnny McLaughlin threw two baskets in quick succession, St. Mary's taking the lead.

Lind then tied the score by shooting two from fouls. It was see-saw then till the end of the half which ended with the score 9 to 9, with both sides playing a fast and hard game.

The second half continued fast, Randolph taking the lead at the start by scoring two baskets right off the reel. It looked bad for St. Mary's for a time, but the superior team work and condition told, and the score was soon tied again, mainly on a couple of pretty shots by Morrill and Mullen.

"Bill" Duggan then put St. Mary's in the lead and Shay tied the score again for Randolph, with pretty shots.

Johnny McLaughlin was there with the much-needed basket, however, and St. Mary's led 18 to 16. On a free try Lind got one point, and had a chance to tie the score with another, but failed to cage the ball.

The game was rough at times Robbins and Morrill being knocked out during the game, but gamely coming back after a few minutes rest. All th St. Mary's boys played excellent ball, but McLaughlin and Morrill shone. Landers and Robbins played the best game for Randolph. The summary:

ST. MARY'S		RANDOLPH
W. Duggan rf		lb Shay
D. Duggan lf		rb Cummings
McLaughlin c		c Landers
Mullen rb		lf Robbins
Morrill lb		rf Lind

Score, St. Mary's 18, Randolph 17. Goals from floor W. Duggan, D. Duggan McLaughlin 3, Mullen, Morrill 2, Shay 2, Landers 2, Robbins 2. Goals from fouls, W. Duggan 2, Lind 5. Referee Linehan. Scorer Fitzgerald. Timer Joyce. Time 20 m periods. Attendance 350.

Between the halves both second teams played and the Randolph seconds won again 26 to 14. This game was one of the roughest on record, both sides having a share in the roughhouse tactics. Twice during the game there were individual bouts between two of the players. One between French and Croto was so bad that the referee ordered both to leave the game. As Randolph had no substitute, French was allowed to return.

The game was close in the first half, but in the second, Randolph had things pretty much her own way.

For the winners, Willard and French played a star game, scoring 18 of the 26 points between them. "Syd" Duggan seemed to be the only shining light on the St. Mary's team, the others not being able to do much of anything. The summary:

RANDOLPH 2d.		ST. MARY'S 2d.
French, rf		lb, Bennett, Collins
Downey, lf		rb, Croto, Rooney
Willard, c		c, Canavan, Bennett
McMahon, rb		lf, Morrill
Riordan, lb		rf, Duggan

Score, Randolph 2d. 26; St. Mary's 2d, 14. Goals from floor, French 4, Downey 2, Willard 5, McMahon, Bennett, Canavan, Duggan 4. Goals from fouls, Riordan, McMahon, Morrill 2. Referee, Linehan. Scorer, Fitzgerald. Timer, Joyce. Time, 20m periods. Attendance 250.

Many Officials Inspect New Federal Building

of which he was a resident, on its building. He knew something of the obstacles encountered in getting a building. He felt from what he knew of the superintendent, the people of Quincy were to be congratulated. He is a man loved best by those who know him most intimately.

Ex-Congressman William S. McNary was the last speaker. He told of his work for the building while in congress. That while Mr. Atwood had started it he had got the bill through He therefore thought that he had reason to feel proud and that he had earned something for his district.

He was sorry that the office was a part of Boston, not because of Mr. Mansfield who was a fine official, but because he wanted to see the office develope and become a first class office.

He also spoke of his work in dredging for town river.

These Mr. Atwood had started but he had pushed them through. So, said the speaker, if you want anything get a Republican to start it and a Democrat to finish it.

He said nothing had been done for Quincy from the time of John Adams until he went to Congress.

Mr. McNary then referred to the efforts of the Citizens' association to change the site, which he had opposed as it might have resulted in the loss of the building. If it had ever been supposed that Quincy would have been a part of the Boston district we should never have got the building.

Mr. McNary's remarks were all in a humerous vein and he said in concluding, that having got Quincy fixed up he got out of congress.

Among the Quincy people present were: Mayor Shea, City Solicitor McAnarney, Assessor and ex-postmaster Warren W. Adams, ex-postmaster James F. Burke, Lysander Richards who was acting postmaster from 1852 to 1854, Senator Hultman, Representative Langelier, President Hobbs of the City Council, ex-Mayors Porter, Bryant, and Hall. SPERRY'S TIME ABOUT UP

Belief That President Will Name Fleet's Next Commander-In-Chief

Fort Monroe, Va., Feb. 26.—Rear Admiral Sperry left last night for Washington and the ship's carpenter on board the flagship Connecticut began to box up the admiral's belongings.

The impression grows in the fleet that Sperry soon will haul down his flag. It is common gossip in the fleet that President Roosevelt intends to name the next commander-in-chief of the fleet before he retires from office next Thursday.

AT CODDINGTON ASSEMBLY HALL

Classes of '06 '07 '08, Hold First Reunion.

INTERESTING PROGRAM RENDERED BY OLD "GRADS."

Permanent Organization Perfected and Officers Elected.

The advantage of having an assembly hall in the public school buildings was shown Friday evening, when the hall at the new Coddington building made possible the holding of a reunion of some of the classes of the school. It was the first social function held at the building since the dedication.

The reunion on this occasion was of the classes of '06, '07, and '08. Two of these classes were not privileged to attend school in the new building much to their regret.

The reunion called out a large number and proved to be a very enjoyable affair. In addition to the pupils of these classes a number of the teaching force were also present.

The affair was matronized by Miss Julia E. Underwood for years a teacher in the Coddington school building, Mrs. Jennie Hocking Hunt, Mrs. Edward D. Barrett, Mrs. Jennie Whicher, Miss Josephine Colligan and Miss Ruth Taylor.

An interesting program had been prepared for the evening.

First came the reading of the class prophecys. That of the class of '06, was given by Miss Edith Lovejoy, that of the class of '07, by Miss Daisy Brooks and that of '08, by Miss Myrtle Swift.

There was also vocal selections by Miss Catherine Brown and Miss Zeta Pitts, piano solos by Miss Clara Brown and recitations by Miss Stella Brown. Walter H. Bentley also addressed, made a short address.

A permanent organization was then perfected and these officers elected:
President, Charles Hearn.
Vice President, Ernest Rich.
Secretary, Miss Daisy Brooks
Treasurer, Miss Elizabeth Furnald.

Light refreshments were served and there was dancing until 11.30.

MUST HAVE BEEN YEGGMEN.

There were rumors about City Square this morning that a dastardly attempt had been made late Friday night to hold up a well known resident of Upland road. It was said however that he displayed such remarkable bravery (?) that the supposed hold up men quickly hiked it toward City Square.

The last vesper service of the season at First church will be given at four o'clock on Sunday with special musical program under the direction of Mr. E. Landis Snyder and sermon by Rev. C. B. Ames.

The Delta Sigma Kappa, organized several weeks ago by seven senior girls of the High school, met Thursday afternoon at the home of Miss Dorothy Packard, Chestnut street. The girls are planning for a Flirtation Whist party to be held March 12. The members are. Mabel L. Anderson, Bessie M. Brooks, Mabelle Damon, Dorothy Packard, Nettie Pote, Lillian G. Sutherburg and Edna A. Thomas.

Henry M. Faxon was in Maine over the holiday enjoying mountain climbing on snow shoes.

* * *

Mrs. John Halleron nee Annie Kelly of Billings street has been in Atlantic the last few days making preparations for a trip abroad. Mr. and Mrs. Halleron left Saturday for several weeks' sojourn in Europe.

* * *

Mrs. George Hill of Walker street is in Somerville for a week the guest of her daughter, Mrs. Robert Cook.

* * *

The Atlantic Assembly is as great a social success in that part of the city as is the annual Assembly at Quincy Music hall which is also under the auspices of members of the Civic committee of the Quincy Women's club. Both have become annual features on the social calendar and would be missed if the winter passed without them.

* * *

Mrs. Charles Stecher and little daughter Constance of Botolph street, are expected home the first of the week from a month's visit in Philadelphia.

* * *

Miss Mabel Drew of Walker street returned Wednesday from Jackson, N. H., where she found plenty of snow and was favored by splendid weather. Miss Drew had the pleasure of climbing one or two small mountains on snow-shoes with the Appalachian club during her stay.

Ex-Councilman Alexander Falconer left Friday night for Philadelphia and Baltimore and will be in Washington in time for the Inauguration.

Quite the busiest woman just now is Mrs. Otho A. Hayward who is arranging some musicales which promise to be very enjoyable. In January she gave the Quincy Women's club a fine musicale. On March second she has charge of a program for the Quincy Historical society which will commemorate the 100th anniversary of Mendelssohn and Chopin and on March 16th has arranged a musical recital of Russian music by Alvah Glover Salmon for the benefit of the Quincy Anti-tuberculosis society. Musical, social and club affairs must combine to make Mrs. Hayward very busy.

Mrs. Stephen Perkins Hurd of Ewampscott was a week end and holiday guest at the parental home in East Milton and for a few days this week of Miss Etta M. Prescott of this city coming to attend the Quincy Women's club dramatics.

Mrs. Frederick Allison Tupper of Brighton so well known in Quincy during the years of residence when Mr. Tupper was head master at the High school, is to be the speaker at the next meeting of Quincy Alliance on March eighth in First Church parlor. Her subject will be "An hour with Ian MacLaren." Mrs. Tupper was a member of the Friday club until recently and has many friends who will be pleased to greet her at the Alliance meeting.

OPPOSITION HAVE THEIR INNINGS

Arguments Against Mayor's Bill Heard at State House.

OPPONENTS SAY THERE IS NO NEED OF CHANGE.

Claim Bill If Passed Would Mix Situation Worse Than at Present.

The continued hearing on the bill to eliminate party designations on all ballots used at municipal caucuses and elections in the city of Quincy, was held yesterday afternoon at the State House before the committee on elections.

The hearing was opened yesterday morning, but those appearing in favor of the bill took up so much time that those of the opposition had to be heard in the afternoon.

Mr. Pinkham was the only speaker to appear in favor of the bill in the afternoon. He said he was heartily in favor of eliminating party designations, because it would take away the power of the ward and city committees.

These committees he asserted, had more to do with shaping city politics than anybody else, for they practically do all the nominating.

Mr. Pinkham said the personnel of the City Council would also be improved by the elimination of party designations.

The members of the opposition were then asked to arise and Messrs. Sandberg, Chase, Whitman, Hall, Follett and Litchfield responded.

All spoke except Messrs. Whitman and Litchfield.

William M. Chase was the first speaker. He said that although he was chairman of the Republican City Committee, he appeared as a private citizen and did not represent the committee.

Mr. Chase said he believed in party designation and allegiance, and said he could not see any reason for a change.

"People say," said Mr. Chase, "that we cannot get a non-partisan administration under the present conditions." Mr. Chase did not believe this was true, for he said that there never was a more non-partisan administration than the present one.

He also stated that he did not agree with a great many people, who say that the best men cannot be elected to the city council.

He said this was not true. Mr. Chase said he was in favor of the bill if it was passed for all cities, but not for Quincy alone.

Ex-Representative Edward J. Sandberg was the next speaker. His remarks were very brief.

He stated that the people would vote just as they pleased, anyway, so what was the use of making a change.

Herbert Y. Follett of Wollaston also appeared against the bill. He said that, according to some, it was the general consensus of opinion that the bill should pass. He denied this, saying that he had talked to several men on the matter, and all, with a few exceptions, were against the bill.

The last speaker of the opposition was ex-Mayor John O. Hall. Mr. Hall told of the city charter and of the agitation about changing it. At a mass meeting of the people to vote on the charter, he said, this resolution was sprung on the people, and without knowing it almost, they voted to put it before the House of Representatives.

Mr. Hall said that the passing of the bill would do no good towards getting the best men into the elective offices. Time was, he stated, when we could figure out the result of an election according to party lines. But that time has passed away and now we can tell nothing about it.

Mr. Hall gave as an instance the election of the present Mayor, "Billy" Shea, as he is called, said Mr. Hall. Now the people have got so they vote independently and for the best man. Why then do we need a change?

As there were no others present who cared to speak in opposition to the bill, the hearing was dismissed.

Appearances and questions the committee asked seemed to indicate that the bill would be reported upon unfavorably.

Inaugurating a President Now a National Festiva l

Not Washington's Desire Display Should Mark Event as Now.

When a westerner who had never been east of the Mississippi river first visits the metropolis of his country there are a few memorable things which he plans to see which are of deeper interest than even the Flatiron Building or the subway. Among these, at the meeting of Broad and Wall streets, just where the vortex of money-changers is swiftest, is the statue of George Washington. In dignified calm it looks out over the heads of the hurrying throngs, some of whom may have forgotten that it marks the location of the Federal Hall, where Chancellor Livingston administered the oath of office to the first President of the United States. Not far away on Broadway—quiet, peaceful, in the heart of the busiest part of money-making New York—is old St. Paul's, where the newly made President attended religious services after the ceremonies of installation had been performed.

It is almost 120 years since the first inauguration of the first President of the United States of America. Thirty times the quadrennial ceremonial has been observed, each time with greater pomp and pageantry, until it has come to be a national festival.

It was not Washington's desire that display should mark the event. Presidents of a later time notably among them Jefferson, have tried to keep it simple and democratic. The pomp and circumstance of power, the glittering troops and martial music, the fluttering flags, which have become a part of the day's observance, have developed in response to the people's desire.

Washington left Mount Vernon for New York City, the temporary capital of the young republic, bearing with him a deep sense of his new responsibilities. The people converted his journey into a triumphal march. There were no railways in those days, the roads were heavy, the way was long, and horses cannot travel as swiftly as steam cars, and though the first Wednesday of March, which happened to be on the 4th of the month, had been appointed for the day of the inauguration, it was the thirtieth of April, 1789, before it took place.

On that day George Washington went in procession to the federal building at the intersection of Wall and Broad streets where he was received in the Senate chamber and thence proceeded to the balcony. When he appeared, a shout went up from the crowd gathered beneath the balcony. After he had taken the oath of office Chancellor Livingston stepped forward, and, raising his hand, cried, "Long Live George Washington, President of the United States."

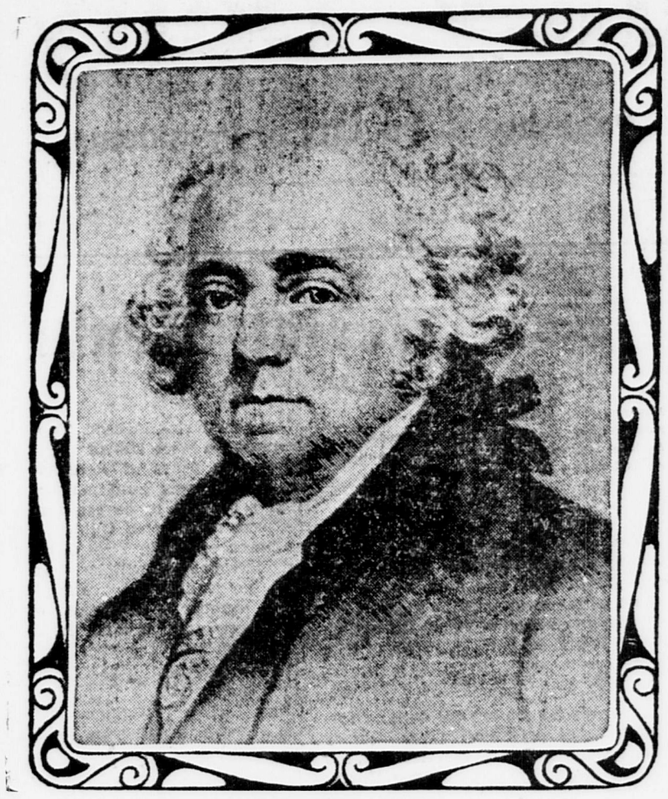

This cry was criticised as an imitation of a monarchial custom and was never again used. Washington, then withdrew to the hall, where he read his inaugural address. He was dressed in dark brown broadcloth of American manufacture, white silk stockings, silver shoe buckles and wore a steel hilted dress sword. His hair was powdered and drawn back in the fashion of the time. At the inauguration ball it is recorded that he danced the minuet.

Washington's second inauguration took place in the senate chamber of Independence Hall at Philadelphia, which was the seat of the government from 1799 until 1800. The oath was administered by Justice William Cushing of the Supreme Court. The occasion, like the man who dominated it, was simple and dignified. The President wore the costume portrayed in the well known Stuart picture, black velvet, diamond knee buckles, square silver shoe buckles, black silk stockings and shirt ruffled at the waist and bosom.

To fill the place which Washington held in the hearts of the people was not possible for any man. John Adams succeeded him as President. Even during the hours of his inauguration, in 1797, Adams was made to feel the distance which the masses had established between himself and his predecessor, Washington was present. The attention, instead of being centered on the new President, was fixed on the great man who had said farewell to public service. Adams felt this keenly. Writing to his wife he spoke of the streaming eyes, expressing a hope that the tears were shed in grief at the loss of a beloved rather than in sorrow over the event of an unbeloved. He was almost as much hurt at thus being second in the great hour of his life, as was his son, John Quincy Adams, who had his triumph marred by the thought that though he had won the presidency, he had not won it through the suffrages of a majority of the people. Father and son both tasted bitter in their cup of success. Both wished to enjoy a second term, which was denied. Each was succeeded by a man bitterly opposed to him—the father by Jefferson, the son by Jackson. Neither accompanied, as has been the custom, the President-elect to the capitol to see him inducted into office. The first Adams and Jefferson quarreled over the twelfth hour appointments made by the retiring President. Jackson attributed to the son, John Quincy Adams, the scandalous statements made about Rachel Jackson during the campaign of 1828 and did not call on Adams, who left the White House, March 3.

There was no inauguration ball when John Adams became President. His wife was not present at the ceremony because of a death in the family. The oath was administered by Chief Oliver Ellsworth.

Thomas Jefferson was the first President to be inaugurated in Washington City. Tradition asserts that he rode on horseback to the capitol and tied his horse to a near-by fence while he took the oath. A better authenticated story has it that he went on foot and was escorted by a company of militia artillery. One of Adams' distasteful appointments had been that of Chief Justice Marshall, who administered the oath. Besides these two, Jefferson and Marshall so strongly opposed to each other, was the new Vice President, Aaron Burr, who had come within one vote of receiving the presidency in the vote taken in the House of Representatives. If Jefferson felt chagrin at the moment, his compensation during the successful eight years of his presidency was ample. He could probably have had the honor of a third term, but declined, though he practically named his successor, Madison, advising Monroe, who was also an aspirant for the office, to wait.

JOHN ADAMS.

All of the Presidents had followed the custom of wearing, so far as possible, clothes made in this country. John Adams on the eventful day appeared in light drab. Jefferson's garb was in the eyes of the federalists ostentatiously simple. But it was left to James Madison to so dress as to be described as "a walking argument in favor of American wool." At his first inauguration in 1809, he wore a coat made on the farm of Colonel Humphreys. The rest of his costume was made of homespun from the farm of Chancellor Livingston. The wool all came from American sheep. The ceremony of taking the oath took place in the House of Representatives, which was crowded. Dolly Madison was a charming hostess at the inauguration ball, the first since the time of Washington.

James Monroe, having heeded the advice of the father of his party, received his reward in 1817. The oath was administered to him on a platform under the unfinished portico of the capitol. This place had been chosen to end the wrangle over seats. At his second inauguration the weather was so bad the exercises had to be held inside.

John Quincy Adams, chosen by the House of Representatives to be President because no candidate had received a majority of the electoral votes, was a disappointed man. He wanted the presidency as the gift of the people. In his diary he wrote: "The year has been the most momentous of those that have passed over my head, inasmuch as it has witnessed my elevation, at the age of 58, to the chief magistracy of my country, to the summit of laudable or at least blameless worldly ambition; not, however, in a manner satisfactory to

Mr. Adams changed the program ofcider, a loom in active operation—his predecessors by reading his inau-these were some of the floats in the gural address before the oath was ad-procession. At the capitol Gen. Harministered. He was escorted to the capitol by a body-guard of citizens. Among those who congratulated him was General Andrew Jackson, who had received a majority of the popular votes and a plurality of the votes cast in the electoral college. This friendly greeting is the last recorded courtesy that passed between the two, and, as has been said Adams was not present at the inauguration of Jackson in 1829.

Though Adams absented himself, the plain people, who felt that with the election of Jackson they had come into their own, did not. The capitol had never seen such crowds as came to the inauguation of this popular idol in 1829. Frontiersmen, backwoodsmen, Indian fighters crowded so densely around the capitol that to keep them out of the eastern portico where the oath was administered a ship's cable had to be used. The mob poured into the White House. Some climbed on the satin-covered chairs. Scrambling to help themselves, they broke china and glassware. To protect the President from the crush, men linked arms. Like Washington and Jefferson, Jackson left the office amid the same enthusiasm which attended his coming. Like Jefferson, he named his successor, Martin Van Buren.

March 4, 1834, these two, Jackson and Van Buren, rode together from the White House to the capitol in a phaeton made from oak timbers taken from the old frigate Constitution, a gift from New York Democrats to the retiring President. As John Adams had been second in the eyes of the multitude at his own inauguration because of the esteem felt for Washington, so Van Buren was second to Jackson. But Van Buren accepted the situation more gracefully than had Adams. He returned from the inauguration, at which Chief Justice Taney administered the oath, at his own residence, insisting that Jackson should remain in the White House until his departure for Tennessee.

graph to the portico platform. By this wonderful new invention news of the event was sent to Baltimore. Also, at the inauguration ball Mme. de Bedisco outshone Mrs. Polk, and there was an opposition ball where the tickets cost only $2, while those of the main ball cost $10.

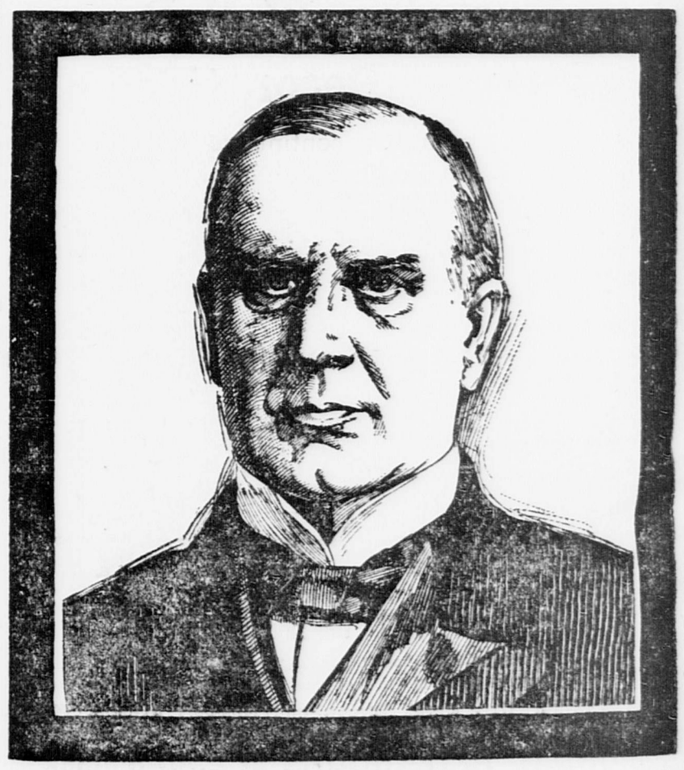

Taylor, Pierce and Buchanan were expediency candidates. Their inauguration had nothing of exceptional interest except that as the habit of travelling spread among the people the crowds at each successive inauguration increased. Quadrennial pilgrimages to the capitol became a fixed custom.

When Abraham Lincoln came to Washington the country was on the verge of civil war. Special precautions were necessary . The regular army was called upon for duty of more than an ornamental nature. Sharpshooters were stationed on the roofs and in windows of houses overlooking the line of march. General Scott had in the city two batteries, a few companies of regulars—653 men, exclusive of some marines—and the corps of picked Washington volunteers. President Buchanan left the White House in an open carriage, escorted by a company of sappers and miners. At Willard's Hotel the President-elect entered the carriage and the two passed through Pennsylvania avenue to the capitol. General Scott with his regulars marched "flanking the movement in parallel streets." His two batteries controlled the plateau extending before the east front of the capitol. Lincoln was introduced by Senator Baker of Oregon, and Senator Douglas held his silk hat while he delivered his address. At its close Chief Justice Taney administered the oath of office.

In his second inauguration procession there was shown a working model of the Monitor with its turrets revolving and its guns firing at intervals. The Colored Typographical Society was represented by a printing press on a wheeled platform. It was in operation and official programs were printed and distributed along the line of march.

General Grant was the fourth President who, contrary to the usual custom, was not escorted to the capitol by his predecesor. He had conceived such an intense dislike of President Johnson in connection with the controversy arising over the removal of Stanton that he would not officially recognize him even so far as to drive to the capitol with him. Salmon P. Chase, chief justice of the United States Supreme Court, by appointment of Lincoln, administered the oath of office at both of his inaugurals.

NOT CONFINED BY BOUNDARIES

Conservation of Resources of Import to All Nations

CONCLUSIONS OF CONFERENCE

They Are Embodied In a "Declaration of Principles" Which Is Transmitted to Congress—Every Phase of the Question as Affecting the United States, Canada and Mexico Has Been Given Careful Consideration

Washington, Feb. 27.—The "declaration of principles" adopted by the North American conservation conference, which has just concluded its work here, in which certain recommendations are made for conservation of the natural resources of the United States, Canada and Meixco, was transmitted by President Roosevelt to congress.

In his letter of transmittal the president declares that the conference "will unquestionably, as the declaration recites, 'result in mutual benefits and tend to draw still closer the bonds of existing good will, confidence and respect.'"

The declaration points out that "natural resources are not confined by the boundary lines that separate nations. We agree that no nation acting alone can adequately conserve them, and we recommend the adoption of concurrent measures for conserving the material foundations of the welfare of all the nations concerned, and for ascertaining their location and extent."

After pointing out that the conference not only performed with marked efficiency and entire unanimity the important duties which devolved upon it, the president declares that "it has suggested a still wider field of useful action."

The president then refers to the suggestion made by the conference as to an international conference on conservation and says that, acting upon this suggestion, he has addressed such an invitation to the nations of the world, "in the confident belief that such a meeting will foster the interests of every nation, will injure those of none, and will confirm and strengthen in us all the belief that the good of each is likewise the common good of all."

The establishment of a permanent conservation commission in each of the three countries perhaps is one of the most important recommendations of the conference.

The report declares that a system of inter-communication should be inaugurated between the conservation commissions whereby, at stated intervals, all discoveries, inventions, processes, inventories of natural resources, information of a new and specially important character, seeds and seedlings of new or improved varieties and other productions which are of value in conserving or improving any natural resource shall be transmitted by each commission to all of the others, to the end that they may be utilized as widely as possible.

The report deals with every phase of conservation and makes recommendations concerning the public health, forests, waters, lands and minerals, and for the protection of game under regulation, the creation of extensive game preserves, and special protection of such birds as are useful to agriculture. Preventive legislation is recommended against further pollution of waterways throughout North America.

Recommendations also are made that all lumbering operations shall be carried on under a system of rigid regulation; and it advises the complete and concurrent development of streams and their sources; regulation of grazing on public lands; the disposal of public lands to actual settlers and government control of non-irrigable public lands; and the construction of artificial works to conserve the rainfall and promote regularity of water flow.

The conference also recommends that all possible encouragement and assistance be given the development and perfecting of means reducing waste in the consumption of fuel; it counsels a scientific investigation of mine accidents by the three governments, and the enactment and enforcement of the best regulations that can be devsed which will provide "the greatest possible security for mine workers and mines."

MIDDLE GROUND IN THE VIVISECTION CONTROVERSY.

Extremists Giving Way to Program of Reasonable Regulation In Place of Attempts to Prohibit the Practice.

In connection with the widespread discussion of the vivisection problem the fact is pointed out that both here and abroad extreme views have culminated not in absolute prohibition, but in reasonable regulation of the practice. For many years England has had a law regulating vivisection, which was brought about by agitation that originally would have been satisfied by nothing less than prohibitive measures.

In Pennsylvania and Massachusetts there have existed for a long time societies whose object was to secure legislation against vivisection. In both states the leaders of the anti-vivisection movement have now apparently become convinced that regulation rather than prohibition is the practical solution of the problem of how to protect animals, while at the same time securing to science ample liberty to carry out useful and humane investigations.

In New York the Anti-vivisection society has announced that it will oppose the Davis-Lee bill (proposed by the Society For the Prevention of Abuse In Animal Experimentation), which would throw around the practice of vivisection such safeguards as are necessary to prevent useless and unnecessarily cruel work without interfering with investigations aimed to extend useful medical knowledge.

The Davis-Lee bill, however, has received a large measure of support from the press, the general public and a considerable number of physicians, some 700 of whom have signed a petition asking for the enactment of the bill, although the State Medical society is officially opposed to it.

As between the position of the extremists, who would stop vivisection entirely, and the scientific enthusiasts, who do not want any regulation whatever, the Davis-Lee bill appears to afford a middle ground upon which reasonable people of all views can meet, and a strong effort is being made to secure its passage at this session of the New York legislature.

GOOD ROADS ADVOCATES OPPOSE HIGH TARIFF.

Want Asphalt, Now Required to Protect Country Roads From Automobile Wear, Put Back on Free List.

Organizations and individuals working for the good roads cause are now centering their efforts against the attempt to secure a higher duty on asphalt. All the expert testimony laid before the subcommittee on tariff revision of the ways and means committee is in favor of returning crude asphalt to the free list and fixing the duty on refined asphalt in accordance with the difference in the cost of production in the United States as compared with the foreign product.

It is pointed out that a higher duty will amount simply to increased taxation for streets and roads, both on new construction and maintenance.

Outside of the cities the opposition to an increase in the tariff on asphalt is due to the fact that all the good roads experts are agreed that the only way in which a durable highway can be made that will withstand modern motor traffic is to use asphalt as a cementing material to hold together the surface of macadam roads. State and county authorities understand this fact thoroughly, as does the great organization of farmers known as the National grange, which takes a very active interest in road matters.

A strong effort is being made to show congress that good as well as cheap roads are a far more important consideration than the protection of asphalt produced in the far west, which cannot possibly benefit states east of the Mississippi owing to the great cost of transportation across the continent.

NEW LINEN MILLS EARN DIVIDEND IN FIRST YEAR.

Quick Success of Industry Makes It Necessary to Extend Plant In Order to Meet Demand For First "Linen Made In America."

Breaking all records in New England mill history, the Oxford Linen mills of North Brookfield, Mass., have in their first year of operation been placed on a profit making basis. After only eight months of operation under its new process of linen making the mill has established trade connections throughout the country so favorable that the surplus earnings make it possible to pay a dividend for the quarter ending March 31.

Business has so increased that the present mill capacity is not equal to the immediate demand, and plans have been made for extensive additions to the plant as soon as the weather permits building to begin. Extensive water rights have been acquired with a view to using electricity generated by water power.

The advantage enjoyed by the Oxford mills is that its combined chemical and mechanical processes accomplish in twelve hours what it takes European peasants and mill workers sixteen weeks to perform—that is, convert flax straw or tow into a perfect linen fiber ready for spinning.

So great an economy of time now makes it possible for America to compete with Great Britain, Belgium or France in the manufacture of fine linen in spite of cheap labor abroad. The enormous duty on imported linen is entirely avoided, to the additional advantage of linens made here.

STATE HOUSE LETTER.

Boston, Feb. 24, 1909.

Two events mark this week at the state house above any week of the session, past or to come, by their uniqueness. First was Gov. Draper's reception on Monday. This easily takes the lead of all previous governor's reception by reason of the extent of the military display and the procession of historic, patriotic and descendant's associations, and in the almost complete absence, compared with other receptions, of members of the legislature, the judges of the courts and the officials of the various executive departments. Never before were there so many who shook hands with the governor, for the record was 5,557, against 5,501 the previous year, which was high water mark, while there were hundreds ,according to officers' accounts, who tried to get in, became wedged and jammed in Doric hall so they could stand it no longer and went away without trying to go further. While there was a great presence of the unofficial public, including ex-Gov. Guild and Mrs. Guild, and this is the first time on record when a previous incumbent has attended the reception of his successor, —yet the predominance of official uniforms, epaulets, gold braids, flags, bands, military display and formalities made the occasion seem more like the court of some imperial ruler than a gathering of an American democracy. If this is what the people like, then we have come to delight in fuss and feathers, in the glitter and pomp which surrounds royalty to an extent which would have been very disturbing to our fathers who had such an intense predjudice against everything which pertained to regal glory and grandeur. A touch of imperial royalty was added by the presence, close to the governor, just where the handshakers walked between the two men, of Frank H. Hardaman, the detailed official to protect the governor from assassination. He is always on duty in the executive chamber.

Next as a unique demonstration was that of the woman suffragists which outranks anything ever seen before in that line. It has been exceeded as a popular demonstration, which can be recalled, only by the army of the unemployed which marched from the common to the state house in Governor Greenhalge's administration, seeking work. This demonstration of the women owes its existence undoubtedly to the agitation in England and the question whether there would be such violence here as the English women have shown. There was nothing of the sort. Plenty of policemen were on on hand. The crowd was of a law-obeying disposition. They had their several hearings, the official one in the largest committee room of the state house, where they shared the three hours equally with the equally vehement remonstrants, their triple headed meeting (afterward made single-headed) on the state house steps, and their gatherings on the common after they had been forced from the state house steps after holding them three hours. Men and women mounted the balustrades in front of the state house and harangued the crowd for women suffrage and were given respectful attention. As far as the argument goes, it is a fair conclusion that nobody's opinion is changed a hair by all that is said. Judging by expressions which I have heard from spectators, the personal equation in such a demonstration far outweighs the logical arguments. Not what a person apprehends by his reason is uppermost, but what he feels in his emotions. If the man of woman is inclined one way or the other, the very presence of such a strenuous crowd merely intensifies that feeling and does not get to the bottom of the case at all, nor enable the listener any the better to reach the right conclusion. Such intensity merely stirs up passion and predjudice on both sides and does not advance the cause a particle. As far as the legislature is concerned, the case might as well be submitted without argument.

Just at present the legislature is in the midst of the renewed and better managed experiment to shorten the session by holding committee hearings in the afternoon. Every afternoon the House suspends at 3 o'clock. The calendar has not been finished and it is already several pages long. But, if petitions are told to be on hand at 3 o'clock, the committee must be prompt and the experiment is being given a fair trial. More business is pending than at any previous session, and some of it is of the largest political and business importance, such as the proposed Boston city charter and the merger question in its broad aspects. If the session is finished earlier than ever, then the new system must be given some credit. If it drags out very long, still it would not be certain that they could have finished sooner by the former system. Thus far the petitioners turn out reasonably well for afternoon hearings.

One of the new and much agitated questions is that of the hunters' license law which was passed last year. The fee is $1 and there are plenty of men who believe that this is too much. The money is used for the enforcement of the law and the opponents argue that more is taken than is necessary. They would have the license issued free, or for only 25 cents, to go to the city or town clerk for the trouble and cost of the issue. Some bitterly oppose the law because it forbids a man to shoot on his own land. But the reply is that the historic policy of the state is that wild game belongs to the state, not to the man on whose land it happens to be, and that the state has a perfect right to impose such a fee.

Orthodox medical practitioners who have tried for years to regulate healing by Christian science and later have tackled the Emmanuel movement have suffered another defeat this year in the unanimous report of the committee on public health against the petition to further regulate the practice of medicine so as to require registration from Christian scientists and those ministers of religion who practice mental healing by suggestion or psychotherapy. There was a great outpouring at the hearing and, as a matter of course, there was the same intense personal feeling which is always shown when a large number of women are present on one side. There is an impetus, it might be called a storm, on the women's side which makes argument seem to be of little force in comparison. The crowd is tremendously in earnest. It knows what it wants. More than that, it knows that the other side is dead wrong and that the public welfare would suffer if the other side were to prevail.

Milk producers are still trying to get a change in the milk standard law from last year, and their proposition for this time is 12 per cent. of milk solids and three per cent. of fats. This would be for the entire year. But Secretary Ellsworth of the state board of agriculture has taken the position from the start that, once the law was passed only last year, it ought to be given a fair trial and not taken up until its points of strength and weakness have been more clearly shown.

Writing before the event, it is worth mention that the Massachusetts club gives its annual reception at Young's tonight to the first year republicans of the legislature. John D. Long will preside and that insures wit and brilliancy all through. The invitations come through Representative Garcelon of Newton, secretary of the club, who, for this third year in succession, has thought it good politics to bring out the most promising republican youthful legislators. This club is the venerable one which has dropped mostly out of sight recently, which was an offshoot of the famous "Bird club" when the exigencies of post-bellum politics split that famous free soil organization, and it has been composed of the most distinguished republicans, but mostly after they have passed their political crisis into the peaceful waters which follow officeholding, leaving acute politics to the Middlesex, and other county clubs and to the republican club of Massachusetts, which is a totally different thing from the Massachusetts club, tonight's host.

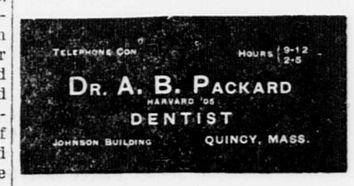

It looks very much as if Representative Garcelon would fail in his support of Governor Draper with his recommendation that the naval brigade be authorized to join the nautical training school in the use of the Ranger. The naval brigade is against the idea as well as the training school, and the governor's proposal of economy does not carry weight against such opposition.

The Senate has postponed to March 2 the debate on the consolidation of the boards of registration in medicine, pharmacy, dentistry, veterinary medicine and embalming, which was recommended by Gov. Draper, and on which the committee reported unanimously against him.

The labor men have held a largely attended hearing today, forenoon, and afternoon for a new law to permit labor unions to fine their members in order to make them go on strike when ordered ,as a recent decision forbids them to do so. They had the support of Senator Dickinson of Hampden. Rule.

A Hurry-up Medicine.

Every housekeeper recognizes the need of effective remedies to be used in emergencies—when some thing must be done right away. Such a remedy is Perry Davis' Painkiller, for sprains and bruises, for strained muscles and for the aches and pains resulting from blows and falls. Burns and cuts are instantly relieved by it and helped to healing. Its mission of mercy began seventy years ago. It is used in all countries and millions of bottles are sold annually. There is but one Painkiller, Perry Davis'. Have you seen the new large 35c. size?

Who got "held up" last night shortly after midnight?

It looks and feels as if the backbone of winter had been broken and as if spring was not far away.

Mr. Taft was not compelled to ride the goat on his initiation into the Masonic fraternity. Was this consideration for Mr. Taft or for the goat?

The returning fleet had a rousing welcome at Old Point Comfort but even the C. Q. D. signals failed to bring succor in the form of food and beds to the crowd that was there to welcome it.

The unlooked for hitch, in the passage of the bill to eliminate party designations, developed at the public hearing on the bill at the State House yesterday.

The hitch was caused in part, by the arguments of four or five local men, who were opposed to the bill, and in part by the introduction of a general bill for the elimination of party designations at municipal elections, throughout the state.

With this combination against it, the bill introduced by the Mayor stands little show of passing.

At last Luther Burbank the plant wizard is free financially, to indulge his brains and genius in the perfection of new plants, flowers, vegetables or anything else his active fancy may desire. This condition of affairs was brought about by the forming of a stock company to handle all the products Mr. Burbank has created.

One of the first products the company will endeavor to develop will be the spineless cactus which it is hoped will mean the transforming of desert wastes into grazing lands for cattle.

When it is considered what Mr. Burbank has already accomplished with the limited means at his disposal, there seems to be no limit to what he can do in the future, with plenty of money to work with.

Brockton people, judging from the tone of a recent article in the Daily Enterprise of that city, see considerable benefit coming their way as a result of the granting of the trolley express franchise to the Old Colony Street Ry. Co., by the selectmen of Weymouth, and the extension of this service from Rockland which is now the terminus in that direction, to Weymouth.

It is pointed out that much of the business which now goes from Weymouth to Boston and other places will be diverted toward Brockton because of the excellent express facilities that will be offered by the trolley service.

Considerable business now comes to Quincy from Weymouth, this city really being a natural trading centre for the people of the Weymouth district. If Brockton is to benefit by the installation of the new service to Weymouth, Quincy apparently stands in a position to lose for the same reason, unless some immediate action is taken here toward getting this same service and bringing business this way instead of allowing it to be diverted toward Rockland and Brockton.

ON NINTY FIRST BIRTHDAY.

Friends of Mrs. Hanson Bailey Give Her Birthday Party.

A very happy occasion was the birthday party given Mrs. Hanson Bailey on Friday afternoon at her home 20 Fort street, it being the 91st anniversary of her birth. She was assisted in receiving her friends by her daughters Mrs. James Pierce and Mrs. Annie L. Rogers and her granddaughters Miss Harriet B. Pierce, her namesake, and Miss Mildred Rogers.

Mrs. Bailey told many interesting anecdotes of early days and was so keen and clear it was impossible to believe she had passed so many milestones.

A birthday supper was served and enjoyed, all gathering most sociably about the tastefully spread table.

Among the callers were notice Rev. Dr. Hardy, Mrs. S. E. Brackett, Mrs. Harriet Joy, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. H. Rideout of Dorchester, Miss Hannah Hobart, Mrs. Marsh, Miss Annie Mead and other friends and neighbors.

OPEN FOR PUBLIC INSPECTION.

New Federal Building Visited by Many Citizens, Friday.

Many took the opportunity Friday, to inspect the new post office building, on Washington street. The building was open to the public from 3 to 9 o'clock, and between these hours visitors were permitted to visit all parts of the building.

Everybody was delighted with it, and superintendent Hammond was showered with congratulations.

Mr. Hammond was present during most of the time the building was open, and received visitors in his private office. Some of the clerks were also present to show the guests about, and explain the use of the various racks.

The building will go into service Sunday. The morning mail will be received in the Granite street office as usual, but after the office closes at 10.30 everything will be transferred to the new office.

The outside mail Sunday evening will be dispatched from the new office, and the early morning mail Monday will be received there.

Many box owners will procure their keys for the new boxes today, and the moving from one building to another will in no way interfere with business.

AMONG THE WINNERS.

Exhibit From Mayhurst Kennels Capture Prizes at N. E. Kennel Club.

The Fore River was ably represented at the dog show held in Mechanics building Feb. 22 to 25 inclusive under the auspices of the New England Kennel club by the exhibit of the Mayhurst kennels cocker spaniels who succeeded in winning third prize in open bitches parti colored. First novice bitch black, reserve winners black bitches, also special prize of silver cup for best black bitch in novice class. The latter wins being carried off by Mayhurst Chorus Lady a thirteen months' old pup raised by the above kennels.

"Mayhurst Chorus Lady" also won the silver cup special for the best bitch owned by a member of the Lynn Kennel club.

HOSPITAL AID ASSOCIATION.

The February meting of the Hospital Aid association was held Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Horace F. Spear.

Following is a list of directors: Mrs. N. S. Hunting, Mrs. L. H. Sturtevant, Mrs. W. H. Doble, Mrs. Theophilus King, Miss Amy F. Newcomb, Miss E. M. Freeman, Mrs. Arthur Mitchell, Mrs. Roderick McLellan, Mrs. Walter Pinkham, Mrs. Edward Cummings, Mrs. Arthur Linnell, Mrs. John Carver, Mrs. Charles Coe.

The annual membership fee of one dollar is now due and it is hoped that each member will interest herself in securing new members for the association as well as responding promptly with her own contribution.

BOWLING.

The Rousers defeated the Bulldogs two out of three at the Associates' alleys last night. The game was very dull with the exception of a few brilliant shots by Frank Catarius of the Rousers.

The rooters for the Rousers had Brown up in the air so much so that he missed some easy spare leaves. The score was as follows:

BY FELLOW WORKMEN.

George Hunter Tendered a Surprise Party.

George Hunter, who has recently resigned his position as foreman at the Hitchcock quarry after many years of faithful service, to accept a position as foreman at the quarry of J. S. Swingle was pleasantly surprised Friday evening, at his home on Independence avenue.

The surprisers were the men who worked under Mr. Hunter, and they marched in a body to his home taking a handsome and comfortable Morris chair along with them. This they presented to Mr. Hunter as a slight token of their well wishes. Fred Curtis made the presentation speech and it was some minutes before Mr. Hunter could recover his composure and reply.

He thanked the men for their loyalty to him and for their gift. The remainder of the evening was passed in a social manner and with dancing.

During the evening Robert Finlay gave a pleasing song and recitation.

In addition to this there were solos by Adolf Restelli, Miss Mary Collins, Little Miss Olive Greenough, also entertained the company with fancy dancing. Miss Elizabeth Hunter presided at the piano.

QUINCY MAN THE ORATOR.

Dignified and impressive and, in the highest degree, instructive, were the public exercises in Franklin in celebration of the one hundredth anniversary of the birth of Abraham Lincoln, under the auspices of Post 60, G. A. R. The oration by Rev. Edward A. Chase of Wollaston was one of the finest tributes paid to Lincoln's memory. He gave a splendid tribute to the boy, the man, the statesman and the president. His analysis of the character of Mr. Lincoln was scholarly and eloquent in the highest degree. He confined his remaks to a study of Mr. Lincoln's life and to his sublime character. There were two predominating phases in his character he said— common sense and absolute honesty. Coupled with these was his tenderness of heart. Mr. Chase referred to Mr. Lincoln's rugged features as shown in his portrait and said that artists called the likness of his face almost perfect.

It was a matter of regret to a great many that Mr. Chase's address was not reported in full, but as he always speaks extempore and no provision had been made to secure a stenographic report, the eloquent words will live only in the memory of those fortunate to hear them.—Franklin Sentinel, Feb. 16

Miss Ruth Bassett of Walker street has resigned from the position of Atlantic reporter on the Ledger and Patriot.

Rev. A. Edwin Clattenburg rector of St. Chrysostoms church preached at St. James church, West Somerville, Friday evening.

Mrs. Mary L. Wade of Prospect street will give a talk on "An Emergency Lunch" at the Women's club of Concord Junction next week.

The annual meeting and election of officers of Whatsoever Circle King's Daughters will be held Monday evening, March 1st at 7.45, with Mrs. H. A. Stevens, Wayland street.

At the Boston Federation meeting in the Wollaston Unitarian church on Sunday, Miss Helen Loud of Weymouth will be soloist, and Miss Marion Moorhouse 'cellist

Miss Adelaide Thomas, violinist, is to assist the choir at the musical vesper service at four o'clock on Sunday afternoon at the Wollaston Congregational church .

The Wollaston M. E. church is planning for an entertainment for inauguration day March 4th in the church. The Boston University Male quartett will have a considerable part of the program.

Rev. Dr. E. N. Hardy, pastor of Bethany Congregational church, addressed the Thatcher Bible class of the Milton Congregational church, Thursday evening.

John Adams Commandery will give a concert, dance and whist party on Tuesday evening, March 2 at Electa hall. First class talent has been engaged for the concert and a good time is assured.

Sunday is "home day" at the Wollaston Congregation church with old hymns, favorite verses and chapters of the bible and it is hoped the whole family and neighbors will attend the services.

Rev. R. H. Howe, D. D., rector of Church of Saviour, Longwood will preach on Sunday at the 4.30 service at St. Chrysostoms church and the Rev. A. Edwin Clattenburg will officiate at Dr. Howe's church.

The first of the two new smokestacks for the power house at the Fore River shipyard is in use. These stacks are 130 feet high and can be seen from a considerable distance down the harbor.

First Parish is to tender a reception to its assistant pastor on Friday evening of next week. The affair will be held in the chapel and gives promise of being a pleasant occasion for pastor and people.

The Quincy Day Nursery association will meet next Tuesday afternoon at two o'clock at the club house of the Quincy Women's club. The meeting is earlier than usual to accommodate a meeting of the Philanthropic society to be held later at the same place.

Members and friends of First church are invited to attend an organ recital in the church on Wednesday evening, March 3d, at eight o'clock. Mr. John D. Buckingham will be at the organ and a fine concert is anticipated.

The new schedule of hours at the shipyard meets with general favor with the men on account of making Saturday a half day which gives them time to look after personal matters during the day time without loss of time.

Miss Persis A. Thompson of Berlin street has accepted a position as teacher in a Lynn settlement house, and will begin her new work on March first. She will continue her studies, however, at Mrs. Stannard's kindergarten school, from which she will graduate in June.

The Mothers' Association will meet in Bethany chapel, Wednesday afternoon, March 3, at 3 o'clock. It will be an afternoon with American Motherhood ,in charge of Mrs. Albert Hayden with devotional exercises led by Mrs. E. N. Hardy and soloist Mrs. George H. Ryder. All are welcome.

Charles A. Geddes ,a well known resident of West Quincy and for the last ten years manager for the Shawmut Spring Water Co., has severed his connection with that firm to accept a position as janitor for the Choralcelo Manufacturing Co., at their new factory on Congress street, Boston.

Friends of the Christian Endeavor movement will be glad to learn that Mr. William Shaw, General Secretary of the United Society, is to speak in Bethany church on Tuesday evening, March 2, at 7.45. Mr. Shaw will give a brief history of the C. E. movement, tell of its wonderful growth and discuss its present needs. The meeting is free to all interested, former members of C. E. societies being especially invited to attend.

Mrs. Frederick Peirce, Mrs. Harry Read and Mrs. Williams Ward Whitcher are all equally deserving of praise for their combined efforts to make the Civic Betterment assembly of last week Friday evening a success. All three worked earnestly to bring the party to a pleasurable climax and much credit is due them. Mrs. Theodore Parker is also still receiving compliments on the excellence of her home-brewed punch which although built strictly on temperance lines, was one of the refreshing features of the dance.

The annual social of the East Norfolk Christian Endeavor Union will be held at the First Presbyterian church, the latter part of March.

The Christian Endeavor society of the First Presbyterian church are making preparations for a basket social to be held at an early date.

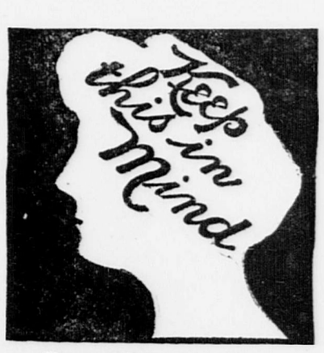

Miss Margaret Todd daughter, of the Rev. James Todd, D. D., of South Boston, was the guest of her sister Mrs. Thomas Milne of this city, during the past week.

The Rev. Evans of Springfield who occupied the pulpit of the First Presbyterian church last Sunday, will preach again at both services tomorrow.

The many young friends of Miss Minnie Miller of South Quincy will be glad to learn that she is able to be out of bed after suffering from a sprained ankle which she sustained by falling on the ice two weeks ago.

Charles H. Kendall gives promise of continuing the excellent golf he played last season, when he won so many tournaments, as on the 22d, he won this season's opening handicap tournament of the Wollaston club against forty competitors with a score of 86-14-72.

Much interest is being shown in the demonstration lectures to be given Monday afternoons at Brasee hall by Mrs. Janet McKenzie Hill. The first one on March first will be on the chafing dish and include appetizers for convalescents and dishes for Sunday night supeprs. Left overs will be considered, also simple, easily prepared sweets and hygienic cookery. The lectures are under the auspices of the Wollaston Kindergarten society and for the benefit of the school.

BIRTHDAY PARTY.

A large gathering of the friends and relatives of Miss Isabella W. DeForest, assembled at her home on Goddard street, South Quincy, Wednesday evening, on the occasion of her nineteenth birthday. The inclement weather only helped to promote the fun and good cheer within, and the bright appearance of the interior of the house was soon depicted on the faces of all those present. Very pleasing musical selections were rendered by Miss Mildred Crowley, Miss Sadie Stevens, Mr. Samuel D. De Forest, Jr., and others.

A dainty repast was served and the merriment continued until a late hour.

Miss DeForest was aided in receiving by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel D. DeForest, Miss Mildred Crowley and Mr. Charles E. Grassick, and was the recipient of many beautiful gifts in expression of the high esteem in which the young lady is held by her large circle of acquaintances. Friends from Quincy, East Braintree and Milton assisted in making the evening one of the most enjoyable social gatherings of the season.

Among those present were: Albert Coffin, Mildred Crowley, Edward Mundie, Lottie Hobart, Dave Morris, Bessie Roberts, Chester Hobart, Francis Talbot, Albert Maver, Lizzie Langton, Mr. and Mrs. A. Sylvester, William Talbot, Rosie Picard, Robert Everson, Gertie Dean, Charles Grassick, Sadie Stevens, Samuel D. DeForest, May Stevens, George Craig, Florence Williams, Mrs. L. Sanquinet and Ethel Sanguinet.

AN ATTRACTIVE HOUSE.

The very attractive house which Dimock & Patten of Wollaston designed and built for Mrs. Cushing Lane, on Goffe street, Presidents hill, is completed, and the Carleton C. Lanes for whom it was built ,took possession the twentieth.

Dimock & Patten certainly deserve much credit for the very satisfactory manner in which they filled the contract, which was placed in their hands entire, from start to finish, from the breaking of the ground in October, to landing it over finished, and all ready for occupancy in February.

During the entire construction, not one alteration had to be made, quite a number of additions were asked for, in the way of closets ,and extras which in every instance were granted ,and every available inch of space has been utilized in the most desirable manner.

Twenty years' experience as first class builders enables them to select the most competent and reliable workmen, for all the different departments and the result has been a perfect model of home comfort and convenience, as well as entirely satisfactory to the owner.

LOCALS

Michael T .Sullivan and family of Baxter avenue are to leave the Point and take up their residence in the Webb estate on School street.

A. W. Brown of Washington street, who is now in Jacksonville, Florida, writes that he is having a great time in the Southern city.

Monday is town meeting day and the citizens and voters of the towns about Quincy will be having their say as to who shall administer their affairs during the coming year.

The many friends of John W. Walsh who underwent a surgical operation at the City Hospital Friday will be glad to learn that he is doing as well as could be expected.

The regular Lenten services were held in all the Catholic churches of the city last evening. The services consisted of stations of the cross and benediction.

Miss Susie Halloran of Wilson court, who was seriously injured in the railroad wreck at South Boston several weeks ago, has recovered sufficiently to be out of doors.

Several young men of Quincy Point are building a handsome 27 foot motor boat. They expect to have it in the water the first of May.

John Worth of Provincetown, Mass., who learned his trade as pattern maker at the Fore River, and then went to Philadelphia to work, has returned to Quincy and has accepted a position in the Fore River Company.

The streets and corners at the Point this afternoon reminded one of the good old summer time. The Fore River men started their Saturday half-holiday today and the balmy weather caused them to gather in groups on the corners as if it was summer.

Francis R. Mullen, Boston College '00, a well-known Boston attorney and Knights of Columbus man ,addressed the local Council K. of C., last evening, after the business of the regular meeting. The subject of Mr. Mullen's talk was "The Church and her children and the March of Civilization."

The Washington Social club held its regular weekly whist party Friday evening at the clubhouse on Washington street. There were about twenty tables in play and the scores were high. After the whist refreshments were served.

☞Barge St. Nicholas is unloading coal at the wharf of C. Patch & Son, so customers will have no trouble in replenishing their winter supply.

THE
Young Men's Christian Association OF QUINCY, MASS.
(Legal Title—Incorporated 1892.)

The Directors of the YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION of Quincy, with a firm faith in the great value of the work which is being done for the young men and boys of our city, make their appeal for donations and bequests toward paying the mortgage indebtedness on the new Association Building. When the building is free from debt it will serve as an Endowment, as there is a goodly income from the dormitories.

Should the Donor prefer, such sum as might be given could be used as an Endowment for an educational class or classes, the Boys Department, or as a special fund in other ways, and could be designated with the name of the Donor.

The Treasurer, WILLIAM F. CUMMINGS, 7 Clive Street, Quincy, or the General Secretary, ERNEST G. GAY, will be happy to answer inquiries.

OUR HOSPITAL

(Legal Title: City Hospital of Quincy)

INCORPORATED 1889

The Trustees of the City Hospital of Quincy earnestly appeal for donations and bequests for the Endowment fund. This now amounts to over $60,000. but a fund of at least $100,000 is urgently needed

Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000) will endow a Free Bed to which such name may be given as the Donor may desire, but any sum for this noble institution which stands ready to serve us all in the hour of need, will be most gratefully received.

The Secretary, TIMOTHY REED, Adams St., Quincy, or the Treasurer, RICHARD D. CHASE Savings Bank Building, Quincy, will be very glad to confer with any one or to answer any inquiries.

AGAIN THE DOG.

Editor of Daily Ledger:

The owners of dogs in this city are counting the days before the seventh of March ,when their animals may breathe freely once more. A muzzle as applied usually is a torture and being tied is misery scarcely to be endured. One who loves dogs and has dealt with thousands says that she would prefer that a dog be killed rather than muzzled or tied for any length of time. It is extreme cruelty to animals and should be resorted to only when the need is extreme. The year that is ending has had too many months of such treatment and a release is hailed with joy and the hope that it may not be renewed for a long time.

The lapsing of the edict cannot alter facts however. There are too many uncared for dogs. When a dog is without a collar or what is perhaps worse, when he wears a collar with no name or license number to furnish identification, when he is not missed from home for three days, as is the case not infrequently, there is cause for some interference for the safety of the animal as well as for society. Anyone who owns a cow, horse, pig, dog, cat, hen, pigeon or any animal whatever must so care for it as to reduce to a minimum the chance of injury to any other creature or thing. If all human beings had hearts filled with love for other humans and for animals, life would be very easy, but even in ideal conditions, ownership carries an obligation that cannot be shifted or escaped.

Moreover, many people who try to overcome it, have a deep and awful fear of certain animals. Many others have pet interests and sacrifice much to them, if it be a garden, no money can pay for injury done by cow, horse, dog, cat or hens. If the pet be a cat, no dog should be able to tease or injure it. If one owns hens, chickens or birds, no cat should be permitted to injure them. No less in case of cow, horse ,cat or hen than of dog should the owner be held responsible for all harm done to it. The law as it stands is excellent if it can be enforced but the people who through indifference, carelessness or a worse motive pay little heed to law make it of small use. The misfortune is that because so many disregard law all suffer greater penalties.

The dog is a protector. If these columns were thrown open for Quincy people to narrate experiences, there would be little else in the paper than stories of dogs which warned away burglars, gave alarm of fire, rescued from drowning and saved life and property in other ways. A good dog is almost a necessary adjunct to the home. That dog should be trained to guard the home and his whereabouts and condition be known at all times by his owner. Rabies is extremely rare. In a recent address given in the Park Street church, Boston ,by Mrs. Anna Harris Smith, that noble woman, who is wearing out her life in the great work of the Animal Rescue League, she stated that among the twenty thousand dogs that had come to them, under all circumstances many of them in wretched condition only one case of rabies had been found. This covers a period of ten years. Many dogs have been under suspicion but it has proven to be indigestion, fits or some similarly violent sickness.

It is a difficult matter to handle. One case of rabies neglected is awful in its consequences and far-reaching in its results. Hence there should be a wholesome fear of the disease all should read carefully the printed statements on the back of license issued and those who have no dogs to license should get this information from the city clerk. The danger is scarcely less from the over fear that throws timid, nervous people into convulsions and often causes death .

Al Watts ,the well-known dog catcher of Boston said that he had been bitten many times by dogs, that he paid no attention to a dog bite and his friend ,a policeman, added that he would far rather be bitten by a dog than a man, as happens frequently in making an arrest and to this Mr. Watts agreed. More frequently are doctors, undertakers, meat cutters and men in like employments, even the boy with the Fourth of July spirit, liable to death by tetanus, than is any class of individuals liable to rabies. Let us try to be sensible and take proper care of ourselves and our animals and make unnecessary the jail and hospital for humans and the chain, muzzle and pistol for the dog.

MILTON.

There is in all 67 articles for the annual town meeting next Monday. Many of the articles are for the appropriation of money for the several departments of the town and for the location of new street lights. Among the other matters are articles to see if the town will purchase a new piece of fire apparatus to take the place of the present chemical engine; to see what action the town will take on accepting the provisions of the acts of 1904 relative to the pensioning of permanent men of the police and fire departments; and the act of 1908 relative to vacations of members of the police department.

Then there are articles relative to the collection of ashes and garbage, extending the water mains, extending the sewerage system; to amend the town by-laws so that polls shall be opened at six o'clock in the morning instead of seven o'clock; to see if the town will authorize the appointment of a committee of three to investigate the feasibility and legality of an art commission for the town and to see if the town will apropriate $737.41 to refund an assessment made for betterments of a sidewalk the Superior court having rendered a verdict against the town.

A number of nomination papers have been filled for town officers to be voted for at the annual meeting next Monday. These include the papers of Winthrop L. Carpenter, Frederick P. Hall, and J. Merrill Browne for selectmen, Frank P. Fanning for school committee, and Percy E. Bates for auditor.

The Thursday evening club will not hold any social events during Lent.

Special Lenton services are to be held at the Mission of Our Saviour church during Lent.

It now looks that after many long months of waiting East Milton is to have that new freight station it has so often asked for.

Officials of the Milton post office were among those who inspected the new post office building at Quincy this week; Milton only wishes that she had one as good.

John E. Westerberg of Otis street has been awarded a silver medal by the Massachusetts Human society for the rescue of a little girl from drowning at Naushon last summer.

Milton school children are having an exhibition this afternoon at the High school of plants.

Miss Annie Johnstone and Miss Margaret Robertson, both of East Milton, entered the girl's half mile race in the skating carnival at Brae-Burn rink, Newton, on Monday afternoon, Miss Johnsone taking first place and Miss Robertson second.

—Norwood women are to be allowed to vote after all for new voting lists have been printed with their names on and the clerk's error rectified.

☞J. F. Sheppard & Sons have just received cargoes of fresh mined coal and are ready to supply any variety at short notice.

ACCOUNTS ARE $19,500 SHORT

Cashier of Woodsville National Bank Is Arrested

HELD OFFICE TWELVE YEARS

Irregularities Which Are Supposed to Have Been Going on For a Long Period Discovered Through Simultaneous Visit of National Bank Examiner and State Bank Commissioners—Secures $10,000 Bail

Woodsville, N. H., Feb. 27.—A new face at the cashier's window of the Woodsville National bank and a brief announcement in the local paper were the first intimations given the residents of this town that Herbert W. Allen, cashier of the bank since its incorporation twelve years ago, was under arrest, charged with embezzlement.

An examination of the bank's books disclosed the fact that the cashier's accounts were $19,500 short, and in a statemnt made to the directors of the institution Allen is alleged to have admitted the responsibility for the shortage.

The shortage was discovered through a simultaneous visit of National Bank Examiner Bean and three state bank commissioners, who uncovered the true condition of the bank by preventing the cashier from operating a plan by which, it is said, the trouble had been covered up. This plan, it is alleged, consisted in offering as bank paper securities taken from private compartments in the bank's safety deposit vaults and belonging to individual depositors.

Allen was arrested by United States Marshal Nute and taken before the United States commissioner at Littleton, on the specific charge of embezzlement of $4000 of the bank's funds. He pleaded not guilty and was released in bonds of $10,000.

It is understood that the alleged embezzlements have been going on for several years, and that the misapplied funds have been put into Allen's personal purchases of western land company stocks.

According to officials of the bank, the loss to the institution will be exceedingly small, if there is any loss at all. Allen was bonded to the extent of $10,000 by a surety company, and he has turned over to the bank holdings of western land stocks.

It is understood that the officials of the Woodsville Guaranty Savings bank, which was located in the same quarters as the national bank, were partially responsible for the latest investigation of the national bank's books. Allen was a trustee of the savings bank, although not active in its management, and was elected to office on borrowed stock in order that he might serve in advisory capacity.

Allen is also the treasurer of the town of Haverhill, of which Woodsville is a precinct, and in addition, he is treasurer of the Woodsville precinct. His town accounts for 1908 were returned a few days ago and are said to be correct.

The Woodsville National bank was organized twelve years ago by Allen, who came here from St. Johnsbury, Vt. Previous to Allen's advent, the bank was a small trust company. Allen was elected cashier of the reorganized institution and occupied the position up to Thursday, when Jerry Abbott was elected as his successor.

POLICE SAY MURDER

Remains of Widow and Her Four Children Found In Burned Home

Bakersfield, Cal., Feb. 27.—Mrs. Minnie Beekman, a widow, and her four children were burned to death in their home near here. The police say they were murdered and that the house was fired. The children were from 6 to 14 years old.

The charred bodies were found in bed. The half consumed mattress on which Mrs. Beekman had slept was covered with what appears to be bloodstains.

Mrs. Beekman's husband died a year ago. He had two children by a former wife. To these he left $100 each and bequeathed the remainder of his $75,000 estate to his widow and her four children.

CRETIC IS UNINJURED

Liner's Plates Not Dented by Coming In Contact With Harbor Bottom

Boston, Feb. 27.—The big White Star line steamer Cretic was not damaged when she grounded off Fort Warren last Tuesday night. The ship was placed in dry dock Friday afternoon and the examination showed that her plates are intact.

It is probable that hereafter the big liners will not attempt to enter the harbor after nightfall.

The Business World

New York, Feb. 27.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly Review of Trade says that although the cuts in steel add some confusion to the existing weakness in the iron and copper trades, and have brought about a sharp decline in the security market, yet the reassertion of the law of supply and demand must prove ultimately helpful to the business situation, however disturbing the immediate effects.

LOSS OF TEN NUMBERS

Court Martial Sentence of Qualtrough Approved by Newberry

Washington, Feb. 27.—Secretary Newberry has approved that portion of the sentence of the court-martial which sentenced Captain Edward F. Qualtrough of the battleship Georgia to a loss of ten numbers in rank, following a trial at Gibraltar on charges of intoxication and conduct unbecoming an officer.

CAPTAIN QUALTROUGH.

That portion of the sentence suspending Qualtrough from duty for six months, which was approved by Admiral Sperry, required no action by the navy department.

JEWS IN NEW YORK

Delegates Representing Nearly a Million Are Planning Organization

New York, Feb. 27.—Delegates representing the hundreds of thousands of persons of Jewish faith in New York will meet tonight in the building of the United Hebrew Charities to advance the project of an organization that will look after their interests.

The call for the meeting speaks of "the need of the unification of the various elements of the Jewish population of New York, which has reached the aggregate of almost 1,000,000 persons, and of bringing about harmony and a proper sense of solidarity in place of the deplorable conditions which now exist."

ALDERMEN KIND TO THEMSELVES

Grabbed Paying Positions Under Their Own Jurisdiction

Waterbury, Conn., Feb. 27.—Judge Wheeler of the superior court handed down a decision removing Deputy Building Inspector Robert Mackie from office on the ground that Mackie, while a member of the board of aldermen, which elects to the position, voted for himself.

As a result of the decision several other city officers, it is said, will be affected, several members of the board of aldermen having had themselves appointed to paying positions under the jurisdiction of the board, which Wheeler holds illegal, on the ground of public policy.

POLICEMAN ON HIS JOB

Makes Clever Capture of Italian Suspected of Double Murder

New York, Feb. 27.—John Barbuoto was taken into custody here, charged with the brutal murder of two men and the assault of a woman at Middletown, N. Y., on Jan. 26.

The arrest was made by Patrolman Henry Spitz of Union Hill, N. J. He was on duty there on Feb. 14 when he heard a group of Italians talking.

One boasted of a double murder and an assault he had committed in Middletown, and Spitz had this man trailed to a house in this city. Then he set about verifying the man's story and this verification happened yesterday.

Spitz disguised himself as a painter and went to the house in "Little Italy" where his man was. His disguise enabled him to gain entry to the man's apartment where, after a brief struggle, he overpowered Barbuoto and placed him under arrest.

LIFE SENTENCE IMPOSED

Burglar Convicted of Second Offense Feels Heavy Hand of the Law

New York, Feb. 27.—For the first time in New York county a life sentence was imposed on a man convicted of burglary.

Judge Malone, in general sessions, imposed this sentence upon Samuel Goldberg, who with a "pal" robbed the apartment of Charles E. Bailey, and was convicted of burglary in the first degree as a second offense.

His companion received a twenty-year sentence.

ROOT TALKS UPON PEACE

Given Remarkable Demonstration at Banquet

DECLAMATION OF THE DEMIGOD

This, Together With Interested Exhortations of the Politician and Hot Temper of the Inconsiderate, the Chief Obstacles to Justice—United States Far From Free From Being Guilty of Causes of War

New York, Feb. 27.—The peace society of New York brought together around the banquet board at the Hotel Astor last night a most notable gathering of men prominent in national, state and city affairs. The dinner was in honor of Senator-Elect Root of New York. Joseph H. Choate was toastmaster. President-Elect Taft, Governor Hughes, James Bryce, the British ambassador; Baron Takahira, ambassador from Japan, and Joaquin Nabuco, Brazilian ambassador, were the speakers, and the guests numbered about 800.

Among these 800 were many prominent citizens of New York, representative of all the arts, professions and industries. It was a brilliant scene when the guests took their places at the tables in the big ball room.

Mr. Root was given a remarkable demonstration when he made his way to the speaking pulpit. The diners stood up and while the orchestra played a fanfare they applauded and cheered the former secretary for some time.

"Peace can never be except as it is founded upon justice," said Mr. Root, "and it rests with us in our own country to see to it that the idea of justice prevails and prevails against the declamation of the demigod, against the interested exhortations of the politician, against the hot temper of the fop and of the inconsiderate.

"It is essential that we should promote and insist upon the willingness of our country to do justice to all countries of the earth. In the exercise of those duties in which the ambassadors of Great Britain, of Brazil, and of Japan have played so great a part in the last few years in Washington, the great obstacle to the doing of things which make for peace has been the inconsiderate and thoughtless unwillingness of the great body of the people of the respective countries to stand behind the man who was willing, for the sake of peace and justice, to make fair concessions.

"War comes today as the result ether of actual or threatening wrong by one country to another, or as the result of a suspicion by one country that another intends to do it wrong; and upon that suspicion, instinct leads the country that suspects the attack to attack first; or, from bitterness of feeling, dependent in no degree whatever upon substantial questions of difference and that bitterness of feeling, leads to the suspicion, and the suspicion in the minds of the suspect and who entertains the bitter feeling is justification for war. It is their justification to themselves.

"The least of these three causes of war is actual injustice. In this country of ours, we are far from free from being guilty of these great causes of war. The gentlemen who introduced into the legislatures of California, Montana and Nevada, the legislation regarding the treatment of the Japanese in those states doubtless had no conception of the fact that they were doing an injury by an insult that would bring on private war in many private relations in our own country. But the wiser heads and the sounder hearts, instructed and enlightened upon the true nature of the proceedings, prevailed and overcame the inconsiderate and thoughtless.

"No one can fail to see that the continuous and unswerving tendency of human development is towards peace and the love of mankind."

JURY TO TRY OIL CASE

Nine of the Men Tentatively Accepted Are Retired Merchants

Chicago, Feb. 27.—The jury in the re-trial of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, for alleged acceptance of rebates from the Chicago and Alton railroad on shipments of oil, was completed tentatively at the end of Friday's session, but the government and the defendant corporation reserve the right to re-examine the men in the jury box when court reconvenes on Monday.

Of the twelve men in the box, three are retired farmers and the others are retail merchants. Five are Chicago men.

King Edward Holds Court

London, Feb. 27.—Many presentations of Americans were made at the court held last night by King Edward and Queen Alexandra at Buckingham palace. It being the first of the season, the function was largely of a diplomatic and official nature.

Paris Feb. 27.—The governor of Indo-China declares in a cablegram received here that the Tonkin troops have defeated the Dethan pirates at Yentha.

$25,280 IN PRIZES

Ninety Cities Represented In Bowling Tournament at Pittsburg

Pittsburg, Feb. 27.—With the fall of the first balls on the bowling alleys in Duquesne Gardens tonight the greatest event in the history of bowling in America will commence. It will be the opening of the ninth annual tournament of the American bowling congress, which will continue in session until March 20. The leading players of the game that is now generally recognized as the greatest of winter pastimes will compete in the tournament. Ninety cities in the United States are represented in the entry list.

The number of entries for the tournament is 2137, and it is estimated that fully 20,000 games will be rolled on the specially built alleys. Prizes amounting to $25,280 will be awarded.

Preparations have been made by the city to take care of the 50,000 visitors who are expected to attend the congress. Hundreds have arrived for the opening night, and as the game is very popular here and practically all its followers have signified their intention of being present at the first game Duquesne Gardens will certainly be crowded to the limit.

FIXING UP BALLROOM

Elaborate Electrical and Floral Display In the Pension Building

Washington, Feb. 27.—In preparation for the inaugural ball on the evening of March 4, the transformation has begun of the big, barn-like court of the pension building, the largest brick building, it is said, in the world, into a veritable fairyland.

The decorations for the ball alone will cost about $20,000. This does not include the framework on which the decorations will be hung, which will total several thousands more. In the electrical display between 7000 and 10,000 incandescent electric lights and miles of wire will be used.

In the floral scheme there will be used 2000 blooming plants, 300 cases of southern smilax and hundreds of growing American beauties and crimson rambler plants, in addition to hundreds of dozens of cut flowers.

STRAIN TOO SEVERE FOR NAVAL CAPTAIN

Hutchins Said to Be In Pitiable Mental Condition

Washington, Feb. 27.—Captain Hamilton Hutchins, who was relieved of his command of the battleship Kearsarge by Admiral Sperry just before the fleet left Gibraltar, is to be examined by a special medical board which will look into his mental and physical condition. His mental condition is said to be most pitiful.

It was because of the great nervousness under which Hutchins labored that, at his own request, he was relieved of his command. His condition is believed to be due to the great strain and responsibilities incident to the voyage around the world.

Admiral Sperry says that there were no charges against the captain, his relief being due entirely to his nervous condition.

A HANDLESS WONDER

Sutton Will Try Conclusions With Cue Against Young Demarest

Milwaukee, Wis., Feb. 27.—One of the most interesting of billiard matches will be the one played at the Milwaukee Athletic club tonight between Calvin Demarest, the former amateur champion of the United States, and George H. Sutton, "the handless wonder." The game will be played at 18.2 balk line, in which both contestants are adepts.

Demarest is frequently hailed as the coming champion of the world. He is only 21 years of age and won the amateur championship twice before entering the professional ranks. Sutton is one of the best billiard players in America, despite the handicap of the loss of his hands in a buzzsaw accident. He has met and defeated some very good men with the cue. He holds his cue close to his body with the stump of the right arm, guiding it with the stump of the left, the right moving the cue when he is ready to shoot. He makes frequent use of the bridge.

MALE UNDERGRADUATES WIN

Wesleyan University Trustees Abolish Co-education In That Institution

New York, Feb. 27.—Co-education at Wesleyan university at Middletown, Conn., was abolished at a special meeting here of the trustees of that institution.

The action was taken after a prolonged discussion and is the result of the long continued opposition of the male undergraduates of the institution.

A proposition to establish a separate college for women was referred to a special committee.

Sundry Civil Appropriations

Washington, Feb. 27.—After having dragged along for a week, the sundry civil appropriation bill, carrying in the aggregate $137,000,000, was passed by the house last night with numerous material amendments. The debate on the measure at times waxed warm.

Inauguarting A President

ing the election of Rutherford B. Hayes marred the gayety of the inauguration festivities. On account of the uncertainty, though the formal exercises were held Monday, March 5, he took the oath of office privately in the red room on Sunday, March 4, Chief Justice Morrison Waite, successor to Justice Chase ,administering it.

General Garfield's mother was the first mother of a President to hear her son's inaugural address. She received his first kiss after his lips had pressed the Bible in taking the oath of the presidential office.

March 4, 1909, there will assemble in the Senate chamber of the capitol the incoming and outgoing executives, the Supreme Court, the remnant of the Senate, which will be only two-thirds as large as it was in the morning, the terms of one-third of the senators having expired at noon; the heads of the army and navy, many state governors, ambassadors and ministers from foreign lands and representatives both new and old. The oath of office will be administered to the new Vice President, who will read a short address. The new senators will also pledge themselves to perform their duties according to the Constitution. All then move to the east portico of the capitol, in front of which the great crowd waits to see the new President take his oath and read his inaugural address.—Boston Courier.

A Shyster and a Widow.

[Copyright, 1908, by T. C. McClure.]

Leonidas Johnson was a shyster lawyer. The widow Henderson was the homeliest widow in the county and ready to make money by hook or by crook. By crook was the easier.

Mr. Johnson had had his shingle out for only a month when the widow walked in on him to have him draw up a legal paper. They recognized each other as kindred spirits at the first glance. The lawyer said to himself that his caller was the homeliest woman on the continent, but she might be able to assist him, and the widow said he was the trickiest looking lawyer she ever met, but they might be able to do business together. At that first meeting they simply sized each other up. A few days later the shyster appeared at her farm, and before he left they had gone into partnership. As a next move the following advertisement was inserted in the village paper:

For Sale.—The widow Henderson will sell cheap for cash a strong, healthy working horse at about half its value. Apply on the premises. Widowers given the preference.

There were at least ten widowers in that end of the county, and each and every one of them had humiliated the widow by turning his back on her. Without this invitation not a man of the ten would have dared to face her again. Now they proceeded to call, as did several old bachelors and married men. They found a horse, and he was a strong and healthy horse, but the half price even proved to be a greater sum than they wanted to pay. In other words, the widow valued a $150 horse at $400. Of course each one spent an hour in talking. This took place in the house instead of the barn, and no third person was present.

For four weeks that half priced horse was on sale, with no takers. During that time thirty men had called and had interviews. Nothing had been heard from Leonidas Johnson, but he was sawing wood just the same. When all was ready he began sending out letters requesting their recipients to call at his office on important business. Farmer Jackson was the first one to appear. He was a widower, and once upon a time he had descended from his wagon at the widow's door and entered the house with the intention of telling her how lonely his hearthstone was and of asking her to come along and brighten it up. As he stood face to face with the woman, however, language failed him. He couldn't even ask her if she had raised any potatoes to sell. She hurled words and missiles after him as he went away, but he didn't kick. He was only too glad to come away with his life. He was one of those who had returned to look at the horse, and when the widow had invited him into the house to drink a glass of cider and talk he had gone willingly and humbly.

Mr. Jackson was rather anxious to ascertain what important business the lawyer had with him, and he was not left long in doubt. He was met with a smile and a handshake and then courteously addressed with:

"My dear man, I simply wanted to ask you a question. Does your marriage with the widow Henderson come off next week, as slated? I am her attorney, you know, and I want to put certain things in order."

"My marriage with who?" shouted the farmer.

"With the widow Henderson."

"Why, I wouldn't marry that woman if she was the last female on earth! What are you talking about?"

"You called on her on the 7th of last month, I believe?" queried the lawyer as he consulted a list.

"Yes, but that was about a horse."

"Exactly. And you entered the house and had a long talk with her. You said you were a lone widower. You said that there must be some woman in this world that would be glad to bring sunshine into your life, and you looked right at the widow when you said it."

"Never! I never said no tarnashun thing! All I said was that she asked too much for the horse, and mebbe we said something about the weather and the crops."

"Sorry, Mr. Jackson, that you take this view of it. The widow understands that the marriage is to take place next Wednesday. It will be a great disappointment to her, and of course her only recourse is the law. I shall have to serve the papers on you in a breach of promise case, with damages laid at $25,000."

"But I never asked her to marry me!"

"No? Well, we will have to prove that you are a very absentminded man and are also given to sudden fits of emotion."

Farmer Jackson went away swearing that he'd fight the case to the bitter end, but in three days' time he was back and offering $250 to settle, which offer was accepted. His case was only one out of nineteen. Every widower and old bachelor for ten miles around was brought into it, and not one stood a suit. Some paid as high as $300 to settle, and some got off with $50. When the pot had been raked in the widow leaned forward and said to the shyster, with a glint in her eye:

"Now, then, you either marry me, according to promise, or I'll sue you and attach this money!"

"But my fee for what I have done just equals the amount here, and you won't get a dollar of it!" he replied.

Then they looked at each other and laughed and whacked up even, and both felt they had got square with the world at large. M. QUAD.

For the Ledger.

LETTER FROM THE CAPITAL.

Since I last wrote President-elect Taft and the distinguished engineers who accompanied him to Panama have returned and made their report and the President in turn has sent a message to congress confirming the information that has already been given that the lock type of canal is the only one approved by the engineers and the President-elect who, after a very careful study of the ground have expressed their preference for this type rather than for the sea level canal. The President has sent a special message to congress on the subject in which he characterizes further advocacy of the less desirable and more expensive sea level canal as "foolish."

The President-elect has made it known that he will after the inauguration, call congress in special session to be assembled on March the 15th.

The apparently petty complications standing in the way of Senator Knox of Pennsylvania, to his acceptance of the highest cabinet office under the new president, have been swept away by special enactment of congress and there now appears to be no doubt that he will be the secretary of state under the new administration.

The President-elect has returned to his Cincinati home, while Mrs. Taft, it is understood, is adding to her ward-robe in New York.

Only about ten legislative days and nights remain for this congress and there are a number of important appropriation bills not yet enacted. There has been filibustering in the senate and threats of filibustering in the house. The house is restless and even recalcitrant under the despotism of Speaker Cannon. There is much talk among the insurgents and mutterings of revolts from both democrats and republicans. The same condition prevails in the senate, where Senator La Follette of Wisconsin is effectively protesting against the autocracy of Aldrich, Hale, Penrose and Gallinger.

During the week he has successfully resisted Senator Hale, who attempted the immediate passage of the naval appropriation bill, and also Senator Penrose, who attempted to rush the post office bill through without debate. Mr. La Follette began with arguments against the general policy of withholding appropriation bills until it was too late for other senators to inquire into them. This led Senator Penrose of Pennsylvania to ask, with sarcasm, if the senate had to be compelled to listen to another Chatauqua lecture.

Mr. La Follette, unmindful of the interruption, continued with his remarks and intimated that Penrose had not given enough attention to the preparation of the post office budget and that the measure had not been properly prepaired. Then Mr. Penrose arose in wrath and in a few moments there was a sensation, recognized both on the senate floor and in the galleries. His arraignment was bitter and he concluded it with the remark that Mr. La Follette's arguments "might better be made by a vendor of patent medicines from the tail end of a cart in some obscure village in Wisconsin than by a senator of the United States."

It became evident yesterday that the plans for the conservation of the natural resources of the country had passed the experimental stage and have become continental instead of national, inasmuch as Canada and Mexico are giving enthusiastic cooperation to the great enterprise.

These facts became apparent in the opening address of President Roosevelt this week in the east room of the White house and the sentiment was strengthened later in the day in the state department by speeches made by representatives from other governments. In these speeches, it was recognized that international streams are affected by cutting forests on either side of the boundary and that conservation plans, to be effective, must be international.

Mr. Hepburn of Iowa, one of the most capable and influencial members of the lower house, attacked the house rules this week and referring to a plank in the last national democratic platform, denouncing the rules of the house as at present enforced, said: "I am one of those who would condemn the ten commandments if by some accident the democratic party should adopt them.

"For fifty years it has been my duty to criticize the democratic party, but this particular plank is consoling to my soul." After Colonel Hepburn's speech, Speaker Cannon agreed to make a concession to the house insurgents by setting apart a day each week for the consideration of bills on the calendar. This is one of the principal privileges demanded by the insurgents.

Bilious Troubles

Bile causes no end of trouble. Sick headaches, bilious attacks, jaundice, constipation and many distressing ailments arise from an excess of bile, or from obstruction of the bile duct. Inactivity, sedentary occupations and indiscretion in feeding and drinking are bile blunders that need to be guarded against. When the liver is disordered the best bile correctives are because they relieve the overworked liver, and gently stimulate it when it is sluggish. These pills control the flow of bile, restore its right consistency, and work for the immediate and lasting benefit of the stomach, bowels and blood. Whenever a furred tongue, dull, yellowish eyes, nausea, or headache indicate bilious conditions, use Beecham's Pills at once, to correct the bile and

BEECHAM'S PILLS

LOCALS.

John R. Arnold left Boston this noon for California en route for the Philippine Islands.

Louis Conroy who has been assistant at the New England Telephone Co., office in Weymouth has been transferred to the Quincy office.

The executive committee of the Quincy Yacht club are considering the matter of a defender for the Quincy Yacht club challenge cup in the races to be held this summer.

A regular meeting of the City Council will be held Monday evening. One of the important matters to come up will be a public hearing on the site for the proposed new school building at Houghs Neck.

A new bible class for men is to be formed Sunday at 12.15 in connection with the Wollaston Baptist Sunday school under the direction of the new pastor, Rev. Joseph Walther who also will serve as teacher. Any men young or old who are not now members of any other Sunday school are cordially invited to join this class. It is the intention of the Pastor to organize this class later for social and literary purposes and to make it a strong centre of social and religious influence.

Members of W. R. C. 103 and Comrades of G. A. R. met last evening with Mrs. Elberta Hewson at her home on Newcomb street to observe Washington's birthday. Mrs. Eliza Penniman said it was a sad occasion as the little daughter of the beloved president Mrs. Fletcher had passed away, but the invitations had been issued and all plans made so the meeting could not well be postponed. As it was a patriotic gathering it showed no disrespect to the president. There was scripture reading by the Corps chaplain Mrs. Holton, followed by appropriate readings and sining. Refreshments were served.

TODAY'S COURT.

John J. Cotter was arraigned for non support at Milton. He was ordered to contribute $10 a week for the support of his family.

—It seems the fashion at Houghs Neck to organize clubs. The young boys have banded together and have called their club the Houghs Neck Young Boys' Christian Association Eugene P. LaBrecque was elected president, Fred Baird, vice president and Wallace Coughlan, secretary and treasurer.

REACHING THE SPOT.

It Can Be Done, So Scores of Quincy Citizens Say.

To cure an aching back,
The pains of rheumatism,
The tired-out feelings,
You must reach the spot—get at the cause.
In most cases 'tis the kidneys.
Doan's Kidney Pills are for the kidneys.

Jas. C. Dunn, living at 508 Washington street, Quincy, Mass., says: "For some time I was afflicted with lumbago. My back ached constantly and I could hardly get about the house. The constant aching gave me so much trouble that my nervous system became all unstrung and I had about dispaired of ever getting anything that would cure me when Doan's Kidney Pills were brought to my attention. I procured a supply at the Cox Drug Store, began their use and after a short time, I received more belief than from all the other remedies combined. I can say my trouble has vanished and I gladly recommend Doan's Kidney Pills."

AMUSEMENTS.

Keith's Theatre.

Next week Mr. Keith will add another to the long list of stars of the first magnitude that have been appearing at Keith's theatre this season, in Jefferson De Angelis, the comic opera star who has always been a great favorite in Boston. His vaudeville venture has been one series of successes. He was especially engaged for the opening at Keith's hippodrome in Cleveland at the head of one of the biggest bills ever given in the west, a musical comedy being especially written for him with an excellent supporting company.

The bill will be remarkable for the number of acts seen in Boston for the first time, all of them in the headline class. Among these will be Long Acre Quartette; Harry B. Lester, and Hugh J. and Hildred Emmett. Others are the Josettis and their Lilliputians: Edgar Allen & Co.; Anderson and Goines; the Flying Martins and some special attractions to be announced later.

Boston Theatre.

The historic Boston theatre will house an attraction next week that is very closely associated with its fame. This is "Way Down East," under the management of William A. Brady, which has played several memorable engagements there. In making a revival of this famous old play, for the benefit of Boston theatregoers, Mr. Brady has re-engaged Miss Phoebe Davies, Ulric Blair Collins, Ella Hugh Wood, John E. Brennan, Mabel Strickland, James T. Galloway, and other players who have been seen there in their respective roles many times. Miss Davies, the original Anna Moore, has played the part nearly five thousand times, and several of the others are not far behind her. The house has been repainted, refurnished, and everything done to make this the most comfortable theatre in Boston, as well as the largest. Matinee performances will be given on Wednesdays and Saturdays, at 2 o'clock, and the sale of seats for "Way Down East" is now on. Special attention will be paid to mail orders, when accompanied by check or draft, and the seats placed away in the order in which the requests are received. Surface cars on Washington street pass the door, and the theatre is easy of access by the Subway from the North and South Stations.

Castle Square Theatre.

Once more, after two long months of "The Circus Girl," which had a run and a success hitherto unknown in the history of the Castle Square theatre the John Craig Stock Company will return to drama. "Old Heidelberg," the familiar play of German college life made famous in this country by Richard Mansfield will be given, and in it Mr. Craig will assume the role of Prince Karl Heinrich that he has already acted with no little success on more than one occasion here in Boston. "Old Heidelberg" is one of the most popular romantic plays of the day, and it has been received with great favor in England and in Germany as well as in this country. The scenic display representing the prince's apartments in the castle at Karlsberg, the inn garden at Heidelberg, and the interior of the inn, will be especially interesting. "Old Heidelberg" will run at the Castle Square only one week.

Orpheum Theatre.

Lawrence Irving the son of the late Henry Irving and his wife Mabel Hackney will make their American debute in vaudeville at the Orpheum theatre next week. Mr. Irving's father was conceded to be the greatest actor of his time and his son is today recognized as one of the leading exponents of the dramatic art in England. But Mr. and Mrs. Irving will not be the only settled feature of the wonderful bill. The break-neck aerialists, Delmore & Lee are considered America's foremost athletes. They will be seen in an original novelty "Study of Black and White." The musical end of the program will be swelled by Stuart Kollins & Carmen Sisters, banjo solos and ensemblies. The balance of the bill will be made up of other novelty acts that have made their way to the top rung of the vaudeville ladder.

Gaiety Theatre.

The next attraction at the Gaiety theatre will be Fred Irwin's big show which will open a week's engagement beginning with a matinee Monday. This combination of entertainers is considered the cleverest organization along the line of the burlesque wheel this season. A host of novelties in the shape of musical numbers, up-to-date songs, marches with pretty girls, and funny comedians are some of the good things promised by the management. The opening feature is a musical skit in one act entitled, "The Great White Way," followed by a strong Clio of Vaudeville artists. The Gaiety continues to grow in the favor of many hundreds in search of a light and refined burlesque and vaudeville show especially the ladies on shopping tours. It is really one of the prettiest and best conducted places of amusement in New England.

—The Dedham Historical society will celebrate the 50th anniversary of its organization on Wednesday afternoon and evening, March 3. A loan exhibition of interesting relics will be formally opened at three o'clock in the afternoon by the President, Julius H. Tuttle, and the former President, Don Gleason Hill: and will remain open until six o'clock. Rev. James DeNormandie, D. D., will deliver an historical address in the evening at the First church at 7.45 o'clock; and there will be music appropriate to the occasion, in charge of Arthur W. Thayer.
